POPE ASKS FRANCE AND BELGIUM TO END COERCION IN RUHR

He Instructs Nuncios in Paris and Brussels to Appeal to Governments With View to Averting Rigorous Measures Pronounced Against Germany.

RECENTLY URGED END OF RESISTANCE

Envoys Said to Have Called on Cuno and to Have Charged Berlin With Responsibility for Duisburg Affair.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, July 7.—A semi-official communique was issued by the Vatican today as follows:

"The Holy See, which has already deplored the Duisburg outrage, becausesuch incidents render more difficult the work of pacification, has instructed the nuncios in Paris and Brussels to approach the respective Governments so that the rigorous measures proclaimed against Germany may be averted for the final purpose of obtaining an understanding between Germany, France and Belgium."

Pope Pius, in a letter to Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, made public on June 26, urged that nations consider the question of reparations "in that Christian spirit which does not separate the exigencies of justice from those of social charity." The letter also said, "It is just that creditors should have guarantees proportionate to the importance of their claims. * * * but we leave to them to consider if it is necessary to maintain to that end territorial occupations imposing grave sacrifices on the occupied countries."

Premier Poincare made a speech in the French Senate Friday saying the letter should have no political effect and that the Vatican could not deprive France of her due under the peace treaty.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 7.—The semiofficials news agency today published the following:

"It is learned from Rome that upon the receipt of the news that vigorous measures had been taken in the occupied German territories as the result of the Duisburg railway accident, the Curia has sent telegraphic instructions to the Nunciatures in Paris and Brussels to make representations to the French and Belgian Governments and to state that his Holiness expects no measures shall be taken which might lead to still further embitterment of feeling, with correspondingly painful consequences."

"Sabotage in the Ruhr can be explained as growing out of the excitement of a tortured people and as a questionable attempt at self-defense," is the opinion which Chancellor Cuno is reported semiofficially to have madeknown to Mgr. Pacelli, the papel uncio, in their closing conference last night.

The words are contained in a semiofficial communique which announces that the nuncio presented fully the Pope's views with regard to sabotage in the occupied areas of Germany. The communique adds that the Federal Government "agrees with the Holy See, however, in condemning every criminal use of force."

Mgr. Pacelli is reported to be preparing to return immediately to his residence in Munich.

Vatican Insists Clear-Cut Statement by Germany.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

BERLIN, July 7.—The Vatican insists on a clear declaration of Germany's position as a means of laying a foundation for peace in the Ruhr. Unsatisfied with statements thus far obtained, Pope Pius has wired Mgr. Pacelli, Papal Nuncio, to remain in Berlin for further negotiations.

This information comes from a Catholic source participating in the Vatican's efforts to settle the Ruhr impasse. The inside story of the four days' conversations is that the papal nuncio had explicit instructions to get a complete statement from Germany on sabotage and guarantees.

The Pope wants a written memo-

CONVICT WHIPPING BOSS SENTENCED TO 20-YEAR TERM

Thomas W. Higginbotham Is Convicted of Murder in Second Degree in Death of Boy in Florida.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAKE CITY, Fla., July 7.—Thomas W. Higginbotham was convicted of murder in the second degree here late this afternoon by the jury that heard evidence against him in connection with the death of Martin Tabert, North Dakota farm boy, who died after a beating administered by Higginbotham in a convict camp of the Putnam Lumber Co. at Clara, Dixie County, on Feb. 1, 1922. Higginbotham was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment. Pending appeal, he was released under $10,000 bond.

It was not until late afternoon that the case was submitted after a day consumed in the arguments of counsel and the Judge's charge. An hour and 20 minutes later, the verdict was returned.

Every effort had been made by the defense to show that Higginbotham had lashed Tabert no more than was authorized by law. But the State witnesses, who testified to 50 or more than 100 blows with the whip, apparently convinced the jury.

Whipping Caused Pneumonia.

Details of Tabert's death caused the Florida Legislature to forbid the use of the lash in prison camps and to order abolition of the convict leasing system.

During the trial the State charged Higginbotham with having whipped Tabert so severely that traumatic pneumonia resulted, causing death four days later.

The defense admitted the whipping, but contended it was "within the law," basing this on testimony that only eight to 10 lashes were struck. The Florida convict camp regulations permitted administering 10 lashes. The defense asserted Tabert died from lobar pneumonia.

Charges were made by defense counsel that one of the State's witnesses had been offered a bribe to testify and that a "slush fund" had been raised in North Dakota to aid in the prosecution and pamphlets distributed among witnesses to prejudice them.

Tabert was whipped while a convict in the lumber company's camp, on Jan. 27, 1922. The defense said he died on Feb. 2. G. Grimson, Assistant Attorney-General of North Dakota, investigated the death, spending several weeks in Florida. On his return to North Dakota he submitted his findings to the North Dakota Legislature, which approved a resolution calling upon the State of Florida to investigate.

Death Results in Reforms.

The Florida Legislature appointed a joint committee and the investigation that followed resulted in dismissal from office of Sheriff J. R. Jones and County Judge B. F. Willis of Leon County, who sentenced Tabert. Tabert was arrested for ridding a freight train and sentenced to three months.

Sheriff Jones admitted he had entered into an agreement with the lumber company to supply prisoners for $20 each.

The case of Tabert, who spent the last weeks of his life in a convict camp, although he had committed no crime, focused the country's attention on peonage conditions.

The story of the tragedy as presented by a New York World reporter who gathered all the details brought an investigation by the Legislature. This uncovered many other cases om brutality and revealed the system whereby lumber companies, with the aid of Sheriffs and Judges, recruited their convict labor.

As a result of the investigating commission's findings, and the pressure of public opinion, the Legislature passed measures abolishing whipping and practically abolishing the peonage system and its attendant abuses. About the same time, Higginbotham was indicted on a charge of murdering Tabert.

Indians Get 10 Cents a Day.

MEXICO CITY, July 8.—Twenty centavos or 10 cents in American money, is what the Indian workers of the Coixtlahuaca district, State of Oaxaca, earn in a 12-hour day, according to a report submitted to the Department of Industry and Commerce. These laborers make palm leaf hats.

PASSENGERS BROUGHT IN BY AUTO WHEN TRAIN IS DERAILED

'g Four Tracks Tied Up at Gard, Ill., When Locomotive Leaves Rails.

Many passengers on train 41 of the Big Four (C. C. C. & St. L.) Railway, the locomotive of which was derailed at Gard, Ill., 14 miles east of Granite City, about 6 p. m. yesterday, were brought into St. Louis by automobile. The train was expected to reach Union Station early today, although it was due there at 6:30 last night.

At the office of the road's dispatcher in Mattoon, Ill., it was said over long-distance telephone, that the accident was due to a broken rail, and occurred while the train was crossing from one track to another at a speed of about six miles an hour, and that no one on board was injured.

Both tracks were tied up, however, it was stated, and several trains of this road and the C. & E. I. were detoured over a branch line of the Big Four between East Alton and Hillsboro, Ill.

AUTO OF HOMICIDE SQUAD TO CARRY BELL FOR SIGNAL

Sirens Fail to Clear Way for Police Cars, Hoagland Says Experiments Show.

The automobile of the police homicide squad will be equipped this week with a large bell, similar to those used by the Fire Department, to warn traffic of its approach.

The department has been experimenting with various sirens, but Chief of Detectives Hoagland says sirens have had little effect in stopping traffic or opening a way for police cars.

On the other hand, Hoagland points out, pedestrians and operators of vehicles have learned to make way for vehicles carrying bells, such as fire apparatus and ambulances. So the bell will be used as an experiment by the homicide squad.

SAYS SOAP BREAKS DOWN CASTE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 7.—The caste system in India is being broken down by soap and good clothes, especially among the younger generation, the Rev. A. B. Coates, missionary for the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, said today. He recently returned to this country.

"Clean up a raw outcast lad from the villages," the Rev. Mr. Coates said, "and put him in a Brahmin school and he will not be shunned as people suppose. He will receive his full share of privileges, from participation in football games and hockey to boys' quarrels, without discrimination."

SEARCHERS FOR MISSING BALLOONISTS GIVE UP HOPE

Tug Crew Finds Uniforms and Equipment of Lieutenants Roth and Null Floating in Lake With Wreckage of Gas Bag—Faint Chance of Ship Rescue.

LOG INDICATES GALE OVERWHELMED THEM

Believed to Have Fought Vainly to Rise Above Storm — Honeywell of St. Louis Saw Them Being Swept Out Over Water.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, July 7.—All hope that Lieut. L. J. Roth and his aide, Lieut. T. B. Null, pilots of the missing navy balloon, A-6698, which left Indianapolis July 4, in the national elimination balloon race, were living was abandoned here tonight.

The crew of the tug Frank H Stanley found the aviators' uniforms, leather coats, log, records and charts entangled in the drifting, half inflated balloon bag about 22 miles south-southwest of Port Stanley, Ont., about noon today.

On all sides, the crew of the tug found evidences of a heroic struggle in mid-air. Evidently overtaken by terrific winds and an electrical storm, Roth and Null fought desperately to ship their ballast and rise above the gale. Somehow, the basket was ripped from the buffeted bag, which was found torn and water-logged.

Clothing Entangled in Ropes.

The log shows that the airmen had been sailing at an average height of 800 or 900 feet before the storm engulfed them. Then comes the significant item: "Threw 40 pounds of ballast overboard. Rose from 1200 to 2500 feet." Later on, just one word appears: "Broken."

Entangled in the ropes attached to the basket, were found the complete outfits of the aviators, leather coats and all, which, it is believed, they must have doffed before they leaped from the doomed ballon. A letter addressed to Roth and some pencilings on newspaper clippings also were found. "Am heading for —Canada," was the blurred scrawl written with an indelible pencil or one piece of newspaper.

The tug found the wrecked balloon about noon today after Capt John J. Cassin of the steamship Colonial notified authorities at Port Stanley of its presence in the lake.

Late this afternoon Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of naval aviation, Washington, requested the Aeromarine Airways, Inc., operating a fleet of flying boats between Cleveland and Detroit, to help in the search for the missing balloon and naval officers.

Basket Cut Clear From Balloon.

H. A. Bruno, vice president of the company, immediately tuned up the hydroplane "Nina" and started for Port Stanley at 4:40 p. m. with three newspaper men and with Pilot Shiller at the wheel. They sighted the Canadian shore at 5:20 p. m. They followed the shore 10 miles out, and at 5:55 landed alongside the tug Stanley, 22 miles southwest of Port Stanley. The Stanley had the A-6698 in tow. Bruno and the crew of the flying boat helped pull the balloon on board the Stanley. The tug already had the uniforms of Roth and Null on board.

The "Nina" cruised around in the vicinity for nearly an hour searching for trace of the missing officers, but in vain. The hydroplane then left for Cleveland, arriving here shortly before dark, bringing an envelope of the National Aeronautic Association of U. S. A., Washington, containing the official log of the naval balloon trip, water-soaked and almost undecipherable, personal papers addressed to Lieut. Roth, a pair of gauntlets, a leather coat and an American flag.

Bruno said the ropes which held the wicker basket to the balloon had been cut.

"Both men apparently had stripped to their underclothing," Bruno said. "It looked as though they had discarded their clothing and the basket in a desperate effort to lighten the balloon sufficiently to get blown ashore. They probably cut away the basket, discarded their clothing and threw away all the weight they could when the basket first hit the water, clinging to the mesh about the lower part of the bag in the hope it would carry them to safety."

Glenn L. Martin, airplane manufacturer, expressed a similar view.

A slight chance remains that the

TWO FLYERS KILLED WHEN PLANE DIVES THROUGH A ROOF

Blazing Craft Falls Upon Residence in London, Wrecking Structure.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, July 7.—A blazing airplane crashing through the roof of a house today, killed the two flyers in the machine and completely wrecked the building upon which it fell.

The accident occurred in Purley, a London suburb. A number of people watching the flight saw the plane nose dive and burst into flames. Plunging downward, it exploded just as it smashed through the roof of a two-story villa. Lieut. Leroy, the pilot, and his observer, Logsdail, were killed instantly.

The tenant of the house was alone on the ground floor when the crash drove him into the garden. He got out just in time to see columns of flame 60 or 70 feet high rising above his home.

BRYAN TO BE CANDIDATE FOR NATIONAL CONVENTION

Expects to Be Elected as Democratic Delegate From Florida Next Year.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 7.—William J. Bryan expects to go to the Democratic national convention next year as a delegate from the State of Florida, to which he removed his legal residence from Nebraska a year or two ago Bryan announced himself as a candidate for delegate while here today.

Bryan denied that he had in any way pledged support for William G. McAdoo in the coming campaign. He declared that the press reports to that effect were erroneous.

Issues of the coming presidential campaign today were declared by Bryan to be:

The need of increasing the purchasing power of farm products; establishment of a tribunal for investigating disputes between capital and labor; reorganization of the Federal banking system; reduction of prices to consumers on all commodities; law enforcement, and legislation of international scope.

"In speaking of the issues it is necessary to bear in mind that the coming session of Congress is likely to determine issues in the next campaign," Bryan said. "Anything said at this time is like quoting prices which are subject to change."

BUYS HIS OWN PICTURES WHEN HE SEES THEM PLACED ON SALE

African Diamond King "Couldn't Bear to Part With Them" When They Go Under Hammer.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, July 7.—The million dollar picture sale at Christie's Friday was a fiasco. Sir J. B. Robinson, the South African diamond magnate, who sold the pictures, also bought all of the important ones.

"I hadn't seen my pictures for 13 years because they were in storage," he explained today. "I am 83 and crippled with rheumatism. I can't live in England and there is no room for them in my villa in South Africa.

"So I decided to sell them, but when I saw them again from my wheel chair I couldn't bear to part with them. I wanted to stop the sale, but it was too late, so I saved most of them anyhow. I remembered, when I saw wthem, the trouble I had taken during 30 years to collect them and I felt I couldn't part with them."

Consequently about the only result of the sale was ahandsome commission for Christies on the huge prices that the owner bid for his pictures.

NEW "SILENT TRAFFIC COP"

When Red Word "STOP" Goes Dark, Vehicles Are to Proceed.

Another "silent traffic cop" was tried out at Union and Delmar boulevards last night. It attracted considerable attention because of the innovation both in size and features. The signal consists of a square base hardly half a foot above the level of the street. On each side of this base is displayed in red the word "STOP." Surmounting this is a four-sided lamp patterned after switch lights on railroads. This light burns red also. There is no "GO" sign.

At intervals the word "STOP" flashes on east and west traffic and then turns dark and the north and south signals show the word. When darkened, the signal is supposed to direct traffic to proceed.

MAN BITTEN BY FIRE HORSE

Walter Calvert, 27 years old, of De Soto, Mo., was attracted to Seventeenth and Market streets at 7:30 o'clock last night to watch several companies of the Fire Department extinguish a fire in rear of 1710 Market street, and was bitten in the right arm by one of the horses hitched to the engine of Engine Co. No. 14.

Calvert was looking over the team, one of the few remaining in the department, when he was bitten. He received emergency treatment at the City Hospital.

ARMS LIMITATION PACTS APPROVED BY FRENCH DEPUTIES

FRENCH DEPUTIES GIVE LIFE TO MAIN PLAY OF HARDING ADMINISTRATION

Indorsement of Naval Limitation Agreement Expected to Result in Final Action on Pacts Within Six Months.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Word that the French Chamber of Deputies had ratified the naval limitation treaty was received here as one of the most encouraging pieces of news that has reached Washington from abroad for many a day.

For many reasons, not all of which have been apparent on the surface, favorable action by France had been awaited with concern. Although the French Senate still must give its assent before the circle of ratifying powers is complete, there appears to be little apprehension among American officials of serious opposition or delay in that quarter.

Foremost among the causes for gratification here is that French acceptance of the treaty will put the cap-sheaf on the most important diplomatic undertaking of the Harding administration, by actually giving vitality to the Washington conference plan to end competitive building of first-line ships of war. All the other signatory Powers—Great Britain, Japan, Italy and the United States—already have ratified and are awaiting only the pledge of France to put the Washington program into effect.

Beyond this, there is a measurable degree of relief among practical navy men at the prospect that the uncertainty that has surrounded naval policy for more than a year soon may be cleared away and the expense of keeping in a state of suspended animation naval units destined to be scrapped may be erased from the balance sheet. A comprehensive plan for putting the new program into effect, including details of scrapping the discarded vessels, has been on file in the Navy Department for months, awaiting the word of execution.

Effect on World Diplomacy.

Still another element contributing to the favorable reaction aroused here by the French element—and an element of which officials will say little—lies in the unusual state of world diplomacy. During the last few months it has been an open secret in diplomatic circles that the delay of France was looked upon as a possible factor in the general policy she has followed in her dealings with her allies. Again and again French statesmen have denied that the failure to ratify the treaty had any connection with the French effort to bring Great Britain to her way of thinking about the Ruhr, but the denials have not served to set at rest speculation on the part of diplomatic representatives of the other powers.

It is certain that during the long wait for French approval of the Washington agreement the other signatories found means to let their disappointment become well understood at Paris. In some quarters it was suggested that a broad hint as to the attitude of Japan was conveyed to the French capital less than a week ago by a Tokio story to the effect that the Japanese Government expected to approach the United States and Great Britain on the subject of reducing the five-power treaty to a three-power basis. It is assumed here that any such plan now will be dropped.

There are some officials who are not entirely confident that the French Senate will approve the agreement and who still are fearful of a hitch. In most quarters here, however, the view is one of confidence.

On this assumption, officials fore-

POPE ISSUES ENCYCLICAL

Calls Attention to Sixth Centenary of St. Thomas Aquinas.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, July 7.—An encyclical issued in connection with the sixth centenary of the canonization of St. Thomas Aquinas, extols this great doctor of the church and alludes to "the marvelous union of pious and scientific doctrine exemplified in him." The Pope also dwells upon the universal character and practical applicability of the saint's teachings.

The pontiff says humility was the foundation of St. Thomas' virtues, and urges the clergy and ecclesiastical students faithfully to imitate the saint. As long ago, the Egyptians were told to "Go to Joseph," so now all who seek the truth should go to Thomas, he concludes.

ACTION AFTER BRIAND STATES ASSENT WAS VOLUNTARY

Poincare - Briand Alliance Jams Agreements Through Chamber, 460 to 106, After Explaining "France Was Treated With Utmost Fairness at Washington."

"OUR SACRIFICES NO MORE THAN OTHERS'"

Action Taken After Delegates to Conference Score Communists for Objection to Failure to Bid for Limiting Land Armaments

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 7.—That part of the Washington naval accords dealing with limitations of armaments and capital ships, which created the most bitter opposition in French Parliamentary and political circles, was jammed through the French Chamber of Deputies today in record time by the Poincare-Briand alliance. The half-hearted opposition from the Socialists and Communists was completely swamped and the treaty was adopted, 460 votes to 106. The treaty has yet to be ratified by the Senate.

The arguments employed by Premier Poincare and former Premier Briand were that France had been treated with the utmost fairness at Washington, that limitation of armaments was temporary so far as capital ships were concerned, and that there was complete liberty of action by France in the building of light cruisers, torpedo boats, destroyers and submarines, and that France's fleet was essentially a defensive one, the speakers said that the country did not need battleships, which were offensive weapons.

Sacrifices Equal, Briand Says.

"We responded to President Harding's invitation in the spirit with which it was extended; our sacrifices were not heavier than those of the other nations participating in the conference."

This was the reply of M. Briand when he was accused by the Communists of having "surrendered the interests of France."

Premier Poincare and M. Briand had the Chamber so well in hand that at no time did it look as though the necessity might arise of making it a question of confidence, a favorable vote being assured as soon as M. Guernier, reporter for the foreign affairs commission, abandoned the reservations contained in his report.

After the vote the feeling was freely expressed by many deputies in the lobbies that "this is not a moment to haggle over details with the United States."

Discussion With Communists.

M. Berthou, Communist, made a bitter attack on M. Briand in the course of the debate because the former Premier "did not take the opportunity at Washington to secure limitation of land armaments."

M. Briand, Premier Poincare and M. Sarraut, of the French delegation to the Washington conference, took the Communists to task for ostensibly advocating complete disarmament and at the same time refusing to join in efforts to arrive at disarmament gradually.

Briand Shows Feeling.

M. Briand, who apparently was making the question of ratification a personal affair, interrupted a speech in opposition by Deputy Soulier to say:

"Had the Washington accords not been signed, France would have been at a ratio of one to six toward America and Great Britain, as regards capital ships, while with the Washington treaties, besides retaining complete liberty concerning light craft, we stand one to three on capital ships."

Guernier, reporter for the foreign affairs commission, referred to the figures of tonnage of capital ships as being "imposed upon" each nation. At this Briand jumped t

M'ADOO MOVEMENT QUIETLY LAUNCHED IN NEW YORK STATE

Campaign to Line Up as Many Delegates as Possible Begun at Dinner at National Democratic Club.

DRIVE BEING MADE IN SMITH STRONGHOLD

Samuel B. Amidon, National Committeeman From Kansas, Chief Sponsor for Former Rail Chief.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Convinced that William G. McAdoo will go to the Democratic convention in 1924, with a majority of the delegates from the middle Western and far Western States, his supporters have quietly launched in New York City a movement to line up delegates from New York and other important states in the East.

The project, it was learned today, was discussed at a dinner attended a week ago at the National Democratic Club, by a number of prominent McAdoo men in New York City. The dinner was called at the instance of Samuel B. Amidon, Democratic National Committeeman from Kansas. Immediately after the dinner, Amidon sailed for Europe. On his return in September, there is every prospect that the McAdoo quest for delegates will get openly under way.

Amidon and Daniel C. Roper, who is regarded as the chief of the McAdoo forces, have been quietly working in the Western States for several months. Amidon reported to New York that there was no doubt the former Director-General of Railroads would get a majority of the states from the Western territory and asked that the meeting be held in order to discuss the situation in other sections.

Among those who attended were Byron G. Newton, Collector of the Port under President Wilson; Stuart G. Gibboney, who was secretary of the national Wilson campaign committee in 1912; Thomas E. Rush, former surveyor of the port; E. Bright Wilson, a lawyer; Oscar Price, a motion picture distributor; Frank Wilson, who was publicity director of a couple of liberty loan campaigns, and David Hunter Miller, law partner of Gordon Auchincloss, who is a son-in-law of Col. E. M. House. It was said that Miller was likely to be selected to direct whatever activities might be undertaken in New York.

The meeting, it was explained by one of those present, was held without any specific authority from McAdoo, and the opening of any formal campaign is being held up, pending formal word from him that he is a candidate. Nobody has any doubt, however, that it will be received.

The quest for votes in several of the Eastern States is not helped any by the fact that McAdoo is one of the most pronounced drys in the Democratic party. In Pennsylvania it was said his hope of delegates would depend on whether Vance McCormick, former Democratic national chairman, or James M. Guffy at Pittsburg, a liberal, was able to control the delegation.

In Connecticut, Homer Cummings, whose support is hoped for, has a fight on his hands, which is likely to prevent his having the influence he might otherwise have in that State. New York, it is acknowledged, will be for Smith, though the McAdoo supporters would like to line up a few of the delegates for their candidates as a second choice. Other important States where McAdoo has little chance of support are New Jersey and Massachusetts.

Club Cornerstone Laying.

The cornerstone of the new St. Charles Knights of Columbus Club building will be laid at 2:30 p. m. next Sunday. The structure, to cost $40,000, is at Fifth and Adams streets.

PRESSURE ON RUHR MENACES ENTIRE ECONOMIC STRUCTURE

Nearly 70,000 Persons Now Expelled and 10,000 More Driven From Homes—Starvation Appears but Few Days Ahead.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News. (Copyright, 1923.)

COLOGNE, July 7.—French and Belgian pressure on the Ruhr are proceeding at such terrific rate that the entire social and economic structure may collapse under it. Nearly 70,000 persons — Government employes and their families—have been expelled from the Ruhr and Rhineland and 10,000 more have been driven from their homes. Dusseldorf now has its third substitute mayor, his precedessor having been arrested or expelled. Still there are men in reserve ready to step into that unpleasant office.

Every day brings news of new traffic blockades, seizures of money, expulsions, arrests, shootings and the imposition of execution of death sentences. Events that would have caused a great outcry in the early weeks of the occupation are now hardly noticed. The transaction of business is becoming almost impossible and the food supply is seriously endangered.

As the situation appears to a neutral observer, this pressure is being exerted in an effort to force Premier Poincare's capitulation of Germany, before the British Government undertakes separate negotiations with Germany in the race between Prime Minister Baldwin and Germany's disaster.

Ruhr and Rhineland Cut Off.

There are enough murders of French and Belgian soldiers by crazed German nationalists to provide the occasion for severest reprisals. There was a blockade the other day by which all the Ruhr and Rhineland were cut off completely from unoccupied Germany. The operation of the tram cars was reduced to the pre-occupied scale, thus preventing the use of the trams as a substitute for the railways. At Luisberg and in some other regions all traffic, even on bicycles, is prohibited. Fuel supplies everywhere are being blocked and money is being blockaded at the border, causing a money shortage in several cities.

All this, of course, affects the food distribution. It may be said that throughout the Ruhr area there is no regular food supply, only a desperate daily improvisation to stave off starvation for a few days ahead.

"We depend entirely on motor transport for our food supplies," a German official in Essen said to the writer, "but if the French prevent the use of this, rather than use the French trains, we shall organize caravans and carry food 15 miles on our backs."

The correspondent regarded this as mere patriotic rhetoric, but now the same thing is actually being done in the Duisberg area, where long lines of men and woman trudge from village to village carrying potatoes and other vegetables on their backs.

Resistance Becomes More Fanatical.

The German resistance, instead of weakening, is becoming more fanatical. The most determined resisters are precisely those who always insisted that Germany should pay reparations to the fulest possible extent and themselves paid the greater part of the taxes—the organized workingmen. The stubborn Westphalians will not submit until catastrophe overwhelms them or starvation grips their brothers.

Only then will become evident the full extent of the devastation of the Ruhr, the consequences of which Baldwin is seeking to prevent from becoming a catastrophe—hundreds of miles of railways rusted and unsafe, bolts loose in rolling stock that is rotting from disuse on the sidings, blast furnaces and coke ovens deteriorated, stocks of food and raw materials exhausted, credit and finance in chaotic confusion, working morale shattered and the rhythm of production lost.

The physical destruction already is very many million dollars and the loss of production many millions more. It would take months to repair and start working again this gigantic economic machine. The credit difficulties would be enormous.

Meanwhile, the extremists on both sides are daily becoming stronger. The situation without Germany when the collapse comes and the emotional reaction begins will be deadly serious, threatening the secession of reactionary Bavaria and the exhausted Rhineland, uprisings of the communists in Saxony and the Ruhr and the mobilizing of German fascisti.

BALDWIN SEES LAW ON RUHR PROBLEM

British Attitude on French Failure to Reply to Questionnaire to Be Known Tuesday.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON, London Correspondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, July 7.—Foreign Secretary Curzon's disappointment at getting no written reply to the British Ruhr questionnaire was so strongly expressed yesterday to Ambassador de Saint Aulaire that today Premier Poincare flung a sop to the British Government. He instructed the Ambassador to give the Foreign Office a written copy of the instructions sent him, and on which he based his two conversations with Marquis Curzon.

But the British do not regard this as a written reply. The Cabinet will meet Monday or Tuesday and then, it is understood, British action in view of definite failure to agree with France will be decided. What that action will be is a profound secret, but a hint from a high quarter indicates that when it comes the British policy will no longer be called weak or vacillating.

Baldwin Visits Bonar Law.

Premier Baldwin on Thursday made a secret visit to his old chief, Andrew Bonar Law, now recuperating at Brighton, and discussed with him the action he proposes. The fact of this visit has hitherto been kept from the public.

The impression among those who are aware of it is that Bonar Law agreed on the necessity of separate British action and gave the Premier his blessing.

Meanwhile M. Poincare, girding his loins for a diplomatic struggle with England, has given way at Lausanne. It is expected here that peace with Turkey will be signed in a few days. French insistence on payment of the Ottoman debt in gold has been the insuperable obstacle. Now there is good reason to believe M. Poincare has capitulated. His decision may have been caused partly by the reported fact that England and Italy did not propose to let the French attitude on this point stand in the way of peace.

McKenna and Chancellorship.

The Snuday Times tomorrow will print a statement that Reginald McKenna will not become Chancellor of the Exchequer. The reason assigned is that the members of Parliament for the city of London, where Tory candidates are always elected without contest, have both refused to take seats in the House of Lords to make way for McKenna. McKenna says his health will not stand the strain of contesting another seat. If this is true, it would be a serious blow to Premier Baldwin, who has counted on McKenna to back his reparations policy. One way out of the difficulty would be for McKenna to be made a Peer, for he could then enter the Cabinet.

Cabinet Behind Premier.

The Cabinet, it is believed, is now almost solidly behind the Premier in feeling France has tried to trick Britain, is determined to prevent any settlement, means to remain in the Ruhr indefinitely and that her program menaces British interests in the revival of trade and peace.

There is much interest here in the reported decision of the Comite des Forges, the association of French iron and steel magnates, to demand compensation from the Government for loss to their Lorraine industries because of lack of Ruhr coal since the occupation. M. de Wendel, a leading Lorraine ironmaster, is said to have told Premier Poincare recently this bill when presented would exceed the total costs of the military occupation. The resignation of M. Schneider, France's biggest munitions maker, from the Comite, was caused by this issue. The Observer tomorrow will hint that the bill has already been presented to the French Government.

JUNKER AIRPLANES MAKING FLIGHTS OVER SPITZBERGEN

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

SPITZBERGEN, July 7.—H. H. Hammer's junker airplane expedition, organized originally to meet Capt. Roald Amundsen if he flew over the North Pole, arrived in Green Harbor last Tuesday and took up quarters in an abandoned whaling station.

Several flights over unexplored territory have been made and photographs taken. Hammer will carry out similar work despite Amundsen's abandoning his attempt. His work is not only of geographical and general scientific interest, but is expected by the firm which is backing the trip to demonstrate the value of all-metal planes for exploration.

Just the car to make your family happy is probably among the good cars offered for sale today in the Post-Dispatch classified "Automobiles" columns. They are used cars, but many of them look and act like new ones. Investigate.

18 IN OKLAHOMA SENATE CONDEMN GOVERNOR WALTON

15 Democrats Sign Resolution Urging Governor to Call Session to Pass on Recess Appointments.

FRIENDS BELIEVE HE WILL REFUSE

Executive "Misled" by Men Who "Pretend" to Represent Farmer-Labor Group, Legislators Declare.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., July 7.—Eighteen Democratic members of the State Senate, who met here today at the invitation of Gov. Walton, adopted a resolution calling upon the executive to summon an extraordinary session of the Senate immediately, to pass on recess appointments, including the naming of Geogre Wilson as president of Oklahoma A. & M. College. Of the 18 Senators attending the conference, three refused to sign the resolution.

The Senators condemned the Governor on the following grounds:

He had been "misled' by men who "prietend" to represent the farmer and labor groups of the State.

He had overlooked general business organizations and industry in his zeal for the needs of the farmer-labor classes.

He had countenanced the appointment of George Wilson "and other extreme radicals" to important State positions.

The "deplorable condition" surrounding the extension of executive clemency.

He had allowed "an army of hangers on" to weight down the State payroll.

The issuance of peace commissions.

Governor Walton pleaded for George Wilson in the closing hours of the conference. "He is president of the college; give him a chance," he urged.

Believe Governor Won't Act.

Those close to the Governor expressed the belief that he would not call a special session of the Senate to act on confirmation of recess appointments as requested by the caucus. John H. Carlock, Ardmore, one of the leaders of the meeting, said that in his opinion, the Governor would not call the session.

Tom Anglin, president pro tempore of the Senate, acted as spokesman for the Senators. Aldrich Blake, executive secretary, was the Governor's only advisor in the executive session.

Meeting behind closed doors at a luncheon given by the Governor, the Senators remained in session until 7 o'clock this evening. The Governor left the conference at 4:30.

Senator Anglin, addressing the Governor during the conference, declared that if the Democratic party was to be saved in Oklahoma, there must be immediate remedying of conditions responsible for the wave of criticism of the administration sweeping the State.

Calls Wilson Unfit for Place.

No man carrying the indorsement of the Farmer-Labor Reconstruction League can win in the next general election, declared Senator Anglin.

George Wilson is unfit to head any educational institution the President pro tem asserted, adding that Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College will be wrecked if those now in charge are permitted to remain in office.

Offering the Governor a way out of the controversy over Wilson's appointment, Senator Anglin urged that the Senate be called in special session to pass upon the Board of Agriculture appointees named since the Legislature adjourned, whom the Governor says are responsible for naming Wilson.

The Senators, in a communication prepared for the Governor after he left the conference, said they were his friends and were willing to help him "at all times in any honest endeavor."

EAST ST. LOUIS DRAINAGE CANAL BILL BECOMES LAW

Measure Provides That Future Bond Issues Be Submitted to Vote of People.

The second legal step in the effort to prevent construction of the "baby Panama Canal," a drainage channel near East St. Louis, by the East Side Levee and Sanitary District has been completed. State Representative Frank Holten of East St. Louis received word from Springfield, Ill., last night that his bill, passed at the recent session of the Legislature, providing that the district trustees submit future bond issues to vote of the people in the district, had been allowed to become law without signature of the Governor.

The district comprises St. Clair and Madison Counties. Work on the canal has been delayed by an injunction obtained by the city of East St. Louis. The canal was expected to cost about $8,000,000 only a small portion of which had been provided for. Now the district will have to get popular permission, apparently, before it can get additional funds.

OHIO KLANSMEN TO BE TRIED FOR WEARING MASKS IN PUBLIC

Seventy-two Who Attended Funeral in Full Regalia Give Bond to Appear in Police Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 7.—Seventy-two members of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, arrested Friday by police on charges of disorderly conduct as they were returning from the funeral of a fellow member, William F. Swigert, held in Fencliff cemetery, pleaded not guilty today in the Police Court and their hearings were set for July 26. The pleas were entered through Attorney J. Fred Anderson, representing the Klan. All the defendants are at loberty on bond.

The charges against the men are said by police to be based on the fact that they wore their regalia, including masks, in public. The regalia includes hoods, robes and masks which were worn while they paraded to and from the cemetery.

Worlier M. Courtner, kleagle of the local klan, was among those arrested. After the men were released from the jail, they assembled at the Klan headquarters and were admonished by Courtner and Attorney Anderson to deport themselves in an orderly manner, and to refrain from participating in any arguments about the affair.

POPE ASKS FRANCE AND BELGIUM TO END COERCION IN RUHR

random—confidential, of course—which he can send to France and then ask for a reply. This is to include, in addition to a denunciation of sabotage, a clear statement of just how far Germany is willing to go to furnish the guarantees demanded by Poincare. Then the atmosphere is to be cleared for the conference Berlin asked in its last note to the allies.

But Mgr. Pacelli, believing the situation hopeless, had wired the Pope he was leaving for Munich. The reply ordered him to stay in Berlin. While he is obeying he is no more hopeful.

The Reichstag ended its session today without debating foreign relations. The Government prevented debate because of the conflict between the reactionaries and Socialists.

French and Belgians Said to Have Seen Cuno on Duisburg Affair.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 7.—The French Ambassador and Belgian Minister at Berlin, says a Central News dispatch from the German capital, today visited Chancellor Cuno and made known the contention of their countries that Germany was responsible for the Duisburg bridge explosion. They asked the Chancellor to disavow the act and to do his utmost to arrest the culprits.

Cuno replied that the Government was not responsible for the outrage and that there was no proof so far that the perpetrators were Germans. He would await the outcome of investigations and then determine what course to adopt.

Report France Would Reduce Force in Ruhr if Resistance Were Ended.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News. (Copyright, 1923.)

PARIS, July 7.—It is reported here on good authority that the French Government has informed the British that it would be willing to withdraw 70,000 troops of the present garrison of 90,000 from the Ruhr if Germany would cease her passive resistance. The French would not guarantee, however, to keep the occupational forces at the reduced figure unless the resistance ceased in fact as well as in name.

While taking quite seriously the British threat of a separate understanding with Germany, persons in inner French circles declare that they are unable to see how the British could carry it out effectively. Great Britain as well as France is bound by the Treaty of Versailles. Germany's only reparations debt is in the form of three categories of bonds held, not by the allied nations, but by the Reparations Commission, and any payments made by Germany must pass through the commission's hands for distribution, according to existing agreements.

Thus, it is declared, all funds collected by France and Belgium in the Ruhr are being deposited with the commission and France and Belgium have stated repeatedly that they are acting in the Ruhr, not for themselves alone, but for the benefit of the allies. If the British decide to make a separate agreement with Germany they must first, the French say, denounce the Treaty of Versailles. The British, in denouncing it, would virtually release Germany from responsibility for Great Britain's share of the debt.

Moreover, if the British should take separate action, say the French, the probabilities are that the French occupation of the Ruhr would be prolonged rather than shortened and France and Belgium would feel free to collect what they could for themselves and the other signatories in the occupied region without regard to Great Britain.

For these reasons it is believed here hatt, while the situation is serious, no decisions inimical to France are imminent. Lloyd George made the same threat of "reversing alliances" at the Genoa conference, but the only concrete result of the threat was the Russo-German treaty.

France and Belgium, despite all forms of diplomatic pressure and all forms of passive resistance to which they may be submitted, feel that they need only to stand firm to win success with their Ruhr policy as a means of forcing reparations payments.

Searchers Give Up Hope of Finding Balloonists

airmen may be alive, it was said by airmen here tonight. Life preservers were said to be in the balloon when it started on the trip, and it is conceded that the two Lieutenants might have been picked up in Lake Erie by a freighter which had no wireless apparatus and could not inform shore stations of the rescue. Local airplane pilots said the two naval officers might have worn life preservers or rubber suits containing air next to their underclothing.

Balloon Brought Into Lake Port; Basket Not Found.

PORT STANLEY, Ont., July 7.—The United States naval balloon piloted by Lieut. L. J. Roth and his aide, Lieut. T. B. Null, which started from Indianapolis July 4 in the national elimination race, was brought here tonight by the tug Frank H. Stanley, which found it collapsed and watersoaked on Lake Erie about 25 miles south-southwest of here.

The basket of the balloon was not found, contradicting earlier reports received here. Clothing of the missing airmen, for whom hope has been virtually abandoned, was found in a bag attached to the rigging of the gas bag.

A small clock, part of the balloon equipment was found. It had stopped at 2:44. Roth's watch, found in his clothes, had stopped at 4:30.

Possibility that Lieuts. Roth and Null may be traveling on some ore barge was advanced here tonight. It is asserted here that ore barges travel the route on which the wrecked balloon was sighted by the steamer Colonial last night.

The barges do not carry wireless equipment, and if one of these vessels had picked up the men or their bodies it might be two or even three days before the boat would land.

Missing Men Had Been in Naval Aviation Service Several Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Lieut. L. J. Roth, pilot of the missing navy balloon, last seen in a storm over Lake Erie, was graduated from the Naval Academy in the class of 1913. He entered the naval aviation service in 1920, taking part in the national balloon race in Birmingham that year.

Lieut. Roth served at the Naval Air Station, Hampton Roads, Va., for two years as assembly and repair officer. Last February he was detailed to Lakehurst, N. J., in connection with assembling the crew of the big rigid dirigible ZR-1. He is unmarried and a native of Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Lieut. T. B. Null, aide of Lieut. Roth, has been connected with the naval aviation service since 1917. He was in duty in England in connection with the ill-fated rigid R-38. Since returning to this country, he has been on duty at the Hampton Roads air station and more recently at Lakehurst. Mrs. Null is now at Lakehurst. Lieut. Null's home is in Haddonsfield, N. J.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 7.—Airmen of the United States army today took up the search for the two naval officers, Lieuts. L. J. Roth and T. B. Null, who have not been heard from since they sailed from here Wednesday in a balloon of the United States navy, No. A-6698, as contestants in the national balloon race.

The other 12 entrants in the race have been accounted for, all having landed many hours ago. Lieuts. Roth and Null are from the naval station at Lakehurst, N. J.

Fear for the safety of the airmen was expressed after unsuccessful efforts had been made to locate the men. They were last seen on Thursday, it was learned today, by H. E. Honeywell, pilot of the "St. Louis," another contestant, and at the time were headed toward Lake Erie. Honeywell, who brought his balloon to the ground at Brockton, N. Y., said the naval craft was far below him and was being carried by a different current out over the lake. He said a terrific storm approached and he lost sight of the other craft in a fog.

Lieuts. Roth and Null were well prepared for almost any emergency, it was said. Air inflated life preservers and oxygen filled bags of strength sufficient to maintain the men above water, were included in their equipment when they took off here late Wednesday afternoon.

The unofficial standing of the contestants who have reported, announced last night, gives first place to Lieut. Robert S. Olmstead, army pilot, who sailed approximately 500 miles. He landed at Marilla, N. Y. H. E. Honeywell, St. Louis civilian flyer, covered the next greatest distance, approximately 450 miles. Three others—Lieut. J. B. Lawrence of Washington, in an army craft; Capt. L. T. Miller, in an army ship from Scott Field, and C. E. McCullough, Baltimore, traveled approximately 400 miles each.

Death of Two St. Louisans in 1919 Balloon Race Recalled.

A fatality similar to that which marked the Indianapolis race befell the crew of a balloon in the international race of 1919, started from St. Louis, when Capt. Carl W. Dammann of 3614 Hartford street, pilot of the balloon "Wichita," and his aid, Lieut. Edward J. Verheyden Jr., of 5244 Theodosia avenue, both St. Louisans, fell into Lake Huron and were drowned. Their bodies and the balloon were recovered three weeks later.

The race started Oct. 1, 1919, from Meramec Park, on South Grand boulevard, since improved as a residence section. The "Wichita" was one of 10 entries, six of which landed in Canada. The "Wichita," it was learned from fishermen, was swept from a great height into the lake by a gale.

TWO PERSONS INJURED IN STREET CAR COLLISION

Northbound Taylor Car Hits Coach Turning Into Sheds—Policeman Among Injured.

A policeman and police chauffeur were injured and five other persons shaken up when a northbound Taylor street car ran into the rear end of a Page car at 11:37 o'clock last night at Taylor and Fairfax avenues. The Page car, carrying no passengers, was turning into the car sheds on Fairfax avenue.

Patrolman Thomas Carroll, 60 years old, of 4480 Evans avenue, riding in the front vestibule of the Taylor car, suffered injuries to both legs and cuts on the head and abdomen. He was taken to the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium. Adolph Krafft, 27, of 1716 North Taylor, police chauffeur, who was in rear vestibule, suffered a fractured rib.

MEXICAN CABINET IN SESSION ON PRE-RECOGNITION MATTERS

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

MEXICO CITY, July 7.—Despite official denials in the press, it became known today that the Cabinet meeting yesterday was called specially to present to the Ministers some of the understandings arrived at by the United States and Mexican conferees in the pre-recognition conversations still in progress.

The Cabinet session also enables the executive to serve unofficial notice that President Obregon cannot accept any written agreement. As in the case with the United States, any agreements to be binding must be incorporated in laws and passed by Congress.

Changes in the Cabinet are now being discussed. It is semiofficially announced that Foreign Minister Alberto Pani will become Minister to Paris, a post he held under Carranza. Alessio Robles, former Minister to Spain, but now Minister of Commerce and Industry, is believed to be slated for the foreign relations portfolio. However, the changes will not be effective until after the present conferences terminate.

TEXAS BROTHERS SHOT TO DEATH

Owner of Well Two Men Were Accused of Poisoning Is Arrested.

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 7.—After being dicited by the Wise County grand jury three weeks ago for the alleged poisoning of a well on the ranch of Tom Burnett, near Paradise, Paul and Arthur Steele, ages 43 and 30 years, respectively, were shot and killed on the streets of Paradise this afternoon. Tom Burnett was arrested at his ranch home a short time later by Sheriff W. M. Workman of Wise County and charged with the crime.

The Burnett well, which recently was drilled on his ranch, was poisoned about a month ago.

Suffers Internal Injuries When He Runs Into Auto.

Robert Fox, 25 years old, of 3741 Missouri avenue, a bricklayer, is at the city hospital in a serious condition from fracture of the right leg and internal injuries, suffered at 12:15 a. m. today when a motocycle he was riding ran into an automobile at Jefferson and Russell avenues.

H. J. Kuns of 4959 Reber place, a provision broker, driver of the automobile, said he was crossing Jefferson and Rex was going north when the accident occurred.

feet, and, speaking with [illegible] earnestness, said:

"No conditions were imposed upon France, and the figures of [illegible] adopted for capital ships have no influence over the other units. The French liberty of action concerning light cruisers, torpedo boats and submarines remains absolutely [illegible]."

Premier Poincare, interrupting from his seat on the Government bench, said:

"The Government's interpretation is in absolute conformity with that of Mr. Briand."

Deputy Sevens, reporter for the military and naval commissions, speaking in favor of ratification, said that without the Washington treaty Great Britain and the United States could easily have built 1,000,000 tons of capital ships, while France, owing to her financial situation, had not the means to enable her to build 175,000 tons.

M. Berthon, a Communist deputy, heckled both the Poincare Government and the Briand administration concerning the original position of the French delegation at Washington for 300,000 tons of capital ships. To this Briand retorted:

"That proposition was for the purpose of giving France a basis figure to apply to our defensive needs, including large and small units."

M. Berthon insisted that the demand had had the "worst possible effect in America."

COLUMBIA MAN ON TRIAL TOMORROW FOR LYNCHING

George Barkwell Charged With Murder in First Degree in Connection With Lynching.

NEGRO WAS HANGED ON APRIL 29 LAST

Motion Filed by Defense to Disqualify Judge Harris—He Suggests Gantt of Mexico.

BY CURTIS A. BEITS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., July 7.—George Barkwell, a Columbia contractor, alleged leader of the mob which on April 29 lynched James T. Scott, negro employed at the State University, will be placed on trial Monday in the Boone County Circuit Court on an indictment charging him with first degree murder. The State will charge that he fastened the noose around the negro's neck.

In Columbia, which had sought to forget the lynching which for a week or two gave it an unpleasant notoriety, the affair had ceased to be a topic of street conversation until a day or two ago. The activities of the prosecution and of the defense in preparing for the approaching trials of Barkwell and four others indicted for alleged participation in the lynching, caused a revival of interest.

The first technical step in preparing for the trials has been taken by the defense in the filing of a motion to disqualify Circuit Judge David H. Harris from sitting in the Barkwell case, a move which caused considerable surprise locally because of Judge Harris' popularity throughout the county.

Barkwell alleged in an affidavit that Judge Harris was prejudiced and that he could not have a fair trial before him. Attorneys for the State and for the defens ebeing unable to agree upon a Judge to sit in the case, Judge Harris announced that he would call upon Judge Gantt of Mexico.

Columbia Would Forget.

Public opinion here, so far as it can be ascertained, does not look with favor upon the efforts of the prosecution to prove that the negro, Scott, was innocent of the attack upon 14-year-old Regina Almstedt, daughter of a college professor, the crime for which the mob lynched him. There is no question that the larger part of the residents of Columbia are disposed to feel that, while they regret the lynching, there can be no good purpose served by raising the question of Scott's guilt or innocence. They are sorry he was lynched, irrespective of his guilt or innocence, but they feel that the lynching is a thing of the past and the more quickly forgotten the better.

These are the natural conclusions of any person after talking to any considerable number of Columbia citizens would come. They are formed as a result of talks with a score or more of citizens of more than average intelligence and prominence, college professors, professional men and business men for the most part.

One of them, a former public official of statewide prominence, expressed in a few words the opinion which most of the others gave in a more indirect manner. He said:

"The raising of the question of whether the mob got the wrong negro is to be regretted. I deplore the lynching, and of course those who participated should be punished. But you know and I know that almost never are mob prosecutions successful and this is not apt to be an exception. I can't help but feel that it will be better for the community and for that matter, for the State, to forget it all as quickly as possible."

People Don't Expect Convictions.

There are not many persons here who expect a conviction in any of the five cases. In fact, every person to whom I talked, with one exception, said he expected acquittals, certainly nothing nearer a conviction than a failure of the jury to agree upon a verdict. One man said he thought there was a chance to convict in some of the cases.

It now appears very doubtful that the State will be able to get before the jury any of the evidence it has been collecting tending to show that Scott was innocent and that the negro who attacked the Almstedt girl was Ollie Watson, a Columbia taxicab driver, now in jail in Mexico, Mo., awaiting trial on a charge of attacking a negro girl. The legal opinion expressed here today by competent lawyers is that the evidence is not competent and in all probability will be ruled out, if offered by the State.

This opinion, expressed in various ways by different attorneys, is this:

That it is just as much against the law for a mob to hang a guilty man as an innocent man, and that the question of the guilt of Scott does not enter into the case."

It would be offered by the State for no other purpose than to attempt to influence the jury in the belief that a jury would be more disposed to convict in a mob case in which the victim was an innocent man."

Although Attorney-General Barrett and Prosecuting Attorney Hulen refuse to discuss their investigation into the question of Scott's innocence and the suspected guilt of Watson, many of the facts connected with it have leaked out.

Prisoner Viewed by Girl.

As has been published, the Almstedt girl was taken to Mexico Thursday to look at Watson to identify him, if possible, as the man who attacked her. She had identified Scott as the man before he was lynched, though it is said she at times expressed doubt about the identification.

What she said after seeing Watson has not been disclosed by Barrett or Hulen.

It is known that, before being taken to Mexico, the girl identified as the picture of the man who attacked her a photograph of Watson on which had been painted a "Charlie Chaplin" mustache, the girl in her first description of her assailant having told of the mustache.

It has been developed that Watson had such a mustache until about the time of the attack on the girl, when he shaved it off. Scott also had a small mustache. Although Watson has been in jail more than two months and has been denied the use of a razor during all that time, no hair has grown upon his upper lip. Officials are certain he has prevented the growth of the hair, but they have not discovered how. They hoped the mustache would grow to give his face the appearance it had before the mustache was removed.

Failing in this, they photographed him and added the mustache. This photograph, it is said, the girl identified as that of her assailant.

On the question of Scott's identity, the only evidence of his guilt is the girl's identification of him. On the other hand, the theory of his innocence is supported by these facts:

The Day of the Attack.

On the afternoon of the attack the Almstedt girl at 3 o'clock was in front of the engineering building of the university. She walked toward the Stewart Road bridge, where she was accosted by a negro.

At 3 o'clock by the watch of a university professor, which he afterward said was 10 minutes slow, Scott was released from his duties in the medical building. If the professor's watch was slow, Scott was actually released from duty at 3:10 o'clock.

The engineering and medical buildings are almost exactly the same distance from the place of the attack.

The Almstedt girl said she walked directly to the bridge.

Thus, it has been contended, Scott staring 10 minutes later than the girl, could hardly have reached the bridge ahead of her, as the distance could be covered by a person walking leisurely in 10 minutes.

Also, the clothing described by the girl differs in all respects from that the professor said Scott wore at the medical building. So if Scott was the guilty negro, he took time to change his clothes.

The State has found witnesses who saw the negro on the bridge and at least one of these has identified Watson as that negro.

Prosecuting Attorney Hulen today declined to say whether he intended to file an information charging Watson with the attack on the Almstedt girl.

It is expected that the introduction of evidence in the Barkwell case will take little more than a day. The big job will be in getting a jury, as there are probably few persons in the county who have not read of the case in detail and who have not discussed it in detail.

The Sheriff has summoned a panel of 60 prospective jurors in addition to the 40 on the regular panel. The 40 regulars will be examined first and after they are exhausted, the next 60 will be examined. Hulen said he thought it possible the jury could be completed in two days.

U. S. EFFORTS TO END DRUG TRAFFIC PRAISED AT GENEVA

Council of League of Nations Indorses Report of Opium Conference.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, July 7.—The council of the League of Nations today indorsed the report of the recent opium conference in which the United States was represented, and adopted a resolution inviting concurrence of the league's assembly in an effort to realize its aims.

The Chinese delegate voiced the appreciation of his country for the efforts of the United States in this work, the results of which, he said, would be felt, not only in China, but throughout the world.

Lord Robert Cecil praised the American efforts and upon his proposal a vote of thanks to the American Government, for sending a delegation to the recent meeting, was placed upon the minutes. The report gave to the United States credit for much of the progress made toward controlling the opium traffic.

U. S. VISIT LASTS 30 SECONDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The title of world's champion brief visitor to America was claimed today by Peter Soberling, a chief steward employed by the Holland-America Steamship Co.

Radio instructions in one hand and his baggage in the other, Soberling stepped from the incoming liner Veedam at Hoboken today, bounded across the pier to the Nieuw Amsterdam, and boarded her for the trip back.

Deducting the time when both his feet were in the air as he sped across the pier, steamship officials estimated his stay on American soil at 30 seconds flat.

Georgia Crops a Failure.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 7.—"Under the existing abnormal conditions during the remainder of 1923, Georgia this year will not produce sufficient food and seed crops to feed its population more than three months, and cotton production in the state is on the verge of collapse," Commissioner of Agriculture J. J. Brown stated today. Georgia normally, the commissioner figured, produces enough to feed the population three-fourths of the year.

GUARDHOUSE KEPT SANITARY, ASSERTS COLONEL THORNTON

Charges Made by Former Noncommissioned Officer in 138th Infantry of National Guard Are Denied.

COURTMARTIAL'S RULES EXPLAINED

Officer Says Men Are Allowed to Work Out Fines for Missing Drill at $1 a Day Rate.

Col. C. S. Thornton, commander of the 138th Infantry, National Guard of Missouri, replying yesterday to charges about the condition of the guardhouse at the regimental armory, Grand boulevard and Market street, and the manner of imprisoning members of the regiment there, made by a former non-commissioned officer of the 138th in letters to newspapers, described imprisonment methods.

He characterized the attack as an effort by a disgruntled man to retaliate for grievances by hindering recruiting in advance of the annual encampment for which the regiment will depart next Saturday.

"I don't think there have been more than 150 arrests in the four years since the regiment was reorganized," Col. Thornton said. "We don't operate the guardhouse continuously or very often. It is running now and has been since a week ago Monday. There are five men confined there for habitual failure to attend drills. That is the reason for all confinements. As a usual thing men arrested agree with their company commanders to play the game and are turned loose on parole.

Fines Worked Out at $1 a Day.

"There is an investigation of every case. If reasonable excuses are given for failure to attend drills, charges are dropped and the men released. Lacking such excuses, but with some extenuating circumstances, men may be fined and sentences suspended. Punishment is always by fines, which may be paid in cash, or worked out at the army pay rate of $1 a day. I don't believe there have been more than five cases in the last four years of men continuing in confinement to serve out fines, after being sentenced.

"I have not available exact figures as to men who have been in the guardhouse. The cases are heard by summary courts martial, which are boards of officers. If a man is absent from drills for a month, during which time four or five drills are held, his company commander is supposed to get in touch with him. If he has reasonable excuses for absence nothing is done. It is only the men who promise to show up, after that, and don't keep their promises who face charges.

"The regiment is conducted under a dovetailing of the National Guard regulations and the Missouri military code, and arrests for missing drills are under provisions of both. Summonses for men to be arrested are turned over to the St. Louis police for service, and they turn the men over to the regiment. We could have such men confined in the city jail, but it seems more desirable to me if we are confining men in order to follow military practice, to keep them in the guardhouse.

"There is no provision for the release of men on bond, but we cannot hold them more than 48 hours without trial. I think the last time we ran the guardhouse was just before the last Federal inspection in February. Most of the five men there now have been absent most of the time since that inspection. They are either awaiting trial or are there as the result of action of a courtmartial."

Summary of Charges by Holm.

The charges about the guardhouse were made by Cecil R. Holm, 22 years old, of 5836 De Giverville avenue, a son of Victor S. Holm, the sculptor, and a former Sergeant of the 138th. Summarized, they were:

He was arrested last August by the police in connection with investigation of the disappearance of a pistol from the armory, imprisoned at the guardhouse for six days, without charges, along with five men who had missed drill; given bad food and kept on bread and water for two days for no reason but "damned meanness"; kept in a basement room infested with lice, that was poorly ventilated, without bed or blanket; liberated without explanation; called before a courtmartial later, without charges, and case dismissed; further, that before all this he had seen men who were confined forced to sleep in the empty swimming pool, some without blankets.

"We don't treat men that way," said Col. Thornton, in making a general denial of Holm's charges. "There is no record that Holm was ever confined in the guardhouse and no charges against him on record. He was a disturbing element in the regiment. He was discharged recently on the ground of physical disability."

GETS 5 YEARS FOR ROBBERY

ITALIAN PRINCE AND PRINCESS VICTIMS OF BOLD ROBBERY

Pair Drugged by Waiter and Chauffeur and Jewels and Money Aggregating $84,000 Taken.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, July 7.—A bold robbery with a Prince and Princess as the victims, was carried out here today. Taking advantage of their position in the palace household, a waiter and a chauffeur overpowered Prince Carlo Giustiniani Bandini and his wife, Princess Maria, drugged them and made away with jewels and money valued at 2,000,000 lire (about $84,000 at the present rate of exchange). The police are searching for Marino Guagnelli of Fazenda de Sao, Brazil, and Alfredo Civichi of Gallese, Italy.

It was 2 o'clock this morning when two robbers, after making sure that members of the household were asleep, covered their faces with masks, cut the telephone wires and entered the bedroom of the Prince and Princess, whom they attempted to drug with anesthetic masks. The sleepers awoke and tried to summon aid, whereupon they were beaten and drugged by force.

The thieves then took their keys, opened the safe and removed all the jewels, including a historic diadem which once belonged to Queen Hortense of Holland, and 20,000 lire kept there for current expenses. They made their escape after locking the bedroom.

HOTEL GUEST'S DEATH DUE TO HEAT, PHYSICIAN SAYS

Register as J. Brewer of Chicago—Samuel Schultz, III in Office, Taken to Hospital.

A man who registered as J. Brewer of Chicago, died in his room at the American Hotel yesterday afternoon. He was about 37 years old and was a traveling salesman. He called the room clerk shortly after noon, saying that he was not feeling well and requesting that a physician be sent to him. When the physician arrived 20 minutes later, he found the man under the shower in the bathroom, attempting to turn off the water. He collapsed before words were exchanged and died in a few minutes.

The physician told police he believed heat prostration caused death.

Samuel Schultz, 50 years old, of 18 Hampton Park, collapsed at 8 o'clock last night in the office of the S. Schultz Garment Co., 714 Washington avenue, of which he is president. Physicians said he had suffered heat prostration. He was taken to Barnes Hospital. Schultz was seated in his office talking to his son-in-law, Joseph Newman, the latter said, and fell from his chair to the floor when stricken.

George Clause, 32, a laborer, living at 1518 Chouteau avenue, suffered heat prostration and became unconscious at his home shortly before midnight and was removed to the city hospital.

DEMPSEY FIGHT FILMS SAID TO BE IN LOS ANGELES

Motion Pictures Reported to Have Been Rushed There By Airplane—Federal Agents Seeking Them.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 7.—The actual moving pictures of the Dempsey-Gibbons 15-round boxing bout at Shelby, Mont., July 4 are now at Los Angeles, according to information obtained by Department of Justice agents who have watched for the films here, it was learned today.

The information of the alleged whereabouts of the films, which have sent Department of Justice agents of Chicago rushing to the flying field here in an effort to seize them should they be landed here, was obtained from a pilot of one of the planes, which flew from Shelby with moving pictures of the scenes before and after the fight. It was said that immediately after the fight the fight films were placed in an airplane and rushed to the California city.

Department of Justice agents here expressed ignorance of a report that the actual fight films were in Chicago. It was reported that an airplane landed at one of the fields here last night after dark and a package was taken from it. It was supposed to have contained the forbidden films. Government agents are continuing an investigation in an effort to locate them.

INDICTED ON FRAUD CHARGE

Head of Petroleum Marketers Accused in Connection With Stock Sale.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., July 7.—L. V. Nicholas of Chicago, president of the National Petroleum Marketers' Association, was indicted by a Federal grand jury here today on charges of using the mails in pursuance of a scheme to defraud in connection with the sale of stock in the L. V. Nicholas company of Omaha.

E. H. Flynn, a stock salesman for the Nicholas concern, was indicted with Nicholas.

According to the United States District Attorney, the indictment charges that Nicholas and Flynn represented to prospective stock buyers that the Nicholas company operated at a large profit in 1919, that the capital stock had been raised from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 and that the company was solvent, whereas the grand jury held that this was not the case. It charged that the concern operated without profit in 1919.

Mrs. Hannah Marx Dies at 67.

Mrs. Hannah Marx, 67 years old, of 5636 Cabanne avenue, widow of Ben F. Marx of the Marx-Haas Clothing Co., died at 6 o'clock yesterday morning at her home. She came from Natchez, Miss., to St. Louis 43 years ago. Her mother, who resides in New Orleans, four sisters and two brothers survive. The funeral will be at 3 p. m. Monday.

VANDEVENTER PLACE AGAIN BEFORE COURT

Residents Seek to Stop Invasion of Boarders in Old Kerens Home.

The restful green of the plaza in aristocratic old Vandeventer place is as much a lure to real estate speculators and building promoters as it is to the families that continue to dwell in the big, old-fashioned homes there, the residents are saying, as they shake their heads over the latest boarding-house invasion that has brought them into the courts.

Action before Circuit Judge Landwehr yesterday disclosed that the 23-room residence at No. 36, of the late Richard C. Kerens, who was Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, which was sold at public auction recently for a song, has been converted into a boarding house. As has been told, its new owner has been circulating petitions among residents of Vandeventer place, endeavoring to arrange for a suit to have the rigid restrictions of the three-block stretch set aside, and with a view to the erection of an apartment house on his lot.

Rents and leases for apartments facing the plaza, with the advantage of being near "downtown," will be comparatively high in the opinion of speculators, the residents say. Furthermore, they add dolefully, similar considerations are urging promoters to covet the two corners of Vandeventer place and Grand boulevard for office buildings.

Another boarding house, a hospital for incurables and a public garage are the casualties of a successful resistance by the Vandeventerites to mundane invasion, so far. Maintenance of a boarding house at No. 12 was forever enjoined by a Circuit Court decree 13 months ago, when the restrictions against ought but residences were upheld in general, but this decision is under appeal in the Supreme Court of Missouri.

Yesterday, Judge Landwehr, acting on a motion filed by Thomas M. Pierce, a lawyer, who is treasurer of Vandeventer parks, the organization controlling the place, issued an order directing Adolphus Branham, president of the Automatic Register Co., and new owner of the Kerens house, and M. C. Campbell, who, as Branham's tenant, is alleged to be conducting a boarding house there, to show cause July 23 why they should not be punished for contempt of court, in view of the antiboarding-house injunction. The motion alleged that Branham and Campbell both had knowledge of this injunction.

The Kerens house was built in the '80s at a cost of about $125,000. Sam Koplar, a real estate dealer, bought it at public sale May 9 for $7250. He sold it to Branham for a price said to have been about a tenth of the original cost., No one but a caretaker had lived there since Kerens' death in 1916.

NOVA SCOTIA MINE LEADER SCORNS LEWIS' TELEGRAM

"Not Accepting Dictation From Anybody," Says District Chief Under Arrest.

By the Associated Press.

SYDNEY, N. S., July 7.—Under arrest charged with "wilfully spreading false tales" in advocating a general strike of coal miners in this province, Dan Livingston, president of District No. 26, United Mine Workers of America, tonight scorned the telegraphed demand of John Lewis, international president, that the strikers be put back to work.

"District No. 26 is absolutely autonomous," was his reported comment on the order, "and it isn't accepting dictation from John L. Lewis or anybody else."

Livingston, together with J. R. MacLachlan, another officer of the district, were taken by automobile today to Canso, en route to Halifax, where they will be arraigned.

As they prepared to leave, Livingston was shown a copy of the telegram sent by Lewis from Atlantic City, N. J., denouncing the strike as "a violation of the agreement between miners and coal companies and of the principles of the union."

SENT TO ASYLUM, MAN WILL BE HANGED IF HE BECOMES SANE

Killed Brother-in-Law of Wife, Then Lost Mental Balance When About to be Executed.

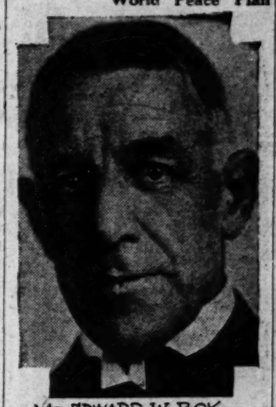
By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, July 7.—Two deputies from Amite, La., today took Angelo Guirlando, cobbler of Rockford, Ill., to the state asylum for the criminal insane at Jackson, La. If his mental balance is restored he will be hanged forthe murder of his wife's brother-in-law, Henry Amato. Guirlando became insane shortly before the date set for his execution. Gov. Parker granted a reprieve. The board of pardons decided he should be held in an asylum until his reason was restored and then be hanged.

Closing his shop in an Illinois city about a year ago, Guirlando traveled to Amite to get his man. Meeting him on the street, the cobbler fired. At the trial, Guirlando told how he went to Amite and met his bride, a strawberry field worker. He took her North and later she told him, he testified that her sister's husband was the father of her child.

The wife, however, did not substantiate the story told by the husband. She said Amato was an innocent victim and that Guirlando was suffering from an hallucination.

$100,000 for Workable World Peace Plan



MR EDWARD W. BOK

MISS ESTER EVERETT LAPE

BOK, a Philadelphia editor and author, has offered the prize for an idea that will line America up with the other nations of the world in a plan to abolish war.

Miss Lape, who has been appointed secretary of the committee to administer the Bok peace prize, says Bok has not made the offer as League of Nations propaganda, but is actuated solely by a desire to find the right way out of the present muddle to permanent peace, whether through the league or other means.

HUNDREDS OF PREMATURE ENTRANTS IN PEACE CONTEST

Plans Submitted in Competition for $100,000 Prize Not to Be Received Until Conditions Are Agreed On.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The Policy Committee of the American peace award, named by Edward Bok to conduct the $100,000 prize contest for the best practicable plan by which the United States may co-operate with other nations to achieve and preserve world peace, announced today that several hundred premature entrants had submitted plans in the competition.

The Policy Committee of the award, headed by John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain, said it was not authorized to receive plans until conditions under which the award will be made have been determined.

This will be done within the next few weeks, it was said, after conference with more than a dozen national organizations which have agreed to co-operate in the contest. Among these are the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Foreign Policy Association, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, American Scandinavian Foundation, League for Industrial Rights, Sons of the American Revolution and American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers.

FOR CHURCH UNION AGAINST WAR

Speaker at Christian Endeavor Convention Voices Plan.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., July 7.—A plea for the union of the churches in a campaign against war and for a nation-wide educational campaign for peace, was voiced by Frederick J. Libby of Washington, D. C., in an address today before the Christian Endeavor convention. Libby is secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of war.

Church bodies, and especially the Christian Endeavor societies, said Libby, should make the antiwar movement one of their chief undertakings. The world court was termed a step toward war prevention.

ARREST OF LEVIATHAN SAILORS THREATENED

British Ship Owners, Retaliating for Dry-Ship Ruling, May Prosecute Deserters.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, July 7.—America having initiated the policy of removing drink from foreign vessels entering United States ports, British ship owners threaten, in retaliation, to remove sailors from the Leviathan when she reaches Southampton early next week.

In British shipping circles it is stated that between 200 and 300 of the Leviathan's crew had deserted from British ships, thus violating the British mercantile shipping act; they had signed up for the round trip on sailing west. One steamship company claims to have the names of a number of sailors from Southampton itself, the very hatchery of British mercantile sailors, who deserted British ships at New York, caught, it is said, by the bait of higher pay on American vessels.

Under the British shipping regulations, the members of the crews of foreign ships who wish to go ashore at British ports must have identification cards by way of passports. As for the Leviathan, British shippers threaten to have arrested and to prosecute any sailors who land, who can be identified as deserters from their ships. However, American officials and shippers here express the opinion that there is a good deal of bluff about such reports. The Post-Dispatch and the New York World are informed that no complaints about deserters sailing on "The Glory of the new American merchant marine" have been made to the United States Shipping Board, the United States lines or the United States Consulate-General. American officials here acknowledge that British shippers would be within their rights if they arrested and prosecuted deserting seamen, but they do not believe this will be done, at least on any wholesale scale.

Under any circumstances, the United States Lines is not worrying about the possibility of losing 200 or 300 of the Leviathan's crew when she reaches Southampton. There will be no difficulty in filling any vacancies with seamen here; indeed, it is said that the United States Consulate-General has registered the names of a number of seamen who want to ship on American vessels.

Life on Leviathan Livelier Than in First Class Hotel.

Special Wireless to the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News. (Copyright, 1923.)

"ON BOARD THE LEVIATHAN," July 7.—Life on the Leviathan is even more elaborate than life in a first-class hotel. Swimming, gymnastics, boxing, pitching quoits, deck tennis, shuffle board, deck tennis and other sports furnish passengers of all ages with opportunities for exercise. Men, women and children, at fixed hours, throng the gymnasium for horseback and bicycle riding, rowing and various other forms of exercise and for massage and instructions in the dietetics of the sea. Warren Cusack, an expert in physical culture and scientific feeding, directs the gymnasium and at 8 a. m. tarts classe in calisthenics and boxing on the top deck.

Brass-buttoned bellboys shout rag diograms along the corridors and in the common room and about the decks. This ship has a telegraphic business equivalent to that of a city of 70,000 population. Almost every person aboard is wirelessing business or social messages to America or Europe. For the first time the history of trans-Atlantic shipping a daily morning and evening news service is leaving the liner for the principal newspapers of the world.

MUENCHEN ON HOME VOYAGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The North German Lloyd liner Muenchen, the first German vessel to enter New York harbor since 1914 with steerage class cabin passengers, sailed from Hoboken on her return maiden voyage today with 590 passengers.

C. Stapifeld, a director of the North German Lloyd line, denied published reports that his company was to purchase from the United States Shipping Board the steamships Agamemnon and Mount Vernon, taken fro mthe German company during the world war. He also declared untrue another report that the United States Government intended to purchase the new North German Lloyd liner Columbus as a companion ship to the Leviathan.

GOVERNOR TO TAKE UP TENNESSEE U. FACULTY DISPUTE

Peay Will Urge Full Investigation of Charges on Which Prof. John R. Neal Was Dismissed.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS SILENT OVER MATTER

President Morgan to Recommend to Board of Trustees Removal of 10 Professors He Has Ousted.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 7.—Governor Austin Peay announced today he would urge on the Board of Trustees of the University a full investigation of the charges against Professor John R. Neal of the faculty, one of 10 instructors recently dismissed by President Morgan.

The Governor is an ex-officio member of the board, and the case of Professor Neal is attracting much attention in the State.

University officials refuse to discuss any of the dismissals and the storm of protest that has been aroused. Dr. Morgan, the president, will formally recommend to the trustees the removal of at least 10 members of the faculty previously ousted by him, when the board meets July 17, but he declines to make any explanation now.

Dean Refuses to Discuss Rumors.

Dean James D. Haskins also refuses to discuss the rumors that are being spread about the situation, although urged to do so in the interest of the university.

The issue between President Morgan and Professor Neal is becoming the center of the controversy. The professor is a native Tennessean, a graduate of the university and popular throughout the State. Dr. Morgan is a naturalized citizen, but today would not say when he was naturalized. He voted in Louisiana and Texas and even held office in the latter State before his final papers were granted.

Prof. Neal's case is somewhat different from the rest. It is said, and his friends, many of whom are also friends of President Morgan, are urging him to have his case separated from the others who are due to be discharged.

A round robin indorsing Dr. Morgan was passed about among business men and alumni yesterday, but it got only 25 signatures. One of these was Alfred F. Sanford, the only alumnus on the board of trustees and a classmate of Prof. Neal.

One "Trapped Into Conduct."

Dr. Maurice Mulvania, head of the pre-medical department, is another whose dismissal is expected. It is declared he was trapped into conduct which gives an excuse for dismissal. He wrote the president after Fred Sprowls was removed for teaching the theory of evolution, offering to be an intermediary between the administration and the faculty.

Dr. Mulvania suggested he canvass the faculty and obtain their views as to the needs of the university. But the professor found that 21 out of 31 instructors who answered his questionnaire desired a change in the administration of university affairs.

Other faculty members are deploring the last three months of the school term just closed as a reign of tyranny. Most of the dismissed members belong to the Association of College Professors, and that organization is expected to back their fight for reinstatement.

CITY CHURCH SHOWN HOW CROP OF OATS IS HARVESTED

Acre Cut With Binder for Their Special Benefit—Threshing Set for July 20.

It was harvest time in the city yesterday afternoon. An acre of oats, planted on a lot adjoining the local warehouse of the J. I. Case Threshing Machine Co., 4760 Forest Park boulevard, was converted from a "standing crop" to neat shocks for the edification of nearly one hundred adults and children. A modern binder, drawn by a tractor, cut the crop in a little less than an hour.

The rural scene was designed to give city children a picture of agricultural methods. It lacked such details as flopping straw hats and the old brown water jug, but a group of boys were intensely interested and followed the binder around the field despite the heat and assisted in the shocking. Adults, too, took a hand and some who had spent childhood days on a farm, compared the methods and implements of their day with those used now.

W. R. Ellis, manager of the Case Company, said that the oats would be threshed and the field plowed at 2 p. m. July 28. Children are especially invited to witness this feature of farm activity. The oats will be sold when threshed and the proceeds donated to the Post-Dispatch Ice Fund, Ellis said. He estimated the "crop" at between 30 and 40 bushels.

2 BOYS SUFFER FROM TETANUS DUE TO FIREWORKS INJURIES

Both Were Injured Before Fourth; Poison Likely to Develop as Late as Month.

The first cases of tetanus, from injuries suffered in connection with the celebration of the Fourth of July, were received yesterday at the City Hospital.

Joseph Foglia Jr., 13 years old, of 771 Bayard avenue, was accidentally shot in the left hand with a blank pistol on July 1. He received no antitetanus treatment at the time. Yesterday his condition became critical and he was taken to the hospital.

Eugene McFarland, 12, son of William McFarland, 1440 Pendleton avenue, shot himself in the left hand June 28, when examining a blank pistol. He received antitetanus treatment at the time at the City Hospital and was sent home. Yesterday his condition became serious and he was sent back to the hospital.

Tetanus may develop any time between five days and a month after the injury.

THREE STATE CAPITOL CONTRACTS AWARDED

New York Sculptors to Receive Total of $145,000 for Decorative Work.

Contracts for sculpture for three important points of display in the State Capitol at Jefferson City, to be executed by three leading sculptors of America, were awarded by the Capitol Decorations Commission yesterday.

The contracts are for $145,000, which, added to other expenditures incurred for the ornamentation of the seat of Missouri's government, for paintings, sculpture, tapestry and stained glass windows, brings the total to be spent for this purpose to more than $500,000. About $200,000 more remains to be spent. Announcement of the award of contracts was made last night by Arthur A. Rocian, secretary of the commission, following a visit of the commissioners and the three artists receiving the contracts to the Capitol yesterday.

Details of Contracts.

The sculptors receiving contracts, all of whom live in New York, and work they will do, are:

Adolph A. Weinman, figures carved from stone to fill the pediment, or triangular space above the portico at the main entrance, of the edifice; theme not selected; space 66 feet wide and 10 feet high, $65,000.

Robert Aitken, bronze groups on the cheek blocks, or flat masses of stone, on either side of the steps at the main entrance; one group to typify the Mississippi River and the other, the Missouri; the bases measure 5x15 feet each; $65,000.

Sherry Fry, heroic figure to surmount the dome, to be visible for considerable distances and survey, as it were, the broad reaches of the Missouri. The statue will be 12 to 15 feet high, executed with regard to a commanding silhouette rather than detail; theme not chosen; $13,000.

The work probably will not be completed in less than two years. The sculptors visited the Capitol yesterday to grasp the spirit of the structure and get preliminary ideas of what will be required. They will submit tentative sketches later.

Weinman was a pupil of the famous Augustus St. Gaudens. Among many awards he has received for his work was a silver medal at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition here in 1904. One of his best-known pieces is "The Rising Sun," a figure of a man with outstretched arms, in the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburg. He has done three Lincoln memorials, including one in the Metropolitan Museum, New York. All the sculpture at the Pennsylvania Station and the facade and surmounting figure of the Municipal Building, New York, are his. He designed one of the 50-cent and one of the 10-cent pieces now in circulation, as well as the victory button given to American soldiers and sailors who served in the World War.

Frieze Contract to Be Awarded.

Aitken designed the McKinley monument and the monument commemorating Admiral Dewey's victory at Manila, both erected in San Francisco; "Flame," in the Metropolitan Museum; a medal commemorative of the Panama-Pacific Exposition and a $50 American coin. He is a past president of the Sculptors' Society of America.

Fry, who has carved various remarkable Indian heads, did the pediment of H. C. Frick's home, New York. He has won awards at various expositions, honorable mention at the Paris Salon in 1906, a medal there in 1908, and won the American Academy scholarship in Rome the same year.

The Capitol Decorations Commission soon will award a contract for a sculptured frieze for the exterior of the building, facing the river. A similar frieze for the opposite side, portraying the history of Missouri, is being done by Stirling Calder of New York under a $75,000 contract.

CIRCUS LOT BOUGHT FOR SITE OF POLICE GARAGE

Two-Story Building, to Include Machine and Repair Shop, Planned.

The Police Board has acquired title to property at the northwest corner of Laclede avenue and Sarah street for the site of a garage and machine repair shop. President Brockman last night said the board had not completed plans for the building.

It is understood, however, that the building will be of two stories, the ground floor to be used for police machines and patrols, while the second floor will be used as a repair shop. The plans also, it is said, provide for space in the new building for the carpenter shop, armorer's department and other crafts.

The present garage of the department is near the Laclede Avenue Police Station, Leffingwell and Laclede avenues. It is a ramshackle building, inadequate for the needs of the department. Cars must be driven in on one street and out on another.

When President Brockman became a member of the board, one of his first plans was for a large garage, which, he believed, would save the city considerable money.

He had hoped to get the site of the old Four Courts, southeast corner of Twelfth street and Clark avenue, an entire block, and to build a garage covering the block, which could be used by other city departments. When Brockman became President of the board he learned that the plans he had mapped out would entail too great expense.

The property to be converted into a police garage is part of the grounds used by circuses on their annual visits to the city.

METAL TRIM CONTROVERSY RETARDS WORK ON INFIRMARY

Contractor Gave Work to Carpenters Whereupon Sheet Metal Men Quit.

The jurisdictional controversy between carpenters and sheet metal workers over metal trim work, has retarded work on St. Mary's Infirmary on Clayton road at Bellevue avenue, Richmond Heights.

George Raterman of the construction company erecting the building said yesterday that "a number of the men have quit the job because we gave the work to the carpenters," but asserted that "we are going ahead, anyway, with the work."

The men who quit, he said, were members of the Building Trades Council, which ordered them off the job last Thursday. The council is a party to the national award board's ruling giving this work to sheet metal men, and refuses to let its members work on jobs where the metal trim work is done by carpenters. The carpenters, it will be recalled, recently were ousted from the council because of the controversy and their adamant attitude in refusing to agree to the ruling.

The contractors, as has been told, are the ones caught between two fires. If they let the carpenters do the work, the metal men and other council trades go out; and if they let the sheet metalmen do metal trim work, they have no carpenters.

BAIL IS ALLOWED FOR MRS. RICKNER

Young Widow Charged With Killing Husband, Army Officer, Collapses in Court.

By the Associated Press.

ANNISTON, Ala., July 7.—Mrs. Evelyn Sue Rickner, who, the State alleges, shot and killed her husband, Lieut. James C. Rickner, Eighth U. S. Infantry, was admitted to bail in the sum of $3000 late this afternoon, following preliminary hearing before Judge J. B. Holman Jr. of the Calhoun County Court.

Mrs. Rickner collapsed shortly before Judge Holman rendered his verdict, and was not in the courtroom to hear a short demonstration of approval which met the Court's announcement. Friends declared that bond would be made immediately.

Unusual interest was attached to the case, due to the popularity of the slain officer and to the youth and beauty of his wife. The courtroom was crowded today, a large number of uniforms representing military friends of the couple.

The defense offered no testimony. Judge Holman acted following introduction of testimony by the State. No arguments were heard.

Officials Say Rickner Accused Wife.

Army officers on the stand for the State testified that Lieut. Rickner in his dying moments accused his wife of shooting him and heaped curses upon her head.

Harry Elder of Indianapolis, brother of Mrs. Rickner, and her 4-year-old daughter, Marlyn, sought constantly to cheer the defendant in the courtroom.

Captain Mack, Eighth Infantry, said he saw the defendant walk into her husband's room and later saw her hand the gun to Lieut. Miley after coming out of the room. He said Mrs. Rickner remarked: "I have just shot Rickner. I will be in my quarters when you want me." Captain Mack was officer of the day.

Public Safety Meeting Announced.

The third of a series of public safety meetings arranged by the St. Louis Safety Council will be at 5 p. m. tomorrow at Lyon playground, Broadway and Arsenal street. A safety film, an educational film and a comedy will be shown. Parents are urged to attend with their children. The Industrial Department of the Y. M. C. A. is assisting in these meetings.

SECOND FUNERAL TODAY FOR MINISTER

THE REV. LOUIS H. REITH.

ANOTHER funeral service will be held this afternoon for the Rev. Louis H. Reith, pastor of the Wilke Station Lutheran Church, eight miles north of St. Charles, who died Friday from tetanus. The first service was held yesterday afternoon at his own church. The second will be held at the St. Paul Lutheran Church in Concordia, Mo., the minister's former home, where he is to be buried.

As has been told, the Rev. Mr. Reith was severely burned by lightning when splicing the ground wire of his radio aerial back of his house June 27 at 4:30 a. m. He had cut a section of the wire to mend a break in the ground wire of his telephone, fearing that lightning from an electrical storm which had gathered might penetrate to his home through the broken telephone wire. It was reported that he went barefooted, forming a conductor.

ORDINANCE DRAWN UP TO RESTRICT CORNICES

McKelvey Says He Will Sponsor Bill to Limit Extensions Over Streets.

No cornice of stone or terra cotta will be permitted to extend more than one foot over the street and metal cornices will be limited to a projection of three feet under the terms of an ordinance which Director of Public Safety McKelvey yesterday announced he will sponsor when the Board of Aldermen reconvenes Sept. 14.

Recent accidents, notably at the Schaper Stores Co., Sixth street and Washington avenue, where a section of cornice fell, killing two and injuring eight persons, have prompted the new move.

At present a cornice of any material may extend three feet above the street. The discrimination Director McKelvey makes between stone and metal cornices is due to the fact that stone cornices are heavier and not as strong.

St. Louis architects have advised Director McKelvey that while they feel a 12-inch restriction would spoil the architectural effect of buildings, they are willing to co-operate in every way to insure greater safety. The ruling would apply only to new buildings.

INFERNAL MACHINE INJURES KANSAS CITY HOTEL [illegible]

Fire Bomb, Sent Through Mail, Explodes When He Takes It From Box.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 7.—John Roth, proprietor of the [illegible] ham Hotel here, was [illegible] burned on the hands today when he opened a package received in the mail and which, police said, contained a fire bomb. Roth was standing in the middle of the lobby when he opened the package. Inside a cardboard box he found a metal cylinder with a screw cap. He gave the cap a few turns and a deafening explosion which shook [illegible] across the lobby, occurred. His shirt was set afire, but guests extinguished the blaze with carpets and a rug.

Roth's name was printed [illegible] on the wrapper of the package. A sticker bore the name of [illegible] Paxson Company, North Delaware Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa. [illegible] parts of the bomb remaining after the explosion were turned over to I. B. Walston, chief of detectives. The chief said that the package was intended to start a fire and not to injure anyone.

Accused of Embezzling $400.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 7.—Ray E. Wilson, 30 years old, postmaster at Bolckow, Mo., was sent to jail here today when he waived preliminary examination on a charge of embezzling Government funds. Wilson, who has been postmaster at Bolckow four years, is accused of being short in his accounts $400. His bond was fixed at $1000, which he has been unable to give.

Cards Break Even in Tilts With Dodgers

Toney Beaten, 10-5, in Opener, but Doak and Stuart Win Second, 7-1; Fournier and Hornsby Get Homers.

BROOKLYN, July 7.—The Robins gave full vent to the heavy-hitting urge in the first game of today's double-header at Ebbet's Field with the St. Louis Cardinals and then ran out of swat stuff in the second game. The Cardinals caught the germ in the second game and did some hitting on their own part. So the afternoon party was a "Dutch treat" affair, with Brooklyn winning the opening game by a score of 10 to 5 and St. Louis the second by a score of 7 to 1.

Robbie's men looked with considerable favor on Fred Toney's pitching during the first nine innings of the day's baseball in Flatbush and gathered in 17 hits, including a home run by Jack Fournier, triples by Neis and De Berry and two doubles by Fournier.

Ruether Effective.

Dutch Ruether took care of the pitching in the first game for the Robins and had control of the situation until the eighth inning. He grew slightly wild at this point and Hornsby made a homer. The visitors tallied three times in the last inning.

The second half of the double-header was the reversal of the first half. Leo Dickerman started in the box for the Robins, and the Cardinals were quick to appreciate his work. He lasted just one and one-third innings, and in that time the St. Louis team scored four runs, enough to win the game.

Bill Doak and Johnny Stuart had charge of the Cardinals' pitching, and allowed the Robins only six hits. Doak had to leave the game after going to the bat in the sixth, for arguing too long with Wilson. Brooklyn made three of their singles off him, all coming in the fourth inning.

Pfeffer Suspended.

Wheat made four hits in nine trips to the plate, Fournier five hits in eight times at bat and Johnston three hits in as many times at bat.

Branch Rickey suspended Pfeffer, member of the Cardinals' pitching staff, for insubordination.

In the second game Wilbert Robinson had four pitchers working for Brooklyn. George Smith succeeded Dickerman and in turn had to give way to Decatur in the sixth. Schrieber did the pitching in the ninth.

Leon Cadore, who fared so badly in Thursday's game with Boston, was dispatched to the Chicago White Sox via the waiver route. His shoulder is still in poor condition and he may not be able to pitch for a month.

Johnston Defeats Hunter in Straight Sets at Wimbledon

Little Bill Captures World's Ten nis Championship From Fellow American With Loss of On ly Four Games—Lycett and Miss Ryan Win Mixed Doubles.

By Herbert L. Bourke.

(Copyright, 1923.)

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 7.—Playing a brand of tennis which, I think, would have beaten anybody on earth, "Little Bill" Johnston today walked off with the Wimbledon championship, beating his fellow American, Francis T. Hunter, to the tune of 6—0, 6—3, 6—1.

Johnson began impressively by winning the first three games with the loss of only two points and without the necessity of going to the net once. Hunter forced the fourth and fifth games to deuce, but that was the best he could do and Johnston took the set in ten minutes.

It seemed amazing that Little Bill could show such a vast superiority over a man who has beaten some of England's best, but it only showed how great the new champion is. His ground strokes and the way he controlled his service was remarkable.

Hunter Does Better in Second.

Hunter is usually a late starter and showed up better in the second set. He won the first game on his own service after a hard fight, but Johnston evened matters. Hunter again led a 2-1 and he was putting more stuff on his strokes. Johnston won the fourth game after some sparkling volleying duels, the winner picking opportunities for passing shots with unusual cleverness.

Games still went with service to 3 all. Hunter sometimes missing chances by netting drives as he tried to pass Johnston at the net when he might have tried lobs with better effect. In the last three games Johnston turned loose a little more speed and won them, his backhand drives for placement being a feature.

But the third set showed Johnston even better. He won the first five games almost as fast as the points could be checked off. He was using all the strokes known to the game and bringing them off perfectly. He had a wonderful drop stroke that hardly rose from the ground at all. Hunter managed to take the sixth game, but he could not get going again and Little Bill quickly ran out the next game and the match.

Lycett and Miss Ryan Win.

This is the last time the world's championship will be considered as going to the winner at Wimbledon, and the large crowd gave Johnston a great ovation in recognition of his superlatively excellent play. The King and Queen were among those who witnessed the match, arriving just as the players were warming up.

Before this final, Lycett and Miss Ryan recovered their mixed doubles championship, which they lost last year to Pat O'Hara Wood and Mlle. Lenglen, by defeating L. S. Deane and Mrs. Shepherd Barron of India, 6-4, 7-5. The losers had beaten Vincent Richards and Mrs. Mallory in the semi-finals yesterday.

The winners won only after a bitter fight. They were trailing in the second set 3-4 and 4-5. Lycett was not as consistent as usual, but Miss Ryan was again playing finely, especially at cross volleys.

Lycett and L. A. Godfree won the men's doubles from Count de Gomar and Eduardo Flacquer, the Spanish infernationalists, in an interesting match, 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

Miss Ryan and Mlle. Lenglen easily retained their doubles title by beating the younger English pair, Misses Colyer and Austin, 6-3, 6-1.

WHITE SOX DROP TWO CONTESTS TO NATIONALS

CHICAGO, July 7.—Washington defeated Chicago in both games of a double header today, 4 to 0 and 3 to 2, respectively. The White Sox were unable to do anything with Mogridge's delivery in the first encounter, while the Senators bunched two of their hits behind an error by Happ eny for two runs. They added two more on a walk and a homer by Goslin while Thurston was pitching. The visitors got the breaks in the second game, an error by Kamm paving the way to victory. Fielding by Happeny, Goslin and Kamm featured.

Rixey Gives Only Five Hits and Reds Beat Giants, 4-2

Moran's Men Bunch Hits Off McQuillan in Ninth to Gain Victory.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The Reds defeated the Giants in the first game of the series here today, 4 to 2. Rixey held the champions to five hits and was never in trouble after the first inning, when Jackson's single, a fielder's choice, Rixey's only pass and two force plays gave the Giants their runs.

McQuillan pitched well, but a bunching of hits in the ninth by Bohne, Fonseca and Hargrave gave the Reds the victory.

The attendance was 35,000.

Fohlies Rout Shawkey And Pound Roettger; Vangilder Hurls Well

McManus Raps Out Four-Bagger With Two Mates on Bases—Gerber Gets Five Hits in as Many Trips to the Plate.

By Joseph F. Holland.

The New York Yanks, all that is powerful in the realm of Ban Johnson, picked themselves out of a wreckage of bad pitching and Brownie base hits yesterday and placidly viewed the wreckage of their winning streak which had reached nine straight. They counted the 17 hits the Browns made for a total of 25 bases and agreed that it was a sad blow to their pride; only that and nothing more. The Yanks are too far ahead to worry about the loss of one ball game.

The Yanks were soundly thrashed. They were beaten in the same yielding fashion that the Boston Red Sox are beaten but the championship crown is still on straight. It was one ball game to them and simply because the score was 13 to 3 was no signal for tapping the reservoir of concern.

However, the crowd of 12,000 fans accepted the outcome as a just and fitting revenge. They went back to that "Blue Monday" of last September and saw "Dixie" Davis slowly walk out of the box. They saw "Whitey" Witt drive a single over second and score two runs that beat the Browns out of a pennant.

Yankees Get Nine Hits.

This memory shrouded Elam Vangilder's meritorious triumph to a slight degree, but even at that the vocal accompaniment was strong whenever solid, resounding base hits rang off Brown bats to the outfield.

The game convinced the crowd that the champion has no dispensations. It is the hero one day and the veriest dub the next. A spectator, not familiar with the daily chart of standings, would have supposed that the Browns and not the Yanks were champions of the league.

New York made nine hits, widely scattered. Its pitchers yielded 17 hits, walked three men and hit another. It made four errors, rank errors at that, in the field and behaved like an amateur organization all around. But, to get back to earth, the men led by the mite Huggins still have a pennant lead of 11 full games over their nearest rival. That just can't be laughed off.

Ruth Hits Two Homers.

There was one Yank in the long list that wore the New York uniform who behaved like a real champion. "Babe" Ruth came to bat four times, made two home runs and a single and drew a base on balls on one occasion. He was more than a perfect player on the attack and he handled his only fielding chance just as perfectly. So the fans had quite a day of it. They saw the Browns win and saw "Babe" hit two homers that did not hurt. There were no men on bases at either time.

"Babe's" claim upon the attention of the crowd was disputed by Walter Gerber. The Brownie shortstop went to the plate five times and came away with four singles and a double to his credit. He also stole a base and on the defense handled four chances in faultless style.

Elam Vangilder was not entirely out of the public's attention. With Elam in his best form the famous "Murderers' Row" dropped to the whispering "Murmerers' Row." It could not "Say it with base hits" in the presence of the Cape Girardeau plowboy.

Williams Fails to Get Hit.

There was one peculiar feature in the play of the Browns. Kenneth Williams alone of the nine St. Louisans, failed to get a hit. Ken scored three runs but in three official trips to the plate he did not get a hit. He walked once, was hit by a pitched ball once and reached second on Smith's muff of his fly ball.

The crashing attack of the Browns was an epic of silence in the first two innings and "Babe" Ruth's home run drive in the first still held over as the big feature. But in the last half of the third Bob Shawkey suffered his first wallop.

Schliebner and Vangilder singled to open, moved up on Tobin's sacrifice and scored on Gene Robertson's double to right center. Williams walked and scored behind Robertson on Jacobson's double to right.

McManus Hits Home Run.

Those four runs, in themselves, were sufficient but the Browns were out to make it a complete "bust." They added one more in the fifth and another in the sixth and Bob Shawkey, the "jinx" of all-time, retired with 16 hits and six runs charged against him.

Oscar Roettger, a graduate of the old Walther League, pitched the seventh and allowed seven runs and five hits. Marty McManus pounded

PIRATES POUND PHILLIE HURLERS FOR 18-5 VICTORY

PHILADELPHIA, July 7.—The Pirates handed the Phillies one of their worst defeats of the season today, rolling up 18 runs on 16 hits and nine bases on balls. The Phillies scored five runs and ten hits off Lee Meadows, who pitched leisurely after his mates gave him a commanding lead.

Glazner was found for nine runs and the same number of hits in five innings. Broadway Jones did well, but developed a wild streak in the ninth and gave way to Hubbell, who was walloped unmercifully. "Pie" Traynor made five hits, including a homer, in five trips to the plate.

Former Champion Takes One Set and Makes Brilliant Fight for Crown — Brown and Kammann Meet Drewes and Barr Today for Doubles Championship.

By Davison Obear.

Wray Brown retained his title as Central States tennis champion by defeating Ted Drewes in the final round of the tournament at the Triple A Club yesterday afternoon. The match required four sets, Brown winning by a 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2 score.

As a result of his victory over Drewes yesterday Brown gained a second leg on the Triple A singles trophy. He won the first leg last year. The Triple A is also presenting challenge cups for the doubles event this year.

In the singles final Brown gained a lead in the first set and appeared as a certain winner over Drewes. The former Central States champion, however, overcame a 3-to-1 lead and brought the score to 4-all. Brown won the next two games and the set at 6—4.

Both players used a chop stroke during the entire match. Drewes was more accurate in the second set despite the early lead which Brown gained. With the score 4-all Drewes played brilliantly and captured the next two games and the set.

Brilliant Rallies.

In the third set Brown had less difficulty and only lost three games. Drewes made a number of outs and nets during the first seven games. The eighth game was the best in the entire four sets. Drewes and Brown played 16 points before Brown won the game. In this game Brown made eight placements and Drewes three.

Drewes showed signs of fatigue at the end of the third set. After the 10-minute rest it was thought that he would improve his game. Brown, however, started the set with a rush and won four straight games. Drewes made a large number of nets and outs and won only two games in the set. Brown won his set at 6—2.

After the singles match H. M. Hess, chairman of the Triple A Tennis Committee presented Brown with the challenge cup. He will retain the trophy for a year, and if he wins it again next season it will become his permaneni property.

Stroke Analysis.

The point score and stroke analysis follows:

Recapitulation: Brown—Sets 3, games 22, points 130, double faults 3, netted balls 36, placements 24, outs 54. Drewes—Sets 1, games 15, points 116, netted balls 32, double faults 4, placements 17, outs 40, aces 1. Umpire—Dale Morton. Net judge—W. F. Davis. Foot-fault judge — John Barr. Linesmen—H. M. Hess, F. O. Jostles, C. W. Barnes, F. C. Stuckman, R. Miller.

John Barr of Dallas and Ted Drewes advanced to the final round of the Central States doubles event by defeating the team of Elmer Schwarz and Ted Heuermann in straight sets. The score was 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

Promising Match.

The result of this match was somewhat of a surprise as Schwarz and Heuermann were expected to extend their opponents. Barr and Drewes gained most of their points by good overhead strokes from the net position. Both players are tall and they hit the ball hard and with good accuracy yesterday.

Brown and Kammann also reached the final round by winning from Phil Bagby and John W. Hubbell, the Kansas City players. The local team had the advantage throughout the contest. Bagby and Hubbell made the best showing of the match in the second set when they won three games. The final score was 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

One of the best tennis matches of the season is expected this afternoon when Barr and Drewes play Brown and Kammann in the final round of the Central States doubles. Both teams have come through the tournament without much opposition. It is impossible to predict which pair will win the title but Barr and Drewes will enter the contest as slight favorites over Brown and Kammann.

BROWNS BEAT YANKS 13 TO 3 IN SPITE OF TWO HOMERS BY RUTH

him for a home run with two men on base. The Yanks regarded the pounding of Oscar in his own home town as a sort of humorous skit, but Oscar took it exceptionally seriously.

The Yanks counted their three runs in solo style. Ruth hit a homer in the first, he singled and scored on Pipp's double in the fourth and drove out a homer in the eighth. He scored all the Yankee runs. "Babe" doesn't regard himself as the season's flattest failure at all. He has 18 homers to his credit now and is only four behind Cy Williams of the Phillies.

Pruett to Pitch Today.

The third game of the series will be played today. "Shucks" Pruett, who has won one of the two Brown victories in 10 games with the Yanks, is scheduled to pitch for the Browns. He will be opposed by Jones, Bush or Pennock. Huggins doesn't worry much about his pitchers this year. They fall him about once in 10 games.

Sisler Views Contest.

George Sisler occupied a box over the Browns' bench with President Ball and Vice President Fritsch. He reached out and shook hands with McManus after Marty had driven over the left field fence with two men on base in the seventh.

George, who watches the play of his team very closely, entered the realm of statisticians when he pointed out that Wallie Gerber has made seven straight hits off Bob Shawkey. Walter made four out of four off Bob in New York and three out of three while the former sailor was in there yesterday.

Bush's Drive Breaks Plate Glass Window.

A ball driven by "Babe" Ruth, in practice before the Browns-Yankee game at Sportsman's Park this afternoon, cleared the right field fence and broke a plate glass window in the show room of the Igou Motor Co., 2960 North Grand boulevard. F. H. Rodgers of 4453 San Francisco avenue, who was standing in the show room, was scratched by flying glass.

Tough for Tice.

George Tice, Flint outfielder, is having a tough season. He broke a leg two days before the season opened. He got back in the game recently, played three games, turned an ankle and is on the shelf again. It is feared he may not be able to play again at all season.

TIGERS CAPTURE TWO TILTS FROM MACKMEN

DETROIT, July 7.—Detroit's Tigers, showing unusual signs of life, clambered into a tie for third place in the American League standings with Philadelphia by defeating the Athletics in both sections of today's doubleheader, 9 to 6 and 5 to 2.

Three Mackian hurlers were shoved into the opening fray, Walberg, Kellett and Hasty seeing duty while Detroit's old reliable, George Dauss, went the route in behalf of his mates. The second battle developed into a high class duel between Ed Rommel and Herman Pillette.

Each game was featured from a distance hitting standpoint by a home run. Miller sent the ball over the score board in the eighth inning of the opener, with one runner being on. Heilmann cracked out one in the longest home runs ever seen on Navin field when he smashed the ball over the fence near the flag pole in the eighth of the last game. Cobb was on base at the time.

Indians Score 27 Runs, Setting New Record for A. L.

Speaker's Men Tally in Every Inning and Put Over 13 Markers in Sixth.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., July 7.—The largest score ever compiled by American League club was registered by Cleveland this afternoon when it defeated Boston in the first half of the double-header, 27 to 3. The previous record was 24 to 2, set by Philadelphia against Detroit, May 18, 1912.

The Indians also tied the record by scoring in every inning and came within one run of tying the American League record by scoring 13 runs in the sixth inning.

Cleveland also won the second game, 8 to 5. By winning both games the Indians took undisputed possession of second place.

Hawaiian Net Stars To Play Here

Davis Cup Team to Meet Brown, Drewes and Kammann in Exhibitions.

Harold M. Hess, chairman of the Triple A Club tennis committee, announced last night that the Davis cup tennis team from Hawaii will play exhibition matches with local players on the Triple A courts Tuesday afternoon. The team is on its way to New York and will meet the Australian players in a Davis cup match at Orange, N. J., starting July 26.

The Hawaiian team is composed of William Ecklund, Richard Cook and Bowie Detrick. Ecklund has won the singles championship of Hawaii seven different times. The team is expected in St. Louis tomorrow night and will stop at the Chase Hotel.

Wray Brown, Ted Drewes and Karl Kammann will engage in matches with the Hawaiian players on Tuesday afternoon. The matches will be open to the public and will start at 2:30 o'clock. There will be both singles and doubles contests.

Gibbons Hailed as Hero Upon Arrival at His Home in St. Paul

Challenger, Who Took Champion Dempsey's Punches for 15 Rounds on July 4, Faces His Friends With a Pair of Discolored Eyes.

By Bert Igoe,
The Post-Dispatch's Eastern Boxing Authority.

ST. PAUL, MINN., July 7.—Tom Gibbons played the role of conquering hero returned from the wars to-day when the Great Northern pulled into the home town of the man who has grown suddenly famous because of having escaped knockout at the hands of the mighty Dempsey. From the time Gibbons, with his wife, three small sons and a few close helpers, left Shelby on Thursday night he has been tendered ovations and receptions that a Presidential candidate would jolly well be proud to accepted.

The train was over two hours late at one stage of the journey into St. Paul, but this didn't prevent the Gibbons rooters from gathering at the stations along the line to greet the man who had taken Dempsey's wallops and lived to smile at the end of 15 rounds. At Fargo, N. D., for instance, the liveliest crowd of all was waiting patiently at 1 o'clock in the morning and when the train pulled into the station a tremendous cheer went up.

Gibbons was routed out of his berth and went to the observation platform where he made his bow and thanked them for their reception.

Fathers lifted young sons up to shake the hand that shook the hand of the world's champion, at the end of a distance the students of the game said he'd never reach.

Gibbons Enjoys It All.

Gibbons grinning like a big school boy, seemed to enjoy the different receptions greatly. His real big thrill came when he arrived at St. Paul.

In the station itself the crowd was not as great as the gathering at Fargo, but that was explained when it was learned that the railroad officials feared to let the Gibbons fans into the yards because of the chances of accidents. In the station there was a tremendous throng committee.

Gibbons was carried shoulder high to an automobile that was to carry himself and party to the St. Paul town country club where a real warrior's home coming breakfast was spread.

Gibbons faced his friends with a pair of black eyes. His eyes had become discolored on the train between Shelby and Fargo. When he left Shelby this discoloration, was not noticeable, but when he stepped off the train at St. Paul there was no denying that he had been in a fracas of some sort. He laughed about the eyes and said that it might have been much worse but all the predictions come true. That is sort of laughing at the fates.

Thinks He Can Do Better.

Last night Tommy sat down in a corner of his car with the writers and talked Dempsey. He is amazingly candid about his shortcomings. He thinks he can do much better than he did against Dempsey, does not think he fought his real fight. Oddly enough he says he made the mistake of trying in on Dempsey all the time instead of really trying to outbox and outpoint the titleholder. This is the only thing, according to Dempsey's way of thinking, that saved him from the looked-for k. o.

Dempsey declared that Tom saved himself from exterminating by falling in and clinching.

"If he had stood off and boxed me, I would surely have knocked him out," said Dempsey after the fight.

"If I had boxed at long range I would have done better and might have won," said Gibbons.

So much for individual opinion among the parties of the first and second part.

"I want to box him again," said Gibbons last night with all the earnestness of a man who believes he made mistakes in his first try.

"I have been offered 14 weeks to show business and I'll take the job. I've been working, but I haven't made any money."

And Gibbons chuckled over the predicament. The strangest of all challenger in the history of boxing. It was not very generous with him in a money way but he is the hero of the meeting with the champion. I can't remember a defeated man getting greater ovations unless it was Jim Corbett when he returned to San Francisco after Bob Fitzsimmons had knocked him out at Carson City. As for Dempsey, in my opinion the man o' war of the ring entered a stake race without having at least a qualifying sprint under his belt. Dempsey was short.

McGovern in Europe.

John T. McGovern of Council Bluffs, Ia., an official of the American Olympic committee, a director of the Public Schools Athletic League and international representative of the I. C. A. A. A. A., has sailed for Europe to assist Bevil Rudd of Oxford in preparing for and carrying on the track and field meeting of Yale and Harvard with Oxford and Cambridge University at Wembley.

Olympic candidates will be interested to know that on July 16 in Paris will be held a meeting of the special committee on housing of the athletes there in 1924. Col. Robert E. Thompson, president of the American Olympic committee, and Major Henry T. Allen are already on the ground making a preliminary survey. It is hoped to house the athletes in a good hotel.

Norman Ross Training.

Norman Ross of the Illinois A. C. has been training for the outdoor season and is expected to figure prominently in the longer free style events.

Eastern Golf Stars Defeat Western Team

MacDonald and Brady Score Only Points for West, While Match Between Amateur Stars Ends in Tie

HAGEN TURNS IN 68 CARD FOR 18 HOLES

Sarazen and Black Get 71s, and Bobby Jones a 72—Winners Score 9 Points to Only Two for Losers.

By the Associated Press.

INWOOD, N. Y., July 7.—Leading golfers of the East triumphed today over links aces of the West in a series of team matches on the picturesque bayside course of the Inwood Country Club, where on Monday the qualifying rounds of the national open championship will be started.

The Eastern outfit in six matches contested under the Nassau scoring system, one point for first nine, one point for second and one for match, defeated the Westerners, nine points to two. The showing of the team from beyond the Alleghenies was disappointing, notwithstanding that the Eastern players all were shooting at the top of their game, some turning in cards of par or under.

The greatest interest of the galleries was centered in the clash between Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen and John Black and Jock Hutchison. Hutchison, the great Scot, and Black, grizzled veteran who came within a stroke of the open championship at Skokie last year, turning in a card of 289 against Sarazen's 288, played an excellent game, but Sarazen and Hagen were shooting invincible golf.

Hagen Turns in a 68.

Hagen and Sarazen had the best ball of 66, six under par for the course, while Black and Hutchison's best ball was 69, three under par. Hagen's card was a 68. Sarazen and Black had 7s and Hutchison a 73.

Hagen Out	4	5	4	5	4	3	2	4	4	—36
Sarazen Out	5	4	4	5	4	4	3	4	5	—38
Black Out	4	4	4	4	5	4	5	4	4	—38
Hutchison Out	6	4	4	5	5	3	4	4	4	—39
Hagen In	4	4	2	4	4	2	4	3	4	—32—68
Sarazen In	4	4	3	3	5	4	3	4	3	—33—71
Black In	4	5	3	4	3	3	4	4	4	—33—71
Hutchison In	4	5	3	4	3	4	4	4	4	—34—73

Next in interest was the amateur contest between Robert T. Jones Jr., of Atlanta, and J. S. Worthington, Jr. Vernon, N. Y., substituting for Francis Ouimet and Rudolph Knepper, of Sioux City and Charles "Chick" Evans of Chicago. They finished all square at the end of a brilliant match. Worthington, a mustached veteran, was erratic at times, but Jones' great driving and iron play offset this handicap. Knepper was slightly off his game, continually slicing and pulling into trouble. Evans, however, was a match for Jones. Both played brilliantly.

The amateurs' cards follow:

Worthton Out	5	5	5	5	6	3	2	4	4	—41
Jones Out	4	5	4	5	5	4	3	4	4	—38
Evans Out	4	5	5	5	4	3	4	2	5	—38
Knepper Out	4	5	5	5	5	3	4	4	5	—40
Worton In	4	4	3	5	4	4	5	4	4	—37—78
Jones In	4	4	3	5	4	2	4	4	4	—34—72
Evans In	3	4	3	5	4	3	4	5	4	—35—73
Knepper In	4	5	3	5	5	3	5	4	5	—39—79

Mehlhorn and Partner Lose.

Bob Cruikshank, Westfield, N. J., and Willie Ogg, Worcester, Mass., won one point for the East against William Mehlhorn and Jack Burke, St. Paul. Jim Barnes, and John Farrell, New York, won 2 points against MacDonald Smith of Los Angeles and Samuel French, Youngstown, Ohio. Orell Walker, Englewood, N. J., and Clarence Hackney, of Atlantic City, scored two points against Laurie Ayton, Evanston, Ill., and Harry Hampton, of Brooklands, Mich. Bob MacDonald, of Chicago and Mike Brady of Detroit, won the west's only points. Leo Diegel and Fred McLeod, of Washington, Hagen and Sarazen counted three points, against Hutchison and Black.

Trick Corner in Yanks' Park Will Be Removed

NEW YORK, July 7.—By the time the Yankees return from their next trip to the West, which began on July 6, a famous landmark of the new Stadium will be no more.

The "Bloody Angle," that little corner of deep right field now guided by a low fence, is to be removed.

At the sacrifice of a box seat or two, the corner of the lower grandstand is to be cut away and the foul line will extend to the bleacher wall.

No more freak home runs when Ruth is done. Eight or ten have landed in there so far this year, but a curious part of it is that but one was hit by a Yankee. And in chasing a ball one day Babe Ruth bounded in there, too, on his head, and gave a lot of folks a thrill for fear he had lost his skull or a pair of arms.

This will make the right field foul line of the Yankee park about 228 feet in length, or almost the same as the left field line.

Bernstein Demands $4000 Guarantee

Tells Boxing Commission He Will Not Get Into Ring Unless Money Is Paid.

Jack Bernstein, junior lightweight champion, appeared before the Boxing Commission yesterday and demanded that he be guaranteed his $4000 by that body for his match with Harry Kabakoff, local boxer, before the Lafayette A. C. at the Coliseum Tuesday night, it was announced last night by J. B. Moran, a member of the commission.

In order to get the junior lightweight champion here, Tommy Sullivan had guaranteed him $4000 and three round-trip tickets.

Sullivan was present at the meeting, and asserted that it was unusual for a boxer to be paid before fighting, and that he did not have the money, but relied on the ticket sales.

The commission instructed Sullivan to show evidence by noon Monday that the money would be put up.

According to Moran, Bernstein announced that he would not get into the ring unless he got his money.

Bernstein and Kabakoff are scheduled to box 10 rounds at 131 pounds.

Jimmy Murphy, local veteran, and Jimmy Russo meet in the eight-round semiwindup at 117½ pounds. Two four-round contests also are scheduled. Nick Kube and Walter Rowlands, 130-pounders, meet in one and Russell Kinder and Pat Gaynor, 145-pounders, battle in the other.

In addition to the boxing matches, Jack Fisher, lightweight wrestling champion, meets Al Wasem, local challenger, following the main event.

Margaret Dillon Sets New Season's Record

By the Associated Press.

NORTH RANDALL, Cleveland, July 7.—Pacing the fastest mile of the season and setting a new record for the event on this track, Margaret Dillon, driven by Thomas Murphy, Syracuse, N. Y., repeated her victory at the last August meeting here in the free for all pace today.

Single G., the 13-year-old pacer finished a scant neck behind in the mile, getting away to a bad start and was the victim of an accident in the third heat when he got his foot caught in the wheel of John Henry's sulkey and went down. Neither the aged horse nor Ed Allen, his driver, was injured.

Fast miles featured the day's racing.

The first heat was the fastest run by harness racers this season. In stepping it in 1:59 2-5 and the second mile in 2:02 2-5. Margaret Dillon raced the two fastest miles of the year.

Margaret Dillon's sulkey wheel caught in some knee spreaders that Sir Roche wore and this apparently cost her the third heat.

Sir Roche, driven by Ed "Pop" Geers set a terrific pace in the first mile. He stepped the first quarter in 29 2-5 seconds, the half in 59 2-5 and the three quarters in 1:29 2-5.

By winning the 2:10 trot with Alma Worth and the 2:20 trot with Jean Axworthy McDonald of Indianapolis drove his only two mounts of the day to victory.

In winning the third heat of the 2:16 class trot, Delmar, owned by Taylor and Bowman, Memphis, Tenn., and driven by Sandy Taylor in 2:07 2-5, established a world's double gaited record for mares. She has a pacing record of 2:03¼.

Bill Tilden and Weiner Defeated

Helen Wills Advances to Final in Illinois Tennis Tourney.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Manuel Alonzo of Spain won the feature event today in the Illinois State tennis tournament when he defeated Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2, in the semi-finals of the men's singles before 2500 spectators.

The Yankee chopstroke king played noteworthy tennis, but it was not strong enough to cope with the brilliant style of the Spanish star, whose cross court drives were spectacular.

William Tilden of Philadelphia and Sandy Weiner of Germantown, his protege, went down to defeat in the doubles semi-finals before Walter Hayes, Chicago veteran, and Walter Wesbrook of Detroit. The score: 10-12, 7-9, 6-0, 6-3, 6-4, was indicative of the strong rally made by the two Walters, when their defeat seemed likely.

The western combination won the match largely because of the untiring and sensational play of Wesbrook, a southpaw. His four aces on Tilden, the national champion, constituted only a part of his excellent all around work.

Miss Helen Wills, 17-year-old star of Berkeley, Cal., advanced to the finals in women's singles and tomorrow will meet Miss Marion Leighton of Chicago for State honors. She had no trouble today in defeating Mrs. Leo Alter of Chicago in straight sets, 6-0, 6-0.

The other matches tomorrow will be between Tilden and Alonzo in men's singles and between Wesbrook and Hayes and Alonzo and Johnson in doubles finals.

BATTLING SIKI WILL RECEIVE NOTHING FOR NILLES CONTEST TODAY

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 7.—Battling Siki made a pathetic appeal to Judge Escoffier, of the French Civil tribunal this afternoon against what he termed the "Persecution" to which he has been subjected for the past several months, culminating in an attachment placed by one of his numerous former managers on any and all purses or stakes for which the battler may fight in the future.

M. Edmond Lapart, of Toulouse, was the plaintiff in the case. He already had a lien on Siki's end of the purse for his fight against Morelle on June 2, and today an injunction was served upon the promoters forbidding them to pay the Senegalese any money for fighting Marcel Nilles tomorrow. M. Lapart, who was one of Siki's earlier managers, holds what his lawyers claim is a perfectly legal and binding contract entitling him to 30 per cent of Siki's earnings. The contract is dated 1918. Siki has had a baker's dozen or so managers so far. The Senegalese who has been training earnestly for the Nilles battle tomorrow, appeared in low spirits. He said:

"I am tired of fighting for glory. I got only chicken feed when I licked Carpentier. Why don't they let up on me? I need money for my family."

The court postponed judgment until July 14. Meanwhile Siki will not receive a single centime for fighting Nilles.

Ed Collins Leads Big Leagues In Stealing Bases

White Sox Captain Has Stolen 26 Times Thus Far—Cobb Steals One Base.

The stolen base is becoming more important in baseball. During the era of the lively ball its place was minimized because a runner gained little by attempting to steal. The man behind him was entirely likely to drive the ball out for a long hit and permit him to score without testing the catcher's arm. John McGraw and others who should know say that the lively ball has gone, and that baseball is coming back to its old place, where speed and cleverness count.

Eddie Collins, captain of the Chicago White Sox, has stolen 26 bases this year. He stole only 19 in 1920, only 12 in 1921 and 20 last season. With half of the present season gone, he has passed his total for any one of the last three years. Certainly there must be a reason.

Just Running.

But Eddie Collins cannot explain it in any other way than this:

"I guess it's just because I'm running more. I like to run bases, and the opportunities have presented themselves more frequently this season than in the immediate past. I don't believe the ball has changed materially. It doesn't seem any different now than it has for the past few years. It's just a question of opportunities."

Collins is leading both major leagues in the matter of stolen bases. It is nothing new or novel for him, even though he is now 36 years old, according to the record book. He stole 81 bases in 1910 with the old Philadelphia Athletics and 88 the next year with the same club. He has stolen more than 80 bases in two seasons, more than 60 in two, more than 50 in three and more than 40 in two. That is a record for all of them to seek. This is his eighteenth season in the American League. He joined the Athletics in 1906 before he had graduated from Columbia University, New York. He later returned to finish out his course, but played with Philadelphia during the regular season.

Ty Cobb, the only base stealer to whom Collins had to bow in the past, has stolen only one base this season. Collins cannot explain that other than by taking the converse of his explanation of his own success.

"I suppose he isn't running," he said.

So it seems to simmer down to a question of whether you happen to be running. Of course, Ed forgot to say that there is a lot of ability needed in base stealing. Many men have been running bases through the course of their baseball careers, but have gone no place. You must know how and when to run. Eddie Collins knows how.

CUBS WIN TWO GAMES FROM SEVENTH PLACERS

BOSTON, July 7.—Chicago took both games from the Braves this afternoon, the first, 9 to 1, and the second, 5 to 3, making the Cub record for the season, to date eight victories and one defeat against Boston.

Alexander was hit often in the first game, but showed his mastery by keeping the tribe away from the plate except in the first inning. On the other hand, the Genewich and Benton offerings were combed viciously early in the game, and McNamara's excellent work late in the game was wasted.

Kaufmann's work in the second game in the box was fortunate. His stuff was banged right on the nose, but usually some active Bruin got in the way. Marquard was off color. Oeschger, the relief man, shut out the Bruins in the last four frames.

Accuracy From the Tees Will Be Necessary at Inwood, Sarazen Says

U. S. Open Golf Champion Tells How He Plans to Play Each Stroke in Championship Tournament Which Opens Monday.

By Gene Sarazen,
U. S. Open Golf Champion.

The Inwood Country Club course has been changed considerably since I played in the professional championship in 1921. At that time I considered it, a most excellent lay-out but with the new changes it is one of the most interesting and severest tests to be found anywhere in the country.

I played Inwood the other day in a practice round and the conclusions I came to when I had finished was that there will be plenty of excitement during the open championship which begins Monday.

At present the fairways are very fast and the greens soft and true. These conditions, of course, are ideal for fast golf and low scoring. I think the golf will be swift indeed this year—it is getting more so every season—but despite the dry condition of the fairways scoring won't be as easy as some imagine it will.

To begin with there is plenty of length at Inwood and all of the greens are exceedingly well trapped—in some places extremely so. There is always a wind on this seaside course and very troublesome rough.

Now if a player gets to hooking or slicing on a fast course where there is also a wind he is going to get into more trouble then if the links were slow and heavy. That means that the man who is straight, especially with his tee shots, is going to have a big advantage.

Accuracy Is Essential.

If, meantime, we should get a few days of heavy rain conditions will be greatly changed, and the course will be even harder with its length and trouble. The long hitter would then have the advantage and the man who can play a long iron shot will be in clover.

But regardless of whether conditions are fast or slow a contestant will have to play all of his shots carefully and accurately if he is to figure in this championship.

Long driving alone won't suffice. In fact on some holes you do better to take an iron from the tee. No, simply hitting the ball will mean nothing if you haven't thought out the shot in advance.

There will be the wind, the rough, the traps and length to consider. And if you disregard these elements and go slashing away you are going to encounter trouble and high scores in every direction.

Has Planned Every Stroke.

I will describe each of the holes and then explain what is the best way of playing to the green. We shall play this round here much as I hope to play it in the championship.

No. 1—distance 343 yards, par 4—Opening to green is narrow and of a hog's-back formation. Failure to be up with your second shot means that you will be playing your third out of a trap near the green. This hole calls for a straight drive and a mashie-niblick shot.

No. 2—distance 371 yards, par 4—The tee on this hole has been moved back into the marsh some 50 yards, so that you have to carry a stretch of marsh. There is a pond in front of tee to catch topped drives. There is a large shallow bunker extending out a distance of 175 yards. The green is open and built up behind, but there is a pond to the right to catch a sliced second and bunkers on the sides and in back. There are two ways of playing the hole: If you elect to carry the pit you have a fairly easy mashie shot left; if you keep to the left and avoid the pit you have at least a full iron shot for your second. It is best on this hole to keep over to the left all the way, as the green is opened up from that direction and offers a better second shot.

No. 3—distance 522 yards, par 5—There is a new tee on this hole also that has been put back 50 yards or more. This is a good three-shotter, and calls for a lot of hitting. If you get a good drive you can get home with a following wind, otherwise you will do well to get a 5.

Sounds Like Much Trouble.

No. 4—distance 530 yards, par 5—This is another three-shotter. A new high green has been built to the right of the old one. The green is long and narrow, and calls for a short mashie-niblick pitch after a good drive and brassie. There are large traps on both sides of the fairway all the way along.

The opening to the green is narrow, and breaks to the left, while at the back it slopes off. The contour of the fairway is curving, so that one must be accurate both on the drive and second shot. A ball can easily kick into trouble here if you are even a little off the line. The game is to drive out to the right, play your second over to the left side and then pitch on.

No. 5—distance 519 yards, par 5—Here again a new tee has been moved back some 30 yards, so that it is almost in the water. There is heavy wire grass to the right and intersecting ditches. A large bunker extends half way across the fairway 200 yards from green and a smaller pit 400 yards from tee has to be carried if a player wants to get home on his second. If you are straight here you can get your 5 easily enough.

No. 6—This is the first short hole—distance 177 yards, par 3. The green is heavily trapped, so that a missed shot here means trouble.

No. 7—Another short hole—distance 223 yards—par 3—There is out of bounds to the right and trees and rough to the left. This hole calls for accuracy and a driving iron or better, perhaps, depending on the wind, a wooden shot.

No. 8—Distance 418 yards, par 4—Fairway rather wide with traps to the right and in back of the green. This hole is a drive and about a No. 4 iron shot.

No. 9—This is the old twelfth hole—distance 360 yards, par 4. To the right is out of bounds and to the left a line of bunkers. The green is a punch bowl affair with a bunker in front. Ordinarily you might use a driver and a mashie-niblick, but because of the situation of the hole the best way to play, I believe, is to use a mashie-iron from the tee. That will leave you a full mashie shot for your second and the chance to bang the ball up to the pin without fear of going over.

The distance of this first nine is 3463, and par is 37.

Long Irons, Straight Tee Shots.

No. 10—295 yards, par 4—This is a very small green, well guarded. It is rather dangerous to try and carry green. Best to use driver or spoon play short and chip up.

No. 11—This hole, formerly the ninth, measures 421 yards, par 4. There are sand dunes and a bunker on the right and a row of trees on the left. You can get home with a mashie here.

No. 12—This is the old tenth hole, the pond carry of 108 yards, par 3. You can get par easily enough if accurate, but not if you miss the shot.

No. 13—distance 420 yards, par 4—This hole calls for a drive diagonally over a row of trees to reach fairway. It is no longer possible to play this hole via the eighteenth fairway. The second shot calls for an iron.

No. 14—This is the only par 5 hole on the inward nine—distance 497 yards.—There is out of bounds on the right and a large trap on the left calling for accurate play. The opening to the green is narrow. The green is quite large. This hole is a drive and an iron or spoon and it pays to be up here on your second shot.

No. 15—The last short hole—distance 173 yards, par 3. The tee here has been moved back about 25 yards. Now it is a good mashie iron shot where formerly it was a mashie-niblick. The green is of the plateau type, with a slope to the left.

No. 16—A dog-leg hole of 425 yards, par 4. From an elevated tee the drive calls for a shot over line of trees which form out of bounds. There is also out of bounds on left. The way to play this hole is to hug the trees or slice the drive, in which case you will be able to get home with an iron.

No. 17—Distance 425 yards, par 4. This is a drive and a mishie shot. Green is bunkered in back and on the sides.

No. 18—Distance 425 yards, par 4. This is a fine finishing hole. Bunker at left 200 yards from tee to catch a pulled drive. A pond guards the green at right. Second shot is all carry and is easily a full iron shot. In back of green is a road and on the right side a narrow bunker.

Thus it will be seen that Inwood puts a premium on long iron play and on accurate driving. The long hitter will have some advantage if he is straight. And as I stated before, a player will want to look over the lay of the land carefully before playing his second shots.

M. H. SEXTON SUPPORTS HICKEY IN RIOT CASE

By the Associated Press.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., July 7.—In answer to the criticism directed against President Hickey of the American Association by Manager Kelly of the St. Paul club for the manner in which the league president reprimanded the St. Paul team for the recent riot in that city, President M. H. Sexton of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs today issued the following statement:

"It was upon the express request and direction of my office that President Hickey imposed such a severe reprimand upon the St. Paul club and individual members of the team for the recent outbreak. No possible excuse or provocation can condone outbreaks such as this, and in every instance where the league executive fails to inflict proper penalties the National Association will step in and see that the offenders get their just deserts."

Sweetser Wins Victory Cup

Champion Defeats Sandy Armour and Gains Permanent Possession of Trophy.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Playing the same relentless golf that won him the amateur championship at Brookline last year, Jesse Sweetser today gained permanent possession of the Victory cup at the Wykagyl Country Club by defeating A. ("Sandy") Armour, 6 up and 5 to play.

Sweetser took the lead on the first hole and was never headed. He was out in 35 to Armour's 39 and made the turn 4 up on Sandy. The match ended on the thirteenth green when Jess and Sandy halved the hole with par 3 figures.

Sweetser's golf today was annihilating. He was long for the fee and all his iron shots were played with a crispness that carried them straight to the pin. His work with the putter, while not so brilliant as his play with the other clubs, was consistently good.

Sweetser Beats Anderson.

In the morning Sweetser beat Johnny Anderson, 2 up and 2 to play. In winning Jess went around in 72, par for the course, but Johnny also played nice golf and made the turn for home 1 up on Sweetser.

On the homecoming nine our champion settled down to business and ended matters on the sixteenth green. His card on the last nine was dotted with three birdies and an eagle. This gives an idea of the golf Jess was putting forth.

Sweetser started right after Armour in the final match. He won the first hole in par figures and became 2 up at the second when he got a birdie 3. The third and fourth holes were halved with par 4s, but Jess got his siege guns working on the 397 yard fifth hole and got another birdie 3 by virtue of a fine drive and a great second shot that left him four feet from the pin. Armour just missed a half on this hole when his first putt of 40 yards rimmed the cup. This put Jess 3 up in the five holes played.

The champion kept up his fine play and won the sixth, when Armour took three putts to get down. The short seventh hole was also Sweetser's, Armour's drive landing in a pit, and Sandy took a 4, making him 5 down. The eighth was halved, but Sandy got a birdie 4 on the long ninth hole and made the turn 4 down to Jess.

Match End on 13th Green.

But Sweetser refused to slow down. They halved the tenth, Sweetser making a fine recovery from the sand pit, pitching his third shot right up to the pin. Then Jess opened his bag of great guns and let two birdies fly out, leaving Armour dormie 6.

On the thirteenth Sandy made a game effort to prolong the match, his first shot landing on the edge of the green and about twenty feet from the hole. But his putt trickled past the rim of the cup and Jess got his halve, ending the match and giving Sweetser his third Victory Cup triumph.

Their cards follow:

Out Sweetser	4	3	4	4	3	4	3	5	5	—35
Out Anderson	5	4	4	4	4	5	4	5	4	—39
In Sweetser	4	4	4	3
In Anderson	4	5	4	3

NEW YORK SATISFIED WITH RECENT DEAL

NEW YORK, July 7. — Analyzing the deal whereby the Giants became the possessors of John Watson, pitcher, and Hank Gowdy, catcher, in exchange for Jess Barnes, pitcher, and "Oil" Smith, catcher, it would appear that the Giants got the better of the trade from a pitching standpoint, and the Braves the better between the catchers.

Though Watson hasn't won as many games as Barnes this year, he is a younger man, a tougher man, and can be used oftener. Barnes had to have careful handling. He was good about once a week. There were stories afloat last fall that his pitching arm wasn't just right. He dispelled them in the World's Series, but they cropped up again this spring when he wasn't used in regular turn with the other Giant pitchers.

Peoria Oarsmen Win Regatta; St. Louisan Stars

August Muckler Wins Both Single Sculls Races—Century Club in Third Place.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DECATUR, Ill., July 7.—Going into the final event of the sixteenth annual Central States Amateur Rowing Association regatta on Lake Decatur here this afternoon two and a half points behind the Lincoln Park Boat Club of Chicago, the Illinois Valley Yacht and Canoe Club of Peoria, senior eight-oared crew rowed a beautiful race to defeat the Windy City oarsmen and captured their first point trophy in the history of the organization with a total of 161 points.

After a mishap had delayed the start of the eight-oared event, the three crews got away in good shape, but the Peoria and Century crews soon jumped into the lead and it was a great fight until the final quarter when the Ivy Club boys showed a burst of speed that carried them over the finish mark a good two and a half length ahead of the Centurys with the Lincoln Parks a poor third. It was the only victory of the afternoon for the Peoria oarsmen, but it gave them the point trophy and will give them the right to send their senior eight to the national regatta in Baltimore.

St. Louis Crews Win.

Oarsmen from the St. Louis club won two events with ease when they captured the senior four-oared shell event over the mile and a quarter course. The St. Louis men were not doped to win the event, but they went into the lead at the mile mark and finished ahead of the Peoria by a length.

As was the case Friday, the St. Louis club barge crew took the lead at the very start and were never in danger of defeat. The work of the Century Boat Club was the feature of the race for they were in fourth position at the last quarter, but came through with a wonderful drive to capture second place.

Muckler the Star.

August Muckler, the crack oarsman of the Western Rowing Club of St. Louis, won the two events, the quarter-mile dash for single shells aand the senior single shell race. The latter was especially trying on the oarsmen owing to the fact that the speed boats had cut up the water in their exhibition 10-mile race. Several of the boats had a hard time to finish, but Muckler's oarsmanship stood out in great shape, and he was an easy winner.

Point total: Illinois Valley Yacht and Canoe Club, Peoria, 161; Lincoln Park Boat Club, Chicago, 139½; Century Boat Club, St. Louis, 81; St. Louis Rowing Club, St. Louis, 78; Western Rowing Club, St. Louis, 41½; Central Rowing Club, St. Louis, 12½; North End Club, St. Louis, 8; Baden Rowing Club, St. Louis, 0.

The Summaries.

QUARTER-MILE DASH FOR SINGLE SHELLS (open)—Won by August Muckler, Western Rowing Club, St. Louis; second, Carlson, Lincoln Park Boat Club, Chicago; third, Keezie (Century Boat Club, Chicago); fourth, Mark Olson, Illinois Valley Yacht and Canoe Club, Peoria. Time, 3m. 8s.

Coaching School Has 414 Students

Enrollment at Illinois This Summer Is Largest in History.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

URBANA, Ill., July 7.—Featured by the largest enrollment in its history, 414 students from 43 states, the tenth annual summer course for coaches opened recently. These students, the majority men with coaching experience, have come to sit at the feet of the Illinois varsity coaches and to learn how they do it. The course was a pioneer in teaching competive sports and probably has the largest enrollment for any course of its kind.

Eager to widen their knowledge, students put into practice on the playing field what they are taught in the way of theory in the class room. On the gridiron they punt, pass and hit the line, while on the basketball floor they try their eye for the basket. On the baseball diamond Carl Lundgren takes them in hand and shows them the arts of base running, bunting, fielding and team work. Although some of the students are well up in years, they all seem to enjoy all this even though some of it is strenuous.

Director George Huff, although he has withdrawn from the actual coaching field, still loves to teach the theory of the national game.

Coach Craig Ruby's class in basketball is the largest, numbering 260. Coaches Bearg and Ingwersen assist him. Coach Harry Gill demonstrates the best forms of running, jumping, hurdling and throwing the weights.

"Gil" Dobie and "Bob" Zuppke! East and West! Two brands of football are being taught. With a destre to give a broad view of football, Coach Dobie of Cornell University was invited by Zuppke to share with him the teaching of the sport. Each is giving an independent course and many students are taking both courses. Between classes the coaches exchange views, often with an interested group of listeners.

Other members of the athletic faculty who are giving instruction are: George T. Stafford, medical gymnastics; E. E. Bearg, organization; Seward C. Staley and Carlos J. Wagner, gymnastics; D. M. Bullock, training; Paul Prehn, boxing and wrestling, and W. Sterry Brown, swimming.

Many principals of high schools which seek athletic coaches are coming to the university to get in touch with possibilities.

MACK WORRIES ALONG WITH SEVEN PITCHERS

Only seven men, and one of them only a relief hurler, compose the pitching staf of the Athletics. The regulars are Rommel, the American League pitching ace in 1922; Naylor, a veteran; Hasty and Harris, right-handers, and Southpaw Heimach. Walberg, a Giant castoff, was added recently, but has been used more as a relief pitcher. The seventh member of the squad is Ogden, a big right-hander, who has been of little use this season, having had a lame arm.

When the double-header season starts later on, Connie may have his troubles with so few hurlers, for, of course, some of his seven may be out of the game when the double bills are staged.

Willard-Firpo Advance Sale Exceeds $200,000

Gathering at Thursday's Scrap May Tax 90,000 Capacity of Jersey Bowl.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Jess Willard and Luis Firpo, who will clash next Thursday night at Boyles Thirty Acres in a bout to determine a challenger for Dempsey, reached the peak of their fighting form today in the last strenuous workouts of their respective training programs.

Willard, in his gymnasium at Yonkers, N. Y., satisfied his trainers that he is in the best condition of his career in a brisk 11-round workout, while at Long Branch, N. J., Firpo went through 13 rounds of various training stunts before a crowd of more than 500. The former champion tipped the scales at a trifle less than 240, and the South American weighed 214. They will enter the ring for their 12-round match at close to these weights.

Not since the historic Dempsey-Carpentier contest in Jersey City has a heavyweight match in the metropolitan area attracted the interest shown in the Firpo-Willard encounter.

Firpo, one of the most picturesque figures the ring has produced in many years, and possessor of a terrific punch, has climbed rapidly to fistic fame, while Willard, the 40-year-old former champion, is essaying a comeback in an attempt to regain the laurels he lost to Dempsey four years ago. Willard hurdled the first obstacle when he knocked out Floyd Johnson at the Yankee stadium two months ago and his improvement since then has strengthened the confidence of his followers that he will be able to overcome the rugged youth and fiery attack of the Argentine.

Advance ticket sales for the bout had passed the $200,000 mark today and indications pointed to a crowd that may tax the 90,000 capacity of the big pine bowl.

Tip Toe Inn Wins In Latonia Oaks

By the Associated Press.

LATONIA, Ky., July 7.—The filly Tip Toe Inn, a rank outsider in the betting, with Jockey J. Heupel in the saddle, won the $10,000 added Latonia Oaks at one mile and a quarter, after a thrilling stretch duel, in which the winner lasted, to defeat Gadfly and Sweetheart, by a neck on the post. Untidy, who, with Gadfly, represented the East, finished fourth. Time, 2:09 3-5.

NO CROWDS OR BETTING SO RACE TRACK CLOSES

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, July 7.—Closing of the Kempton Park race track today on the fourth day of what was to have been a seven day meeting because of slim crowds and poor betting may result in other tracks following suit, prominent Canadian racing authorities said. Several tracks will not open their gates when the dates for scheduled meets come around these authorities predicted.

The tracks in this province have been operated at a loss, it was said, because the provincial Government has not cut taxes as promised. The jockey clubs threatened some time ago to close the tracks if taxes were not cut by July 1.

Preliminary 18.2 Tourney Dropped

Six Stars Now Expected to Compete for Title Now Held by Hoppe.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The contemplated 18.2 balkline billiard tournament, preliminary to a subsequent championship event, will not be held. Instead of two tournaments, in one of which William F. Hoppe, champion, would not compete, there will be one tournament, in which the championship will be an issue, and the contestants will probably be Hoppe, Schaefer, Conti, Horemans, Cochran and Hagenlacner, the sextet that figured in the tournament last fall.

That is the decision made by Benjamin E. Bensinger, president of the Brunswick-Balke, Collender Co.! Speaking of the situation, he said: "The proposition to have a preliminary tournament for all players of championship class excepting Hoppe will not do. Others who were in the last championship event object to going into a preliminary. I don

Jerusalem Churchmen Appeal for Funds to Save Holy Places Heretofore Cared For by Russia

Western Church, Which Has Not Had Any Share in Preserving These Scenes Associated With Life of Christ, Urged to Take Up the Burden.

THE sacred places of the Holy Land—Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Nazareth, Olivet—are in danger.

The holy places in the life of Christ around which cluster so many precious memories for all those who acknowledge Christianity are calling for the help of the church of the United States, Canada, in fact, the entire world.

This is the message which has been flashed from one end of Christendom to the other. And the message has been heard. Already prominent American churchmen are organizing to give the much needed assistance and protection.

The Church of the Holy Sepulchre and the Chapel of St. Helena; Gethsemane, at the foot of Olivet; Church of the Virgin, where it is said the Virgin Mary was buried; Church of the Ascension, on the top of Mount Olive—these in Jerusalem; the Church of the Nativity, in Bethlehem; Church of the Neapolis, built on Jacob's well where the good Samaritan woman met Christ; Church of the Virgin at Nazareth, where Christ lived as a carpenter's son; Church of the St. Elias, on Mount Carmel, where Elijah had the contest with the prophets of Baal; Church of St. John, at Ain-Karin, where St. John was born—these are the most important of the sacred places in jeopardy.

The Eastern Orthodox Patriarchate of Jerusalem, one of four patriarchates of the Eastern Orthodox Church, which from time immemorial has cherished these sacred rites, is in such financial straits that its future guardianship of these holy places is in imminent jeopardy.

The Bishopric of Jerusalem, on which the Patriarchate of Jerusalem was subsequently based, dates back to James, "the Lord's brother," in the days of the Apostles. The Patriarch, with the Brotherhood of the Holy Sepulchre, which has grown up around him and of which he is the official head, has, with various vicissitudes and interruption, been the guardian, or at least the principal guardian, of the holy places, to which pilgrims and worshipers from all the nations and communions of Christendom have continually resorted. Christian churchmen have declared that words and figures cannot express the debt which the Christian world of today owes to the Patriarchate and Brotherhood for its preservation of these shrines through the centuries of the early church, the Dark Ages, the Crusades and since, down to the present day.

Western Church's Chance.

Americans who now are mobilizing to help believe that the Western church, which heretofore has not had any direct share in the responsibility for preserving these sacred places, should now have presented to it the opportunity and privilege of assuming such a share.

This opportunity comes to the American churchman largely as a result of the war. The constituency of the Patriarchate, comprising only about 100 churches, never was able in recent times to sustain its many activities by its own contributions. Besides the care of the shrines and the conduct of the services required, and the usual work of the churches themselves, the Patriarchate maintains and operates, or rather did until the war stopped them almost entirely, orphanages, hospitals and other eleemosynary institutions, grade and high schools, hospices, monasteries and a theological seminary. One of the educational institutions is located with the Patriarchate of Antioch. The care of pilgrims has been an immense and costly duty. During and since the war relief of every description has been administered to the native population and to refugees without sectarian discrimination.

The money to conduct these religious, educational, charitable and hospitable activities, over and above the relatively small percentage collected from the constituent churches, has come very largely from Russia, partly from Russian land holdings of the invested proceeds of the sale of such lands, and partly from the offerings of Russian pilgrims. It is calculated that by 1914 no less than 64 per cent of the whole income of the Patriarchate was derived from Russian sources. Other properties in the Holy Land itself and elsewhere produced additional funds through rentals and sales.

Russian Income Lost.

But for many years the revenues have been inadequate to meet running expenses, while the effect of the war has been to cut off absolutely all revenue from Russian sources, greatly reduce it from other sources, depreciate the purchasing power of all available funds and occasion extraordinary expenses and extraordinary borrowing, so that the debt has been run up until it stands today at $2,000,000.

The creditors are various: merchants, banks, professional money lenders and lay communicants. The securities given for payment are various. In the aggregate they constitute practically a mortgage on all the Patriarchate, through centuries of time and turmoil, have slowly acquired and faithfully held sacred. Substantially the entire revenue of the Patriarchate now comes from its rented properties. If the courts take these over for the benefit of its creditors, then the Patriarchate will be without substantial financial support and must collapse.

In that event not only will one of the most venerable and dignified historic institutions of the Christian faith dwindle, almost disappear, but the places made sacred by the human ministry of Christ must gradually become shabby for lack of funds for their upkeep.

Will the American church permit this to happen, is what the American Committee on Preservation of the Sacred Places in the Holy Land is asking of the people of the United States and Canada today. The committee points out that all of this would have happened before now but for the fact that the Government of Palestine has declared a special moratorium. This moratorium expires on Aug. 1, 1923, and there is no reason at this time to expect an extension.

The High Commissioner, Sir Herbert Samuel, appointed a commission of inquiry, which reported its findings two years ago, including measures advisable for liquidation of the debts of the Patriarchate. The basic measure advised was the appointment of an official commission of liquidation and control, to concern itself partly with re-establishment of a sound budget. The advice was acted upon, the commission was appointed and is now functioning.

Must Act by Aug. 1.

The amount of money which this commission has to apply on the debt after paying running expenses and interest charges out of receipts from the properties under its control is so small that it affords the commission no basis for negotiating with the creditors for further patience before taking legal action to realize on their accounts and securities, which they will have the right to do on Aug. 1. This is the principal reason why the American committee has been organized. The present running expenses represent only a bare skeleton of the former activities of the Patriarchate, all of which it ought to resume, it is

New Ellis Island Immigration Commissioner Tells of Need of Revision of the Quota Law

FINDS APPORTIONMENT ERRONEOUS AFTER WEEK IN OFFICE

Law Under Which 20 Per Cent of Total Allowed From Any One Nation in Year May Be Accepted in a Month Is the Cause of Racing Between Ships and the Attendant Hardships Among Immigrants and Overcrowding at Port.

If This Percentage Were Cut in Half, the Present Intolerable Conditions Would Be Eliminated and a Better Class of Future Citizens Would Be Secured, Although Objections on Latter Ground Have Been Largely Overcome.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, July 7.

IMMIGRATION has suddenly become dramatic. Ever since America became the so-called Promised Land the wrinkled faces and burning eyes that have landed at Ellis Island from every ship have interested those with a turn for sentimental pathos. But during the last week immigration has changed from a labor problem and a sentimental problem into an international race rivaling the efforts of Sir Thomas Lipton. Every day the newspapers have told of the dash of ships to make port before the number of their Greek or Italian passengers allowed to enter the United States during July has been exhausted.

Maj. Henry H. Curran was landed on Ellis Island on July 1 to take charge of the horde that is arriving on every ship. Maj. Curran has had contact with immigrants before in several different capacities. Twenty-five years ago he was a ship news reporter, and for more than a year he described the arrivals of immigrants daily. As a magistrate in New York City later in life he became familiar with the troubles of arriving immigrants after they have been admitted to the Promised Land and started in business to collect the promise. He also helped to administer a fresh air fund and in that capacity came in contact with the humanitarian phases of the problems of immigration. But, one month ago he did not expect to be called upon to use his interest in immigrants, and now suddenly he has been confronted with some of the most baffling phases on one of the country's most troublesome and most important issues. In his speech at Spokane last week President Harding testified to the importance of the immigration problem by his statement that "another century will give us a population of probably 300,000,000." Secretary of Labor Davis is so much impressed with the perplexities of the immigration problem that he sailed Wednesday for Europe for the specific purpose of studying the problems of immigration from that end.

Interest Everywhere in Immigration

The night before he sailed the writer asked Secretary Davis to discuss some of the problems of immigration, but he said that he preferred to answer my questions upon his return from Europe, after he has studied the problem. He intends to visit Great Britain, France, Germany, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia, Italy, Turkey, Greece and the other countries that supply most of our immigrants. "I shall be able to talk to them in their own languages," said the Secretary. "I worked with men from all nations when I worked in the steel mills, and I learned enough to be able to get along."

But the problem of the moment is the problem of the Commissioner of Immigration, Henry H. Curran. I saw Maj. Curran at Ellis Island on the Fourth of July which happened also to be his fourth day in office. He wished first of all to make it clear that his impressions are first impressions, and that he will not be able to generalize until his experience warrants generalization.

"Immigration," said Maj. Curran, "is at present interesting to everybody. And everybody seems to have a plan to solve its problems immediately. People will tell you on the telephone how to deal with immigration thoroughly. I prefer to study it first, and fortunately I have the opportunity, for Congress is not in session and will not be in session until I have had a chance to consider some of the suggestions which should be presented to it by the Department of Labor.

"At present we have an immediate, pressing problem: how to get rid of thousands of immigrants weekly so that the couple of thousand arriving daily can be handled. Two-thirds of the immigrants who arrive in this country land at Ellis Island, and in the last four days I have been confronted with all the ramifications of that problem. During the last week and up to Saturday night we will have handled more than 16,000 immigrants. The most we can accommodate easily are 2000 each day, so you see that we have cause for work and worry."

"For those who can regard it impersonally," said Maj. Curran, "this race for port is a pretty problem in the nature of chess and with all the elements of a game of chess, because we never know exactly how many people we shall have to accommodate. Every time I look out of my window I seem to see another boat coming up the harbor." A few minutes later Maj. Curran got up to look out of the window, and there really was another boat coming up the harbor.

MAJ. HENRY H. CURRAN,
New Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island

"But for those who are also interested in humanity our problem is not merely a pretty and perplexing game. What we do means comfort or lack of comfort for thousands, and I am interested in preventing suffering. Fortunately the weather has been with us. If we had hot weather, and if we get hot weather, there will be considerable suffering, because ventilation in ships usually works effectively only when the ship is under way and not when it is lying in port waiting to be unloaded."

"What effect has the present rush to fill quotas on the quality of the immigration?" I asked.

Quality of Immigrants Improving

"I cannot answer that exactly," said Maj. Curran, "but I am under the impression that the quality is slightly higher than the average. It is to the interest of the steamship companies to bring those who will be admitted, because in many instances the steamship companies must return passengers who fail to gain admission at the expense of the company and must also refund the passage money to this country. That ruling is in some measure responsible for the high quality of immigrants in spite of the rush.

Some of the immigrants who landed this week were Scotch jute spinners with jobs waiting for them in Brooklyn. There were also large numbers of Scotch and English mechanics, ship-builders and automobile workers who left immediately for the West where they are needed. I asked Maj. Curran whether any measures were taken to insure such proper distribution of immigrants with regard to their particular abilities as will get them jobs immediately.

"The humanitarian societies try to arrange for such distribution. Officially, we can do nothing to insure it. That is one of the many perplexing problems that must be worked out."

The present quota system provides that only 3 per cent of the nationals who were born abroad of any one nationality already resident here shall be admitted during the year. That is, 3 per cent of the Greeks who were resident here according to the 1910 census will be admitted this year, beginning July 1. During any one month of the year only 20 per cent of those 3 per cent are allowed to enter. I asked Maj. Curran if it would not be better to establish quotas on economic rather than artificial national standards.

Evils of 20 Per Cent Allotment

"I do not know enough about it yet," said the Commissioner. "But I can say now that the provision that 20 per cent of a quota be allowed in one month should be revised. That is the cause of our present rush. Only 10 per cent of each quota should be admitted each month. That would distribute the immigration throughout the year instead of bringing the bulk of it during the summer months."

"What did the framers of the law have in mind when they established 20 per cent each month?" I asked.

"Immigrants prefer to come here in spring and summer," said Maj. Curran. "It was in an effort to cater to this preference that the percentage was placed as high as 20. That is the cause of our present rush. The majority of immigrants prefer to come here when the skies are clear rather than in the cold winter weather. But that desire should not be catered to if it results in the present congestion. John Alden came here in winter, and the majority of the Pilgrims landed in cold weather. Some of the larger numbers who have followed these Pilgrims must do likewise. At present we have a few months of great overcrowding like the present condition at Ellis Island, and then in the winter months the pressure will be less. We shall have enough to do all winter, but the problem would be simplified if the percentage was changed from 20 and 10 and immigration was thereby distributed throughout the year."

Maj. Curran and the staff at Ellis Island have been working daily and Sunday and holidays. Last week the staff lost two holidays, Sunday and the Fourth of July. "I intend to make up those holidays to the staff sometime during the year," said Maj. Curran, "because I appreciate the fact that there has been no grumbling at the necessity to give them up. The staff should be mentioned in anything I say in the newspapers. The inspectors, in spite of the rush, have treated the immigrants courteously and with patience."

Commissioner Has No Director

"Another point I wish to make," Maj. Curran said, "is that I, as Commissioner, have no power to decide who shall be admitted to this country and who shall be excluded. People are generally under the impression that I am the judge. I am nothing but the administrator of a clearing house. All appeals on the decision of the Investigating Board go to Washington and are decided by the Secretary of Labor or his assistant. I can forward a recommendation after talking with the immigrant, but that is nothing like a suggestion, and that is the extent of my power. We are doing all we can to hurry decisions on appeals so that we can get as many immigrants off the island as fast as possible. These decisions have been forwarded by mail. Now they are being telephoned to this office from Washington. The Assistant Commissioner-General of Immigration, as soon as he recovers from an illness, will come here from Washington and decide on appeals in this office. That will hasten decisions considerably."

Maj. Curran himself is one of those who have been working Sundays, holidays and evenings so that immigrants may not be kept in the steerage of steamers any longer than necessary. The Commissioner slept at Ellis Island last week. One night he came in contact with an immigrant whose case illustrates the human nature of the Commissioner's job. This man was a colored buck and wing dancer.

"I went through the dormitory and saw him doing a perfect buck and wing dance of the kind you see only professionally on the stage. I was sure from the action of his feet that he must be a citizen from the South, and I wondered what he was doing at Ellis Island. When I questioned him, he insisted that he was a Hindu. He had told all the inspectors in a pure southern station accent that he was a Hindu. I discovered that in vaudeville he was billed as a Hindu, and that he intended to stick to that nationality for the honor of his stage reputation. I pointed out that Hindus are not admitted to the United States. He finally admitted that he was born here, but he could not quite remember where. First he said it was in Philadelphia. We telegraphed to Philadelphia and could find no trace of him. Then he said he had made a slight mistake, that it was Pittsburg. There was no trace of him in Pittsburg. Finally, he said he thought he was born in North Carolina, and we located his family in North Carolina. He is probably today doing his fine buck and wing dance on a nearby vaudeville stage as a genuine Hindu."

The Commissioner is interested in all phases of his perplexing problems, including the buck and wing dance.

Do We Need a New Canal to Supplement That at Panama? "Not in Many Years!" Says Expert

U. S. Naval Commander Says Present Waterway Can Be Enlarged to Handle Traffic for 30 Years and Beyond That None Can Guess What Our Needs Will Be.

By LIEUTENANT-COMMANDER P. V. H. WEEMS, U. S. N.

WASHINGTON, July 7.

IT is only recently that the Panama Canal has begun to operate under normal conditions, free from the effects of the World War, and with the slides sufficiently under control to make the operation of the canal continuous. The canal tolls for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, amounted to $11,197,832, while the cost of operation was $7,407,998, leaving a net revenue of $3,789,834. Since the present canal commenced to yield a revenue over and above the cost of operation, suggestions have been made by various parties that another canal be dug across the Nicaragua route. While there are arguments in favor of another canal, the need is so remote that the undertaking of another canal at this time would be a poor investment.

It is good business for a manufacturing concern to have the manufacturing facilities expand in proportion to the demand for the articles purchased, but it would be poor policy to double these facilities years before the capacity of the original plant is reached. In other words, the plant should grow in proportion to the required output and not so far in advance of it as to make the business a poor investment. In the case of the Panama Canal we have only about 25 per cent of the possible capacity utilized, yet there is considerable agitation for the construction of another canal doubling the ultimate capacity of the present canal. If we could worry along without any sort of canal until 1914, it seems that we should be able to get along with the greatest canal in the world at least 30 or 40 years. Especially is this true when it is known that the possible capacity via the Panama Canal is something like 50,000,000 net tons a year.

Conditions Analyzed.

Granting that several years would be required for the construction of the Nicaraguan canal, yet if the capacity of the Panama Canal should be reached in the near future it would mean such a business boom that we could well afford to push the construction of a new canal to the limit regardless of the cost of the work. This, no doubt, would cut the time of construction below the original estimate and would embarrass shipping only a few years, if at all. It is far better to invest the relatively small sum in increasing the capacity of the present canal before we undertake the tremendous cost of building a new canal.

Some of the principal advantages of a Nicaraguan canal would be: (1) The amount of traffic could be doubled provided there is sufficient shipping. (2) The military advantages of having two routes. (3) Shorter distances via the new route. (4) Preventing any other country from undertaking the construction of such a canal. The principal arguments against the canal are the first cost and the fact that the capacity of the present canal can be increased fourfold at relatively small cost. At present, about 22,000,000 net tons of shipping pass through the Panama Canal each year. The traffic is handled between 7 a. m. and about 10 p. m. By continuous operation for the entire 24 hours the transits would be increased a proportionate amount.

Conserving Water Supply.

After the capacity of the canal has been reached in regard to the physical operation of handling the traffic, the number of transits might be limited during the dry season to the available water supply. The water from Gatun Lake is distributed approximately as follows: 50 per cent through Gatun spillway, 25 per cent for hydro-electric power, 11 per cent to evaporation on the lake surface, 164 square miles; 11 per cent for locks ages and 3 per cent for municipal and other purposes. These figures vary from year to year, depending on the run-off and the number of transits through the canal.

Either by saving more of the water which is wasted over the spillway, or by restricting the amount of water employed for hydro-electric purposes, the amount of water for lockages can be increased. The evaporation is nearly constant from year to year, and the amount of water used for municipal and other purposes is negligible. From March to November, which is the wet season, the water supply is greater than needed. The lake is filled to the maximum level of 87 feet above sea level, after which the surplus water is wasted over the spillway. A higher level than 87 feet would flood the motors operating the lock gates. During the dry season, lasting from about December to April, the water supply is not sufficient to maintain the lake level at 87 feet. During the dry season of 1920 the lake reached the lowest recorded level, 81.7 feet. The minimum level should not be less than 79 feet, as this would give a minimum depth in the canal of 39 feet. In order to reduce the amount of water now used for generating power, fuel must be supplied to generate the power—a costly makeshift.

A comprehensive scheme is proposed whereby the greater part of the water now lost through the spillway may be utilized for lockages. The plan is to construct across the Chagres River at Aljahuela, about 10 miles up the river from Gamboa, an impounding dam 157 feet high, which would raise the storage lake to a level of 227 feet above the sea. The amount of water thus stored during the rainy season would be sufficient to raise the level in Gatun Lake three feet, or the amount of water storage would be increased about 40 per cent. The estimated cost of the project is about $5,000,000. Since the discharge from the Chagres River is more than half the total water supply of the lake, such a dam would give practically full control of the water supply.

Raising Canal's Capacity.

By constructing another set of locks alongside the present ones, making the locks triple instead of double ones, the capacity of the canal would be further increased by 50 per cent. It is estimated that after these proposed alterations have been made the canal can handle 50,000,000 net tons of shipping annually. At present the canal is handling about 12,000,000 net tons annually. In other words, by making a comparatively small investment at the present canal, its capacity can be made to handle four times more tonnage than is now being handled. Experts estimate that these improvements will be sufficient for at least 30 years, after which the canal might be outgrown.

Thirty years is a mighty long time. By 1953 air routes might be in competition with the water routes. At any rate, any calculations made for 30 years hence have an excellent chance of being thrown out by changing conditions. Even supposing that the canal should draw more shipping than it could handle, the inexorable law of supply and demand could be utilized and the amount of shipping decreased by increasing the tolls. It would be almost beyond all expec

THE POLITICAL PRISONERS.
A Brave Man's View of Freedom.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE read the letters of ex-Maj. Hall and ex-Judge Duke Frederick opposing amnesty for the political prisoners. I am neither an ex-major nor an ex-judge; I am merely an ex-buck private, who got five pieces of shrapnel in him in Argonne Forest and was crippled for life. I have no great command of words and cannot muster the eloquent rhetoric which they display.

But I have read the history of the trials of the political prisoners, and I am convinced that none of these people received a fair trial, and that none of them could have been convicted under normal conditions. One man was sentenced to 10 years on testimony that he said he would "like to see the man responsible for the war locked up on bread and water for the rest of his life." Well, in France I heard soldiers express more emphatic views than that about the people responsible for the war. When I woke up in a field hospital with some of my best bones shattered I didn't feel very kindly toward the people responsible for the war myself.

I have seen a lot of these gentlemen who still have their war paint on. They like to orate at meetings of the American Legion. But I can't remember having seen any of them at St. Mihiel or the Argonne. I saw lots of them in Paris. They liked to wear their Sam Browne belts and talk to the mam'selles.

When I went to France—as a volunteer—I understood it was to defeat Prussianism, not to transfer it to the United States. I think the Post-Dispatch's crusade for the freedom of political prisoners is a great work for civilization. I can't walk, so I don't travel much, but if ex-Judge Frederick and ex-Maj. Hall will come to see me I can tell them some things about peace—and war.

EDWARD SIMMONS.

Beauty and the—Major.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WITH regret I've read the letter of ex-Major Hall. What is wrong with Hall? Did he not have a chance to shoot anyone during the infamous war? There was no reason for the war as far as the poor were concerned, and he knows it. He knows full well that the war was only to protect the interests of the capitalists.

All prisoners of the type in question should have been released immediately. They did nothing more than voice their opinions, which is right. No one living has a right to condemn the other for exercising his right of free speech. I think of Robert L. Richard in his letter of yesterday. Teach the ex-Major the Lord's prayer. Keep up the good work, Post-Dispatch.

If It Were Elias' Opinion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE writer wishes to challenge the statement of A. T. Elias, of East St. Louis, in your newspaper of June 21. Every man has a right to form an opinion, so has a newspaper. Evidently Mr. Elias has formed his. Shall a man be sent to prison for forming and expressing that opinion regardless of peace or war?

The Constitution of our great Republic says no. Then why criticise our press when it has the backbone to uphold our Constitution? It is a disgrace that we should hold men in prison for expressing their opinion. It is much easier for a man to talk out of prison than in, and if Mr. Elias was in prison for expressing his opinion, leaving his wife and babies without support or care, I would challenge my Government for his release. If Mr. Elias were in prison as long as these men he refers to he might look like one of the bunch of "roughnecks," but regardless of what he looked like, that is no reason why he should be held in prison to suffer after the evil war is over.

The father or mother who upholds their children in wrongdoing when they should correct them, set a bad example to their children, and a Government that don't hold up its Constitution does likewise. Yes, Mr. Elias, you have a public right to challenge your press and to express your opinion, and any true-blooded American would fight for your liberty if you were put in prison for expressing yourself. A. J. SNYDER.

"Speaking for" the Soldiers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

AS AN ex-soldier and member of the Legion, I would like to ask Maj. Hall and Duke Frederick by what authority they make the statements that they "speak for a majority of the men who went to France." The views of the men who went to France have never been officially ascertained on this subject, and, as one who knows a good many of them, I don't believe a majority are guilty of any such views. A man who is careless about stating facts on one subject is likely to be careless about stating facts on other subjects, and I'll bet that neither of these war-like letter-writers knows anything about the facts in the cases of the political prisoners. If so, why don't they state them?

EX-PRIVATE.

MR. HARDING'S RUTHLESS POLITICS.

The proposal advanced by Mr. Harding in his St. Louis speech for a self-perpetuating World Court was analyzed at length and with great clarity by David Hunter Miller of New York in the Post-Dispatch Thursday.

Mr. Miller says Mr. Harding's speech ended the possibility of American participation in the court. He shows how Mr. Harding has reversed himself, reversed Mr. Hughes by rejecting the Hughes plan which Mr. Harding had adopted as his own and by throwing over the whole electoral scheme drafted by Mr. Root.

The Root method for electing members of the court is presented in detail. By that method the Council and the Assembly of the League of Nations elect the Judges of the World Court, but the candidates for such election are not nominated by the Council or Assembly. Those candidates are chosen by "national groups" appointed by the Arbitral Tribunal of The Hague. Those "national groups" consist of not more than four individuals. The American "national group" is made up of Elihu Root, Oscar Straus, Judge George Gray and Judge John Bassett Moore. The "national groups" of the other nations are citizens of comparable eminence and character. By such men are the nominees chosen from whom the Council and the Assembly elect. And in order that every nation may have a voice in the election it is necessary for a candidate to procure a majority both in the Council and the Assembly to be elected.

The plan as devised by Mr. Root has worked well. This plan, obviously, is predicated on the machinery of the League of Nations, without which it would have been inconceivable. And as Mr. Root has himself explained, the existence of the World Court, which the nations have long dreamed about, is due to the fact that the League of Nations provides the machinery which made a satisfactory method of electing the Judges possible.

The "curse" of the League of Nations which Mr. Harding is so bent on lifting from the World Court is a myth of wretched factional politics. It is to this vicious influence that Mr. Harding has yielded. He scraps the one and only practicable plan for electing the Judges of the World Court and offers as a substitute a plan which, Mr. Miller clearly shows, would transform the World Court into a super-government—a plan which no nation would ratify.

Mr. Miller's conclusion is that Mr. Harding's plan "is not one for a World Court, but it is a plan for a united Republican party."

For the sake of a united Republican party Mr. Harding is willing to wreck what he himself describes as the greatest institution yet created for minimizing the risk of war and maintaining world peace. Has ever a President played politics more ruthlessly and more destructively?

A SHRINE FOR MARK TWAIN.

The "Mark Twain" Memorial Park Association has undertaken a work which is a sweet antidote to the gross materialism of the times. It has conceived the project of preserving as a literary shrine the birthplace, with its environs, of the man who has won for Missouri a wider and more permanent fame than any other of her native sons.

The organized movement was originated by the editors of Northeast Missouri, whose special interest in the immortal humorist is occupational. S. L. Clemens was a pioneer of Missouri journalism. But a great deal of the credit for initiating the scheme must be awarded to M. A. ("Dad") Violette, who rescued from the wreckers the shanty at Florida, Mo., in which the author was born, had it moved across the street, restored it to order and furnished and surrounded it with the objects of a century ago.

The purpose of the association is to raise by popular subscription funds necessary to purchase the old home and about 100 acres of surrounding land to become a national shrine and retreat for visitors. A picnic gathering at Florida on July 12, to which all interested in the author of "Tom Sawyer" are invited, will open the campaign which is to include various events calling attention to the life and works of Mark Twain.

There are few, if any, causes of cultural effort in Missouri more worthy than this. "He cheered and comforted a tired world," says the inscription on the Mark Twain monument erected by the State at the intersection of the crossroads entering the tiny village of Florida. Is there anything in the world of more certain value than something that will make it laugh? And Mark Twain was not only a humorist but an artist and philosopher who made the public think.

OKLAHOMA'S HARSH LESSON.

Gov. Walton of Oklahoma has tried to justify his extraordinary action in placing Okmulgee County under martial law by charging a reign of "lawlessness and terror." But the proof he offers in support of his charge is unconvincing and even trivial and has been riddled by the frank statement of the Sheriff of the county. It should further be observed that the country at large has heard nothing about this condition of "lawlessness and terror" which somehow has managed to keep out of the news. Further still, the people of Okmulgee County themselves seem to be unaware of their plight and are dazed by the Governor's action and the presence of the militia.

But apart from the Governor's outrageous Okmulgee proceeding his administration has been tempestuous and distressing. The resignation of the president of the University of Oklahoma is charged to the Governor. Of similar, but more flagrant, stripe was the retirement of the head of the Agricultural College and the appointment of a political henchman of the Governor's to the post, who assumed the office with a display of armed force.

The Walton administration, though in its first year, is going strong—running wild, in fact. It has already succeeded in pretty well demoralizing the State's two leading educational institutions, has indicted one of the populous and progressive communities of the State, and is brandishing the same threat of martial law over other counties.

The people of Oklahoma are getting more than they bargained for when they elected Jack Walton Governor, but hardly more than they deserve.

They knew Walton. They knew him in private life as an engineer of sorts, but had never been able to find out from what school of engineering he was graduated. They knew him as Mayor of Oklahoma City to be a noisy purveyor of bunk, a blatant incompetent, a vociferous "friend of the people," a professional enemy of "the interests." They saw him as a candidate for Governor catering to almost every element of discontent, listened to his demagogic tirades and preposterous promises, and knew, or should have known, that neither by training nor native talent was he fitted for the office.

Had the thousands of Democrats who voted for Walton as a matter of party loyalty, and held their noses while doing it—had they exercised their intelligence they might have elected to the governorship a man of force, experience, ability and thorough knowledge of the State's needs, particularly the needs of the farming industry. But that would have meant voting for a Republican. So they voted for Jack Walton, a nominal Democrat, actually a political nondescript, and the result is turmoil and notoriety.

It is a harsh, costly lesson, but it may be worth while if it teaches the people of Oklahoma—and other states—to elect men, not spurious party labels, to high office.

IMMIGRATION AND THE 12-HOUR DAY.

The exchange of letters between President Harding and Judge Gary of the United States Steel Corporation on the subject of the 12-hour day is not hopefully regarded by Samuel Gompers. The veteran head of the American Federation of Labor has no confidence in Mr. Gary's guarded promises.

To Mr. Gompers the letters look suspiciously like the first move in preparing the public mind for opening wider the immigration door. The President is admittedly impressed by the scarcity of labor cited by the Steel Corporation, and Judge Gary, making the most of the concession, agrees that the 12-hour day can be abolished when "there is a surplus of labor."

Shortage of labor, however, has not been a chronic condition in this country, and, as has frequently been observed, the Steel Corporation's adhesion to the 12-hour day has never wavered, even in the presence of 5,000,000 unemployed.

It is undeniable, of course, that, under the present immigration law, shocking cruelties have occurred and barbarous spectacles witnessed. But the fault lies in the administration of the laws rather than in the laws themselves. A remedy must be found, but it will not be found in the repeal or devitalizing of those laws. Restricted immigration is now an American policy. It will not be abandoned. It is sure to stay just as the 12-hour day is sure to go. Public opinion is fixed on those two points—a fact to which the United States Steel Corporation must conform.

PANETELA.

NO. Luella,
McAdoodle
Isn't doing
As he should.
Seems as if
His candid dryness
Does not do him
Any good.
Where a lot
Of people like him
And his prestige
Has increased,
People are afraid
He could not
Cut the caper
In the East.

In the West
His chance is better,
But with Harding
Dry as dust,
Looks as if
The West had someone
It as like
As not could trust.
Wherefore,
Democratic chances,
Hardly promising
As yet,
Rest in Eastern
States made hopeful
By the fact
Of being wet.

So we have it,
Sweet Luella,
Very much
To our regret;
Since we had
In McAdoodle
Quite a dandy
Little bet.
Seemingly
The ablest of them.
He whom sanity
Extolls
Still must rest
His case according
To his virtue
At the polls.

Thus does
Prohibition plague us,
Whether on
The land or sea,
Always that
Which interposes
Something that
Is not to be.
Laying down
Its ugly shadow
On the fair world
Of our hopes,
Leaving what
Had been a frolic
Hanging limply
On the ropes.

So does life,
A thing of promise.
When the showdown
Comes at last,
Leave us much
More understanding
Of the follies
Of the past.
Not by wine
Men are we governed.
But by those
Whom some such truce
By the followers
Of great men
Find expedient
For use.

Sir: You are quite right. We discovered too late that bad roads are what we wanted. You have no idea what the difference is out in the country. Formerly we lived a quiet life and called the farm our own. The country road enjoyed a place in our affections. Dust meant the approach of a friend. It is nothing like that now. There is a roar of traffic upon the road, and dust as like as not means that somebody is coming to steal your watermelons. As predatory a horde as ever marched with Caesar or Sherman overruns the country, and the farmer dashes from one front to another trying to protect his property. I know one man whose fruit is so close to the road that he has to guard it with a shotgun. If you have a piece of woods you almost have to build an electric fence around it to keep the Italians from locating a still in it. One seldom sees a farmer in the country any more. Everybody is from the city, and the farmer is hiding out. You don't know what night a car loaded with gunmen is going to leave a body in your corn patch, and it is no trouble at all to take your potatoes out of the ground if you aren't looking. When I think of the good old days of dirt roads and isolation I can bawl like a baby.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publications, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

PRESIDENT AS PREACHER.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

PRESIDENT HARDING told an early [illegible] morning crowd at Colorado Springs that he wished he could preach a sermon, as he found in his heart to do so. As a matter of fact, he did something of the kind. He put his plea for greater international helpfulness on a spiritual plane, deplored the hatred and suspicion in Europe and spoke feelingly of world brotherhood and fraternity that would bring "a state of blessedness to humankind." Such sentiments do Mr. Harding credit. He is a peace-loving man. His sincerity is obvious. But the task before the world cannot be performed by the most earnest preaching. Furthermore, hatred and suspicion are not confined to Europe. There is quite as much of it here as there is on the other side, and the President should strike more directly at manifestations of this evil which come home to him. The campaign against the World Court is based upon hatred and suspicion, and opposition to our joining the court has taken the form of preaching distrust of other nations. There is no other basis for such opposition. When Mr. Harding surrenders to this opposition and expresses his willingness to separate the World Court from the League of Nations he contributes to this campaign of distrust. What reason has he for reversing his attitude on this question except lack of trust and confidence in the nations that are members of the league? If he is not suspicious of them, his action can only be attributed to political expediency. A President who is so distrustful of Europe that he has not made a single definite move to co-operate with other nations should not preach sermons on European suspicion and hatred. He should confine himself to combatting the distrust and suspicion of Europe displayed during the campaign of misrepresentation that preceded his election to the presidency.

WORLD COURT SENTIMENT.

From the Houston Post.

AN advocate of the International court, after a check of commencement addresses by college presidents during the past month, finds that every speaker who mentioned the subject supported President Harding's original recommendation that America participate officially in the maintenance of the court. The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, with which 31 Protestant denominations, with a combined membership of 20,000,000 are affiliated, is sending to 125,000 congregations an appeal to the members to rally to the support of American membership in the court. These are fairly illustrative of the trend of sentiment in moral and cultural circles in the country. Neither the educators nor the church men are looking at the question as a political issue. To them, the supreme issue is world peace, and the world court appears to them to offer the most available opportunity for America to assume her responsibility. This is a character of support back to any movement that hopes for success. It is support that served mightily in supplying the high morale which contributed so greatly to the success of the war, which was believed to be a war to end war. That sentiment is still at work. Opinion is not unanimous in these circles regarding the League of Nations, but it is unanimous on the score of a desire for peace and progress. With the policy of isolation a failure acknowledged by its own sponsors, it is apparent that the pendulum is swinging well toward the other direction. The hope for the President's recommendation is the tendency to remove it from the realm of partisan politics and to regard it as a national issue.

CHURCHMEN APPEAL FOR FUNDS TO SAVE HOLY PLACES

lowed. If the debt is lifted the money now used for interest charges will make possible the resumption of considerable work.

The situation which alarms the American churchmen is that on Aug. 1, or as soon thereafter as legal formalities allow, much of the property of the Patriarchate will pass out of its hands and also out of the hands of the commission of liquidation and control. Then will follow either neglect, dilapidation and possibly obliteration of some of the holy places.

The American church does not intend that any of these things shall happen. This is the assurance that has been given Panteleimon Athanassiades, Archbishop of the Patriarchate of Jerusalem, who was commissioned by the Patriarch of Jerusalem to come to the United States to seek aid. He brought with him the hearty indorsement and sympathy of the Rt. Rev. Rennie MacInnes, Bishop of the Anglican Church in Jerusalem. As the Archbishop's business advisor, the Patriarch has commissioned Shibly Jamal, a Syrian educator and a communicant of Bishop MacInnes' church.

The major objectives of the committee organized to meet this situation have been expressed as follows:

1. Procuring an extension of the moratorium, if possible.

2. Setting up for a term of years or permanently some sort of advisory or controlling relationship, representative of American interests, to secure wise administration of the business affairs of the Patriarchate for the future, to such extent as these affairs may have a bearing upon any possible recurrence of the present situation. In this connection there will be full co-operation with the Government commission of liquidation and control, since one of its important duties is the re-establishment of a sound budget.

3. Co-operation with other committees, organizations or movements whose objects may tend to further the broad purpose which underlies the present appeal. That purpose is the preservation of the sacred places of the Holy Land from neglect, exclusion or exploitation. The grave danger which threatens is a story which the committee wishes to tell, and have understood from one end of America to the other.

To protect itself as well as those to whom it intends to appeal the committee has taken upon itself to certify the correctness and authenticity of the claims of the Patriarchate. The information which the committee has was gathered from Government sources and has been verified.

The committee itself is headed up by the Rt. Rev. William T. Manning of the Episcopal Church of New York and the Rev. Charles S. MacFarland of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Associated with them are two score or more of churchmen and a considerable number of prominent laymen.

tions to have the maximum number of ships sent through the canal with the toll rates raised, say, 25 per cent.

After considering these points, it would seem more logical to hold full rights in Nicaragua, but to postpone actual construction of another canal till its need is clearly seen. The reduction in the distances via the Nicaragua route would be comparatively small. The military advantage is an important consideration, yet with a small portion of the amount necessary to build another canal a force could be built and left on the west coast to compensate for the ships which might be cut off through the destruction of the Panama Canal. If we give due credit to Gen. Goethals' judgment, the danger of complete destruction of the Panama Canal is not so great as some would have it. Gen. Goethals stated that in order to put the canal completely out of commission it would be necessary for the enemy to place bombs behind the gates of the locks, and he wondered what our force would be doing in the meantime.

Doubtless the destructiveness of bombs have been greatly increased since the General made this statement, yet the mere dropping of bombs in the vicinity of the locks or spillways would not necessarily put the canal out of commission. The solar plexus of the canal, to judge from casual observation which anyone may make who passes through it, would seem to be the Miraflores spillway. This could be corrected in large measure by the construction of a second dam near the present one. The construction of a second canal would entail the expense of its defense and would give the enemy one more outlying point open to attack.

New Accounting System.

From a commercial standpoint, the present canal seems to be a paying proposition. Last year a new accounting system was put into operation. The value of the canal was estimated as for any commercial concern and hereafter the financial reports will be based on the estimated valuation. The canal activities have been divided into three classes: (1) Canal transit property, (2) canal business property and (3) defense capital expenditures. The value of the canal transit property was estimated to be $246,415,990; that of the canal business property, including the docks, repair shops, etc., at $25,769,305, and for defense capital expenditures $110,997,602, making a total of $386,176,900, which was the approximate cost of the canal. The amount of the canal defense expenditures might be said to be the amount the property was written down, in order to place it on a purely commercial basis.

The canal transit property was amortized on the basis of a life for fixed property as 100 years, with allowed interest at 3 per cent, and with the business property depreciated on the basis of its estimated life. Hereafter if the yearly report shows a revenue above the operating expenses, including the annual amortization, the canal is on a sound financial basis, and in 100 years the entire value of the canal would be written off. Of course, we hope for even better financial returns, and these hopes are more than justified by recent performance.

However bright the present prospect of the Panama Canal, the expenditure of $200,000,000 in the construction of another canal via the Nicaragua route would appear to be a risky adventure. Let's hope we see the day when the capacity of the present canal is reached before we undertake the construction of another canal. By canceling a few "ifs" we would not have the present canal; therefore, it seems that we should worry along with what is the greatest canal in the world a few years longer, at least.

Masked Youth Holds Up Groceryman

An armed youth wearing a straw hat and a handkerchief mask over his face entered a Kroger grocery at 3809 Lee avenue, at 7 a. m. yesterday. He forced John Hartwig, the manager, to hand over $45 in small bills and change he was counting at counter and $2 from a cash drawer. The robber then ran from the store and into a nearby alley.

The Motoring Mind

By One of America's Best-Known Psychologists

IN AN ELECTRIC AGE, most of us are mentally attuned to the ox-cart or the Irish jaunting car. To hire a taxi in Dublin is like diving from Eads Bridge. It can be done—but it involves dangerous risks.

There is a pedestrian mind. Thoreau had it. There is a horse mind. Stevenson had it. There are fifty-seven varieties of the motoring mind. Barney Oldfield has one of them. A driver like Barney, going through France, had his attention called to the closeness of the gravestones.

"They ain't gravestones," the driver said, "they're milestones!" That is the super motoring mind.

The pedestrian is tuned to a low key. The riding mind is higher, the motor mind higher still and the aero mind highest of all. Some there are who have had all these in succession. Today we are pedestrians and look with impatience upon the motorist. Tomorrow we are at the wheel and asking the slow pedestrian, as we almost run him down, why he doesn't wake up.

The motoring mind is like success. When it is balanced and attuned, quickened and heightened, a new series of energies are released in the soul. A new set of emotions are put in play and the storehouse of the subconscious mind is overhauled and enlarged to hold the new mental furniture acquired by the increased momentum.

Whether a man drives a taxi or a roadster, a motor truck or a model of the moment that costs from ten to fifteen thousand dollars, he is a more intelligent human than one who has no motoring knowledge. The reason is quite plain. He is called upon quite often to make quick judgments, and by these decisions his mind is unconsciously quickened and developed.

The driver of a motor truck may not look alert at his wheel, but he has stored away a thousand and one experiences of adventure that the pedestrian never knows. He really functions with a higher mental gear.

There's nothing like active use, clean living and right thinking to keep a man's mind running smoothly in "high."

So the motor mind is not a mania for speed nor an abnormal stimuli in the nerve centers. It is an adjustment to a labor-saving, pleasure-giving machine which has become an essential part of life.

Therefore, get a good car. If price is a consideration, buy one that has seen some service. Such service only proves the value that is inherent in the cars offered for sale over in the Post-Dispatch's Classified "Automobile" columns. Pick your car from the splendid models advertised today.

DEODORIZATION PLAN FOR RIVER DES PERES

City Considers Using Chemicals to Stifle Smell Until Waters Are Walled.

Complaints to the Health Department about far-traveling odors from the River des Peres, which continues to "say it with smells" in the western and southern sections of the city, resulted in a survey yesterday to determine deodorization measures until the $11,000,000 closed sewer and storm channel, a bond issue project, is constructed and the river "bottled up."

With the return of warm weather the odor from the stream, a drainage carrier for about 60 sewers, has become more obnoxious. Residents along its course have complained against the health menace. Other objections have come from motorists in Forest Park, who are forced to hold their breath and speed when near the stream, which winds through the park.

The survey was made by City Bacteriologist Willis and his assistant, Dr. C. L. Pfau.

It is planned to stifle the odors, if possible, with chemicals. Chlorine gas will be placed in the water, sacks of copper sulphate anchored in the stream, and hydrated lime strewed along the banks.

Smells in the vicinity of the river are more noticeable at night than during the days, as the sunlight has a purifying effect.

City engineers hope to start construction this year on one section of the sewer and storm channel, which will enclose the stream for its entire length in the city. A bill appropriating $500,000 for the first section now is in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and will come up for passage in the Board of Aldermen when it reconvenes.

The general plan provides for building a great closed sewer from the point where the stream crosses the Western city limits, near Clemons avenue, to a point south of Forest Park. From there on a large closed sewer will carry foul water from the district sewers. Above this closed sewer will be a large, open top concrete waterway, which will carry storm drainage. The complete sewer and storm channel will be 13 miles in length.

Eagle's Safe Robbed of $500.

Joseph J. Gallagher, 1720 South Jefferson avenue, secretary of the local Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, reported to the police Friday that a safe in the Eagles' Building, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, had been broken open Thursday night and $500 cash taken. Gallagher reported that he found the combination of the safe knocked off and the inner door forced open. A crowbar was laying on the floor near the safe, he said. Another safe in the same room was not disturbed.

OUTING FARM FOR UNION ELECTRIC EMPLOYES

Grand-Leader Recreation Place on Meramec Purchased and Will Be Improved.

The Union Electric Light and Power Co. has purchased the Grand-Leader outing farm on the Meramec River, St. Louis County, from the Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., and will use it as a resort and recreation place for its 1500 employes. Officials of the department store said lack of interest was the reason for abandoning the farm, which was going into disuse.

The power company plans to allow its employes to operate the resort themselves. They will be encouraged to build bungalows on the farm at no expense aside from the house, the land being granted to any employe who desires to build. Rules and regulation of participants in the joint enjoyment of the place will be made by the employes, and they will elect their own manager and governing body.

The records of sale filed at Clayton gives the purchase price as $46,000. The company expects to spend several thousand dollars on improvements, and the establishment will cost the company $60,000 altogether.

The farm, which is on the Missouri Pacific Railroad, and also can be reached on the Sulphur Springs road, is about 25 miles from St. Louis. It comprises 50 acres, and is equipped with three dormitories to accommodate 156 persons. A dance pavilion also is on the grounds, and other holiday outing appurtenances are to be installed. These will include a number of boats for the river, which runs at the foot of a 250-foot bluff on which the farm is situated.

MILITARY DRILL FOR GIRLS

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Ill., July 7.—A form of military drill has been inaugurated at the Geneva State School for Girls here by Roy James Battis, state superintendent of child welfare, as a means of developing the physical condition and the mental alertness of the girls, and has the sanction of the department of public welfare. The drill takes the form principally of artistic formations having just enough military discipline to keep the girls alert.

The innovation, was tried out as a surprise recently, when a group of girls, who had been trained for several weeks by Battis, staged a drill in the presence of the other girls of the school.

Beginning Tomorrow—An Offering of Hotpoint

Electric Cleaners

Including Complete Set of Attachments

$53.50 Value for

$43.50 Cash

$46.50 On Deferred Payment Plan—
$5 Cash and Small Monthly Payments

This special offer is limited to 100 Cleaners and to be assured of securing one, we urge you to make your purchase tomorrow.

The name "Hotpoint" is really an indication of this Electric Cleaner's dependability, but to convince yourself of its efficiency, we ask you to see it demonstrated here tomorrow.

The powerful suction and adjustable nozzle of the "Hotpoint" make it thoroughly efficient in the cleaning of all kinds of rugs. Its rugged construction gives it remarkable durability, yet it weighs but 11 pounds. Being instantly controlled by a switch mounted on a strength-saving handle, it is most convenient to use. The "Hotpoint" guarantee accompanies every machine.

The attachments which are included in this special offer are invaluable for cleaning draperies, mattresses, upholstered furniture, walls, stairs, radiators and automobile interiors. The set is regularly sold at $10.00.

PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE

Every person afflicted with rectal troubles can be cured just as Mr. Burns was.

Mr. C. W. Burns, a retired farmer, came to me—was cured in two weeks—went home sound and well. His letter, which follows, speaks with more force to the afflicted than I can. Read it carefully, then do likewise. Mr. Burns had a very bad case. I cured him without the use of chloroform, ether, going to the hospital, or loss of time.

Creel Springs, Ill., July 3, 1922.

Dr. C. Matthew Coe,
501 Pine St.,
St. Louis, Mo.

My Dear Doctor Coe:

For the benefit of other people who are afflicted with Piles as I was, I desire to express my gratitude to you, and most earnestly advise all who are afflicted with Piles or Rectal trouble of any kind to go to you and be cured. Words can not express how happy I am and how well I feel since you cured me.

All the claims you make in your advertisements are true. Altho my case was very bad, you did not lay me up for a single day. Others I saw under treatment, while I was at your office, continued their daily work, as if nothing unusual was happening.

Your treatment is wonderful, it is mild, and so easy on your patients. It certainly causes little or no more pain than the disease itself. Your charges are very reasonable. I would not take many times the cost and be back where I was.

Doctor, I thank you with all my heart for what you did for me and I hope any who are afflicted as I was, will not delay, but go to you and be cured.

Your grateful friend,

C. W. Burns

I'll gladly answer any who are in need of a cure, and wish to write to me.

If cost of space would permit, I could fill almost this entire paper with just such letters. If you are afflicted, don't hesitate. Remember my charges are reasonable, treatment is mild, soothing and permanent—and I guarantee a positive and permanent cure, in every case of Piles.

I give consultation and make examinations free at my office, and give consultation by mail free. Send for free question blank.

For the benefit of many people who live in the city and vicinity I keep evenings office hours for consultation, examination and treatment. If you can't come down in the day, come in the evening. What I did for Mr. Burns, I can do for you.

Office Hours:
9 A. M. to 5 P. M.
Evening 7 to 9 P. M.
Sundays 10 to 1 P. M.

1000 New Model CORONA TYPEWRITERS OFFERED FREE of All Cost by the POST-DISPATCH

The Personal Writing Machine
Weighs Less Than 7 Lbs
Fold it up and Take it with you
Typewrite Anywhere

Has every new Corona refinement, embracing the best principles of portable typewriter construction

The Newest and Best Product of the Corona Typewriter Co., with a definitely established retail selling price of $50

Complete, Convenient, Durable, Speedy, Serviceable

Corona folds for compactness. It weighs less than seven pounds because all necessary parts have been eliminated, and light, strong aluminum has been used instead of heavy, brittle cast iron.

With Corona you can write just as fast and just as neatly, make as many carbon copies, cut as clear stencils and write on as small labels as any typewriter made.

The uses of Corona are legion. It knows no restrictions of time or place—and, best of all, anybody can operate it. Children coronatype before they can form letters with a pencil, while men and women whose fingers are stiff with age have no difficulty in pressing its keys.

In thousands of homes Corona is considered as indispensable as the telephone. It helps the children to become better students; it enables Mother to keep up her correspondence, and it relieves Dad of the necessity of working overtime at the office.

Every Corona award made by the Post-Dispatch will include carrying case, brush and oiler, the manufactu rer's guarantee and free service for one year—frequent cleaning, oiling, adjusting, etc.—exactly as if you had paid $50.00 for your Corona.

Delivery of Coronas Will Be Made Within Five Days After Award —ALL CHARGES PREPAID.

SUES HOUSING TRUST FOR RETURN OF $1788

Action of Woman Based on Recent Decision of State Supreme Court.

A recent Supreme Court decision that the loan plan under which certain housing trusts operated in the State constituted a lottery, is made the basis of a suit filed Friday in Circuit Court by Miss Helen C. Keane, a milliner, of 3681 Cook avenue, to recover $1788.50 paid to the Lincoln Housing Trust.

State Finance Commissioner Millspaugh, recently appointed receiver and trustee of the Lincoln Housing Trust, are named as defendants. The suit was filed by Attorney Ephrim Caplan.

The petition states the plaintiff bought several certificates from the housing trust, of a type entitling the purchaser to a loan after a certain number of monthly installments had been paid, and that she had paid in $1788.50 since Jan. 10, 1920. Payments on some of these certificates have been made past the maturity date, but no loan could be obtained, it is alleged. Demands for payment of the surrender value of the certificates have been refused, it is charged.

It is contended the plaintiff is entitled to recovery under a State law enabling individuals to file suit for recovery of money paid into a lottery or gambling game.

The Supreme Court held that the housing trust plan of granting loans contingent upon the order in which applications for contracts have been filed constitute a lottery. Forms of contracts used by housing trusts in the State are similar. Thirty-two such concerns in Missouri are in receivership.

Arrangements are being made by the Lincoln Housing Trust to convert into a building and loan association, under the supervision of the State Department of Finance. This is a result of the repeal by the last Legislature of the act under which the housing trusts were formed. Examination of the Lincoln's affairs are being completed by examiners under Commissioner Millspaugh.

FRENCH SOCIETY CELEBRATION

Members of the Societe Francaise de St. Louis will celebrate the Fall of the Bastile next Saturday evening, July 14, at Moolah Temple.

Gus V. R. Mechin will preside and addresses will be made by Mayor Kiel; Frank G. Jonah, chairman of the City Executive Committee of the American Legion; Marc Seguin, French consular agent, and Capt. Henri de Lecluse, president of the French War Veterans Association.

Mrs. Karl Kimmel will sing the "Star Spangled Banner" and A. deVos, Belgian tenor, will sing the "Marseillaise." Dancing in costume by members of the "Ignatz Jan Paderewski Society," singing by the "Hlahol, Czecho-Slovak," and a French play and dancing by all who desire will close the evening. The proceeds will go to support orphans in France.

HAY FEVER and SUMMER ASTHMA TO SLEEP TONIGHT

NOT THIS YEAR! The winter is over. Are you looking forward to the glorious summer time or are you one of those unfortunates who dread the approach of warm weather? If the latter, cheer up! For this is another year. Those distressing conditions generally associated with hay fever and summer asthma,—sleepless nights, fits of sneezing, streaming eyes, wheezy breathing, are no longer a menace to many. Raz-Mah is the answer. This preparation, harmless and easy to take, just a small capsule readily swallowed, has brought 100% relief to thousands. No matter how many other treatments you may have tried, give Raz-Mah a chance to help you. Get a $1 box at your druggist's today or write us for one C. O. D. EACH POLICE STATION TO TAKE FINGER PRINTS

Plan Decided Upon to Relieve Congestion at Headquarters' Bertillon Bureau.

Prisoners charged with criminal offenses serious enough to be cataloged under the Bertillon system will have their finger prints made at the district police station to which they are first taken, under a new department ruling, effective tomorrow.

Under the old order, all finger print work has been done by the Bureau of Identification at Police Headquarters. In establishing branch finger print bureaus at each of the 14 district stations, Bertillon Superintendent Shea hopes to make department records more complete.

Police characters hitherto have evaded the finger print test by effecting their prompt release on bond at district stations and by the fact that there was frequent congestion at headquarters. Thus they were able to give an assumed name, and without being identified, could keep their arrest off the record.

Beginning tomorrow each prisoner subjected to finger print cataloging will be transferred to the holdover at Central District with his finger print sheets. These will be examined by the Bureau of Identification.

Each sub-bureau will be in charge of a patrolman, who will take all finger prints of prisoners handled by his station. The men assigned to this work have been in training for the last two weeks under Supt. Shea. With the exception of finger print taking, now delegated to the sub-bureaus, the Bureau of Identification will continue as before.

HARDING'S MARION PASTOR ILL

Dr. McAfee Suffers Third Stroke of Paralysis.

By the Associated Press.

MARION, O., July 7.—The Rev. Dr. Thomas H. McAfee, President Harding's Marion pastor, is ill.

Thursday afternoon Dr. McAfee suffered a stroke of paralysis, the third since July, 1920. He was to have offered the prayer at the notification services when Harding was informed of his nomination at Chicago, but was stricken four days before notification day. He was pastor of Trinity Baptist Church here seven years, resigning recently because of ill health.

STEADIER TONE IS SHOWN BY MARKET; PRESSURE EASES

Raising of Bank of England Discount Rate Event of Week — No Real Light on Nature of Fall Buying Movements.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Quite in accordance with expectations, the markets have displayed the steadier tone since the turn of the half year. The pressure of selling, both for the account of professional speculators for the decline and tired holders for the rise, has eased, while some covering of shorts and investment buying have appeared. Technical conditions have been improved. Liquidation did not cease abruptly with the end of the month; it would not do so in the natural course of events. It did, however, show a marked and progressive reduction. The semiholiday character of the week robbed a part of its evidential value. Nevertheless, the appearance has been very much that of the end of speculative swing, and the way has been cleared for a fairer test of the situation. The extravagant rumors of the past few weeks have died down and the markets now seem to be likely to have an opportunity to adjust themselves to the real factors in the situation.

"Industrial news meanwhile has continued to be of a reasonably satisfactory character. Steel production is slightly smaller, but is still of extraordinary large proportions, and the falling off is easily explained by the weather and the need for repairing plants which have been operated at high speed throughout the spring. Consumers are proceeding to take deliveries of steel products freely and there have been no cancellations in the real sense of the word. Steel prices, furthermore, remain firm. Automobile manufacturers also are working at the best rate of which they are capable and have sufficient business in hand to operate on their present schedules for another two months. The railroads are continuing their preparations to handle a record traffic in the fall and are maintaining their buying of materials. Their earnings are satisfactory and their car-loadings still run beyond the million a week mark. Accordingly, the evidence indicates clearly that industrial momentum is being well maintained.

Fall Buying Awaited.

"Although there is yet no real light as to the nature of the fall buying movements, which is, marketwise, the principal question, the prospects are favorable.

"Raising of the Bank of England's discount rate from 3 to 4 per cent has furnished the real feature of the week. This advance has been made in recognition of the changing conditions of the London money market and as a measure for the protection of sterling exchange. Until recently any such protection was unnecessary. With British finances improving the British trade reviving, even if moderately, the pound was on the upgrade. Its natural recovery was augmented by the transfer to London of continental funds, which sought and found the safety offered by sterling and the added inducement of a possible appreciation in principal. With money thus rendered cheaper, British securities rose, and so attracted additional foreign funds which were seeking speculative employment. When it became apparent, however, that the climax of London's money ease had been reached, the situation changed. Speculators took profits in both securities and sterling exchange, moving their balances to other centers, notably New York, where higher rates of interest could be obtained. Sterling suffered and the Bank of England took the natural defensive action of a advance in the bank rate. Some time will be needed to measure the true effects of the move, but the initial developments suggest that the bank rate has lost none of its efficiency as a regulating medium.

"The course of prices on the Stock Exchange in today's short session bore a close resemblance to that of yesterday. After a firm opening the market turned dull during the first hour, trading being enlivened only by a renewal of the attack on one of the rail issues, Delaware & Hudson. This, however, failed to disturb the list as a whole and with increased activity in the closing hour both railroad and industrial groups continued their improvement. Gains of a point or more were fairly numerous. Bonds held steady in moderate trading.

French Exchange Lower.

"The foreign exchange market was offered French francs in larger volume than it could readily absorb and the result was that the quotation declined further. The same condition was true of the London market and reflects the uncertainties over the reparation difficulties. At a late price of 4.74¾ cents francs were 2 points lower. German marks also continued to sag and established a new low at .0006¼ cents. Italian lire followed the same course as French francs, but Belgian francs moved independently and advanced from yesterday's closing price of 4.23½ to 4.79⅛ cents, the reversal being attributed in part to a natural reaction from the recent abrupt decline. Sterling was quiet and unchanged at $4.56¼. Other Continentals were easier, but Scandinavian currencies improved.

"Commodity markets were only moderately active and the tone was somewhat easier. July cotton, which is in a highly speculative position, ruled slightly higher during the greater part of the trading. October futures, however, which are more indicative of the true market position, were under moderate selling pressure as a result of good rains and favorable growing weather in the belt. At a late price of 23.74 cents October was 21 points lower.

"Wheat traders are marking time awaiting the Government crop report to be issued on Monday and little business done. Both the July and September futures declined slightly after a firm opening.

"Decreases are shown in the principal items of the weekly statement of the Clearing House. Loans and discounts of $4,679,000,000 declined $61,000,000, and demand deposits dropped $75,800,000 to a total of $3,741,500,000. The reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve Banks decreased $16,234,000, and these changes are accompanied by a loss of $5,794,000 in surplus reserve, this item standing at $108,590,000. The banks report an increase of nearly $5,000,000 of cash in own vaults, while circulation is slightly lower.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

SECURITIES ARE DEPRESSED ON LONDON MARKET

Nervousness Over Political Situation and Dearer Money Prospects Viewed as Equally Responsible for Trend of Prices.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post

LONDON, July 7.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in weekly review today, says:

"Nervousness over the political situation and dearer money prospects are equally responsible for the depression in securities during the past week. As regards the latter factor, the first effect of new bank rate was discounted, but I expect the net result to be a further gradual liquidation of investment securities, setting down into comparative stagnation. Prospects in the other markets largely depend on political developments, and this leads to consideration of the first of the factors mentioned above.

"Without necessarily involving a break in relations between France and Britain, it is clear that there is a chasm of views concerning the handling of the reparation problem. We, rightly or wrongly, believe that European best interests, including those of the allies, consist in treating reparations from the economic standpoint and in accepting Germany's proposals for investigation with independent expert decisions whether capacity to pay subject, moreover, to rigid removal of German militarism in any form. We believe the best interests of peace and security are obtainable by aiding Germany's recuperation.

"France, however, evidently not only mistrusts but is afraid of Germany, and it is highly difficult to distinguish between proper and justifiable apprehensions and the actual militant spirit on the part of France.

"Our banking half year has been very profitable from the standpoint of normal earning capacity, and it is probable that a considerable further advance will be necessary for bad and doubtful debts owing to the protracted trade depression. Forthcoming interim dividends doubtless will be unchanged, but there is some uncertainty as to the character of final dividends six months hence.

"Some anxiety is felt over the continued weakness in Brazilian exchange."

FARMERS CO-OPERATIVE'S FIRM ON 'CHANGE GETS NEW WHEAT

Producers Grain Co. Offers th First Cars of Newly Harvested Missouri Grain.

Newly harvested wheat began arriving on the local market at midnight, but less than a dozen cars, in the aggregate, had arrived at the week's close. The movement to market was nearly two weeks later than a year ago, the first car arriving here on June 22, 1922.

The first car of the new wheat to be handled in the St. Louis market was a farmers' co-operative organization, authorized under the Capper-Volstead act, recently upheld by the United States Supreme Court, was offered on the Merchants' Exchange today.

The grain was received by the Producers Grain Co., which is owned by the Missouri Farmers' Association, from Truesdale, Mo., being sold by the Producers' Exchange, another organization being a member of the Missouri Farmers' Association.

The Producers' Grain Co. is the local representative of a farmers' organization with membership in the exchange at present. The United States Supreme Court upheld the right of farmers' organizations whose members of grain exchanges under the Capper-Tincher act.

The firm will charge the regular commissions and in every way it will abide and follow the long-established rules of the exchange, realizing that many of these rules are the outgrowth of half a century of experience at the hands of some of the largest and best business men in the country," William Hirth, a director of the Missouri Farmers' Association declared at the time the organization was planning to enter the exchange here with its own firm. He added that the association would "play the Merchants' Exchange to win the game according to Hoyle," meaning only that under the terms of the recent decision of the Supreme Court it be permitted at the end of the year to distribute co-operative profits in a co-operative way to the members.

Henry J. Fehr is president and Edward M. Jones secretary of the new concern. Both are members of the exchange.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 7.—For the third consecutive day the upward tendency predominated on the Stock Exchange today. This did not necessarily denote the beginning of a fresh upward movement. But it was the most impressive recovery that has occurred for a month past.

The advance in the stock market, somewhat hesitating at first, finally became quit rapid in the second hour in the speculative leaders. When covering purchases set in in stocks like the Studebaker, Baldwin Locomotive, Corn Products and American Can, it was found that the available supply of the stocks was comparatively small and that it was necessary to bid prices up pretty sharply.

When the market position had again been tested by another drive against Delaware & Hudson and a similar offering down of one or two other stocks, and it had been found that no further liquidation was to be brought out, the shorts set about buying in their contracts with considerable urgency. Studebaker jumped over six points from its low, and Baldwin about the same. Kennecott drew across 34 and Anaconda drew well up to 40.

The market closed strong, well up to the best of the day. Railway stocks were especially prominent in the trading at the end. Union Pacific got above 160. Canadian Pacific was up nearly 7 points from where it was selling early in the week. New York Central crossed 98 and Baltimore & Ohio 46.

The Bond Market.

The bond market today showed the same characteristics as for the past few days. High grade securities were relatively firm and there was some buying of United States bonds. The market, however, was not active and investors showed no anxiety to follow prices up. Speculative rails moved irregularly with recovery in some issues and furthr fractional losses in others. There was little change in the foreign list. Except for a fractional advance in Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean 6s there was little worthy of comment.

Dealers and traders point out that despite the disturbances in the security market, corporate financing during the month of June reached the total of $324,131,825 against $249,658,000 in May. It is not surprising, they argue, that some old and seasoned securities have not been able to stand in the face of this competition.

Due to the holiday there was a letup in the output of new offerings this week. The total was $54,046,-111 and of this amount $40,000,-000 was in the Youngstown Sheet and Tube 6 per cent debentures. The balance was made up of $3,250,-000 in three public utility issues, $1,-500,000 in two land bank offerings and the rest in State and municipal descriptions.

One notable feature of the week was the absence of what used to be called the July reinvestment demand. It is not entirely plain whether investors have been discouraged by the reactionary tone of the market or whether the income tax has diverted so much capital to tax exempt securities ,that the demand for old line bonds which used to show itself twice a year, in January and July, did not appear this July. Probably both causes have been operating. At the same time there has been little or no institutional buying, it was said.

Speculatively speaking the feature of the week was the decline in New Haven bonds following the report of the committee appointed by the New England governors to make a survey of the entire New England situation. The weakness in New Haven bonds had more or less effect on other speculative railroad issues.

Foreign bonds have stood up remarkably well in view of the news from abroad.

GRAIN LIST HIGHER ON LOCAL MARKET

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, July 7.—Grain futures closed higher at the week-end session on the local market. Covering for the Government figures on Monday was a factor.

In the local cash grain market Saturday new red winter wheat was 1c lower and old wheat was down more. There were four cars of new soft wheat, three cars grading No. 2 red 12.2 to 12.6 per cent moisture, selling at $1.12 destination weights. The other car, graded sample grade 58.4-lb. test of 17.2 per cent moisture, and was sold late at $1.

There was not much demand at prevailing premiums. New No. 2 red in transit was offered at $1.10, but was refused 40,000 bushels bought by Southeastern mills for July-August shipment on private terms. Hard wheat was steady. Car new, No. 2 dark hard, Kansas, 82 per cent dark, was offered at $1.10 and got $1.09 bid. Six cars of new No. 3 hard Kansas, 12.2 per cent protein was bought to arrive at $1.08 quick shipment, and 5000 bushels old 57-lb. Kansas 12½ per cent protein at $1.06. The few cars old wheat offered on track went to an elevator buyer who paid $1.02 for No. 2 and $1.00 to $1.01 for No. 3 yellow hard. Whole corn was unchanged to ½c higher and yellow ½c to 1c better. There was good demand from elevator people and shippers with the local trade and industries taking some. Supplies were cleaned up. Oats offerings were heavier than receipts would indicate, some of Friday's carryover being on sale. Prices were irregular, top grades ruling unchanged to 1c lower, while No. 3 and No. 4s were steady to ½c higher. There was good demand from shippers and local trade at prevailing levels and everything cleaned up.

The early range of prices was moderate and subsequent to opening the market was unchanged to higher, corn showing the better tone. There was evening up over the week-end and also pending the Government crop estimate Monday. Liverpool closed ½d to 1d higher.

September wheat opened at $1.01¾, December wheat $1.04¾, September corn 74¼c and December corn 62c.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 457 cars of wheat, compared with 563 a week ago and 358 last year, Minneapolis receiving 122 cars, Duluth 52 and Winnipeg 283.

Local wheat receipts, which were 38,400 bushels, compared with 72,000 a week ago and 190,800 last year, included 13 cars local and 19 through; corn receipts, which were 101,400 bushels, compared with 87,100 a week ago and 54,000 last year, included 67 cars local and 13 through; oats receipts were 58,000 bushels, compared with 80,000 a week ago and 62,000 last year, included 16 cars local and 13 through; hay receipts were 90 cars local and 6 through.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators were 120,587 bushels of wheat, 91,704 bushels of corn, 85,054 bushels of oats; grain in transit comprised 8845 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 1,940 bushels of No. 2 hard winter wheat, 26,550 bushels of No. 2 red winter, 7,704 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 24,881 bushels of No. 3 white corn, 44,503 bushels of No. 4 white oats, 4783 bushels of No. 3 white oats, 4783 bushels of No. 2 rye, 24,966 bushels barley.

Primary receipts of wheat were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 569,000 bushels; corn receipts were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 977,000 bushels; oats receipts were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 536,000 bushels.

Primary shipments of wheat were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 599,000 bushels; corn shipments were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 585,000 bushels; oats shipments were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 585,000 bushels.

Clearances were 29,000 bushels of wheat, 23,000 barrels of flour and 139,000 bushels of wheat and flour.

WHEAT TRADE OF SMALL VOLUME AT WEEK - END

CHICAGO, July 7.—Wheat trade today was of small volume. Prices were a little better, but the advances were difficult to obtain. Early in the week buyers did not start prices upward by local bulls because of the strength in Liverpool.

Corn prices moved irregularly because of selling by Winnipeg houses and some of the cash houses. Locals switched to the bear side, but buying on the strength in corn forced them to cover. There was wheat for sale on the bulges, but the offerings found a fair outlet. Fair amounts of wheat were booked to arrive overnight and on the bulge today. Milling demand for wheat was quiet. Export trade was slow. Gulf bids were reduced 1c. German marks sold at a new low level and with the settlement of the strike by Liverpool dock workers entered export trade situation. Weather was generally favorable, but high temperatures in parts of the Northwest were looked upon as favorable for the spread of black rust. Market closed ⅝@⅝c up. July $1.04@1.03⅝, September $1.03⅝@$1.03⅝, December $1.06⅝@$1.06⅝.

Corn reacted a little stronger than wheat. There were periods of depression, but they did not last long. Shorts were the principal buyers, although a little commission house buying was noted early. Cash corn premiums were firm. A little corn was booked to arrive on the advance. 15,000 bushels. Shipping demand was strong. Market closed 80⅝c up, July 80⅝c, September 75⅝@75¾c, December 63@63¼c.

July oats rose to 40c on covering by shorts on stop loss orders and then reacted 1c. Market was firm with corn. Cash demand was not so good as of late. Market closed ¼@⅝c higher, July 39, September 35¼c, December 37c.

Provisions were easy in tone because of the decline in hogs. Lard and ribs closed unchanged to 2½c lower.

Reserve System on Grain Marketing.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—A special circular letter issued by the Federal Reserve Board today calling the attention of all reserve agents to "the importance of the Federal Reserve System functioning effectively in providing adequate financing for the orderly marketing of agricultural products" during the market season just ahead.

While making no definite suggestions other than that proper financing should be provided, the board left no doubt that it desired the reserve system to keep a watchful eye over the agricultural industry so that the recovery noted in the last three years may be continued without halt.

"Your attention is called specifically," said the circular, "to the near approach of the American wheat harvest. The movement of this commodity to the world markets will soon be on and will require financing, as well as expert handling, to insure an orderly marketing movement and avoid periodical congestion at terminal market points, which is very much to the disadvantage of the producer in that it permits a combined buying arrangement on the part of foreign countries."

CATTLE AND HOGS SELL HIGHER DURING WEEK

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

*Holiday Wednesday. Holiday Monday.

Cattle and hog prices ranged upward at the St. Louis National Stock Yards the past week, while sheep and lambs closed about steady for the period. Considering the holiday Wednesday, receipts were fair in the various departments. The cattle market registered a weak trend Monday, but reflected marked improvement other days of the week. Native beef steers closed about 25c higher for the period. The bulk sold from $7.50 to $10 per cwt., with $10.50 per cwt. paid for both matured steers and yearling steers constituting the top. There were close to 150 cars of Texas and Oklahoma steers on sale. Prices in this department gained 25 to 50c, with most of the improvement applying to the cheaper grades. The range in price was $3.25 to $8.25, while a spread of $5 to $7 took most. A rise of 25c to 50c featured the trade in light yearlings. Most cashed from $7.50 to $9.50, with straight heifers topping at $10.25.

Butcher cows moved up 25c to 50c and canners and cutters 25c. Most of the butchers sold from $4.50 to $6, with $2.50 to $3.75 taking most cutters and $1.75 to $2.50 the canner offering. Bulls reflected no material change, good weight beef animals making $4.75 to $5.50, medium to good bolognas $4.50 to $5.25 and canner stuff around $3. Trading in stocker and feeder steers was again limited. Market generally steady except on some of the over-sized kinds which reflected a weak trend. Most of the sales were in the $4 to $5 and $6 columns. Veal calves advanced sharply. The top at $11.50 Friday and bulk at $11, comparing with a top a week ago of $9.50 and a bulk of $8.50 to $9.25.

Hog Prices Higher.

Even with a recess over Independence day this week the hog run approximated 60,000 head, as against 79,000 the previous week and 72,000 corresponding time a year ago. Around the circuit of the five chief Western markets runs were rather light. Market on Monday was difficult to keep up with throughout the week. It was about as uneven a session as has been encountered locally in some time. Trade at times became unruly and many days were featured by a flare in prices, which invariably caused excitement in maneuvering of both buyers and sellers. In the whole prices are 75c to 80c higher than they were at the close of the previous week. The $8 extreme reached Saturday is $5@10 more, paired with a $7.20 high last Saturday. At the peak Friday $8.40 was paid, but this was merely a flurry and $8.25 was the practical top on that session. Toward close of week the market sagged considerably and it was a mighty slow affair. Most of the good butcher and shipping hogs moved around $7.85 and $7.90, but heavy weights were a drag on the market. Some few early deals around $7.80 and $7.85 were reported, but $7.75 was being bid after noon and that in some instances sellers put their holdings under cover for the initial session next week. Pigs advanced in about the same proportion as hogs. The market closed around 75c higher than last week, and in spots even a little more. Bulk of 120 to 140-lb. kinds were moving around $7.50 to $7.75, with 100 to 120-lb. kinds around even money to $7.25. Packer sows which sold last week around $5.60 to $5.65 sold around $5.85 and $5.90 late this week after enjoying a top of $6.25 at one stage of the week. Stags closed around $4.75 to $5.25.

Sheep Are Scarce.

A good moderate supply of sheep and lambs, nearly all lambs arrived last week, the total being around 22,500 head and as there was not any market on Wednesday this made a rather good supply each of the other days. Sheep of all kinds were very scarce, while there was a liberal number of lambs on the market each day, the bulk of these came out of Missouri and Illinois. The week opened on a lower basis, the best lambs selling at $14@14.50, and some fairly fine lambs the middle of the week lambs advanced and on Friday a good number brought $15.25, showing a gain over the best of the week of 75c. Other good lambs towards the end of the week sold at $14.75 and better medium grades $14@14.75. A fair $12.50@13.75 and culls and other common ones $7@10. Thin lambs were mighty poor sellers at all times. Sheep of all kinds sold the entire week without change, bringing the same prices that have prevailed for several weeks. Best mutton sheep went at 55.50, heavy and plain ewes, $3.50, best breeding ewes, $7.50@8; plain kinds, $6.50@7.25; choppers and bucks, $2.50@3, and canners, $1@1.50.

Horses and Mules.

Horse and mule receipts were exceedingly light the past week, commission arrivals in both departments not exceeding much over 100 head. Demand was about proportionate and prices were not materially changed.

Livestock Elsewhere

CHICAGO, July 7. (U. S. Department of Agriculture).—Cattle receipts, 500; compared week ago most killing classed unevenly 25 to 75c higher; spots more; values have largely back to season's high time; extreme top matured steers $11.50; best long yearlings steers and yearlings here $11.35; bulk $10@10.35, respectively; bulls about steady; veal calves $1.00 to $1.25 higher; stockers and feeders firm, week's bulk prices follow: Beef steers $9.15@10.60; stockers and feeders $8@7.50; butcher cows and heifers $5.50@8.75; canners and cutters $4@6.60; veal calves $10.00@11.

KANSAS CITY, July 7.—The hog market at Kansas City enjoyed a considerable advance during the current week, Friday's sales being the highest in nearly two months, says the weekly summary issued here today by the United States Department of Agriculture. Friday's top price was $7.60, against $6.95 a week earlier. Receipts were 38,000, against 47,625 the preceding week.

The cattle market was irregular, but desirable killing classes showed uneven gains, while grassy kinds weakened off to some extent. Yearling offerings enjoyed the broadest competition and scored greatest advance. Best steers sold at $11 and a few others cleared at $10.75 @ $11.90. Receipts were 38,000, against 47,625 the preceding week.

3 DEPOSITIONS TAKEN IN POLICE KILLING

Women Witnesses Unable to Identify Two Gangsters as Griffin's Slayers.

Depositions of three women witnesses for the State in the case of the five Cuckoo gangsters charged with murder, in connection with the killing of Patrolman William E. Griffin, were taken at Clayton yesterday by lawyers representing Leo Cronin and August Webbe, two of the defendants.

The purpose was to ascertain if the women would identify either Cronin or Webbe as having had any actual connection with the killing. The same five gangsters were indicted for the murder of John Surgant, a produce merchant. Both murders were committed June 10 in an outbreak of crime which began in the county and ended in the city.

The witnesses who gave depositions, Miss Jacqueline Perry, Miss Clara Dauphin and Mrs. Grace E. Cummins, related facts which did not differ materially from those related by other witnesses at the preliminary hearing of the gangsters in Justice of the Peace Werremeyer's court June 22, when the defendants were bound over to the grand jury.

Mrs. Cummins and Miss Dauphin, who were at a table in Telegraph Inn with Patrolman Griffin when he was shot, testified Cronin and Webbe were in the inn when a command was given by someone, whom they could not identify, to "stick 'em up." They saw revolvers in the hands of several of the gangsters, they said, but did not identify Cronin or Webbe as having fired any shots.

Miss Perry gave similar testimony, but stated she could not identify the man who had shot Patrolman Griffin. Several of them had revolvers in their hands, she said, but she could not say that either Webbe or Cronin fired any shots.

The trial has been set for July 22 in Circuit Judge Wurdeman's court.

Small Parties, Swimming, Polo and Luncheons Occupy Time of St. Louisans Remaining at Home

Reaction From Spring and Early Summer Gaieties Here; Miss Ruth Dutton's Engagement to Wed Robert H. Dohn Announced; Kirkwood Girl and Cape Girardeau Man Are Married.

IMPROMPTU swimming parties, golf foursomes or an occasional game of bridge, often played in the morning and followed by a luncheon, form the chief diversions for that part of society which is remaining in town during the warm months. The seasonal reaction from the gaieties of spring and early summer has arrived, and with it a dearth of formal entertainment. The country club is a mecca for young persons searching for amusement, and a day or two ago a group of young last year's debutantes including Miss Eleanor Simmons, Miss Audrey Faust and Miss Catherine Louise Crunden, obtained horses and tried polo at the St. Louis Country Club field in imitation of the men's polo team. In spite of the heat this year an unusually large number of St. Louisans seem to prefer the spacious rooms of their own homes to the smaller cottages of the resorts, and with motor cars, the roof gardens for informal dinner parties, the opera or the movies, a calendar of parties for a day may easily be arranged.

The Saturday night dinner dances at the St. Louis Country Club dances are among the most popular of the summer parties. Last night Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zeibig entertained a group of friends for Ralph Jester of Dallas, Tex.; the guest of Mrs. Zeibig's brother, Samuel Capen Jr., and a brother of Loven Jester, who came to St. Louis for Miss Alice Busch's debut ball last winter and who has visited the Busch family since. Mr. Capen and his guest are classmates at Yale.

One bright spot in the midst of the dullness is the engagement of Miss Ruth Dutton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Dutton of 22 Windermere place, and Robert H. Dohn of Grand Rapids, Mich., which was announced yesterday at a bridge luncheon given by Miss Margaret Teasdale, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Willard Teasdale, 4310 Delmar boulevard. The guests, eight close friends of the prospective bride, were Misses Annette O'Reilly, Janice Feldman, Marion Laessig, Mrs. Arthur C. Brooks, Mrs. A. W. Dehlendorf and Mrs. Harry Cantwell. The luncheon table was decorated in bright colored, old-fashioned flowers, and the announcement was made by cards bearing the names of Miss Dutton and Mr. Dohn concealed in the centerpiece and attached by ribbons to individual corsages.

Miss Dutton was educated at Miss Fuller's School, Ossining, N. Y. She did not make a formal debut, but has been active in the social affairs of the younger set.

Mr. Dohn attended the University of Michigan and served in the aviation corps during the war. He has been in St. Louis for four years and makes his home at the Missouri Athletic Association. He is also a member of the Glen Echo Country Club.

The wedding will take place in October.

A wedding of interest which took place last night was that of Miss Emily Amanthus Kimball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Kimball of Kirkwood, formerly of Platteville, Wis., and John Francis Lilly of Cape Girardeau, Mo. The ceremony was performed at the Kimball home, Clay and Washington avenues, at 8:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Alfred Franklin Smith. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her sister, Miss Marydelle Kimball, was maid of honor, and C. P. Simon of Evanston, Ill., was best man. Those present included only members of the families and about 20 out-of-town guests.

Mrs. Lilly wore a gown of sheer georgette trimmed in pearls and a bridal veil of tulle caught to her hair with a coronet of orange blossoms. Her flowers were lillies of the valley and white sweet peas. The maid of honor was gowned in cream lace over Italian blue and carried Ophelia roses and blue delphinium in a loose arm bouquet. Both gowns were made in the period of our grandmothers with bouffant skirts, that have become fashionable at some of the Eastern weddings. There was an informal reception after the service was read.

The bride received her A. B. degree from the University of Wisconsin and her A. M. degree from Northwestern University. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi and Zeta Phi Eta sororities. Mr. Lilly was educated at St. Louis University and is a banker at Cape Girardeau, where he

St. Louisans Are Gathering in Force at the Popular Eastern Summer Resorts

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, July 7.—At Wellesley the class of 1923 was favored with a week's perfect weather, making for a commencement of unusual brilliancy. One of the events was the annual play, presented by the "Barnswallows," Wellesley's most famous dramatic club, a fantasy entitled "A Thousand Years Ago," in which Italian players and Chinese court figures mingled. Among those taking part were Miss Marion Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Wilson of 14 Windermere place, St. Louis, of the 1924 class, and Miss Frances Warfield of Kirkwood, a graduate of this year.

Judge Samuel A. Fordyce of St. Louis was among those who came to Cambridge for the twenty-fifth anniversary of his Harvard class, an event which was celebrated throughout the week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Endicott Searle, whose wedding was an event of the early June season at Rye Beach, N. H., are booked to sail for Europe next Thursday for a two months' honeymoon in Sweden. Mrs. Searle (Miss Jeanne Hortense Schroers) was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Schroers of St. Louis. The summer home is "Les Hirondelles," Rye Beach, where, after the marriage ceremony at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, a small reception was held.

Miss Janet Holmes of St. Louis came East to act as bridesmaid at the recent wedding in West Newbury, Mass., of Miss Catherine Everett, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Herbert E. Everett of Philadelphia, to Richard A. Noyes of Weston.

The Alpha Delta Pi National Sorority Association held its seventy-second annual convention at Marblehead last week. The banquet took place at the Rockmere, with 233 members present. At the election of officers Mrs. Mabelle E. Sperry of St. Louis was chosen president. Speakers at the banquet included Miss Hildah Neibert of St. Louis.

Numbered among those who will be missed by Magnolia people is Mrs. William H. Scudder of St. Louis, whose death occurred last winter. Mrs. Scudder came to the North Shore many years ago with her father, the late Samuel Cupples, and the young daughters of the family have grown up among the Shore residents. The Scudder estate will be leased for the summer. Mrs. Gustavo Di Rosa and Mrs. John H. Overall of St. Louis, daughters of Mrs. Scudder, are stopping at the Adams Villa, Magnolia. Mr. and Mrs. Henry McRee of St. Louis, the latter another daughter, are to spend the summer at Bucksport, Maine.

Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick of St. Louis arrived last Saturday at "Stonehurst," her estate at Magnolia, for another season. With Mrs. Kilpatrick is her cousin, Mrs. B. James of St. Louis. Her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Perry Jr. of New York, with whom Mrs. Kilpatrick has been visiting, will spend the summer with her.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Hussey and family of

ST. LOUISANS ARE GATHERING AT THE EASTERN SUMMER RESORTS

St. Louis are to arrive about the middle of July for the remainder of the summer, having taken apartments at the Oceanside, Magnolia.

The Magnolia summer home of the late Col. Nelson, owner and editor of the Kansas City Star, was sold recently, and this attractive shore estate will again be the center of hospitality such as existed when the Colonel and Mrs. Nelson entertained during the summers.

Mrs. George Angue Dobyne of New York, formerly of St. Louis, and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Kahler, have returned to Beverly Farms from a visit of six weeks in England. They went over primarily for Miss Kahler to be maid of honor at the wedding of Miss Muriel Sneed and Capt. Robert Marsh in Cornwall. Mrs. Dobyne was one of the winners at the Rose Show of the North Shore Horticultural Society last week at Manchester. The Dobyne won two firsts for roses, honors for calceolarions, and a first for the best vase of pansies.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob L. Loose of Kansas City have opened "Sea Rocks," their summer estate at Bass Rocks.

The artist colony at East Gloucester, which includes some of the best known painters and sculptors in the country, was grieved at the sudden passing of Paul Nornoyer, for the past few years a resident of East Gloucester throughout the year. Mr. Cornoyer was prominent in the life of the East Gloucester studios and did much to make successful the North Shore associations. He was one of the original members of the North Shore Arts Association, of which he was vice-president. Mr. Cornoyer was a native of St. Louis, who moved to New York.

The third annual tournament for the Inglelowe trophy presented by Mr. George A. Dobyne of the Beverly Farms section, will be played on the links of the Essex County Club, Manchester, on July 23, 24, 25, 26 and 27. One round a day will be played and there will be special handicaps.

Tom Barnett, artist and architect of St. Louis, has arrived at his studio on Old Bear Skin Neck, Rockport, where many artists congregate during the summer months.

Mrs. Louise Upton Brumback of Kansas City, president o the Gloucester Artists' Association, has arrived at her cottage at Rocky Neck.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanford Crawford of St. Louis arrived at the North Shore early in May. They stayed at the Sea Gull, Marblehead Neck, while their own cottage, "Rockmarge," at the corner of Harbor and Ocean avenues, was made ready for their occupancy.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thompson of St. Louis are spending the summer at their cottage, Grey House, Beverly Farms.

Mrs. Samuel M. Kennard of St. Louis arrived early in June at her summer home on Fuller street, Magnolia. With her were her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Ely Smith and their three children of St. Louis. Also with Mrs. Kennard was her grandson, Samuel M. Kennard, III, whose parents will arrive later in the season.

Mrs. Powhatan Clark and Miss Clemens of St. Louis have made reservations at the Hotel Mooriand, Bass Rocks, for the midseason.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Langenberg and family of St. Louis have come to "Edge Hill," at Rockholm, Annisquam, for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver F. Richards of St. Louis are located at the Earle Cottage, Annisquam, for a long season at the shore.

Mrs. Francis A. Lane with her daughter, Miss Belle Lane, came east early in the spring and they have been visiting her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Nathaniel T. Lane, at York, Penn., and Mrs. Robert DeC. Ward, daughter of Mrs. Lane in Cambridge Mass., before coming to their summer home on University Lane, Manchester, for the summer. Later they will be joined by Mrs. Nathaniel T. Lane and her son, Nathaniel, Jr.

Former Ambassador David R. Francis and family of St. Louis are at their summer home at Rye Beach, N. H. Mr. Francis is a frequent visitor to the North Shore resorts.

Mr. Henry Nicholaus and his daughter, Mrs. Edwin T. Stannard, of St. Louis, have taken a cottage at the corner of Ocean Spray and Rockaway avenues, Clifton.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Pettus and family of St. Louis have arrived at the Adams homestead in the Annisquam section of Cape Ann, to spend the summer.

Mrs. W. G. Pettus and family of St. Louis are in a small cottage on Cambridge avenue, Annisquam.

Mrs. William L. R. Gifford of St. Louis arrived last month at her cottage on Norwood Heights, Annisquam.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Carter and their daughters, Misses Elizabeth, Mary and Margaret Carter, of St. Louis are again occupying the Lingard estate, "The Pines," one of the most delightfully situated places at Annisquam.

GARDEN CLUBS MEET IN NEWPORT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 7.—The first big event of the Newport season was the convention last week of the Garden Clubs of America, which brought some 500 delegates from all parts of the country. Fifty-seven clubs were represented, among them the Garden Club of St. Louis, of which Eugene H. Angert of Clayton is president. Many of the loveliest of Newport's gardens were opened to the visitors, and in addition several large social affairs were arranged, the convention ending with a "Rhode Island Clambake" at the Clambake Club.

Most of the large estates at Newport are opened, the notable exception being Marble House, owned by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, which has not been occupied for several years. Mrs. Vanderbilt came early to The Breakers, but is there alone so far this season. Her son-in-law and daughter, Count and Countess Szechenyi, and their family, who were with her last summer, have taken the estate of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney for the season.

All the cottage colony is taking a great interest in the international tennis tournament to be staged at the Casino next week. This is the first time this event has been held at Newport and the visitors from abroad are being lavishly entertained. The regular invitation tournament will be held as usual during August.

MANY ST. LOUISANS AT WATCH HILL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WATCH HILL, R. I., July 7.—Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. West of St. Louis have leased Sunnycroft, on Neptune road, Watch Hill, for the summer. Last year the Wests and their family were also at Watch Hill, having deserted York Harbor, where they had been for several years.

The Rev. Edward S. Travers of St. Louis has arrived at his cottage, Irisrock, on Sunset avenue, for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Moore of St. Louis have taken Tarrento cottage on the Westerly road, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter McKittrick and family of St. Louis are at the Ocean House, Watch Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus A. Busch Jr. of St. Louis have reserved apartments at the Ocean House, Watch Hill, for the midseason.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Yantis of St. Louis are to be at the Ocean House, Watch Hill, for the season, as they were last summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Nugent of St. Louis, who for many years have had a summer home at Eastern Point, New London, entertained a dinner company on the night of the Yale-Harvard boat race.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Jenssen and Oscar C. Jenssen of St. Louis, were recent guests at the Mohican, New London, en route by automobile to the Rhode Island shores.

Mr. and rMs. Walter A. Hecker of St. Louis, who are touring in New England, were at the Balsams, Dixville Notch, N. H., over the week end.

Miss Helen Rand of St. Louis is spending July at the Aspinwall, Lenox, Mass., in the Berkshire region.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. McKnight of St. Louis have arrived at Bar Harbor, Me., where they are located at the Newport, for an extended visit.

and his bride will make their home after a Western honeymoon trip. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. M. A. Lilly of Cape Girardeau, mother of the bridegroom; his brothers, Meredith and Robert Lilly of Centralia, Ill.; Edwin Kimball of Worcester, Miss.; Miss Ruth Hotchkiss of Elkhorn, Wis.; William J. Williamson of Chicago; Miss Josephine Buckner of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Oliver and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Graves of Cape Girardeau. Mrs. Lilly isa granddaughter of Mrs. Ewell Buckner and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Lee W. Buckner of Kirkwood, and is related to prominent families in Virginia and the South.

MISSOURIAN IS 'PERFECT GOB'

Liberty Sailor Has Had Untarnished Record for 20 Years.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The perfect "gob" has been found and publicly identified by the Navy Department in the person of Samuel S. Gant, chief pharmacists' mate, whose home is in Liberty, Mo.

Secretary Denby today commended Gant upon his transfer to the fleet naval reserve after 20 years of active service during which there was not a single report against him for infraction of naval regulations. "A clear record of service covering such a lon period of time is extremely rare," the Secretary said.

How to Lose Your Tan, Freckles or Redness

A day's motoring, an afternoon on the tennis court or golf links, a sunbath on the beach or exposure on a water trip, often brings on a deep tan or vivid crimson or, more perplexing still, a vigorous crop of freckles. A very necessary thing then is mercolized wax, which removes tan, redness or freckles quite easily. It literally peels off the affected skin—just a little at a time, so there's no hurt or inconvenience. As the skin comes off in almost invisible flaky particles, no trace of the treatment is shown. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's and use this nightly as you would cold cream, washing it off mornings. Soon you will have an entirely new skin, beautifully clear, transparent and of a delicate whiteness.

Greater Beauty for Every Complexion

For over 80 years GOURAUD'S ORIENTAL CREAM has rendered greater beauty to thousands of women the world over. We have now extended its usefulness so that those who desire to closely harmonize their complexion with their particular shade of beauty can do so to the best advantage.

Gouraud's Oriental Cream

is now available in three shades.

Flesh—for those who desire to bring the glow of roses to their cheeks.

Rachelle—for those who desire the enchanting depth of color, just off the white shade.

White—popular for all complexions for over 30 years.

Gouraud's Oriental Cold Cream and Gouraud's Medicated Soap are indispensable complexion aids and should be used in conjunction with Gouraud's Oriental Cream.

Send 10c. for trial size bottle in either shade, or 25c. for a trial size bottle of Gouraud's Oriental Cream, any shade desired, a cake of Gouraud's Medicated Soap, and a tube of Gouraud's Oriental Cold Cream.

Waddock. Mr. Wilkinson has been working principally with more than 20,000 Slav students who have come to the University of Prague from the various parts of the earth, to complete their educations; he has also just completed a study tour of 14 European countries, in the interests of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, leaving his mother, Mrs. John C. Wilkinson, and his sister, Miss Dorothy B. Wilkinson, in Grenoble France.

210 DOWNTOWN CHILDREN LEAVE FOR EUREKA FARM

Two hundred and ten children left Union Station yesterday morning for a two weeks' stay at the Frank Wyman Outing Farm near Eureka, St. Louis County. The children, who were accompanied by a number of young women as entertainers, came from several centrally located churches, from the Mullanphy playground and the Municipal Nurses, and through individual recommendations.

Yesterday's consignment of children was the second that has gone to the farm this season. The farm is supported by contributions, $10 sufficing to give a child from the crowded downtown residence districts a two weeks' outing on the 82-acre farm. The children are selected without distinction of creed or nationality. Some of the contributions come from persons who are about to go for their vacations, and who thus insure happiness and healthful surroundings for some child during the time of their own summer enjoyment. George A. Roth, 421 South Seventh street, treasurer of the farm organization, receives contributions.

A LAGOON AT FASHION SHOW

Among the varied scenes to be presented at the St. Louis Fashion Pageant, to be held in the Municipal Theater at Forest Park, Aug. 8 to 25, inclusive, is a Venetian setting. The orchestra pit and half the stage, which is 150 feet wide and 300 feet deep, will be converted into a lagoon, over which gondolas will float. The St. Louis Grand Opera Company, with Italian singers, will sing in this scene.

Other effects will be a fountain patterned after one at Versailles, a winter scene with ice skating, and numerous special settings for ballet dancing.

Would You Be Beautiful?
Beauty has been the quest of all ages. Thousands of lovely women attribute their beauty to the use of Nadine Face Powder. The cheeks have just a tint of color—the skin can only be equalled by the soft texture of a rose petal. Nadine will keep the roses in your cheeks. It will adhere and protect the skin from the sun, wind and dust. It contains no white lead or other ingredient to harm the skin or the eyes. It's the same pure powder, popular for so many years—only the box and fragrance have been improved.

COLLEGE CLUB WOMEN TO MEET IN OREGON

The convention of the American Association of University Women will be held in Portland, Ore., July 16-21. The St. Louis College Club, St. Louis, branch of the association, will be represented by Mrs. Roscoe Anderson. Mrs. William I. Wittrig, Mrs. Elma H. Benton, Miss Elizabeth Hays, Miss A. M. East and Miss Leigh Harris. Mrs. T. C. Parrish of Vandalia, Mo., director of the Southwest Central section, of which the St. Louis branch is a part, will go with the delegates. Mrs. Roscoe Anderson has been national recording secretary for four years. Her term of office expires this year.

The Portland branch is planning entertainment, including a reception, given by President and Mrs. Scholz of Reed College, and a drive on the Columbia River highway. Among the important business sessions [illegible] be an open educational meeting, conducted by Mrs. Frances Fenton Bernard, the educaton secretary of the association, and the international meeting with Miss Mary E. Wooley, president of Mt. Holyoke College, as chairman.

The delegates will leave St. Louis July 8.

Mrs. Joseph W. Folk, widow of the late former Governor of Missouri, has been spending the last two weeks in Washington closing her beautiful home in Woodland drive. This house will be put immediately on the market and sold, although it is said that Mrs. Folk will spend her winters in the capital, where she has a host of friends.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS FOR OZARKS

The third national convention of the Evangelical Sunday schools, which closed a five-day session here last week, voted to encourage the plan of the general assembly of the church to establish Sunday schools in neglected districts, particularly in the Ozark Mountains.

Training schools for Sunday school workers at Dunkirk, N. Y., and Cincinnati received encouragement and the Near East relief movement was recommended. A total of 1329 delegates attended.

DWIGHT DAVIS HOST TO "LION OF ARGONNE" IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The departure of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis on the Leviathan for Europe on the Fourth of July leaves Secretary Hughes about all there is of the government in Washington. The hot days have no terror for the Administration Premier and his wife since they have settled in their quaint country place, "MacFolly Farm," on the Rockville pike.

Mrs. Hughes is sharing the enforced stay in Washington with the Secretary and many pleasant little dinner parties served al fresco in the old-fashioned gardens enliven the dullness of the summer calendar for the officials detained here.

St. Louis' representative in the Cabinet, acting Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis had his hands full this week welcoming the latest official visitor, Gen. Gouraud, "the Lion of the Argonne," the gallant Frenchman who lost an arm in the fighting. All his official parties were in charge of Mr. Davis who was personally one of the party when the Frenchman visited the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington and gave the sleeping boy the salute of fraternity in service.

Fortunately, General Pershing was in town so Missouri's warrior son and the son of France could meet and rehearse again the glorious days of the Argonne. He gave a large dinner at the Army and Navy Club on Friday which was attended by all the military officials in town.

Gen. Pershing will leave the first of the week for an extended inspection tour over a large part of the country.

Mrs. John B. Henderson Sr., accompanied by her grand-daughter, Miss Beatrice Henderson, daughter of the Late John B. Henderson Jr., have gone to Bar Harbor for the remainder of the season where they will open their villa. Boundary Castle in Washington has been closed, but the tennis courts and swimming pool are still open by invitation to many social celebrities, especially of the diplomatic corps.

Col. and Mrs. James M. Thomson came to Washington the early part of the week and accompanied Col. George Harvey, Ambassador to Great Britain, to Deal, N. J., where they were guests until Wednesday, when they sailed on the Leviathan for Europe. Mrs. Thompson was Genevieve Champ Clark and this European visit is one which they have been planning ever since their marriage at Bowling Green, Mo., in 1915. First the war, then the death of their young son, followed within the year by that of Speaker Clark, prevented the journey. They will tour Europe for three months after which they will return to America, stopping en route to New Orleans to visit Mrs. Thomson's brother and sister-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark in St. Louis. Mrs. Champ Clark, who is in Bowling Green, is said to be planning a trip to Washington in connection with the publication of her interesting memoirs of public life, "Two Towns and Some People."

Capt. and Mrs. Patrick Bellinger, U. S. N., and their small son, "Pat Jr." have gone to Virginia to be the guests of Miss Isabelle Wells at her country place near Harper's Ferry. Mrs. Bellinger was Miss Miriam Benoist of St. Louis.

Mrs. James A. Reed has returned from a brief stay in Atlantic City and will leave the end of next week for Missouri to join Senator Reed there.

Prof. and Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins of George Washington University departed yesterday for a month's tour of North Shore resorts. Early in August they will return and go to Missouri, where they will visit in Columbia, which is the old home of Mrs. Hodgkins.

Former Assisstant Secretary of State and Mrs. Breckinridge Long closed their town house in Washington and departed Monday for Newport, where they will pass the remainder of the season.

Last minute parties are being given in farewell to Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz of Missouri, who will leave his post here as chief of naval operations to take command of the Pacific fleet the last of the month. Admiral Coontz will entertain at dinner in honor of his successor at the Navy Department, Rear Admiral Edward E. Eberle, upon his arrival here.

INTERNATIONAL AIR MEETING MAY MAKE CITY FLYING CENTER

Possibilities for St. Louis Growing Out of October Contest Emphasized in Pamphlet Just Issued.

Officers of the St. Louis Air Board, in charge of preparations for the international air races in St. Louis, Oct. 1, 2 and 3, yesterday expressed satisfaction with the manner in which the heavy traffic to St. Louis Field, near Bridgeton, was handled last Wednesday for the air circus.

It is believed, in the light of Wednesday's traffic movement, that the problem of getting the public into and out of the grounds during the international races has been solved and that there will be no jam of automobiles in Natural Bridge road, such as held traffic up for hours at the aerial show there May 6.

The United Railways last week began double-tracking its Bridgeton branch and will put in a loop just north of the Natural Bridge road. About two miles of the St. Charles line, between Bridgeton Junction and St. John's Station, will also be double tracked, giving a continuous double track from the flying field to Wellston.

A new folder, giving complete information about the air races and emphasizing the future of St. Louis as an air terminal, was issued from Air Board headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce building yesterday. On the subject of "St. Louis, the Aerial Crossroads of America," the pamphlet says:

"St. Louis must have an air terminal. Ten years hence the city without such facilities will be as far behind as the city today without adequate railroad facilities. Practically every city of importance in Europe and America is today equipped with either a municipal or commercial landing field. At the present time, perhaps, the finest equipped field in the Middle West is located in Kansas City. Omaha has an excellent field. Tulsa, Memphis, New Orleans and Cincinnati are planning to make themselves air centers by offering suitable terminal for potential air traffic. St. Louis is the logical place for a great central air terminal. With such a terminal station St. Louis is destined to become the aerial crossroads of America.

Meet Will Open Way.

"It is the purpose of the St. Louis Aeronautic Corporation to utilize the International air races as the instrument with which to force its way into aeronautic prominence and obtain an air terminal for St. Louis."

Explaining the financing of the permanent field, in connection with the races, for which $200,000 is being raised through the sale of stock in the St. Louis Aeronautic Corporation at $50 a share, the statement says:

"The land which will be acquired consists of 183 acres situated at Bridgeton, in St. Louis County. The land has been purchased at a cost of $73,200, but is rapidly increasing in value owing to its proximity to the railroad, trolley line and highways leading to St. Louis. The grading improvements will make every acre available for subdivisions and subsequent sale as residence property. It is the opinion of th directors that if necessary, the land could be sold for sufficient to liquidate the corporation after the proposed improvements have been completed.

"Earning Power—The revenue of the corporation will be received from the following sources:

"1. Use of grounds by commercial air lines.

"2. Use of grounds by aviation corporations. The establishment of this field, it is believed, will attract manufacturers of airplanes and aeronautic equipment to St. Louis and the industry will be built up around St. Louis Field.

"3. Renting of field by agricultural exhibitions. Definite offers have been received for the renting of the field for Mid-Western livestock exhibitions, and other similar purposes.

"4. Renting of space for exhibition grounds for conclaves and encampments and for open-air automobile shows.

"5. Renting of hangar space to airplane owners.

"6. Renting of field for flying exhibitions.

"7. Sale of lots of ground which may not be needed by the corporation."

Will Attract Factories.

The pamphlet closes with this statement:

"With a permanent field established, it will be possible to attract other aeronautical manufacturers to St. Louis, locate their plants around the field, and thus develop an air terminal in every sense of the word. St. Louis occupies an ideal position, both geographically and commercially, to encourage such enterprises."

The officers of the St. Louis Aeronautic Corporation are as follows: B. F. Bush, president; W. Frank Carter, vice president; Carl F. G. Meyer, vice president; R. F. McNally, treasurer; Arthur B. Birge, general manager and secretary; Judge William T. Jones, general counsel; Elsa Schreiber, assistant secretary.

The Board of Directors consist of the following:

W. Frank Carter, B. F. Bush, J. L. Johnston, Maj. A. B. Lamber, John G. Lonsdale, Carl F. G. Meyer, Col. Albert T. Perkins, Joseph Pulitzer, M. E. Singleton, W. Palmer Clarkson, Aaron Waldheim.

Wrinkles and Facial Blemishes Removed

For years, European and American beauty specialists have been able to remove fine lines and wrinkles from about the eyes, face and neck as well as remove facial blemishes, including small-pox pits, blackheads, comedone pits, freckles, blotches, scars, enlarged pores, powder and birthmarks without the use of surgery.

For these purposes "Caristol" and the "Gordon Facial Process," originated by a famous French dermatologist, have been almost universally used.

These famous treatments may now be obtained for home use from the Gordon Laboratory Company, 2044 Tramway Bldg., Denver, Colo. Literature explaining this process sent those interested on request.

Just 300 Beautiful Dresses

A Limited Group Proffers Dresses of Exquisite Quality in a Diversity of Styles

At $19.75

THE choice of Frocks from among this group is a joyous task—every Frock wins applause for the individuality of its design. Especially priced for this selling, values exceptional are featured.

A decidedly new and dominant Frock in the group is developed in foulard with wide pleated panels of Georgette from shoulder to hem.

Particularly pleasing to the slender woman is a model of Canton and printed crepe in combination. The Canton crepe fashions the Dress, the printed material the trimming — puff sleeves from elbow and pleated apron which can be utilized as a cape.

Sport Dresses of Roshanara crepe, smartly tailored in daringly simple styles, offer interesting choice.

Light or dark colors, sizes 34 to 42, make this feature of interest to every woman and a rare opportunity for savings. Two of the styles pictured.

Sale starts promptly at 8:30 a. m. We advise early attendance.

WOMAN MENTIONED IN NEWS ITEM NOT PROPERLY IDENTIFIED

In a news item published in the Post-Dispatch last Friday relating to the divorce suit of Mrs. Gertrude Swingle of 4043A Kennerly avenue it was erroneously stated that she was president of the American Women's Council of Justice. She is president of the Women's League for Home Training, which is in no way affiliated with the other organization.

The American Women's Council of Justice is not, as the news item stated, opposed to liquor regulation, but is interested in having the Volstead act modified so that the manufacture of light wine and beer may be permitted. It is opposed to the return of the saloon, but primarily is fighting for State rights as against centralization of power, and is interested in many other legislative matters.

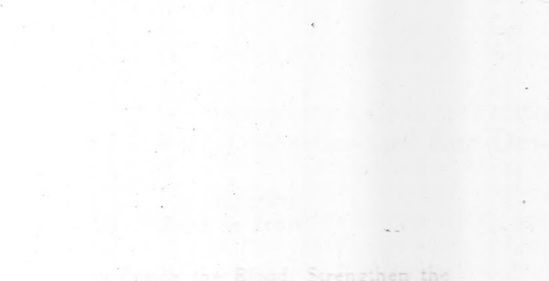
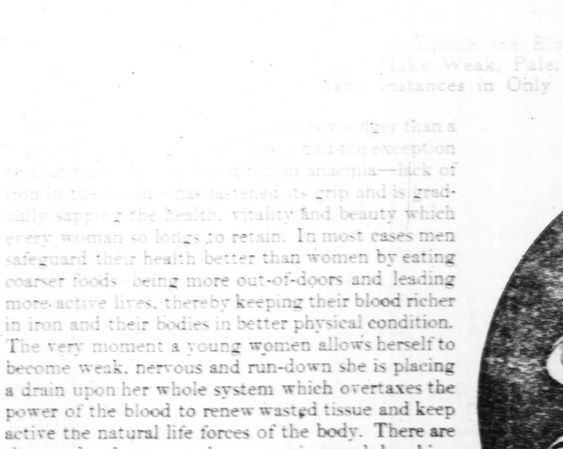
Have Weak, Pale, Careworn Women Strengthen the Blood

Instances in Only Two Weeks' Time.

At 20 Years



At 30 Years



At 40 Years

It's NOT always the youngest woman that is most sought after—there is an indescribably alluring fascination in the ROSY CHEEK, the INVITING LIPS and SPARKLING EYES of a woman whose blood is filled with iron. You may be afflicted with IRON STARVATION of the blood and not know it, just as thousands of other women are.

ONE PERSON IN THREE in America today suffers more or less from MALNUTRITION—lack of nourishment, which is caused NOT BY LACK OF FOOD, but in many cases by LACK of sufficient IRON IN THE BLOOD to enable you to get the strength and nourishment out of your food. Indoor life, over-eating and modern methods of cookery are sapping the iron from the blood of hundreds of thousands of women. Our forefathers to whom history refers as a NATION OF RED BLOODED AMERICANS ate the husks of grains and the skins and peels of vegetables and other coarse foods rich in strength giving organic iron, which the modern woman does not get.

To make up for the great loss of iron caused by the life woman is compelled to lead she should eat more such iron-containing vegetables and fruits, as spinach and baked apples, and take organic iron like Nuxated Iron from time to time to help enrich her blood and revitalize her worn-out, exhausted nerves.

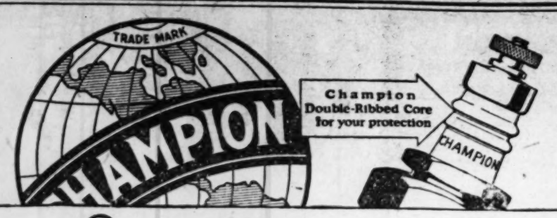
NUXATED IRON represents organic iron in such a highly condensed form that one dose of it is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating half a quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It's like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.

Over 4,00,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. It often increases the bodily and mental vigor, strength and endurance of weak, nervous, "run-down" folks in two weeks' time. Your money will refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results. Beware of substitutes. Nuxated Iron comes in tablets only—never in liquid form. Always look for the word "Nuxated" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

OAKLAND HANGS UP NEW SPEED RECORD

The Oakland Six hung up another speed record on the Pacific Coast which followed on the heels of the sensational victory of the Oakland in the Yosemite Economy run in which it won both the sweepstakes trophy and class cup.

In an officially observed test run over the Cotati speedway recently near San Francisco, the Oakland Six, driven by Bill Cooper and Leo Hordenschuld, covered 500 miles in 442 minutes—an average of 67.8 miles per hour for more than seven hours of continuous running.



Save from $1.00 upward

The price of 75 cents for the Blue Box Line of Champion Spark Plugs enables you to save from a dollar upwards when you install a full set.

Champion is a better spark plug and is outselling by such a wide margin that more than 40,000,000 will be made this year. It is this tremendous production that makes possible the remarkably low price.

MOON SALES INCREASE 200 PCT. FOR 6 MONTHS

F. H. ROGERS, sales manager of the Moon Motor Co. of St. Louis, reports that Moon sales for the first six months of 1923 show an increase of 200 per cent over the same period last year.

"This is particularly gratifying," says the sales manager, "in view of the fact that sales of cars generally have increased approximately 100 per cent according to National Automobile Chamber of Commerce statistics."

Rogers also calls attention to the Moon showing in various cities, especially Chicago, where he declared June registrations show more Moon cars were sold than any other six-cylinder car of the same or a higher price.

CALLS ATTENTION TO BAD INDIANA ROAD

On his return from a trip to the Westcott factory at Springfield, O., Herman L. Schnure, president of the Velie Auto Co. of St. Louis, Westcott distributers, called attention to a bad spot on the road East, between Terre Haute and Indianapolis, Ind. At this section of five miles near Brazil, Ind., Schnure states, new concrete is being laid and in making the road, small engines are being used. When the engine is hauling a load the road is blocked and cars must travel on the dirt along the side. Because of the lower level there is danger of the flywheel and axle touching.

Accompanying Schnure on the trip were Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Winklemeyer. Four cars were driven back from the factory after the dealers' meeting last Monday. Schnure driving two of them.

The party returned on July 4 and Schnure tells of having passed more than 300 cars between St. Louis and Highland, Ill., that morning, all bearing St. Louis licenses.

Louisiana made the greatest percentage gain in motor vehicles in 1922 registering 31.3 per cent increase.

The Saving Lubricants Streett's MOTOR OILS "Seal and Satisfy"

But who wants to do it?

You can run your car without oil—but not very far. You can run your car on cheap oil—but not very long. That is, not very long in terms of the mileage which you may reasonably expect from your automobile.

But who wants to do either?

By consistently lubricating your car with Streett's Motor Oils, you can get out of it every mile which it was designed to give, with less trouble and expense.

Streett's Motor Oils are as superior to cheaper oil as the latter is to no oil at all.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

Inquiry among Single-Six owners will reveal to you that many of them expect to drive their cars for five years and more. Thus they are avoiding the loss always involved in frequent changes.

This is one of the reasons why the conviction is growing that ownership of a Packard is downright economy. This conviction is fortified by the surprisingly low cost of operation and maintenance.

It is probably a reasonable assertion that nowhere can you purchase so much motoring satisfaction at so low a cost.

Any Packard salesman will gladly amplify this statement and prove to your satisfaction the greater investment economy of the Single-Six.

IS THIS MOTOR CAR EXPERT CORRECT?

How Many of These Things Do You Do—in Your Driving?

This list of things we often do is compiled by Erwin Greer, president Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago, Ill.:

Start the engine with the switch turned off or without gasoline in the tank.

Forget that using the starter a certain number of times will exhaust the supply of current in the battery unless the engine is run sufficiently to recharge it.

Fill the lubricator in the engine and neglect to lubricate all other parts of the car.

Neglect the lubrication of any part of the car.

Advance the spark when starting the engine.

Allow the clutch to engage suddenly.

Apply the brakes suddenly when it isn't at all necessary.

Push in the starting button when the engine is running.

Blame the starter when the engine doesn't start, without looking into the gasoline tank.

Neglect to inspect the level of the acid in the storage battery, even after two or three weeks have gone by, and overlook a supply of distilled water needed.

Shift from third to second or first gear when the car is running at a high speed.

Shift reverse gear when the car is moving ahead.

Neglect to investigate any unusual sound which may develop in the car.

Drive fast and attempt to stop suddenly on a wet pavement.

Overlook keeping the tires properly inflated.

Release the clutch when the throttle is open very wide.

Use the starter to run the car, even while understanding that excessive overload on the battery is very injurious.

Allow our car to stand in puddles of oil or water, while perfectly aware that neither one is good for our tires.

Overlook the fact that pan, engine and other mechanical parts of a car should be kept clean.

Turn corners too fast, liking to be spectacular even at cost of tires.

Open the throttle quickly without giving the motor a chance to pick up gradually.

Find it too much trouble to keep our brakes adjusted—or at least too much trouble to keep our mind on it.

Neglect to familiarize ourselves with the use of the hand lever brake and thus be prepared for emergencies.

Release the clutch before shifting gears.

Fail to examine the car occasionally for loose nuts and bolts.

Fail to heed the squeak that calls for oil.

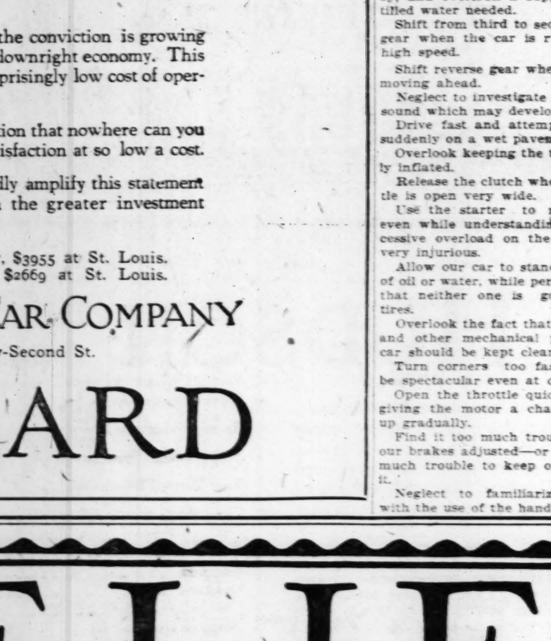
VELIE

V A L U E

Only the airplane engines and those of the very highest priced cars have lubricating systems comparable to that of the Velie-built motor.

Automatically lubricated at every point, even to the piston pins, it adds quietness and long life to the acknowledged superiority of the valve-in-head type of engine.

The four-main-bearing crankshaft, precisely balanced, and with pistons and connecting rods accurately matched for weight, gives complete absence of vibration at all speeds, from two to sixty miles an hour.



Sectional View of Velie Motor

Every time we sell a car we make a friend. Hundreds of Velie owners are averaging better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline. Come in and let us demonstrate why!

AUBURN TOURS 24,000 MILES IN 42 STATES

An idea of the excellent advantages enjoyed by the modern tourist is shown by the experience of R. C. Pearse, of Oklahoma City, who has just finished a business trip in an Auburn car, covering 24,000 miles and visiting 42 states.

In all of this long trip Mr. Pearse had but little difficulty with roads, and everywhere he found good hotels and suitable accommodations for the itinerant motorist.

Mrs. Pearse travels with her husband. It is quite apparent that they are out for a good time, and that they know how to get real fun out of what might ordinarily be termed a "long hard trip."

Removes that dull film: keeps cars looking new!

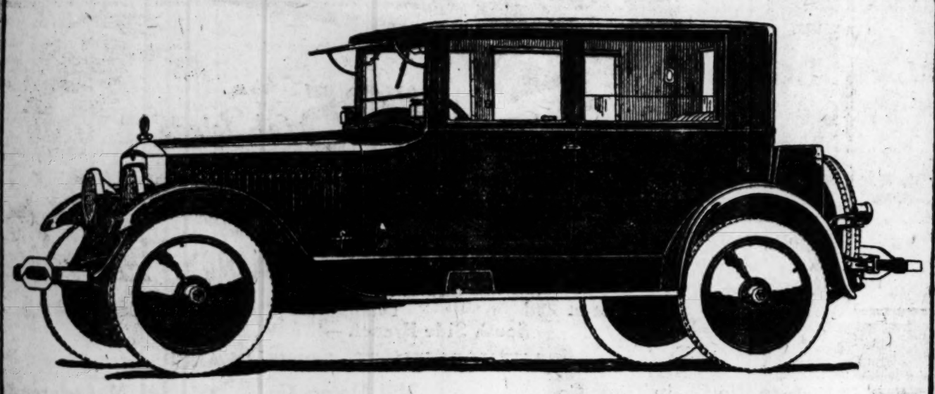
STUDEBAKER BIG-SIX FIVE-PASSENGER COUPE $2550



The Big-Six Coupe Offers a Rare Combination of Elegance and Utility

Into the Studebaker Big-Six five-passenger Coupe have gone, without compromise, the finest design, materials, workmanship and the best of Studebaker's 71 years' experience.

Nothing has been left undone to make this big, roomy coupe as fine an enclosed car as can be built.

Certainly no car performs more brilliantly or is more reliable. None possesses greater beauty or is more luxuriously comfortable. None is more enjoyable to drive—and no other make of car is more completely equipped.

You will appreciate the generous roominess of this Big-Six Coupe, its sterling quality of body and chassis and its wealth of refinements—including the large trunk; extra disc wheel complete with tire, tube and tire cover; handsome nickel-plated bumpers, front and rear; courtesy light; motometer; flower vase; clock; aluminum-bound running boards with corrugated rubber mats and step pads; rear-view mirror, automatic windshield cleaner, glare-proof glass visor, and many others.

The Big-Six Coupe offers every requisite for lasting satisfaction—yet its selling price is considerably lower than one would have to pay for any other make of car of comparable quality.

Its low price is due to large volume and to the fact that Studebaker overhead is shared by three models—all sixes. Then, too, only one manufacturing profit is included in the Big-Six price because all vital parts are manufactured in Studebaker plants.

Studebaker has been building quality vehicles for more than two generations. The name Studebaker stands for quality, durability, comfort and integrity.

Power in surplus measure to satisfy the most exacting owner

PAIGE THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA $2450

Compare the Paige Point by Point with Its Two Competitors

Of forty manufacturers of quality cars the two cars leading in sales are priced at $2885 and $2685; the Paige at $2450. What difference is there to justify the extra price? Check Paige points against these competitors—and you will realize that never before has $2450 bought such a car.

131-Inch Wheelbase 5-Foot Springs

Paige has a wheelbase of 131 inches—providing for roomy comfort besides roadability. Riding ease rarely equaled is further assured by rear springs more than 5 feet long. Check this against costlier cars! Paige leads them all in comfort.

More Power for Weight

Mark Paige piston displacement—compare it with others. Here is reserve power for all needs. Paige weight is 3850 pounds, yet the ratio to piston displacement is only 11.4 pounds per cubic inch. This low ratio is why Paige out-performs its competitors—climbs hills easier and at lower speed—gets away faster. Compare it in the chart—nearly two pounds less per cubic inch—15% more ability!

Easy Handling

With a driving range of 2 to 70 miles an hour in high there is small need of gear shifting, though it may be done at a bare 3-inch movement, without clash or missing under any guidance. Steering is easy for the frailest hand—strain is absent.

What Is Equipment?

You wouldn't compare a car with three wheels to a car with four wheels, in relation to their prices. So Paige must be compared as to equipment with what its competitors would cost you if similarly equipped. Note the twelve items of equipment in the chart above—all things which you would eventually buy for any car. Paige has them all! One competitor has only three of them—and the other five—least costly items. Calculate the cost of this equipment, and see how much more you get in the Paige.

Why Paige Can Be Sold at $2450

Tremendous volume on our smaller car—the Paige-built Jewett—reduces overhead on Paige cars to a negligible amount. This saving makes the Paige price possible. With the Jewett—Paige builds twice as many cars as either competitor shown on the chart. Under any other conditions Paige with its present high standards could not be sold for less than $3000.

To fully appreciate Paige—see the car—drive it. Measure it against your requirements in a fine car. Call or telephone for a demonstration at your convenience. There is no obligation, of course. If desired—payment terms may be arranged. [311-A]

POPE ASKS FRANCE AND BELGIUM TO END COERCION IN RUHR

He Instructs Nuncios in Paris and Brussels to Appeal to Governments With View to Averting Rigorous Measures Pronounced Against Germany.

RECENTLY URGED END OF RESISTANCE

Envoys Said to Have Called on Cuno and to Have Charged Berlin With Responsibility for Duisburg Affair.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, July 7.—A semi-official communique was issued by the Vatican today as follows:

"The Holy See, which has already deplored the Duisburg outrage, becausesuch incidents render more difficult the work of pacification, has instructed the nuncios in Paris and Brussels to approach the respective Governments so that the rigorous measures proclaimed against Germany may be averted for the final purpose of obtaining an understanding between Germany, France and Belgium."

Pope Pius, in a letter to Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, made public on June 26, urged that nations consider the question of reparations "in that Christian spirit which does not separate the exigencies of justice from those of social charity." The letter also said, "It is just that creditors should have guarantees proportionate to the importance of their claims. * * * but we leave to them to consider if it is necessary to maintain to that end territorial occupations imposing grave sacrifices on the occupied countries."

Premier Poincare made a speech in the French Senate Friday saying the letter should have no political effect and that the Vatican could not deprive France of her due under the peace treaty.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 7.—The semiofficials news agency today published the following:

"It is learned from Rome that upon the receipt of the news that vigorous measures had been taken in the occupied German territories as the result of the Duisburg railway accident, the Curia has sent telegraphic instructions to the Nunciatures in Paris and Brussels to make representations to the French and Belgian Governments and to state that his Holiness expects no measures shall be taken which might lead to still further embitterment of feeling, with correspondingly painful consequences."

"Sabotage in the Ruhr can be explained as growing out of the excitement of a tortured people and as a questionable attempt at self-defense," is the opinion which Chancellor Cuno is reported semiofficially to have madeknown to Mgr. Pacelli, the papel uncio, in their closing conference last night.

The words are contained in a semiofficial communique which announces that the nuncio presented fully the Pope's views with regard to sabotage in the occupied areas of Germany. The communique adds that the Federal Government "agrees with the Holy See, however, in condemning every criminal use of force."

Mgr. Pacelli is reported to be preparing to return immediately to his residence in Munich.

Vatican Insists Clear-Cut Statement by Germany.

Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

BERLIN, July 7.—The Vatican insists on a clear declaration of Germany's position as a means of laying a foundation for peace in the Ruhr. Unsatisfied with statements thus far obtained, Pope Pius has wired Mgr. Pacelli, Papal Nuncio, to remain in Berlin for further negotiations.

This information comes from a Catholic source participating in the Vatican's efforts to settle the Ruhr impasse. The inside story of the four days' conversations is that the papal nuncio had explicit instructions to get a complete statement from Germany on sabotage and guarantees.

The Pope wants a written memo-

CONVICT WHIPPING BOSS SENTENCED TO 20-YEAR TERM

Thomas W. Higginbotham Is Convicted of Murder in Second Degree in Death of Boy in Florida.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAKE CITY, Fla., July 7.—Thomas W. Higginbotham was convicted of murder in the second degree here late this afternoon by the jury that heard evidence against him in connection with the death of Martin Tabert, North Dakota farm boy, who died after a beating administered by Higginbotham in a convict camp of the Putnam Lumber Co. at Clara, Dixie County, on Feb. 1, 1922. Higginbotham was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment. Pending appeal, he was released under $10,000 bond.

It was not until late afternoon that the case was submitted after a day consumed in the arguments of counsel and the Judge's charge. An hour and 20 minutes later, the verdict was returned.

Every effort had been made by the defense to show that Higginbotham had lashed Tabert no more than was authorized by law. But the State witnesses, who testified to 50 or more than 100 blows with the whip, apparently convinced the jury.

Charge Whipping Caused Pneumonia.

Details of Tabert's death caused the Florida Legislature to forbid the use of the lash in prison camps and to order abolition of the convict leasing system.

During the trial the State charged Higginbotham with having whipped Tabert so severely that traumatic pneumonia resulted, causing death four days later.

The defense admitted the whipping, but contended it was "within the law," basing this on testimony that only eight to 10 lashes were struck. The Florida convict camp regulations permitted administering 10 lashes. The defense asserted Tabert died from lobar pneumonia.

Charges were made by defense counsel that one of the State's witnesses had been offered a bribe to testify and that a "slush fund" had been raised in North Dakota to aid in the prosecution and pamphlets distributed among witnesses to prejudice them.

Tabert was whipped while a convict in the lumber company's camp, Jan. 27, 1922. The defense said he died on Feb. 2. G. Grimson, Assistant Attorney-General of North Dakota, investigated the death, spending several weeks in Florida. On his return to North Dakota he submitted his findings to the North Dakota Legislature, which approved a resolution calling upon the State of Florida to investigate.

Death Results in Reforms.

The Florida Legislature appointed a joint committee and the investigation that followed resulted in dismissal from office of Sheriff J. R. Jones and County Judge B. F. Willis of Leon County, who sentenced Tabert. Tabert was arrested for riding on a freight train and sentenced to three months.

Sheriff Jones admitted he had entered into an agreement with the lumber company to supply prisoners for $20 each.

The case of Tabert, who spent the last weeks of his life in a convict camp, although he had committed no crime, focused the country's attention on peonage conditions.

The story of the tragedy as presented by a New York World reporter who gathered all the details brought an investigation by the Legislature. This uncovered many other cases om brutality and revealed the system whereby lumber companies, with the aid of Sheriffs and Judges, recruited their convict labor.

As a result of the investigating commission's findings, and the pressure of public opinion, the Legislature passed measures abolishing whipping and practically abolishing the peonage system and its attendant abuses. About the same time, Higginbotham was indicted on a charge of murdering Tabert.

Mexican Indians Get 10 Cents a Day.

MEXICO CITY, July 8.—Twenty centavos or 10 cents in American money, is what the Indian workers of the Coixtlahuaca district, State of Oaxaca, earn in a 12-hour day, according to a report submitted to the Department of Industry and Commerce. These laborers make straw leaf hats.

PASSENGERS BROUGHT IN BY AUTO WHEN TRAIN IS DERAILED

Big Four Tracks Tied Up at Gard, Ill., When Locomotive Leaves Rails.

Many passengers on train 41 of the Big Four (C. C. C. & St. L.) Railway, the locomotive of which was derailed at Gard, Ill., 14 miles east of Granite City, about 6 p. m. yesterday, were brought into St. Louis by automobile. The train was expected to reach Union Station early today, although it was due there at 6:30 last night.

At the office of the road's dispatcher in Mattoon, Ill., it was said over long-distance telephone, that the accident was due to a broken rail, and occurred while the train was crossing from one track to another at a speed of about six miles an hour, and that no one on board was injured.

Both tracks were tied up, however, it was stated, and several trains of this road and the C. & E. I. were detoured over a branch line of the Big Four between East Alton and Hillsboro, Ill.

AUTO OF HOMICIDE SQUAD TO CARRY BELL FOR SIGNAL

Sirens Fail to Clear Way for Police Cars, Hoagland Says Experiments Show.

The automobile of the police homicide squad will be equipped this week with a large bell, similar to those used by the Fire Department, to warn traffic of its approach.

The department has been experimenting with various sirens, but Chief of Detectives Hoagland says sirens have had little effect in stopping traffic or opening a way for police cars.

On the other hand, Hoagland points out, pedestrians and operators of vehicles have learned to make way for vehicles carrying bells, such as fire apparatus and ambulances. So the bell will be used as an experiment by the homicide squad.

SAYS SOAP BREAKS DOWN CASTE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 7.—The caste system in India is being broken down by soap and good clothes, especially among the younger generation, the Rev. A. B. Coates, missionary for the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, said today. He recently returned to this country.

"Clean up a raw outcast lad from the villages," the Rev. Mr. Coates said, "and put him in a Brahmin school and he will not be shunned as people suppose. He will receive his full share of privileges, from participation in football games and hockey to boys' quarrels, without discrimination."

SEARCHERS FOR MISSING BALLOONISTS GIVE UP HOPE

Tug Crew Finds Uniforms and Equipment of Lieutenants Roth and Null Floating in Lake With Wreckage of Gas Bag—Faint Chance of Ship Rescue.

LOG INDICATES GALE OVERWHELMED THEM

Believed to Have Fought Vainly to Rise Above Storm — Honeywell of St. Louis Saw Them Being Swept Out Over Water.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, July 7.—All hope that Lieut. L. J. Roth and his aide, Lieut. T. B. Null, pilots of the missing navy balloon, A-6698, which left Indianapolis July 4, in the national elimination balloon race, were living was abandoned here tonight.

The crew of the tug Frank H Stanley found the aviators' uniforms, leather coats, log, records and charts entangled in the drifting, half inflated balloon bag about 22 miles south-southwest of Port Stanley, Ont., about noon today.

On all sides, the crew of the tug found evidences of a heroic struggle in mid-air. Evidently overtaken by terrific winds and an electrical storm, Roth and Null fought desperately to ship their ballast and rise above the gale. Somehow, the basket was ripped from the buffeted bag, which was found torn and water-logged.

Clothing Entangled in Ropes.

The log shows that the airmen had been sailing at an average height of 800 or 900 feet before the storm engulfed them. Then comes the significant item: "Threw 40 pounds of ballast overboard. Rose from 1200 to 2500 feet." Later on, just one word appears: "Broken."

Entangled in the ropes attached to the basket, were found the complete outfits of the aviators, leather coats and all, which, it is believed, they must have doffed before they leaped from the doomed ballon. A letter addressed to Roth and some pencilings on newspaper clippings also were found. "Am heading for —Canada," was the blurred scrawl written with an indelible pencil on one piece of newspaper.

The tug found the wrecked balloon about noon today after Capt John J. Cassin of the steamship Colonial notified authorities at Port Stanley of its presence in the lake.

Late this afternoon Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of naval aviation, Washington, requested the Aeromarine Airways, Inc., operating a fleet of flying boats between Cleveland and Detroit, to help in the search for the missing balloon and naval officers.

Basket Cut Clear From Balloon.

H. A. Bruno, vice president of the company, immediately tuned up the hydroplane "Nina" and started for Port Stanley at 4:40 p. m. with three newspaper men and with Pilot Shiller at the wheel. They sighted the Canadian shore at 5:20 p. m. They followed the shore 10 miles out, and at 5:55 landed alongside the tug Stanley, 22 miles southwest of Port Stanley. The Stanley had the A-6698 in tow. Bruno and the crew of the flying boat helped pull the balloon on board the Stanley. The tug already had the uniforms of Roth and Null on board.

The "Nina" cruised around in the vicinity for nearly an hour searching for trace of the missing officers, but in vain. The hydroplane then left for Cleveland, arriving here shortly before dark, bringing an envelope of the National Aeronautic Association of U. S. A., Washington, containing the official log of the naval balloon trip, water-soaked and almost undecipherable, personal papers addressed to Lieut. Roth, a pair of gauntlets, a leather coat and an American flag.

Bruno said the ropes which held the wicker basket to the balloon had been cut.

"Both men apparently had stripped to their underclothing," Bruno said. "It looked as though they had discarded their clothing and the basket in a desperate effort to lighten the balloon sufficiently to get blown ashore. They probably cut away the basket, discarded their clothing and threw away all the weight they could when the basket first hit the water, clinging to the mesh about the lower part of the bag in the hope it would carry them to safety."

Glenn L. Martin, airplane manufacturer, expressed a similar view.

A slight chance remains that the

TWO FLYERS KILLED WHEN PLANE DIVES THROUGH A ROOF

Blazing Craft Falls Upon Residence in London, Wrecking Structure.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, July 7.—A blazing airplane crashing through the roof of a house today, killed the two flyers in the machine and completely wrecked the building upon which it fell.

The accident occurred in Purley, a London suburb. A number of people watching the flight saw the plane nose dive and burst into flames. Plunging downward, it exploded just as it smashed through the roof of a two-story villa. Lieut. Leroy, the pilot, and his observer, Logsdail, were killed instantly.

The tenant of the house was alone on the ground floor when the crash drove him into the garden. He got out just in time to see columns of flame 60 or 70 feet high rising above his home.

BRYAN TO BE CANDIDATE FOR NATIONAL CONVENTION

Expects to Be Elected as Democratic Delegate From Florida Next Year.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 7.—William J. Bryan expects to go to the Democratic national convention next year as a delegate from the State of Florida, to which he removed his legal residence from Nebraska a year or two ago Bryan announced himself as a candidate for delegate while here today.

Bryan denied that he had in any way pledged support for William G. McAdoo in the coming campaign. He declared that the press reports to that effect were erroneous.

Issues of the coming presidential campaign today were declared by Bryan to be:

The need of increasing the purchasing power of farm products; establishment of a tribunal for investigating disputes between capital and labor; reorganization of the Federal banking system; reduction of prices to consumers on all commodities; law enforcement, and legislation of international scope.

"In speaking of the issues it is necessary to bear in mind that the coming session of Congress is likely to determine issues in the next campaign," Bryan said. "Anything said at this time is like quoting prices which are subject to change."

BUYS HIS OWN PICTURES WHEN HE SEES THEM PLACED ON SALE

African Diamond King "Couldn't Bear to Part With Them" When They Go Under Hammer.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, July 7.—The million dollar picture sale at Christie's Friday was a fiasco. Sir J. B. Robinson, the South African diamond magnate, who sold the pictures, also bought all of the important ones.

"I hadn't seen my pictures for 13 years because they were in storage," he explained today. "I am 83 and crippled with rheumatism. I can't live in England and there is no room for them in my villa in South Africa.

"So I decided to sell them, but when I saw them again from my wheel chair I couldn't bear to part with them. I wanted to stop the sale, but it was too late, so I saved most of them anyhow. I remembered, when I sa whem, the trouble I had taken during 30 years to collect them and I felt I couldn't part with them."

Consequently about the only result of the sale was ahandsome commission for Christies on the huge prices that the owner bid for his pictures.

NEW "SILENT TRAFFIC COP"

When Red Word "STOP" Goes Dark, Vehicles Are to Proceed.

Another "silent traffic cop" was tried out at Union and Delmar boulevards last night. It attracted considerable attention because of the innovation both in size and features. The signal consists of a square base hardly half a foot above the level of the street. On each side of this base is displayed in red the word "STOP." Surmounting this is a four-sided lamp patterned after switch lights on railroads. This light burns red also. There is no "GO" sign.

At intervals the word "STOP" flashes on east and west traffic and then turns dark and the north and south signals show the word. When darkened, the signal is supposed to direct traffic to proceed.

MAN BITTEN BY FIRE HORSE

Walter Calvert, 27 years old, of De Soto, Mo., was attracted to Seventeenth and Market streets at 7:30 o'clock last night to watch several companies of the Fire Department extinguish a fire in rear of 1710 Market street, and was bitten in the right arm by one of the horses hitched to the engine of Engine Co. No. 14.

Calvert was looking over the team, one of the few remaining in the department, when he was bitten. He received emergency treatment at the City Hospital.

ARMS LIMITATION PACTS APPROVED BY FRENCH DEPUTIES

FRENCH DEPUTIES GIVE LIFE TO MAIN PLAY OF HARDING ADMINISTRATION

Indorsement of Naval Limitation Agreement Expected to Result in Final Action on Pacts Within Six Months.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Word that the French Chamber of Deputies had ratified the naval limitation treaty was received here as one of the most encouraging pieces of news that has reached Washington from abroad for many a day.

For many reasons, not all of which have been apparent on the surface, favorable action by France had been awaited with concern. Although the French Senate still must give its assent before the circle of ratifying powers is complete, there appears to be little apprehension among American officials of serious opposition or delay in that quarter.

Foremost among the causes for gratification here is that French acceptance of the treaty will put the cap-sheaf on the most important diplomatic undertaking of the Harding administration, by actually giving vitality to the Washington conference plan to end competitive building of first-line ships of war. All the other signatory Powers—Great Britain, Japan, Italy and the United States—already have ratified and are awaiting only the pledge of France to put the Washington program into effect.

Beyond this, there is a measurable degree of relief among practical navy men at the prospect that the uncertainty that has surrounded naval policy for more than a year soon may be cleared away and the expense of keeping in a state of suspended animation naval units destined to be scrapped may be erased from the balance sheet. A comprehensive plan for putting the new program into effect, including details of scrapping the discarded vessels, has been on file in the Navy Department for months, awaiting the word of execution.

Effect on World Diplomacy.

Still another element contributing to the favorable reaction aroused here by the French element—and an element of which officials will say little—lies in the unusual state of world diplomacy. During the last few months it has been an open secret in diplomatic circles that the delay of France was looked upon as a possible factor in the general policy she has followed in her dealings with her allies. Again and again French statesmen have denied that the failure to ratify the treaty had any connection with the French effort to bring Great Britain to her way of thinking about the Ruhr, but the denials have not served to set at rest speculation on the part of diplomatic representatives of the other powers.

It is certain that during the long wait for French approval of the Washington agreement the other signatories found means to let their disappointment become well understood at Paris. In some quarters it was suggested that a broad hint as to the attitude of Japan was conveyed to the French capital less than a week ago by a Tokio story to the effect that the Japanese Government expected to approach the United States and Great Britain on the subject of reducing the five-power treaty to a three-power basis. It is assumed here that any such plan now will be dropped.

There are some officials who are not entirely confident that the French Senate will approve the agreement and who still are fearful of a hitch. In most quarters here, however, the view is one of confidence.

On this assumption, officials foresee a possibility that the final ceremony putting the naval limitation program into effect may be held here before fall. Washington is the place designated in the treaty for "the deposit of ratification" and as soon as French approval is complete, Secretary Hughes will be notified and will fix a date for the ceremony. It is assumed that the regular diplomatic representatives of the powers will be designated to act for their countries, but in each case they will have to be provided with special authority, usually supplied in writing. A month or so, it is calculated, may be required to send these credentials to Washington, delaying by that period the date of the actual effectiveness of the treaty.

Naval Policy Prepared.

The Navy Department program, which will become the policy of the Government in naval matters the moment the treaty goes into force, not only has been prepared in every detail, but has been given formal approval by Secretary Denby. It was prepared in May, 1922, by a board of which Rear Admiral David W. Taylor, chief constructor of the navy, was chairman.

To some small extent the recommendations of the board already have been carried out, but only in cases of ships that would have been eliminated from the active list regardless of the outcome of the Washington conference. Two obsolete battleships have been sold to contractors who are breaking them up for salvage of old metal; four have been dismantled and being offered for sale for similar disposition, and the old Iowa was used as a target for the Mississippi's new 14-inch batteries.

The Taylor board recommended that the hulls of four new ships on navy yard ways be sold "on the stocks" for old metal; that two others, building under contract in private yards "be cut up under present contracts and the scrap be disposed of," and that all other ships be sold to the highest bidder who would be required to give a bond guaranteeing compliance with the terms of the treaty.

On the Financial Side.

On the financial side, operation of the treaty apparently means a saving of about $48,000,000 to the United States. Official estimates prepared by the Bureau of Yards and Docks place the total expenditures to date on the 11 new ships at approximately $94,000,000, against a completed cost of $142,000,000. Settlement of canceled contracts and other "overhead" expenses incurred while waiting the action of France was expected to reduce materially the indicated saving, however.

Referring to plans for settlement of contracts and sub-contracts, the Taylor board estimated that the cost to the Government would be about $70,000,000, but Secretary Denby declared this was "simply a preliminary estimate and must in no way be considered final." This cost would have to be met by a special appropriation.

Under the terms of the treaty, six months from the exchange of ratifications was permitted for "scrapping" the naval units which were to be eliminated. The Navy Department has interpreted this clause to mean that the ships must be rendered utterly unserviceable for offensive or defensive operations within that period and must be actually dismembered within 18 months of the day the treaty goes into effect.

POPE ISSUES ENCYCLICAL

Calls Attention to Sixth Centenary of St. Thomas Aquinas.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, July 7.—An encyclical issued in connection with the sixth centenary of the canonization of St. Thomas Aquinas, extols this great doctor of the church and alludes to "the marvelous union of pious and scientific doctrine exemplified in him." The Pope also dwells upon the universal character and practical applicability of the saint's teachings.

The pontiff says humility was the foundation of St. Thomas' virtues, and urges the clergy and ecclesiastical students faithfully to imitate the saint. As long ago, the Egyptians were told to "Go to Joseph," so now all who seek the truth should go to Thomas, he concludes.

ACTION AFTER BRIAND STATES ASSENT WAS VOLUNTARY

Poincare - Briand Alliance Jams Agreements Through Chamber, 460 to 106, After Explaining "France Was Treated With Utmost Fairness at Washington."

"OUR SACRIFICES NO MORE THAN OTHERS'"

Action Taken After Delegates to Conference Score Communists for Objection to Failure to Bid for Limiting Land Armaments

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 7.—That part of the Washington naval accords dealing with limitations of armaments and capital ships, which created the most bitter opposition in French Parliamentary and political circles, was jammed through the French Chamber of Deputies today in record time by the Poincare-Briand alliance. The half-hearted opposition from the Socialists and Communists was completely swamped and the treaty was adopted, 460 votes to 106. The treaty has yet to be ratified by the Senate.

The arguments employed by Premier Poincare and former Premier Briand were that France had been treated with the utmost fairness at Washington, that limitation of armaments was temporary so far as capital ships were concerned, and that there was complete liberty of action by France in the building of light cruisers, torpedo boats, destroyers and submarines, and that France's fleet was essentially a defensive one, the speakers said that the country did not need battleships, which were offensive weapons.

Sacrifices Equal, Briand Says.

"We responded to President Harding's invitation in the spirit with which it was extended; our sacrifices were not heavier than those of the other nations participating in the conference."

This was the reply of M. Briand when he was accused by the Communists of having "surrendered the interests of France."

Premier Poincare and M. Briand had the Chamber so well in hand that at no time did it look as though the necessity might arise of making it a question of confidence, a favorable vote being assured as soon as M. Guernier, reporter for the foreign affairs commission, abandoned the reservations contained in his report.

After the vote the feeling was freely expressed by many deputies in the lobbies that "this is not a moment to haggle over details with the United States."

Discussion With Communists.

M. Berthou, Communist, made a bitter attack on M. Briand in the course of the debate because the former Premier "did not take the opportunity at Washington to secure limitation of land armaments."

M. Briand, Premier Poincare and M. Sarraut, of the French delegation to the Washington conference, took the Communists to task for ostensibly advocating complete disarmament and at the same time refusing to join in efforts to arrive at disarmament gradually.

Briand Shows Feeling.

M. Briand, who apparently was making the question of ratification a personal affair, interrupted a speech in opposition by Deputy Soulier to say:

"Had the Washington accords not been signed, France would have been at a ratio of one to six toward America and Great Britain, as regards capital ships, while with the Washington treaties, besides retaining complete liberty concerning light craft, we stand one to three on capital ships."

Guernier, reporter for the foreign affairs commission, referred to the figures of tonnage of capital ships as being "imposed upon" each nation. At this Briand jumped to his

M'ADOO MOVEMENT QUIETLY LAUNCHED IN NEW YORK STATE

Campaign to Line Up as Many Delegates as Possible Begun at Dinner at National Democratic Club.

DRIVE BEING MADE IN SMITH STRONGHOLD

Samuel B. Amidon, National Committeeman From Kansas, Chief Sponsor for Former Rail Chief.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Convinced that William G. McAdoo will go to the Democratic convention in 1924, with a majority of the delegates from the middle Western and far Western States, his supporters have quietly launched in New York City a movement to line up delegates from New York and other important states in the East.

The project, it was learned today, was discussed at a dinner attended a week ago at the National Democratic Club, by a number of prominent McAdoo men in New York City. The dinner was called at the instance of Samuel B. Amidon, Democratic National Committeeman from Kansas. Immediately after the dinner, Amidon sailed for Europe. On his return in September, there is every prospect that the McAdoo quest for delegates will get openly under way.

Amidon and Daniel C. Roper, who is regarded as the chief of the McAdoo forces, have been quietly working in the Western States for several months. Amidon reported to New York that there was no doubt the former Director-General of Railroads would get a majority of the states from the Western territory and asked that the meeting be held in order to discuss the situation in other sections.

Among those who attended were Byron G. Newton, Collector of the Port under President Wilson; Stuart G. Gibboney, who was secretary of the national Wilson campaign committee in 1912; Thomas E. Rush, former surveyor of the port; E. Bright Wilson, a lawyer; Oscar Price, a motion picture distributor; Frank Wilson, who was publicity director of a couple of liberty loan campaigns, and David Hunter Miller, law partner of Gordon Auchincloss, who is a son-in-law of Col. E. M. House. It was said that Miller was likely to be selected to direct whatever activities might be undertaken in New York.

The meeting, it was explained by one of those present, was held without any specific authority from McAdoo, and the opening of any formal campaign is being held up, pending formal word from him that he is a candidate. Nobody has any doubt, however, that it will be received.

The quest for votes in several of the Eastern States is not helped any by the fact that McAdoo is one of the most pronounced drys in the Democratic party. In Pennsylvania it was said his hope of delegates would depend on whether Vance McCormick, former Democratic national chairman, or James M. Guffy at Pittsburg, a liberal, was able to control the delegation.

In Connecticut, Homer Cummings, whose support is hoped for, has a fight on his hands, which is likely to prevent his having the influence he might otherwise have in that State. New York, it is acknowledged, will be for Smith, though the McAdoo supporters would like to line up a few of the delegates for their candidates as a second choice. Other important States where McAdoo has little chance of support are New Jersey and Massachusetts.

Club Cornerstone Laying.

The cornerstone of the new St. Charles Knights of Columbus Club building will be laid at 2:30 p. m. next Sunday. The structure, to cost $40,000, is at Fifth and Adams streets.

PRESSURE ON RUHR MENACES ENTIRE ECONOMIC STRUCTURE

Nearly 70,000 Persons Now Expelled and 10,000 More Driven From Homes—Starvation Appears but Few Days Ahead.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News. (Copyright, 1923.)

COLOGNE, July 7.—French and Belgian pressure on the Ruhr are proceeding at such terrific rate that the entire social and economic structure may collapse under it. Nearly 70,000 persons — Government employes and their families—have been expelled from the Ruhr and Rhineland and 10,000 more have been driven from their homes. Dusseldorf now has its third substitute mayor, his precedessor having been arrested or expelled. Still there are men in reserve ready to step into that unpleasant office.

Every day brings news of new traffic blockades, seizures of money, expulsions, arrests, shootings and the imposition of execution of death sentences. Events that would have caused a great outcry in the early weeks of the occupation are now hardly noticed. The transaction of business is becoming almost impossible and the food supply is seriously endangered.

As the situation appears to a neutral observer, this pressure is being exerted in an effort to force Premier Poincare's capitulation of Germany, before the British Government undertakes separate negotiations with Germany in the race between Prime Minister Baldwin and Germany's disaster.

Ruhr and Rhineland Cut Off.

There are enough murders of French and Belgian soldiers by crazed German nationalists to provide the occasion for severest reprisals. There was a blockade the other day by which all the Ruhr and Rhineland were cut off completely from unoccupied Germany. The operation of the tram cars was reduced to the pre-occupied scale, thus preventing the use of the trams as a substitute for the railways. At Duisberg and in some other regions all traffic, even on bicycles, is prohibited. Fuel supplies everywhere are being blocked and money is being blockaded at the border, causing a money shortage in several cities.

All this, of course, affects the food distribution. It may be said that throughout the Ruhr area there is no regular food supply, only a desperate daily improvisation to stave off starvation for a few days ahead.

"We depend entirely on motor transport for our food supplies," a German official in Essen said to the writer, "but if the French prevent the use of this, rather than use the French trains, we shall organize caravans and carry food 15 miles on our backs."

The correspondent regarded this as mere patriotic rhetoric, but now the same thing is actually being done in the Duisberg area, where long lines of men and woman trudge from village to village carrying potatoes and other vegetables on their backs.

Resistance Becomes More Fanatical.

The German resistance, instead of weakening, is becoming more fanatical. The most determined resisters are precisely those who always insisted that Germany should pay reparations to the fulest possible extent and themselves paid the greater part of the taxes—the organized workingmen. The stubborn Westphalians will not submit until catastrophe overwhelms them or starvation grips their brothers.

Only then will become evident the full extent of the devastation of the Ruhr, the consequences of which Baldwin is seeking to prevent from becoming a catastrophe—hundreds of miles of railways rusted and unsafe, bolts loose in rolling stock that is rotting from disuse on the sidings, blast furnaces and coke ovens deteriorated, stocks of food and raw materials exhausted, credit and finance in chaotic confusion, working morale shattered and the rhythm of production lost.

The physical destruction already is very many million dollars and the loss of production many millions more. It would take months to repair and start working again this gigantic economic machine. The credit difficulties would be enormous.

Meanwhile, the extremists on both sides are daily becoming stronger. The situation without Germany when the collapse comes and the emotional reaction begins will be deadly serious, threatening the secession of reactionary Bavaria and the exhausted Rhineland, uprisings of the communists in Saxony and the Ruhr and the mobilizing of German fascisti.

BALDWIN SEES LAW ON RUHR PROBLEM

British Attitude on French Failure to Reply to Questionnaire to Be Known Tuesday.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON, London Correspondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, July 7.—Foreign Secretary Curzon's disappointment at getting no written reply to the British Ruhr questionnaire was so strongly expressed yesterday to Ambassador de Saint Aulaire that today Premier Poincare flung a sop to the British Government. He instructed the Ambassador to give the Foreign Office a written copy of the instructions sent him, and on which he based his two conversations with Marquis Curzon.

But the British do not regard this as a written reply. The Cabinet will meet Monday or Tuesday and then, it is understood, British action in view of definite failure to agree with France will be decided. What that action will be is a profound secret, but a hint from a high quarter indicates that when it comes the British policy will no longer be called weak or vacillating.

Baldwin Visits Bonar Law.

Premier Baldwin on Thursday made a secret visit to his old chief, Andrew Bonar Law, now recuperating at Brighton, and discussed with him the action he proposes. The fact of this visit has hitherto been kept from the public.

The impression among those who are aware of it is that Bonar Law agreed on the necessity of separate British action and gave the Premier his blessing.

Meonwhile M. Poincare, girding his loins for a diplomatic struggle with England, has given way at Lausanne. It is expected here that peace with Turkey will be signed in a few days. French insistence on payment of the Ottoman debt in gold has been the insuperable obstacle. Now there is good reason to believe M. Poincare has capitulated. His decision may have been caused partly by the reported fact that England and Italy did not propose to let the French attitude on this point stand in the way of peace.

McKenna and Chancellorship.

The Snuday Times tomorrow will print a statement that Reginald McKenna will not become Chancellor of the Exchequer. The reason assigned is that the members of Parliament for the city of London, where Tory candidates are always elected without contest, have both refused to take seats in the House of Lords to make way for McKenna. McKenna says his health will not stand the strain of contesting another seat. If this is true, it would be a serious blow to Premier Baldwin, who has counted on McKenna to back his reparations policy. One way out of the difficulty would be for McKenna to be made a Peer, for he could then enter the Cabinet.

Cabinet Behind Premier.

The Cabinet, it is believed, is now almost solidly behind the Premier in feeling France has tried to trick Britain, is determined to prevent any settlement, means to remain in the Ruhr indefinitely and that her program menaces British interests in the revival of trade and peace.

There is much interest here in the reported decision of the Comite des Forges, the association of French iron and steel magnates, to demand compensation from the Government for loss to their Lorraine industries because of lack of Ruhr coal since the occupation. M. de Wendel, a leading Lorraine ironmaster, is said to have told Premier Poincare recently this bill when presented would exceed the total costs of the military occupation. The resignation of M. Schneider, France's biggest munitions maker, from the Comite, was caused by this issue. The Observer tomorrow will hint that the bill has already been presented to the French Government.

JUNKER AIRPLANES MAKING FLIGHTS OVER SPITZBERGEN

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

SPITZBERGEN, July 7.—H. H. Hammer's junker airplane expedition, organized originally to meet Capt. Roald Amundsen if he flew over the North Pole, arrived in Green Harbor last Tuesday and took up quarters in an abandoned whaling station.

Several flights over unexplored territory have been made and photographs taken. Hammer will carry out similar work despite Amundsen's abandoning his attempt. His work is not only of geographical and general scientific interest, but is expected by the firm which is backing the trip to demonstrate the value of all-metal planes for exploration.

Just the car to make your family happy is probably among the good cars offered for sale today in the Post-Dispatch classified "Automobiles" columns. They are used cars, but many of them look and act like new ones. Investigate.

18 IN OKLAHOMA SENATE CONDEMN GOVERNOR WALTON

15 Democrats Sign Resolution Urging Governor to Call Session to Pass on Recess Appointments.

FRIENDS BELIEVE HE WILL REFUSE

Executive "Misled" by Men Who "Pretend" to Represent Farmer-Labor Group, Legislators Declare.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., July 7.—Eighteen Democratic members of the State Senate, who met here today at the invitation of Gov. Walton, adopted a resolution calling upon the executive to summon an extraordinary session of the Senate immediately, to pass on recess appointments, including the naming of Geogre Wilson as president of Oklahoma A. & M. College. Of the 18 Senators attending the conference, three refused to sign the resolution.

The Senators condemned the Governor on the following grounds:

He had been "misled" by men who "pretend" to represent the farmer and labor groups of the State.

He had overlooked general business organizations and industry in his zeal for the needs of the farmer-labor classes.

He had countenanced the appointment of George Wilson "and other extreme radicals" to important State positions.

The "deplorable condition" surrounding the extension of executive clemency.

He had allowed "an army of hangers on" to weight down the State payroll.

The issuance of peace commissions.

Governor Walton pleaded for George Wilson in the closing hours of the conference. "He is president of the college; give him a chance," he urged.

Believe Governor Won't Act.

Those close to the Governor expressed the belief that he would not call a special session of the Senate to act on confirmation of recess appointments as requested by the caucus. John H. Carlock, Ardmore, one of the leaders of the meeting, said that in his opinion, the Governor would not call the session.

Tom Anglin, president pro tempore of the Senate, acted as spokesman for the Senators. Aldrich Blake, executive secretary, was the Governor's only advisor in the executive session.

Meeting behind closed doors at a luncheon given by the Governor, the Senators remained in session until 7 o'clock this evening. The Governor left the conference at 4:30.

Senator Anglin, addressing the Governor during the conference, declared that if the Democratic party was to be saved in Oklahoma, there must be immediate remedying of conditions responsible for the wave of criticism of the administration sweeping the State.

Calls Wilson Unfit for Place.

No man carrying the indorsement of the Farmer-Labor Reconstruction League can win in the next general election, declared Senator Anglin.

George Wilson is unfit to head any educational institution the President pro tem asserted, adding that Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College will be wrecked if those now in charge are permitted to remain in office.

Offering the Governor a way out of the controversy over Wilson's appointment, Senator Anglin urged that the Senate be called in special session to pass upon the Board of Agriculture appointees named since the Legislature adjourned, whom the Governor says are responsible for naming Wilson.

The Senators, in a communication prepared for the Governor after he left the conference, said they were his friends and were willing to help him "at all times in any honest endeavor."

EAST ST. LOUIS DRAINAGE CANAL BILL BECOMES LAW

Measure Provides That Future Bond Issues Be Submitted to Vote of People.

The second legal step in the effort to prevent construction of the "baby Panama Canal," a drainage channel near East St. Louis, by the East Side Levee and Sanitary District has been completed. State Representative Frank Holten of East St. Louis received word from Springfield, Ill., last night that his bill, passed at the recent session of the Legislature, providing that the district trustees submit future bond issues to vote of the people in the district, had been allowed to become law without signature of the Governor.

The district comprises St. Clair and Madison Counties. Work on the canal has been delayed by an injunction obtained by the city of East St. Louis. The canal was expected to cost about $8,000,000 only a small portion of which had been provided for. Now the district will have to get popular permission, apparently, before it can get additional funds.

OHIO KLANSMEN TO BE TRIED FOR WEARING MASKS IN PUBLIC

Seventy-two Who Attended Funeral in Full Regalia Give Bond to Appear in Police Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 7.—Seventy-two members of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, arrested Friday by police on charges of disorderly conduct as they were returning from the funeral of a fellow member, William F. Swigert, held in Fenoliff cemetery, pleaded not guilty today in the Police Court and their hearings were set for July 26. The pleas were entered through Attorney J. Fred Anderson, representing the Klan. All the defendants are at loberty on bond.

The charges against the men are said by police to be based on the fact that they wore their regalia, including masks, in public. The regalia includes hoods, robes and masks which were worn while they paraded to and from the cemetery.

Worlier M. Courtner, kleagle of the local klan, was among those arrested. After the men were released from the jail, they assembled at the Klan headquarters and were admonished by Courtner and Attorney Anderson to deport themselves in an orderly manner, and to refrain from participating in any arguments about the affair.

POPE ASKS FRANCE AND BELGIUM TO END COERCION IN RUHR

randum—confidential, of course—which he can send to France and then ask for a reply. This is to include, in addition to a denunciation of sabotage, a clear statement of just how far Germany is willing to go to furnish the guarantees demanded by Poincare. Then the atmosphere is to be cleared for the conference Berlin asked in its last note to the allies.

But Mgr. Pacelli, believing the situation hopeless, had wired the Pope he was leaving for Munich. The reply ordered him to stay in Berlin. While he is obeying he is no more hopeful.

The Reichstag ended its session today without debating foreign relations. The Government prevented debate because of the conflict between the reactionaries and Socialists.

French and Belgians Said to Have Seen Cuno on Duisburg Affair.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 7.—The French Ambassador and Belgian Minister at Berlin, says a Central News dispatch from the German capital, today visited Chancellor Cuno and made known the contention of their countries that Germany was responsible for the Duisburg bridge explosion. They asked the Chancellor to disavow the act and to do his utmost to arrest the culprits.

Cuno replied that the Government was not responsible for the outrage and that there was no proof so far that the perpetrators were Germans. He would await the outcome of investigations and then determine what course to adopt.

Report France Would Reduce Force in Ruhr if Resistance Were Ended.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News. (Copyright, 1923.)

PARIS, July 7.—It is reported here on good authority that the French Government has informed the British that it would be willing to withdraw 70,000 troops of the present garrison of 90,000 from the Ruhr if Germany would cease her passive resistance. The French would not guarantee, however, to keep the occupational forces at the reduced figure unless the resistance ceased in fact as well as in name.

While taking quite seriously the British threat of a separate understanding with Germany, persons in inner French circles declare that they are unable to see how the British could carry it out effectively. Great Britain as well as France is bound by the Treaty of Versailles. Germany's only reparations debt is in the form of three categories of bonds held, not by the allied nations, but by the Reparations Commission, and any payments made by Germany must pass through the commission's hands for distribution, according to existing agreements.

Thus, it is declared, all funds collected by France and Belgium in the Ruhr are being deposited with the commission and France and Belgium have stated repeatedly that they are acting in the Ruhr, not for themselves alone, but for the benefit of the allies. If the British decide to make a separate agreement with Germany they must first, the French say, denounce the Treaty of Versailles. The British, in denouncing it, would virtually release Germany from responsibility for Great Britain's share of the debt.

Moreover, if the British should take separate action, say the French, the probabilities are that the French occupation of the Ruhr would be prolonged rather than shortened and France and Belgium would feel free to collect what they could for themselves and the other signatories in the occupied region without regard to Great Britain.

For these reasons it is believed here hatt, while the situation is serious, no decisions inimical to France are imminent. Lloyd George made the same threat of "reversing alliances" at the Genoa conference, but the only concrete result of the threat was the Russo-German treaty.

France and Belgium, despite all forms of diplomatic pressure and all forms of passive resistance to which they may be submitted, feel that they need only to stand firm to win success with their Ruhr policy as a means of forcing reparations payments.

Searchers Give Up Hope of Finding Balloonists

airmen may be alive, it was said by airmen here tonight. Life preservers were said to be in the balloon when it started on the trip, and it is conceded that the two Lieutenants might have been picked up in Lake Erie by a freighter which had no wireless apparatus and could not inform shore stations of the rescue. Local airplane pilots said the two naval officers might have worn life preservers or rubber suits containing air next to their underclothing.

Balloon Brought Into Lake Port; Basket Not Found.

PORT STANLEY, Ont., July 7.—The United States naval balloon piloted by Lieut. L. J. Roth and his aide, Lieut. T. B. Null, which started from Indianapolis July 4 in the national elimination race, was brought here tonight by the tug Frank H. Stanley, which found it collapsed and watersoaked on Lake Erie about 25 miles south-southwest of here.

The basket of the balloon was not found, contradicting earlier reports received here. Clothing of the missing airmen, for whom hope has been virtually abandoned, was found in a bag attached to the rigging of the gas bag.

A small clock, part of the balloon equipment was found. It had stopped at 2:44. Roth's watch, found in his clothes, had stopped at 4:30.

Possibility that Lieuts. Roth and Null may be traveling on some ore barge was advanced here tonight. It is asserted here that ore barges travel the route on which the wrecked balloon was sighted by the steamer Colonial last night.

The barges do not carry wireless equipment, and if one of these vessels had picked up the men or their bodies it might be two or even three days before the boat would land.

Missing Men Had Been in Naval Aviation Service Several Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Lieut. L. J. Roth, pilot of the missing navy balloon, last seen in a storm over Lake Erie, was graduated from the Naval Academy in the class of 1913. He entered the naval aviation service in 1920, taking part in the national balloon race in Birmingham that year.

Lieut. Roth served at the Naval Air Station, Hampton Roads, Va., for two years as assembly and repair officer. Last February he was detailed to Lakehurst, N. J., in connection with assembling the crew of the big rigid dirigible ZR-1. He is unmarried and a native of Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Lieut. T. B. Null, aide of Lieut. Roth, has been connected with the naval aviation service since 1917. He was in duty in England in connection with the ill-fated rigid R-38. Since returning to this country, he has been on duty at the Hampton Roads air station and more recently at Lakehurst. Mrs. Null is now at Lakehurst. Lieut. Null's home is in Haddonsfield, N. J.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 7.—Airmen of the United States army today took up the search for the two naval officers, Lieuts. L. J. Roth and T. B. Null, who have not been heard from since they sailed from here Wednesday in a balloon of the United States navy, No. A-6698, as contestants in the national balloon race.

The other 12 entrants in the race have been accounted for, all having landed many hours ago. Lieuts. Roth and Null are from the naval station at Lakehurst, N. J.

Fear for the safety of the airmen was expressed after unsuccessful efforts had been made to locate the men. They were last seen on Thursday, it was learned today, by H. E. Honeywell, pilot of the "St. Louis," another contestant, and at the time were headed toward Lake Erie. Honeywell, who brought his balloon to the ground at Brockton, N. Y., said the naval craft was far below him and was being carried by a different current out over the lake. He said a terrific storm approached and he lost sight of the other craft in a fog.

Lieuts. Roth and Null were well prepared for almost any emergency, it was said. Air inflated life preservers and oxygen filled bags of strength sufficient to maintain the men above water, were included in their equipment when they took off here late Wednesday afternoon.

The unofficial standing of the contestants who have reported, announced last night, gives first place to Lieut. Robert S. Olmstead, army pilot, who sailed approximately 500 miles. He landed at Marilla, N. Y. H. E. Honeywell, St. Louis civilian flyer, covered the next greatest distance, approximately 450 miles. Three others—Lieut. J. B. Lawrence of Washington, in an army craft; Capt. L. T. Miller, in an army ship from Scott Field, and C. E. McCullough, Baltimore, traveled approximately 400 miles each.

Death of Two St. Louisans in 1919 Balloon Race Recalled.

A fatality similar to that which marked the Indianapolis race befell the crew of a balloon in the international race of 1919, started from St. Louis, when Capt. Carl W. Dammann of 3614 Hartford street, pilot of the balloon "Wichita," and his aid, Lieut. Edward J. Verheyden Jr., of 5244 Theodosia avenue, both St. Louisans, fell into Lake Huron and were drowned. Their bodies and the balloon were recovered three weeks later.

The race started Oct. 1, 1919, from Meramec Park, on South Grand boulevard, since improved as a residence section. The "Wichita" was one of 10 entries, six of which landed in Canada. The "Wichita," it was learned from fishermen, was swept from a great height into the lake by a gale.

TWO PERSONS INJURED IN STREET CAR COLLISION

Northbound Taylor Car Hits Coach Turning Into Sheds—Policeman Among Injured.

A policeman and police chauffeur were injured and five other persons shaken up when a northbound Taylor street car ran into the rear end of a Page car at 11:37 o'clock last night at Taylor and Fairfax avenues. The Page car, carrying no passengers, was turning into the car sheds on Fairfax avenue.

Patrolman Thomas Carroll, 60 years old, of 4480 Evans avenue, riding in the front vestibule of the Taylor car, suffered injuries to both legs and cuts on the head and abdomen. He was taken to the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium. Adolph Krafft, 27, of 1716 North Taylor, police chauffeur, who was in rear vestibule, suffered a fractured rib.

MEXICAN CABINET IN SESSION ON PRE-RECOGNITION MATTERS

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

MEXICO CITY, July 7.—Despite official denials in the press, it became known today that the Cabinet meeting yesterday was called specially to present to the Ministers some of the understandings arrived at by the United States and Mexican conferees in the pre-recognition conversations still in progress.

The Cabinet session also enables the executive to serve unofficial notice that President Obregon cannot accept any written agreement. As in the case with the United States, any agreements to be binding must be incorporated in laws and passed by Congress.

Changes in the Cabinet are now being discussed. It is semiofficially announced that Foreign Minister Alberto Pani will become Minister to Paris, a post he held under Carranza. Alessio Robles, former Minister to Spain, but now Minister of Commerce and Industry, is believed to be slated for the foreign relations portfolio. However, the changes will not be effective until after the present conferences terminate.

TEXAS BROTHERS SHOT TO DEATH

Owner of Well Two Men Were Accused of Poisoning Is Arrested.

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 7.—After being dicited by the Wise County grand jury three weeks ago for the alleged poisoning of a well on the ranch of Tom Burnett, near Paradise, Paul and Arthur Steele, ages 42 and 30 years, respectively, were shot and killed on the streets of Paradise this afternoon. Tom Burnett was arrested at his ranch home a short time later by Sheriff W. M. Workman of Wise County and charged with the crime.

The Burnett well, which recently was drilled on his ranch, was poisoned about a month ago.

Suffers Internal Injuries When He Runs Into Auto.

Robert Fox, 25 years old, of 3741 Missouri avenue, a bricklayer, is at the city hospital in a serious condition from fracture of the right leg and internal injuries, suffered at 12:15 a. m. today when a motocycle he was riding ran into an automobile at Jefferson and Russell avenues.

H. J. Kuna of 4959 Reber place, a provision broker, driver of the automobile, said he was crossing Jefferson and Fox was going north when the accident occurred.

feet, and, speaking with intense earnestness, said:

"No conditions were imposed upon France, and the figures of tonnage adopted for capital ships have no influence over the other units. The French liberty of action concerning light cruisers, torpedo boats and submarines remains absolutely intact."

Premier Poincare, interrupting from his seat on the Government bench, said:

"The Government's interpretation is in absolute conformity with that of Mr. Briand."

Deputy Sevene, reporter for the military and naval commission, speaking in favor of ratification, said that without the Washington treaty Great Britain and the United States could easily have built 1,000,000 tons of capital ships, while France, owing to her financial situation, had barely the means to enable her to reach 175,000 tons.

M. Berthon, a Communist deputy, heckled both the Poincare Government and the Briand administration concerning the original request of the French delegation at Washington for 300,000 tons of capital ships. To this Briand retorted:

"That proposition was for the purpose of giving France a basis figure to apply to our defensive fleet, including large and small units."

M. Berthon insisted that the demand had had the "worst possible effect in America."

SOVIETS GRANT CONCESSION

Norwegian Concern to Develop Tract of 11,000 Square Miles.

By the Associated Press.

CHRISTIANIA, July 7.—Russia has granted a concession to a Norwegian industrial concern involving 29,000,000 "maal," or 11,000 square miles of territory, in the Onega district of Northwestern Russia, according to announcement made here today. Development work will be begun immediately, it was stated.

U. S. Recruits Wanted for China.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The War Department has authorized recruiting officers to enlist a limited number of men for the battalions of the 15th Infantry, stationed at Tientsin, China. Men recruied for this service must have a high score physically, mentally and morally, owing to the ease with which intoxicating liquor and habit-forming drugs can be obtained in the Orient. Veterans who have been previously discharged with character excellent are preferred.

COLUMBIA MAN ON TRIAL TOMORROW FOR LYNCHING

George Barkwell Charged With Murder in First Degree in Connection With Lynching.

NEGRO WAS HANGED ON APRIL 29 LAST

Motion Filed by Defense to Disqualify Judge Harris—He Suggests Gantt of Mexico.

BY CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., July 7.—George Barkwell, a Columbia contractor, alleged leader of the mob which on April 29 lynched James T. Scott, negro employed at the State University, will be placed on trial Monday in the Boone County Circuit Court on an indictment charging him with first degree murder. The State will charge that he fastened the noose around the negro's neck.

In Columbia, which had sought to forget the lynching which for a week or two gave it an unpleasant notoriety, the affair had ceased to be a topic of street conversation until a day or two ago. The activities of the prosecution and of the defense in preparing for the approaching trials of Barkwell and four others indicted for alleged participation in the lynching, caused a revival of interest.

The first technical step in preparing for the trials has been taken by the defense in the filing of a motion to disqualify Circuit Judge David H. Harris from sitting in the Barkwell case, a move which caused considerable surprise locally because of Judge Harris' popularity throughout the county.

Barkwell alleged in an affidavit that Judge Harris was prejudiced and that he could not have a fair trial before him. Attorneys for the State and for the defens ebeing unable to agree upon a Judge to sit in the case, Judge Harris announced that he would call upon Judge Gantt of Mexico.

Columbia Would Forget.

Public opinion here, so far as it can be ascertained, does not look with favor upon the efforts of the prosecution to prove that the negro, Scott, was innocent of the attack upon 14-year-old Regina Almstedt, daughter of a college professor, the crime for which the mob lynched him. There is no question that the larger part of the residents of Columbia are disposed to feel that, while they regret the lynching, there can be no good purpose served by raising the question of Scott's guilt or innocence. They are sorry he was lynched, irrespective of his guilt or innocence, but they feel that the lynching is a thing of the past and the more quickly forgotten the better.

These are the natural conclusions of any person after talking to any considerable number of Columbia citizens would come. They are formed as a result of talks with a score or more of citizens of more than average intelligence and prominence, college professors, professional men and business men for the most part.

One of them, a former public official of statewide prominence, expressed in a few words the opinion which most of the others gave in a more indirect manner. He said:

"The raising of the question of whether the mob got the wrong negro is to be regretted. I deplore the lynching, and of course those who participated should be punished. But you know and I know that almost never are mob prosecutions successful and this is not apt to be an exception. I can't help but feel that it will be better for the community and for that matter, for the State, to forget it all as quickly as possible."

People Don't Expect Convictions.

There are not many persons here who expect a conviction in any of the five cases. In fact, every person to whom I talked, with one exception, said he expected acquittals, certainly nothing nearer a conviction than a failure of the jury to agree upon a verdict. One man said he thought there was a chance to convict in some of the cases.

It now appears very doubtful that the State will be able to get before the jury any of the evidence it has been collecting tending to show that Scott was innocent and that the negro who attacked the Almstedt girl was Ollie Watson, a Columbia taxicab driver, now in jail in Mexico, Mo., awaiting trial on a charge of attacking a negro girl. The legal opinion expressed here today by competent lawyers is that the evidence is not competent and in all probability will be ruled out, if offered by the State.

This opinion, expressed in various ways by different attorneys, is this:

"That it is just as much against the law for a mob to hang a guilty man as an innocent man, and that the question of the guilt of Scott does not enter into the case."

It could be offered by the State for no other purpose than to attempt to influence the jury in the belief a jury would be more disposed to convict in a mob case in which the victim was an innocent man."

Although Attorney-General Barrett and Prosecuting Attorney Hulen refuse to discuss their investigation into the question of Scott's innocence and the suspected guilt of Watson, many of the facts connected with it have leaked out.

Prisoner Viewed by Girl.

As has been published, the Almstedt girl was taken to Mexico Thursday to look at Watson to identify him, if possible, as the man who attacked her. She had identified Scott as the man before he was lynched, though it is said she at times expressed doubt about the identification.

What she said after seeing Watson has not been disclosed by Barrett or Hulen.

It is known that, before being taken to Mexico, the girl identified as the picture of the man who attacked her a photograph of Watson on which had been painted a "Charlie Chaplin" mustache, the girl in her first description of her assailant having told of the mustache.

It has been developed that Watson had such a mustache until about the time of the attack on the girl, when he shaved it off. Scott also had a small mustache. Although Watson has been in jail more than two months and has been denied the use of a razor during all that time, no hair has grown upon his upper lip. Officials are certain he has prevented the growth of the hair, but they have not discovered how. They hoped the mustache would grow to give his face the appearance it had before the mustache was removed.

Failing in this, they photographed him and added the mustache. This photograph, it is said, the girl identified as that of her assailant.

On the question of Scott's identity, the only evidence of his guilt is the girl's identification of him. On the other hand, the theory of his innocence is supported by these facts:

The Day of the Attack.

On the afternoon of the attack the Almstedt girl at 3 o'clock was in front of the engineering building of the university. She walked toward the Stewart Road bridge, where she was accosted by a negro.

At 3 o'clock by the watch of a university professor, which he afterward said was 10 minutes slow, Scott was released from his duties in the medical building. If the professor's watch was slow, Scott was actually released from duty at 3:10 o'clock.

The engineering and medical buildings are almost exactly the same distance from the place of the attack.

The Almstedt girl said she walked directly to the bridge.

Thus, it has been contended, Scott staring 10 minutes later than the girl, could hardly have reached the bridge ahead of her, as the distance could be covered by a person walking leisurely in 10 minutes.

Also, the clothing described by the girl differs in all respects from that the professor said Scott wore at the medical building. So if Scott was the guilty negro, he took time to change his clothes.

The State has found witnesses who saw the negro on the bridge and at least one of these has identified Watson as that negro.

Prosecuting Attorney Hulen today declined to say whether he intended to file an information charging Watson with the attack on the Almstedt girl.

It is expected that the introduction of evidence in the Barkwell case will take little more than a day. The big job will be in getting a jury, as there are probably few persons in the county who have not read of the case in detail and who have not discussed it in detail.

The Sheriff has summoned a panel of 60 prospective jurors in addition to the 40 on the regular panel. The 40 regulars will be examined first and after they are exhausted, the next 60 will be examined. Hulen said he thought it possible the jury could be completed in two days.

U. S. EFFORTS TO END DRUG TRAFFIC PRAISED AT GENEVA

Council of League of Nations Indorses Report of Opium Conference.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, July 7.—The council of the League of Nations today indorsed the report of the recent opium conference in which the United States was represented, and adopted a resolution inviting concurrence of the league's assembly in an effort to realize its aims.

The Chinese delegate voiced the appreciation of his country for the efforts of the United States in this work, the results of which, he said, would be felt, not only in China, but throughout the world.

Lord Robert Cecil praised the American efforts and upon his proposal a vote of thanks to the American Government, for sending a delegation to the recent meeting, was placed upon the minutes. The report gave to the United States credit for much of the progress made toward controlling the opium traffic.

U. S. VISIT LASTS 30 SECONDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The title of world's champion brief visitor to America was claimed today by Peter Soberling, a chief steward employed by the Holland-America Steamship Co.

Radio instructions in one hand and his baggage in the other, Soberling stepped from the incoming liner Veedam at Hoboken today, bounded across the pier to the Nieuw Amsterdam, and boarded her for the trip back.

Deducting the time when both his feet were in the air as he sped across the pier, steamship officials estimated his stay on American soil at 30 seconds flat.

Georgia Crops a Failure.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 7.—"Under the existing abnormal conditions during the remainder of 1923, Georgia this year will not produce sufficient food and seed crops to feed its population more than three months, and cotton production in the state is on the verge of collapse," Commissioner of Agriculture J. J. Brown stated today. Georgia normally, the commissioner figured, produces enough to feed the population three-fourths of the year.

GUARDHOUSE KEPT SANITARY, ASSERTS COLONEL THORNTON

Charges Made by Former Noncommissioned Officer in 138th Infantry of National Guard Are Denied.

COURTMARTIAL'S RULES EXPLAINED

Officer Says Men Are Allowed to Work Out Fines for Missing Drill at $1 a Day Rate.

Col. C. S. Thornton, commander of the 138th Infantry, National Guard of Missouri, replying yesterday to charges about the condition of the guardhouse at the regimental armory, Grand boulevard and Market street, and the manner of imprisoning members of the regiment there, made by a former non-commissioned officer of the 138th in letters to newspapers, described imprisonment methods.

He characterized the attack as an effort by a disgruntled man to retaliate for grievances by hindering recruiting in advance of the annual encampment for which the regiment will depart next Saturday.

"I don't think there have been more than 150 arrests in the four years since the regiment was reorganized," Col. Thornton said. "We don't operate the guardhouse continuously or very often. It is running now and has been since a week ago Monday. There are five men confined there for habitual failure to attend drills. That is the reason for all confinements. As a usual thing men arrested agree with their company commanders to play the game and are turned loose on parole.

Fines Worked Out at $1 a Day.

"There is an investigation of every case. If reasonable excuses are given for failure to attend drills, charges are dropped and the men released. Lacking such excuses, but with some extenuating circumstances, men may be fined and sentences suspended. Punishment is always by fines, which may be paid in cash, or worked out at the army pay rate of $1 a day. I don't believe there have been more than five cases in the last four years of men continuing in confinement to serve out fines, after being sentenced.

"I have not available exact figures as to men who have been in the guardhouse. The cases are heard by summary courts martial, which are boards of officers. If a man is absent from drills for a month, during which time four or five drills are held, his company commander is supposed to get in touch with him. If he has reasonable excuses for absence nothing is done. It is only the men who promise to show up, after that, and don't keep their promises who face charges.

"The regiment is conducted under a dovetailing of the National Guard regulations and the Missouri military code, and arrests for missing drills are under provisions of both. Summonses for men to be arrested are turned over to the St. Louis police for service, and they turn the men over to the regiment. We could have such men confined in the city jail, but it seems more desirable to me if we are confining men in order to follow military practice, to keep them in the guardhouse.

"There is no provision for the release of men on bond, but we cannot hold them more than 48 hours without trial. I think the last time we ran the guardhouse was just before the last Federal inspection in February. Most of the five men there now have been absent most of the time since that inspection. They are either awaiting trial or are there as the result of action of a courtmartial."

Summary of Charges by Holm.

The charges about the guardhouse were made by Cecil R. Holm, 22 years old, of 5836 De Giverville avenue, a son of Victor S. Holm, the sculptor, and a former Sergeant of the 138th. Summarized, they were:

He was arrested last August by the police in connection with investigation of the disappearance of a pistol from the armory, imprisoned at the guardhouse for six days, without charges, along with five men who had missed drill; given bad food and kept on bread and water for two days for no reason but "damned meanness"; kept in a basement room infested with lice, that was poorly ventilated, without bed or blanket; liberated without explanation; called before a courtmartial later, without charges, and case dismissed; further, that before all this he had seen men who were confined forced to sleep in the empty swimming pool, some without blankets.

"We don't treat men that way," said Col. Thornton, in making a general denial of Holm's charges. "There is no record that Holm was ever confined in the guardhouse and no charges against him on record. He was a disturbing element in the regiment. He was discharged recently on the ground of physical disability."

GETS 5 YEARS FOR ROBBERY

ITALIAN PRINCE AND PRINCESS VICTIMS OF BOLD ROBBERY

Pair Drugged by Waiter and Chauffeur and Jewels and Money Aggregating $84,000 Taken.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, July 7.—A bold robbery with a Prince and Princess as the victims, was carried out here today. Taking advantage of their position in the palace household, a waiter and a chauffeur overpowered Prince Carlo Giustiniani Bandini and his wife, Princess Maria, drugged them and made away with jewels and money valued at 2,000,000 lire (about $84,000 at the present rate of exchange). The police are searching for Marino Guagnelli of Fazenda de Sao, Brazil, and Alfredo Civichi of Gallese, Italy.

It was 2 o'clock this morning when two robbers, after making sure that members of the household were asleep, covered their faces with masks, cut the telephone wires and entered the bedroom of the Prince and Princess, whom they attempted to drug with anesthetic masks. The sleepers awoke and tried to summon aid, whereupon they were beaten and drugged by force.

The thieves then took their keys, opened the safe and removed all the jewels, including a historic diadem which once belonged to Queen Hortense of Holland, and 20,000 lire kept there for current expenses. They made their escape after locking the bedroom.

HOTEL GUEST'S DEATH DUE TO HEAT, PHYSICIAN SAYS

Register as J. Brewer of Chicago—Samuel Schultz, Ill in Office, Taken to Hospital.

A man who registered as J. Brewer of Chicago, died in his room at the American Hotel yesterday afternoon. He was about 37 years old and was a traveling salesman. He called the room clerk shortly after noon, saying that he was not feeling well and requesting that a physician be sent to him. When the physician arrived 20 minutes later, he found the man under the shower in the bathroom, attempting to turn off the water. He collapsed before words were exchanged and died in a few minutes.

The physician told police he believed heat prostration caused death.

Samuel Schultz, 50 years old, of 18 Hampton Park, collapsed at 8 o'clock last night in the office of the S. Schultz Garment Co., 714 Washington avenue, of which he is president. Physicians said he had suffered heat prostration. He was taken to Barnes Hospital. Schultz was seated in his office talking to his son-in-law, Joseph Newman, the latter said, and fell from his chair to the floor when stricken.

George Clause, 32, a laborer, living at 1518 Chouteau avenue, suffered heat prostration and became unconscious at his home shortly before midnight and was removed to the city hospital.

DEMPSEY FIGHT FILMS SAID TO BE IN LOS ANGELES

Motion Pictures Reported to Have Been Rushed There By Airplane—Federal Agents Seeking Them.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 7.—The actual moving pictures of the Dempsey-Gibbons 15-round boxing bout at Shelby, Mont., July 4 are now at Los Angeles, according to information obtained by Department of Justice agents who have watched for the films here, it was learned today.

The information of the alleged whereabouts of the films, which have sent Department of Justice agents of Chicago rushing to the flying field here in an effort to seize them should they be landed here, was obtained from a pilot of one of the planes, which flew from Shelby with moving pictures of the scenes before and after the fight. It was said that immediately after the fight the fight films were placed in an airplane and rushed to the California city.

Department of Justice agents here expressed ignorance of a report that the actual fight films were in Chicago. It was reported that an airplane landed at one of the fields here last night after dark and a package was taken from it. It was supposed to have contained the forbidden films. Government agents are continuing an investigation in an effort to locate them.

INDICTED ON FRAUD CHARGE

Head of Petroleum Marketers Accused in Connection With Stock Sale.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., July 7.—L. V. Nicholas of Chicago, president of the National Petroleum Marketers' Association, was indicted by a Federal grand jury here today on charges of using the mails in pursuance of a scheme to defraud in connection with the sale of stock in the L. V. Nicholas company of Omaha.

E. H. Flynn, a stock salesman for the Nicholas concern, was indicted with Nicholas.

According to the United States District Attorney, the indictment charges that Nicholas and Flynn represented to prospective stock buyers that the Nicholas company operated at a large profit in 1919, that the capital stock had been raised from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 and that the company was solvent, whereas the grand jury held that this was not the case. It charged that the concern operated without profit in 1919.

Mrs. Hannah Marx Dies at 67.

Mrs. Hannah Marx, 67 years old, of 5636 Cabanne avenue, widow of Ben F. Marx of the Marx-Haas Clothing Co., died at 6 o'clock yesterday morning at her home. She came from Natchez, Miss., to St. Louis 43 years ago. Her mother, who resides in New Orleans, four sisters and two brothers survive. The funeral will be at 3 p. m. Monday.

VANDEVENTER PLACE AGAIN BEFORE COURT

Residents Seek to Stop Invasion of Boarders in Old Kerens Home.

The restful green of the plaza in aristocratic old Vandeventer place is as much a lure to real estate speculators and building promoters as it is to the families that continue to dwell in the big, old-fashioned homes there, the residents are saying, as they shake their heads over the latest boarding-house invasion that has brought them into the courts.

Action before Circuit Judge Landwehr yesterday disclosed that the 23-room residence at No. 36, of the late Richard C. Kerens, who was Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, which was sold at public auction recently for a song, has been converted into a boarding house. As has been told, its new owner has been circulating petitions among residents of Vandeventer place, endeavoring to arrange for a suit to have the rigid restrictions of the three-block stretch set aside, and with a view to the erection of an apartment house on his lot.

Rents and leases for apartments facing the plaza, with the advantage of being near "downtown," will be comparatively high in the opinion of speculators, the residents say. Furthermore, they add dolefully, similar considerations are urging promoters to covet the two corners of Vandeventer place and Grand boulevard for office buildings.

Another boarding house, a hospital for incurables and a public garage are the casualties of a successful resistance by the Vandeventerites to mundane invasion, so far. Maintenance of a boarding house at No. 12 was forever enjoined by a Circuit Court decree 13 months ago, when the restrictions against ought but residences were upheld in general, but this decision is under appeal in the Supreme Court of Missouri.

Yesterday, Judge Landwehr, acting on a motion filed by Thomas M. Pierce, a lawyer, who is treasurer of Vandeventer parks, the organization controlling the place, issued an order directing Adolphus Branham, president of the Automatic Register Co., and new owner of the Kerens house, and M. C. Campbell, who, as Branham's tenant, is alleged to be conducting a boarding house there, to show cause July 23 why they should not be punished for contempt of court, in view of the antiboarding-house injunction. The motion alleged that Branham and Campbell both had knowledge of this injunction.

The Kerens house was built in the '80s at a cost of about $125,000. Sam Koplar, a real estate dealer, bought it at public sale May 9 for $7250. He sold it to Branham for a price said to have been about a tenth of the original cost., No one but a caretaker had lived there since Kerens' death in 1916.

NOVA SCOTIA MINE LEADER SCORNS LEWIS' TELEGRAM

"Not Accepting Dictation From Anybody," Says District Chief Under Arrest.

By the Associated Press.

SYDNEY, N. S., July 7.—Under arrest charged with "wilfully spreading false tales" in advocating a general strike of coal miners in this province, Dan Livingston, president of District No. 26, United Mine Workers of America, tonight scorned the telegraphed demand of John Lewis, international president, that the strikers be put back to work.

"District No. 26 is absolutely autonomous," was his reported comment on the order, "and it isn't accepting dictation from John L. Lewis or anybody else."

Livingston, together with J. R. MacLachlan, another officer of the district, were taken by automobile today to Canso, en route to Halifax, where they will be arraigned.

As they prepared to leave, Livingston was shown a copy of the telegram sent by Lewis from Atlantic City, N. J., denouncnig the strike as "a violation of the agreement between miners and coal companies and of the principles of the union."

SENT TO ASYLUM, MAN WILL BE HANGED IF HE BECOMES SANE

Killed Brother-in-Law of Wife, Then Lost Mental Balance When About to be Executed.

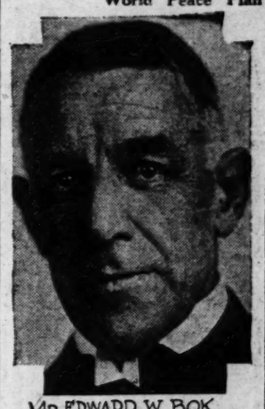
By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, July 7.—Two deputies from Amite, La., today took Angelo Guirlando, cobbler of Rockford, Ill., to the state asylum for the criminal insane at Jackson, La. If his mental balance is restored he will be hanged forthe murder of his wife's brother-in-law, Henry Amato. Guirlando became insane shortly before the date set for his execution. Gov. Parker granted a reprieve. The board of pardons decided he should be held in an asylum until his reason was restored and then be hanged.

Closing his shop in an Illinois city about a year ago, Guirlando traveled to Amite to get his man. Meeting him on the street, the cobbler fired. At the trial, Guirlando told how he went to Amite and met his bride, a strawberry field worker. He took her North and later she told him, he testified that her sister's husband was the father of her child.

The wife, however, did not substantiate the story told by the husband. She said Amato was an innocent victim and that Guirlando was suffering from an hallucination.

$100,000 for Workable World Peace Plan



MR EDWARD W. BOK

MISS ESTER EVERETT LAPE

BOK, a Philadelphia editor and author, has offered the prize for an idea that will line America up with the other nations of the world in a plan to abolish war.

Miss Lape, who has been appointed secretary of the committee to administer the Bok peace prize, says Bok has not made the offer as League of Nations propaganda, but is actuated solely by a desire to find the right way out of the present muddle to permanent peace, whether through the league or other means.

HUNDREDS OF PREMATURE ENTRANTS IN PEACE CONTEST

Plans Submitted in Competition for $100,000 Prize Not to Be Received Until Conditions Are Agreed On.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The Policy Committee of the American peace award, named by Edward Bok to conduct the $100,000 prize contest for the best practicable plan by which the United States may co-operate with other nations to achieve and preserve world peace, announced today that several hundred premature entrants had submitted plans in the competition.

The Policy Committee of the award, headed by John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain, said it was not authorized to receive plans until conditions under which the award will be made have been determined.

This will be done within the next few weeks, it was said, after conference with more than a dozen national organizations which have agreed to co-operate in the contest. Among these are the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Foreign Policy Association, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, American Scandinavian Foundation, League for Industrial Rights, Sons of the American Revolution and American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers.

FOR CHURCH UNION AGAINST WAR

Speaker at Christian Endeavor Convention Voices Plan.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., July 7.—A plea for the union of the churches in a campaign against war and for a nation-wide educational campaign for peace, was voiced by Frederick J. Libby of Washington, D. C., in an address today before the Christian Endeavor convention. Libby is secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of war.

Church bodies, and especially the Christian Endeavor societies, said Libby, should make the antiwar movement one of their chief undertakings. The world court was termed a step toward war prevention.

ARREST OF LEVIATHAN SAILORS THREATENED

British Ship Owners, Retaliating for Dry-Ship Ruling, May Prosecute Deserters.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, July 7.—America having initiated the policy of removing drink from foreign vessels entering United States ports, British ship owners threaten, in retaliation, to remove sailors from the Leviathan when she reaches Southampton early next week.

In British shipping circles it is stated that between 200 and 300 of the Leviathan's crew had deserted from British ships, thus violating the British mercantile shipping act; they had signed up for the round trip on sailing west. One steamship company claims to have the names of a number of sailors from Southampton itself, the very hatchery of British mercantile sailors, who deserted British ships at New York, caught, it is said, by the bait of higher pay on American vessels.

Under the British shipping regulations, the members of the crews of foreign ships who wish to go ashore at British ports must have identification cards by way of passports. If for the Leviathan, British shippers threaten to have arrested and to prosecute any sailors who land, who can be identified as deserters from their ships. However, American officials and shippers here express the opinion that there is a good deal of bluff about such reports. The Post-Dispatch and the New York World are informed that no complaints about deserters sailing on "The Glory of the new American merchant marine" have been made to the United States Shipping Board, the United States lines or the United States Consulate-General. American officials here acknowledge that British shippers would be within their rights if they arrested and prosecuted deserting seamen, but they do not believe this will be done, at least on any wholesale scale.

Under any circumstances, the United States Lines is not worrying about the possibility of losing 200 or 300 of the Leviathan's crew when she reaches Southampton. There will be no difficulty in filling any vacancies with seamen here; indeed, it is said that the United States Consulate-General has registered the names of a number of seamen who want to ship on American vessels.

Life on Leviathan Livelier Than in First Class Hotel.

Special Wireless to the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News. (Copyright, 1923.)

"ON BOARD THE LEVIATHAN," July 7.—Life on the Leviathan is even more elaborate than life in a first-class hotel. Swimming, gymnastics, boxing, pitching quoits, bull board, shuffle board, deck tennis and other sports furnish passengers of all ages with opportunities for exercise. Men, women and children, at fixed hours, throng the gymnasium for horseback and bicycle riding, rowing and various other forms of exercise and for massage and instructions in the dietetics of the sea. Warren Cusack, an expert in physical culture and scientific feeding, directs the gymnasium and at 6 a. m. tarts classe in calisthenics and boxing on the top deck.

Brass-buttoned bellboys shout radiograms along the corridors and on the common room and about the decks. This ship has a telegraphic business equivalent to that of a city of 70,000 population. Almost every person aboard is wirelessing business or social messages to America or Europe. For the first time the history of trans-Atlantic shipping a daily morning and evening news service is leaving the liner for the principal newspapers of the world.

MUENCHEN ON HOME VOYAGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The North German Lloyd liner Muenchen, the first German vessel to enter New York harbor since 1914 with first-class cabin passengers, sailed from Hoboken on her return maiden voyage today with 500 passengers.

C. Stapifeld, a director of the North German Lloyd line, denied published reports that his company was to purchase from the United States Shipping Board the steamships Agamemnon and Mount Vernon, taken fro mthe German company during the world war. He also declared untrue another report that the United States Government intended to purchase the new North German Lloyd liner Columbus as a companion ship to the Leviathan.

GOVERNOR TO TAKE UP TENNESSEE U. FACULTY DISPUTE

Peay Will Urge Full Investigation of Charges on Which Prof. John R. Neal Was Dismissed.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS SILENT OVER MATTER

President Morgan to Recommend to Board of Trustees Removal of 10 Professors He Has Ousted.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 7.—Governor Austin Peay announced today he would urge on the Board of Trustees of the University a full investigation of the charges against Professor John R. Neal of the faculty, one of 10 instructors recently dismissed by President Morgan.

The Governor is an ex-officio member of the board, and the case of Professor Neal is attracting much attention in the State.

University officials refuse to discuss any of the dismissals and the storm of protest that has been aroused. Dr. Morgan, the president, will formally recommend to the trustees the removal of at least 10 members of the faculty previously ousted by him, when the board meets July 17, but he declines to make any explanation now.

Dean Refuses to Discuss Rumors.

Dean James D. Haskins also refuses to discuss the rumors that are being spread about the situation, although urged to do so in the interest of the university.

The issue between President Morgan and Professor Neal is becoming the center of the controversy. The professor is a native Tennessean, a graduate of the university and popular throughout the State. Dr. Morgan is a naturalized citizen, but today would not say when he was naturalized. He voted in Louisiana and Texas and even held office in the latter State before his final papers were granted.

Prof. Neal's case is somewhat different from the rest. It is said, and his friends, many of whom are also friends of President Morgan, are urging him to have his case separated from the others who are due to be discharged.

A round robin indorsing Dr. Morgan was passed about among business men and alumni yesterday, but it got only 25 signatures. One of these was Alfred F. Sanford, the only alumnus on the board of trustees and a classmate of Prof. Neal.

One "Trapped Into Conduct."

Dr. Maurice Mulvania, head of the pre-medical department, is another whose dismissal is expected. It is declared he was trapped into conduct which gives an excuse for dismissal. He wrote the president after Prof. Sprowls was removed for teaching the theory of evolution, offering to be an intermediary between the administration and the faculty.

Dr. Mulvania suggested he canvass the faculty and obtain their views as to the needs of the university. But the professor found that 27 out of 31 instructors who answered his questionnaire desired a change in the administration of university affairs.

Other faculty members are describing the last three months of the school term just closed as a reign of tyranny. Most of the dismissed members belong to the Association of College Professors, and that organization is expected to back their fight for reinstatement.

CITY CHILDREN SHOWN HOW CROP OF OATS IS HARVESTED

Acre Cut With Binder for Their Special Benefit—Threshing Set for July 20.

It was harvest time in the city yesterday afternoon. An acre of oats, planted on a lot adjoining the local warehouse of the J. I. Case Threshing Machine Co., 4760 Forest Park boulevard, was converted from a "standing crop" to neat shocks for the edification of nearly one hundred adults and children. A modern binder, drawn by a tractor, cut the crop in a little less than an hour.

The rural scene was designed to give city children a picture of agricultural methods. It lacked such details as flopping straw hats and the old brown water jug, but a group of boys were intensely interested and followed the binder around the field despite the heat and assisted in the shocking. Adults, too, took a hand and some, who had spent childhood days on a farm, compared the methods and implements of their day with those used now.

W. R. Ellis, manager of the Case Company, said that the oats would be threshed and the field plowed at 2 p. m. July 20. Children are especially invited to witness this feature of farm activity. The oats will be sold when threshed and the proceeds donated to the Post-Dispatch Ice Fund, Ellis said. He estimated the "crop" at between 30 and 40 bushels.

THEY WILL EXECUTE CAPITOL SCULPTURE

SHERRY FRY (Top). ROBERT AITKEN (Center). ADOLPH A. WEINMAN (Below).

2 BOYS SUFFER FROM TETANUS DUE TO FIREWORKS INJURIES

Both Were Injured Before Fourth; Poison Likely to Develop as Late as Month.

The first cases of tetanus, from injuries suffered in connection with the celebration of the Fourth of July, were received yesterday at the City Hospital.

Joseph Foglia Jr., 13 years old, of 771 Bayard avenue, was accidentally shot in the left hand with a blank pistol on July 1. He received no antitetanus treatment at the time. Yesterday his condition became critical and he was taken to the hospital.

Eugene McFarland, 13, son of William McFarland, 1440 Pendleton avenue, shot himself in the left hand June 28, when examining a blank pistol. He received antitetanus treatment at the time at the City Hospital and was sent home. Yesterday his condition became serious and he was sent back to the hospital.

Tetanus may develop any time between five days and a month after the injury.

THREE STATE CAPITOL CONTRACTS AWARDED

New York Sculptors to Receive Total of $145,000 for Decorative Work.

Contracts for sculpture for three important points of display in the State Capitol at Jefferson City, to be executed by three leading sculptors of America, were awarded by the Capitol Decorations Commission yesterday.

The contracts are for $145,000, which, added to other expenditures incurred for the ornamentation of the seat of Missouri's government, for paintings, sculpture, tapestry and stained glass windows, brings the total to be spent for this purpose to more than $500,000. About $200,000 more remains to be spent. Announcement of the award of contracts was made last night by Arthur A. Kocian, secretary of the commission, following a visit of the commissioners and the three artists receiving the contracts to the Capitol yesterday.

Details of Contracts.

The sculptors receiving contracts, all of whom live in New York, and work they will do, are:

Adolph A. Weinman, figures carved from stone to fill the pediment, or triangular space above the portico at the main entrance of the edifice; theme not selected; space 66 feet wide and 10 feet high, $65,000.

Robert Aitken, bronze groups on the cheek blocks, or flat masses of stone, on either side of the steps at the main entrance; one group to typify the Mississippi River and the other, the Missouri; the bases measure 5x15 feet each; $65,000.

Sherry Fry, heroic figure to surmount the dome, to be visible for considerable distances and survey, as it were, the broad reaches of the Missouri. The statue will be 12 to 15 feet high, executed with regard to a commanding silhouette rather than detail; theme not chosen; $15,000.

The work probably will not be completed in less than two years. The sculptors visited the Capitol yesterday to grasp the spirit of the structure and get preliminary ideas of what will be required. They will submit tentative sketches later.

Weinman was a pupil of the famous Augustus St. Gaudens. Among many awards he has received for his work was a silver medal at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition here in 1904. One of his best-known pieces is "The Rising Sun," a figure of a man with outstretched arms, in the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburg. He has done three Lincoln memorials, including one in the Metropolitan Museum, New York. All the sculpture at the Pennsylvania Station and the facade and surmounting figure of the Municipal Building, New York, are his. He designed one of the 50-cent and one of the 10-cent pieces now in circulation, as well as the victory button given to American soldiers and sailors who served in the World War.

Frieze Contract to Be Awarded.

Aitken designed the McKinley monument and the monument commemorating Admiral Dewey's victory at Manila, both erected in San Francisco; "Flame," in the Metropolitan Museum; a medal commemorative of the Panama-Pacific Exposition and a $50 American coin. He is a past president of the Sculptors' Society of America.

Fry, who has carved various remarkable Indian heads, did the pediment of H. C. Frick's home, New York. He has won awards at various expositions, honorable mention at the Paris Salon in 1906; a medal there in 1908, and won the American Academy scholarship in Rome the same year.

The Capitol Decorations Commission soon will award a contract for a sculptured frieze for the exterior of the building, facing the river. A similar frieze for the opposite side, portraying the history of Missouri, is being done by Stirling Calder of New York under a $75,000 contract.

KEIFFER'S BROADWAY & FRANKLIN

CIRCUS LOT BOUGHT FOR SITE OF POLICE GARAGE

Two-Story Building, to Include Machine and Repair Shop, Planned.

The Police Board has acquired title to property at the northwest corner of Laclede avenue and Sarah street for the site of a garage and machine repair shop. President Brockman last night said the board had not completed plans for the building.

It is understood, however, that the building will be of two stories, the ground floor to be used for police machines and patrols, while the second floor will be used as a repair shop. The plans also, it is said, provide for space in the new building for the carpenter shop, armorer's department and other crafts.

The present garage of the department is near the Laclede Avenue Police Station, Leffingwell and Laclede avenues. It is a ramshackle building, inadequate for the needs of the department. Cars must be driven in on one street and out on another.

When President Brockman became a member of the board, one of his first plans was for a large garage, which, he believed, would save the city considerable money.

He had hoped to get the site of the old Four Courts, southeast corner of Twelfth street and Clark avenue, an entire block, and to build a garage covering the block, which could be used by other city departments. When Brockman became President of the board he learned that the plans he had mapped out would entail too great expense.

The property to be converted into a police garage is part of the grounds used by circuses on their annual visits to the city.

METAL TRIM CONTROVERSY RETARDS WORK ON INFIRMARY

Contractor Gave Work to Carpenters Whereupon Sheet Metal Men Quit.

The jurisdictional controversy between carpenters and sheet metal workers over metal trim work, has retarded work on St. Mary's Infirmary on Clayton road at Bellevue avenue, Richmond Heights.

George Raterman of the construction company erecting the building said yesterday that "a number of the men have quit the job because we gave the work to the carpenters," but asserted that "we are going ahead, anyway, with the work."

The men who quit, he said, were members of the Building Trades Council, which ordered them off the job last Thursday. The council is a party to the national award board's ruling giving this work to sheet metal men, and refuses to let its members work on jobs where the metal trim work is done by carpenters. The carpenters, it will be recalled, recently were ousted from the council because of the controversy and their adamant attitude in refusing to agree to the ruling.

The contractors, as has been told, are the ones caught between two fires. If they let the carpenters do the work, the metal men and other council trades go out; and if they let the sheet metalmen do metal trim work, they have no carpenters.

BAIL IS ALLOWED FOR MRS. RICKNER

Young Widow Charged With Killing Husband, Army Officer, Collapses in Court.

By the Associated Press.

ANNISTON, Ala., July 7.—Mrs. Evelyn Sue Rickner, who, the State alleges, shot and killed her husband, Lieut. James C. Rickner, Eighth U. S. Infantry, was admitted to bail in the sum of $3000 late this afternoon, following preliminary hearing before Judge J. B. Holman Jr. of the Calhoun County Court.

Mrs. Rickner collapsed shortly before Judge Holman rendered his verdict, and was not in the courtroom to hear a short demonstration of approval which met the Court's announcement. Friends declared that bond would be made immediately.

Unusual interest was attached to the case, due to the popularity of the slain officer and to the youth and beauty of his wife. The courtroom was crowded today, a large number of uniforms representing military friends of the couple.

The defense offered no testimony. Judge Holman acted following introduction of testimony by the State. No arguments were heard.

Officials Say Rickner Accused Wife.

Army officers on the stand for the State testified that Lieut. Rickner in his dying moments accused his wife of shooting him and heaped curses upon her head.

Harry Elder of Indianapolis, brother of Mrs. Rickner, and her 4-year-old daughter, Marlyn, sought constantly to cheer the defendant in the courtroom.

Captain Mack, Eighth Infantry, said he saw the defendant walk into her husband's room and later saw her hand the gun to Lieut. Miley after coming out of the room. He said Mrs. Rickner remarked: "I have just shot Rickner. I will be in my quarters when you want me." Captain Mack was officer of the day.

SECOND FUNERAL TODAY FOR MINISTER

THE REV. LOUIS H. REITH.

ANOTHER funeral service will be held this afternoon for the Rev. Louis H. Reith, pastor of the Wilke Station Lutheran Church, eight miles north of St. Charles, who died Friday from tetanus. The first service was held yesterday afternoon at his own church. The second will be held at the St. Paul Lutheran Church in Concordia, Mo., the minister's former home, where he is to be buried.

As has been told, the Rev. Mr. Reith was severely burned by lightning when splicing the ground wire of his radio aerial back of his house June 27 at 4:30 a. m. He had cut a section of the wire to mend a break in the ground wire of his telephone, fearing that lightning from an electrical storm which had gathered might penetrate to his home through the broken telephone wire. It was reported that he went barefooted, forming a conuctor.

ORDINANCE DRAWN UP TO RESTRICT CORNICES

McKelvey Says He Will Sponsor Bill to Limit Extensions Over Streets.

No cornice of stone or terra cotta will be permitted to extend more than one foot over the street and metal cornices will be limited to a projection of three feet under the terms of an ordinance which Director of Public Safety McKelvey yesterday announced he will sponsor when the Board of Aldermen reconvenes Sept. 14.

Recent accidents, notably at the Schaper Stores Co., Sixth street and Washington avenue, where a section of cornice fell, killing two and injuring eight persons, have prompted the new move.

At present a cornice of any material may extend three feet above the street. The discrimination Director McKelvey makes between stone and metal cornices is due to the fact that stone cornices are heavier and not as strong.

St. Louis architects have advised Director McKelvey that while they feel a 12-inch restriction would spoil the architectural effect of buildings, they are willing to co-operate in every way to insure greater safety. The ruling would apply only to new buildings.

INFERNAL MACHINE INJURES KANSAS CITY HOTEL OWNER

Fire Bomb, Sent Through Mail, Explodes When He Takes It From Box.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 7.—John Roth, proprietor of the Oldham Hotel here, was severely burned on the hands today when he opened a package received in the mail and which, police said, contained a fire bomb. Roth was standing in the middle of the lobby when he opened the package. Inside a cardboard box he found a wooden cylinder with a screw cap. Roth gave the cap a few turns and a deafening explosion which shook the lobby, occurred. His shirt was set afire, but guests extinguished the blaze with coats and a rug.

Roth's name was printed in ink on the wrapper of the package. A sticker bore the name of "J. W. Paxson Company, North Delaware Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa." The parts of the bomb remaining after the explosion were turned over to E. B. Walston, chief of detectives. The chief said that the package was intended to start a fire and not to injure anyone.

Accused of Embezzling $4000.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 7.—Roy E. Wilson, 30 years old, postmaster at Bolckow, Mo., was sent to jail here today when he waived preliminary examination on a charge of embezzling Government funds. Wilson, who has been postmaster at Bolckow four years, is accused of being short in his accounts $4000. His bond was fixed at $5000, which he has been unable to give.

Cards Break Even in Tilts With Dodgers

Toney Beaten, 10-5, in Opener, but Doak and Stuart Win Second, 7-1; Fournier and Hornsby Get Homers.

BROOKLYN, July 7.—The Robins gave full vent to the heavy-hitting urge in the first game of today's double-header at Ebbet's Field with the St. Louis Cardinals and then ran out of swat stuff in the second game. The Cardinals caught the germ in the second game and did some hitting on their own part. So the afternoon party was a "Dutch treat" affair, with Brooklyn winning the opening game by a score of 10 to 5 and St. Louis the second by a score of 7 to 1.

Robbie's men looked with considerable favor on Fred Toney's pitching during the first nine innings of the day's baseball in Flatbush and gathered in 17 hits, including a home run by Jack Fournier, triples by Neis and De Berry and two doubles by Fournier.

Ruether Effective.

Dutch Ruether took care of the pitching in the first game for the Robins and had control of the situation until the eighth inning. He grew slightly wild at this point and Hornsby made a homer. The visitors tallied three times in the last inning.

The second half of the double-header was the reversal of the first half. Leo Dickerman started in the box for the Robins, and the Cardinals were quick to appreciate his work. He lasted just one and one-third innings, and in that time the St. Louis team scored four runs, enough to win the game.

Bill Doak and Johnny Stuart had charge of the Cardinals' pitching, and allowed the Robins only six hits. Doak had to leave the game after going to the bat in the sixth, for arguing too long with Wilson. Brooklyn made three of their singles off him, all coming in the fourth inning.

Pfeffer Suspended.

Wheat made four hits in nine trips to the plate, Fournier five hits in eight times at bat and Johnston three hits in as many times at bat.

Branch Rickey suspended Pfeffer, member of the Cardinals' pitching staff, for insubordination.

In the second game Wilbert Robinson had four pitchers working for Brooklyn. George Smith succeeded Dickerman and in turn had to give way to Decatur in the sixth. Schrieber did the pitching in the ninth.

Leon Cadore, who fared so badly in Thursday's game with Boston, was dispatched to the Chicago White Sox via the waiver route. His shoulder is still in poor condition and he may not be able to pitch for a month.

Johnston Defeats Hunter in Straight Sets at Wimbledon

Little Bill Captures World's Ten nis Championship From Fellow American With Loss of On ly Four Games—Lycett and Miss Ryan Win Mixed Doubles.

By Herbert L. Bourke.

(Copyright, 1923.)

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 7.—Playing a brand of tennis which, I think, would have beaten anybody on earth, "Little Bill" Johnston today walked off with the Wimbledon championship, beating his fellow American, Francis T. Hunter, to the tune of 6—0, 6—3, 6—1.

Johnson began impressively by winning the first three games with the loss of only two points and without the necessity of going to the net once. Hunter forced the fourth and fifth games to deuce, but that was the best he could do and Johnston took the set in ten minutes.

It seemed amazing that Little Bill could show such a vast superiority over a man who has beaten some of England's best, but it only showed how great the new champion is. His ground strokes and the way he controlled his service was remarkable.

Hunter Does Better in Second.

Hunter is usually a late starter and showed up better in the second set. He won the first game on his own service after a hard fight, but Johnston evened matters. Hunter again led a 2-1 and he was putting more stuff on his strokes. Johnston won the fourth game after some sparkling volleying duels, the winner picking opportunities for passing shots with unusual cleverness.

Games still went with service to 3 all. Hunter sometimes missing chances by netting drives as he tried to pass Johnston at the net when he might have tried lobs with better effect. In the last three games Johnston turned loose a little more speed and won them, his backhand drives for placement being a feature.

But the third set showed Johnston even better. He won the first five games almost as fast as the points could be checked off. He was using all the strokes known to the game and bringing them off perfectly. He had a wonderful drop stroke that hardly rose from the ground at all. Hunter managed to take the sixth game, but he could not get going again and Little Bill quickly ran out the next game and the match.

Lycett and Miss Ryan Win.

This is the last time the world's championship will be considered as going to the winner at Wimbledon, and the large crowd gave Johnston a great ovation in recognition of his superlatively excellent play. The King and Queen were among those who witnessed the match, arriving just as the players were warming up.

Before this final, Lycett and Miss Ryan recovered their mixed doubles championship, which they lost last year to Pat O'Hara Wood and Mlle. Lenglen, by defeating L. S. Deane and Mrs. Shepherd Barron of India, 6-4, 7-5. The losers had beaten Vincent Richards and Mrs. Mallory in the semi-finals yesterday.

The winners won only after a bitter fight. They were trailing in the second set 3-4 and 4-5. Lycett was not as consistent as usual, but Miss Ryan was again playing finely, especially at cross volleys.

Lycett and L. A. Godfree won the men's doubles from Count de Gomar and Eduardo Flacquer, the Spanish infernationalists, in an interesting match, 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

Miss Ryan and Mlle. Lenglen easily retained their doubles title by beating the younger English pair, Misses Colyer and Austin, 6-3, 6-1.

Robertson Rejoins Sox.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Charley Robertson, of no-hit, no run fame, who was recently suspended by Manager William Gleason of the Chicago White Sox for indifferent pitching appeared in uniform for the first time today since he was sent home from Detroit and practiced with the Sox at the south side park.

Robertson's suspension is for an indefinite period.

WHITE SOX DROP TWO CONTESTS TO NATIONALS

CHICAGO, July 7.—Washington defeated Chicago in both games of a double header today, 4 to 0 and 3 to 2, respectively. The White Sox were unable to do anything with Mogridge's delivery in the first encounter, while the Senators bunched two of their hits behind an error by Hasbrouck in the first inning. They added two more on a walk and a homer by Goslin while Thurston was pitching. The visitors got the breaks in the second game, an error by Kamm paving the way to victory. Fielding by Happeny, Goslin and Kamm featured.

Rixey Gives Only Five Hits and Reds Beat Giants, 4-2

Moran's Men Bunch Hits Off McQuillan in Ninth to Gain Victory.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The Reds defeated the Giants in the first game of the series here today, 4 to 2. Rixey held the champions to five hits and was never in trouble after the first inning, when Jackson's single, a fielder's choice, Rixey's only pass and two force plays gave the Giants their runs.

McQuillan pitched well, but a bunching of hits in the ninth by Bohne, Fonseca and Hargrave gave the Reds the victory.

The attendance was 35,000.

Fohlies Rout Shawkey And Pound Roettger; Vangilder Hurls Well

McManus Raps Out Four-Bagger With Two Mates on Bases—Gerber Gets Five Hits in as Many Trips to the Plate.

By Joseph F. Holland.

The New York Yanks, all that is powerful in the realm of Ban Johnson, picked themselves out of a wreckage of bad pitching and Brownie base hits yesterday and placidly viewed the wreckage of their winning streak which had reached nine straight. They counted the 17 hits the Browns made for a total of 25 bases and agreed that it was a sad blow to their pride; only that and nothing more. The Yanks are too far ahead to worry about the loss of one ball game.

The Yanks were soundly thrashed. They were beaten in the same yielding fashion that the Boston Red Sox are beaten but the championship crown is still on straight. It was one ball game to them and simply because the score was 13 to 3 was no signal for tapping the reservoir of concern.

However, the crowd of 12,000 fans accepted the outcome as a just and fitting revenge. They went back to that "Blue Monday" of last September and saw "Dixie" Davis slowly walk out of the box. They saw "Whitey" Witt drive a single over second and score two runs that beat the Browns out of a pennant.

Yankees Get Nine Hits.

This memory shrouded Elam Vangilder's meritorious triumph to a slight degree, but even at that the vocal accompaniment was strong whenever solid, resounding base hits rang off Brown bats to the outfield.

The game convinced the crowd that the champion has no dispensations. It is the hero one day and the veriest dub the next. A spectator, not familiar with the daily chart of standings, would have supposed that the Browns and not the Yanks were champions of the league.

New York made nine hits, widely scattered. Its pitchers yielded 17 hits, walked three men and hit another. It made four errors, rank errors at that, in the field and behaved like an amateur organization all around. But, to get back to earth, the men led by the mite Huggins still have a pennant lead of 11 full games over their nearest rival. That just can't be laughed off.

Ruth Hits Two Homers.

There was one Yank in the long list that wore the New York uniform who behaved like a real champion. "Babe" Ruth came to bat four times, made two home runs and a single and drew a base on balls on one occasion. He was more than a perfect player on the attack and he handled his only fielding chance just as perfectly. So the fans had quite a day of it. They saw the Browns win and saw "Babe" hit two homers that did not hurt. There were no men on bases at either time.

"Babe's" claim upon the attention of the crowd was disputed by Walter Gerber. The Brownie shortstop went to the plate five times and came away with four singles and a double to his credit. He also stole a base and on the defense handled four chances in faultless style.

Elam Vangilder was not entirely out of the public's attention. With Elam in his best form the famous "Murderers' Row" dropped to the whispering "Murmerers' Row." It could not "Say it with base hits" in the presence of the Cape Girardeau plowboy.

Williams Fails to Get Hit.

There was one peculiar feature in the play of the Browns. Kenneth Williams alone of the nine St. Louisans, failed to get a hit. Ken scored three runs but in three official trips to the plate he did not get a hit. He walked once, was hit by a pitched ball once and reached second on Smith's muff of his fly ball.

The crashing attack of the Browns was an epic of silence in the first two innings and "Babe" Ruth's home run drive in the first still held over as the big feature. But in the last half of the third Bob Shawkey suffered his first wallop.

Schliebner and Vangilder singled to open, moved up on Tobin's sacrifice and scored on Gene Robertson's double to right center. Williams walked and scored behind Robertson on Jacobson's double to right.

McManus Hits Home Run.

Those four runs, in themselves, were sufficient but the Browns were out to make it a complete "bust." They added one more in the fifth and another in the sixth and Bob Shawkey, the "Jinx" of all-time, retired with 10 hits and six runs charged against him.

Oscar Roettger, a graduate of the old Walther League, pitched the seventh and allowed seven runs and five hits. Marty McManus pounded

PIRATES POUND PHILLIE HURLERS FOR 18-5 VICTORY

PHILADELPHIA, July 7.—The Pirates handed the Phillies one of their worst defeats of the season today, rolling up 18 runs on 16 hits and nine bases on balls. The Phillies scored five runs and ten hits off Lee Meadows, who pitched leisurely after his mates gave him a commanding lead.

Glazner was found for nine runs and the same number of hits in five innings. Broadway Jones did well, but developed a wild streak in the ninth and gave way to Hubbell, who was walloped ufmercifully. "Pie" Traynor made five hits, including a homer, in five trips to the plate.

Wray Brown Again Wins Central States Tennis Title, Defeating Ted Drewes in Final Match

Former Champion Takes One Set and Makes Brilliant Fight for Crown — Brown and Kammann Meet Drewes and Barr Today for Doubles Championship.

By Davison Obear.

Wray Brown retained his title as Central States tennis champion by defeating Ted Drewes in the final round of the tournament at the Triple A Club yesterday afternoon. The match required four sets, Brown winning by a 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2 score.

As a result of his victory over Drewes yesterday Brown gained a second leg on the Triple A singles trophy. He won the first leg last year. The Triple A is also presenting challenge cups for the doubles event this year.

In the singles final Brown gained a lead in the first set and appeared as a certain winner over Drewes. The former Central States champion, however, overcame a 3-to-1 lead and brought the score to 4-all. Brown won the next two games and the set at 6—4.

Both players used a chop stroke during the entire match. Drewes was more accurate in the second set despite the early lead which Brown gained. With the score 4-all Drewes played brilliantly and captured the next two games and the set.

Brilliant 'Rallies.

In the third set Brown had less difficulty and only lost three games. Drewes made a number of outs and nets during the first seven games. The eighth game was the best in the entire four sets. Drewes and Brown played 16 points before Brown won the game. In this game Brown made eight placements and Drewes three.

Drewes showed signs of fatigue at the end of the third set. After the 10-minute rest it was thought that he would improve his game. Brown, however, sarted the set with a rush and won four straight games. Drewes made a large number of nets and outs and won only two games in the set. Brown won his set at 6—2.

After the singles match H. M. Hess, chairman of the Triple A Tennis Committee presented Brown with the challenge cup. He will retain the trophy for a year, and if he wins it again next season it will become his permanent property.

Stroke Analysis.

The point score and stroke analysis follows:

										Pts.	Games
First set—
Brown	4	7	6	2	1	0	5	3	4	4—40	6
Drewes	1	5	4	4	4	6	0	1	1—35		4
Second set—
Drewes	4	0	1	0	3	4	7	4	0—33		6
Brown	1	4	4	4	5	1	5	1	4	3—31	4
Third set—
Brown	4	4	4	1	4	4	0	0	5	—35	6
Drewes	2	0	3	4	1	3	4	7	5	—33	3
Fourth set—
Brown	4	4	5	4	1	1	4	5	—24		6
Drewes	0	1	3	0	4	4	0	3	—15		2

Recapitulation: Brown—Sets 3, games 22, points 130, double faults 3, netted balls 36, placements 24, outs 54. Drewes—Sets 1, games 15, points 116, netted balls 52, double faults 4, placements 17, outs 40, aces 1.

Umpire—Dale Morton. Net judge—W. F. Davis. Foot-fault judge — John Barr. Linesmen—H. M. Hess, F. O. Jostles, C. W. Barnes, F. C. Stuckman, R. Miller.

John Barr of Dallas and Ted Drewes advanced to the final round of the Central States doubles event by defeating the team of Elmer Schwarz and Ted Heuermann in straight sets. The score was 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

Promising Match.

The result of this match was somewhat of a surprise as Schwarz and Heuermann were expected to extend their opponents. Barr and Drewes gained most of their points by good overhead strokes from the net position. Both players are tall and they hit the ball hard and with good accuracy yesterday.

Brown and Kammann also reached the final round by winning from Phil Bagby and John W. Hubbell, the Kansas City players. The local team had the advantage throughout the contest. Bagby and Hubbell made the best showing of the match in the second set when they won three games. The final score was 6-2, 6-3, 6-1.

One of the best tennis matches of the season is expected this afternoon when Barr and Drewes play Brown and Kammann in the final round of the Central States doubles. Both teams have come through the tournament without much opposition. It is impossible to predict which pair will win the title but Barr and Drewes will enter the contest as slight favorites over Brown and Kammann.

Gibbons Hailed as Hero Upon Arrival at His Home in St. Paul

Challenger, Who Took Champion Dempsey's Punches for 15 Rounds on July 4, Faces His Friends With a Pair of Discolored Eyes.

By Bert Igoe,
The Post-Dispatch's Eastern Boxing Authority.

ST. PAUL, MINN., July 7.—Tom Gibbons played the role of conquering hero returned from the wars to-day when the Great Northern flyer pulled into the home town of the man who has grown suddenly famous because of having escaped knockout at the hands of the man grizzly. From the time Gibbons, with his wife, three small sons and a few close helpers, left Shelby on Thursday night he has been tendered ovations receptions and ovations that a Presidential candidate would jolly well have accepted.

The train was over two hours late at one stage of the journey into St. Paul, but this didn't prevent the Gibbons rooters from gathering at the stations along the line to greet the man who had taken Dempsey's wallops and lived to smile at the end of 15 rounds. At Fargo, N. D., for instance, the liveliest crowd of all was waiting patiently at 1 o'clock in the morning and when the train pulled into the station a tremendous cheer went up.

Gibbons was routed out of his berth and went to the observation platform where he made his bow and thanked them for their reception.

Fathers lifted young sons up to shake the hand that shook the hand of the world's champion, at the end of a distance the students of the game said he'd never reach.

Gibbons Enjoys It All.

Gibbons grinning like a big school boy, seemed to enjoy the different receptions greatly. His real big thrill came when he arrived at St. Paul.

In the station itself the crowd was not as great as the gathering at Fargo, but that was explained when it was learned that the railroad officials feared to let the Gibbons rooters into the yards because of the chances of accidents. In the crowds there was a tremendous chairing committee.

Gibbons was carried shoulder high to an automobile that was to carry himself and party to the St. Paul town country club where a real warrior's home coming breakfast was spread.

Gibbons faced his friends with a pair of black eyes. His eyes had become discolored on the trip home. When he left Shelby this discoloration, was not noticeable, but when he stepped off the train at St. Paul there was no denying that he had been in a fracas of some sort. He laughed about the eyes and said that it might have been much worse had all the predictions come true. That is sort of laughing at the boys.

Thinks He Can Do Better.

Last night Tommy sat down in a corner of his car with the writer and talked Dempsey. He is amazingly candid about his showing. He thinks he can do much better. He like Dempsey, does not think he fought his real fight. Oddly enough he says he made the mistake of failing in on Dempsey all the time instead of really trying to outbox and outpoint the titleholder. This is the only thing, according to Dempsey's way of thinking, that saved Tom from the looked-for k. o.

Dempsey declared that Tom saved himself from extermination by falling in and clinching.

"If he had stood off and beaten me, I would surely have knocked him out," said Dempsey after the fight.

"If I had bored at long range I would have done better and might have won," said Gibbons.

So much for individual opinion among the parties of the first and second part.

"I want to box him again," said Gibbons last night with all the earnestness of a man who believe he made mistakes in his first try.

"I have been offered 14 weeks to show business and I'll take the job. I've been working, but I haven't made any money."

And Gibbons chuckled over his predicament. The strangest of any challenger in the history of boxing. It was not very generous with him in a money way but he is the hero of the meeting with the champion. I can't remember a defeated man getting greater ovations unless it was Jim Corbett when he returned to San Francisco after Bob Fitzsimmons had knocked him out at Carson City. As for Dempsey, in my opinion the man o' war of the ring entered a stake race without having at least a qualifying sprint under his belt. Dempsey was short.

McGovern in Europe.

John T. McGovern of Cornell, an officer of the American Olympic committee, a director of the Public Schools Athletic League and International representative of the I. C. A. A. A., has sailed for Europe to assist Bevil Rudd of Oxford in preparing for and carrying on the track and field meeting of Yale and Harvard with Oxford and Cambridge University at Wembley.

Olympic candidates will be interested to know that on July 15 in Paris will be held a meeting of the special committee on housing of the athletes there in 1924. Col. Robert H. Thompson, president of the American Olympic committee, and Major Gen. Henry T. Allen are already on the ground making a preliminary survey. It is hoped to house the athletes in a good hotel.

Norman Ross Training.

Norman Ross of the Illinois A. C. has been training for the outdoor season and is expected to figure prominently in the longer free style events.

Indians Score 27 Runs, Setting New Record for A. L.

Speaker's Men Tally in Every Inning and Put Over 13 Markers in Sixth.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., July 7.—The largest score ever compiled by American League club was registered by Cleveland this afternoon when it defeated Boston in the first half of the double-header, 27 to 3. The previous record was 24 to 2, set by Philadelphia against Detroit, May 18, 1912.

The Indians also tied the record by scoring in every inning and came within one run of tying the American League record by scoring 13 runs in the sixth inning.

Cleveland also won the second game, 8 to 5. By winning both games the Indians took undisputed possession of second place.

BROWNS BEAT YANKS 13 TO 3 IN SPITE OF TWO HOMERS BY RUTH

him for a home run with two men on base. The Yanks regarded the pounding of Oscar in his own home town as a sort of humorous skit, but Oscar took it exceptionally seriously.

The Yanks counted their three runs in solo style. Ruth hit a homer in the first, he singled and scored on Pipp's double in the fourth and drove out a homer in the eighth. He scored all the Yankee runs. "Babe" doesn't regard himself as the season's flattest failure at all. He has 18 homers to his credit now and is only four behind Cy Williams of the Phillies.

Pruett to Pitch Today.

The third game of the series will be played today. "Shucks" Pruett, who has won one of the two Brown victories in 10 games with the Yanks, is scheduled to pitch for the Browns. He will be opposed by Jones, Bush or Pennock. Huggins doesn't worry much about his pitchers this year. They fall him about once in 10 games.

Sisler Views Contest.

George Sisler occupied a box over the Browns' bench with President Ball and Vice President Pritsch. He reached out and shook hands with McManus after Marty had driven over the left field fence with two men on base in the seventh.

George, who watches the play of his team very closely, entered the realm of statisticians when he pointed out that Wallie Gerber has made seven straight hits off Bob Shawkey. Walter made four out of four off Bob in New York and three out of three while the former sailor was in there yesterday.

Ruth's Drive Breaks Plate Glass Window.

A ball driven by "Babe" Ruth, in practice before the Browns-Yankee game at Sportsman's Park this afternoon, cleared the right field fence and broke a plate glass window in the show room of the Igoe Motor Co., 2102 North Grand boulevard. E. H. Rodgers of 4453 San Francisco avenue, who was standing in the show room, was scratched by flying glass.

Tough for Tice.

George Tice, Flint outfielder, is having a tough season. He broke a leg two days before the season opened. He got back in the game recently, played three games, turned an ankle and is on the shelf again. It is feared he may not be able to play again all season.

TIGERS CAPTURE TWO TILTS FROM MACKMEN

DETROIT, July 7.—Detroit's Tigers, showing unusual signs of life, clambered into a tie for third place in the American League standings with Philadelphia by defeating the Athletics in both sections of today's doubleheader, 9 to 6 and 5 to 3.

Three Mackian hurlers were shoved into the opening fray, Walberg, Kellett and Hasty seeing duty while Detroit's old reliable, George Dauss, went the route in behalf of his mates. The second battle developed into a high class duel between Ed Rommel and Herman Pillette.

Each game was featured from a distance hitting standpoint by a home run. Miller sent the ball over the score board in the eighth inning of the opener, with one runner being on. Heilmann cracked out one in the longest home runs ever seen on Navin field when he smashed the ball over the fence near the flag pole in the eighth of the last game. Cobb was on base at the time.

Hawaiian Net Stars To Play Here

Davis Cup Team to Meet Brown, Drewes and Kammann in Exhibitions.

Harold M. Hess, chairman of the Triple A Club tennis committee, announced last night that the Davis cup tennis team from Hawaii will play exhibition matches with local players on the Triple A courts Tuesday afternoon. The team is on its way to New York and will meet the Australian players in a Davis cup match at Orange, N. J., starting July 26.

The Hawaiian team is composed of William Ecklund, Richard Cook and Bowie Detrick. Ecklund has won the singles championship of Hawaii seven different times. The team is expected in St. Louis tomorrow night and will stop at the Chase Hotel.

Wray Brown, Ted Drewes and Karl Kammann will engage in matches with the Hawaiian players on Tuesday afternoon. The matches will be open to the public and will start at 2:30 o'clock. There will be both singles and doubles contests.

ZEV NAMED FOR ILLINOIS DERBY AT HAWTHORNE, JULY 14

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Fourteen of the country's greatest 3-year-olds have been nominated for the first running of the Illinois Derby, carrying an added value of $10,000, at the Hawthorne track, Saturday, July 14. The list includes Zev, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Belmont Stakes.

Other entries are King of the Spa, the Ulster, Allie Ochs, Winner Take All, Tiocon, Prince K., the Clown, Miss Corina, Golden Rule, In Memoriam and Setting Sun.

Women Swimmers Set Two World Records

By the Associated Press.

LONG BEACH, N. Y., July 7.—TWO world records were broken and one American standard was established by girls at the opening swimming meet in the Olympic Pool today.

Miss Sybil Bauer, of the Illinois A. C., Chicago, lowered her own world record for the 150 yard back stroke swim from 2:03 to 2:01 3-5. On her way to her new international standard she established an American record of 100 meters in 1:26.

Miss Gertrude Ederle, of the Women's swimming association of New York, swimming the 100 yard handicap in a 50-foot pool against two team mates, clipped 4-5 of a second from the world record set by Minnie Devry of Chicago. Miss Ederle's time was 1:05.

SCHAUER JUMPS ST. JOE.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 8.—Rube Schauer, pitcher sent to St. Joseph by Minneapolis a few weeks ago, jumped the club Monday and returned to his home in Minneapolis saying promises made him were not kept by the club owners. His going leaves four pitchers with the Saints.

Bethlehem Plays Bethany.

Bethlehem and Bethany are scheduled to play this afternoon in the feature game of the Concordia League at Federal Park. A victory for Bethlehem will put the team in first place. Bethany has a 5-1 record, while Bethlehem's mark is 6-2. Grace meets Elona in the first tilt, scheduled to start at 1:30 o'clock.

HAGEN TURNS IN 68 CARD FOR 18 HOLES

Sarazen and Black Get 71s, and Bobby Jones a 72—Winners Score 9 Points to Only Two for Losers.

By the Associated Press.

INWOOD, N. Y., July 7.—Leading golfers of the East triumphed today over links aces of the West in a series of team matches on the picturesque bayside course of the Inwood Country Club, where on Monday the qualifying rounds of the national open championship will be started.

The Eastern outfit in six matches contested under the Nassau scoring system, one point for first nine, one point for second and one for match, defeated the Westerners, nine points to two. The showing of the team from beyond the Alleghenies was disappointing, notwithstanding that the Eastern players all were shooting at the top of their game, some turning in cards of par or under.

The greatest interest of the galleries was centered in the clash between Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen and John Black and Jock Hutchison. Hutchison, the great Scot, and Black, grizzled veteran who came within a stroke of the open championship at Skokie last year, turning in a card of 289 against Sarazen's 288, played an excellent game, but Sarazen and Hagen were shooting invincible golf.

Hagen Turns in a 68.

Hagen and Sarazen had the best ball of 66, six under par for the course, while Black and Hutchison's best ball was 69, three under par. Hagen's card was a 68. Sarazen and Black had 71s and Hutchison a 73.

Hagen Out	4	5	4	5	4	3	2	3	4	—36
Sarazen Out	5	4	4	5	4	3	4	3	5	—38
Black Out	4	4	4	4	5	4	4	5	4	—38

Black In	4	5	3	4	4	3	4	3	4	—33—71
Hutchison In	4	5	3	4	3	4	4	4	4	—34—73

Next in interest was the amateur contest between Robert T. Jones Jr., of Atlanta, and J. S. Worthington, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., substituting for Francis Ouimet and Rudolph Knepper, of Sioux City and Charles "Chick" Evans, of Chicago. They finished all square at the end of a brilliant match.

Worthington, a moustached veteran, was erratic at times, but Jones' great driving and iron play offset this handicap. Knepper was slightly off his game, continually slicing and pulling into trouble. Evans, however, was a match for Jones. Both played brilliantly.

The amateurs' cards follow:

Worthington Out	5	5	5	6	4	3	4	4	—41
Jones Out	4	5	4	5	5	4	3	4	—38
Evans Out	4	5	5	4	3	4	3	5	—38

Mehlhorn and Partner Lose.

Bob Cruikshank, Westfield, N. J., and Willie Ogg, Worcester, Mass., won one point for the East against William Mehlhorn and Jack Burke, St. Paul. Jim Barnes and John Farrell, New York, won 2 points against MacDonald Smith of Los Angeles and Emmet French, Youngstown, Ohio. Cyril Walker, Englewood, N. J., and Clarence Hackney, of Atlantic City, counted two points against Laurie Ayton, Evanston, Ill., and Harry Hampton, of Brooklands, Mich. Bob MacDonald, of Chicago and Mike Brady of Detroit, won the west's only points. Leo Diegel and Fred McLeod, of Washington. Hagen and Sarazen counted three points, against Hutchison and Black.

Trick Corner in Yanks' Park Will Be Removed

NEW YORK, July 7.—By the time the Yankees return from their next trip to the West, which began on July 6, a famous landmark of the new Stadium will be no more.

The "Bloody Angle," that little corner of deep right field now guided by a low fence, is to be removed.

At the sacrifice of a box seat or two, the corner of the lower grandstand is to be cut away and the foul line will extend to the bleacher fence.

No more freak home runs when this is done. Eight or ten have bounded in there so far this year, but a curious part of it is that but one was hit by a Yankee. And in chasing a ball one day Babe Ruth bounded in there, too, on his head, and gave a lot of folks a thrill for fear he had lost his skull or a pair of arms.

This will make the right field foul line of the Yankee park about 218 feet in length, or almost the same as the left field line.

Giants Sign Collegian.

Walter Huntzinger, pitcher for the University of Pennsylvania, has signed a contract with the New York Giants. Huntzinger will not report, however, until August 31, when the college limit will be raised to 35.

Bernstein Demands $4000 Guarantee

Tells Boxing Commission He Will Not Get Into Ring Unless Money Is Paid.

Jack Bernstein, junior lightweight champion, appeared before the Boxing Commission yesterday and demanded that he be guaranteed his $4000 by that body for his match with Harry Kabakoff, local boxer, before the Lafayette A. C. at the Coliseum Tuesday night, it was announced last night by J. B. Moran, a member of the commission.

In order to get the junior lightweight champion here, Tommy Sullivan had guaranteed him $4000 and three round-trip tickets.

Sullivan was present at the meeting, and asserted that it was unusual for a boxer to be paid before fighting, and that he did not have the money, but relied on the ticket sales.

The commission instructed Sullivan to show evidence by noon Monday that the money would be put up.

According to Moran, Bernstein announced that he would not get into the ring unless he got his money.

Bernstein and Kabakoff are scheduled to box 10 rounds at 131 pounds.

Jimmy Murphy, local veteran, and Jimmy Russo meet in the eight-round semiwindup at 117½ pounds. Two four-round contests also are scheduled. Nick Kube and Walter Rowlands, 130-pounders, meet in one and Russell Kinder and Pat Gaynor, 145-pounders, battle in the other.

In addition to the boxing matches, Jack Fisher, lightweight wrestling champion, meets Al Wasem, local challenger, following the main event.

Margaret Dillon Sets New Season's Record

By the Associated Press.

NORTH RANDALL, Cleveland, July 7.—Pacing the fastest mile of the season and setting a new record for the event on this track, Margaret Dillon, driven by Thomas Murphy, Syracuse, N. Y., repeated her victory at the last August meeting here in the free for all pace today.

Single G., the 13-year-old pacer finished a scant neck behind in the mile, getting away to a bad start and was the victim of an accident in the third heat when he got his foot caught in the wheel of John Henry's sulkey and went down. Neither the aged horse nor Ed Allen, his driver, was injured.

Fast miles featured the day's racing.

The first heat was the fastest run by harness racers this season. In stepping it in 1:59 2-5 and the second mile in 2:02 2-5, Margaret Dillon raced the two fastest miles of the year.

Margaret Dillon's sulkey wheel caught in some knee spreaders that Sir Roche wore and this apparently cost her the third heat.

Sir Roche, driven by Ed "Pop" Geers set a terrific pace in the first mile. He stepped the first quarter in 29 2-5 seconds, the half in 59 2-5 and the three quarters in 1:30 2-5.

By winning the 2:10 trot with Alma Worth and the 2:20 trot with Jene Axworthy McDonald of Indianapolis drove his only two mounts of the day to victory.

In winning the third heat of the 2:16 class trot, Delmar, owned by Taylor and Bowman, Memphis, Tenn., and driven by Sandy Taylor in 2:07 2-5, established a world's double gaited record for mares. She has a pacing record of 2:03¼.

Bill Tilden and Weiner Defeated

Helen Wills Advances to Final in Illinois Tennis Tourney.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Manuel Alonzo of Spain won the feature event today in the Illinois State tennis tournament when he defeated Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3, in the semi-finals of the men's singles before 2500 spectators.

The Yankee chopstroke king played noteworthy tennis, but it was not strong enough to cope with the brilliant style of the Spanish star, whose cross court drives were spectacular.

William Tilden of Philadelphia and Sandy Weiner of Germantown, his protege, went down to defeat in the doubles semi-finals before Walter Hayes, Chicago veteran, and Walter Wesbrook of Detroit. The score: 10-12, 7-9, 6-0, 6-3, 6-4, was indicative of the strong rally made by the two Walters, when their defeat seemed likely.

The western combination won the match largely because of the untiring and sensational play of Wesbrook, a southpaw. His four aces on Tilden, the national champion, constituted only a part of his excellent all around work.

Miss Helen Wills, 17-year-old star of Berkeley, Cal., advanced to the finals in women's singles and tomorrow will meet Miss Marion Leighton of Chicago for State honors. She had no trouble today in defeating Mrs. Leo Alter of Chicago in straight sets, 6-0, 6-0.

The other matches tomorrow will be between Tilden and Alonzo in men's singles and between Wesbrook and Hayes and Alonzo and Johnson in doubles finals.

BATTLING SIKI WILL RECEIVE NOTHING FOR NILLES CONTEST TODAY

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 7.—Battling Siki made a pathetic appeal to Judge Escoffier, of the French Civil tribunal this afternoon against what he termed the "Persecution" to which he has been subjected for the past several months, culminating in an attachment placed by one of his numerous former managers on any and all purses or stakes for which the battler may fight in the future.

M. Edmond Lapart, of Toulouse, was the plaintiff in the case. He already had a lien on Siki's end of the purse for his fight against Morelle on June 2, and today an injunction was served upon the promoters forbidding them to pay the Senegalese any money for fighting Marcel Nilles tomorrow. M. Lapart, who was one of Siki's earliest managers, holds what his lawyers claim is a perfectly legal and binding contract entitling him to 30 per cent of Siki's earnings. The contract is dated 1918. Siki has had a baker's dozen or so managers so far. The Senegalese who has been training earnestly for the Nilles battle tomorrow, appeared in low spirits. He said:

"I am tired of fighting for glory. I got only chicken feed when I licked Carpentier. Why don't they let up on me? I need money for my family."

The court postponed judgment until July 14. Meanwhile Siki will not receive a single centime for fighting Nilles.

Ed Collins Leads Big Leagues In Stealing Bases

White Sox Captain Has Stolen 26 Times Thus Far—Cobb Steals One Base.

The stolen base is becoming more important in baseball. During the era of the lively ball its place was minimized because a runner gained little by attempting to steal. The man behind him was entirely likely to drive the ball out for a long hit and permit him to score without testing the catcher's arm. John McGraw and others who should know say that the lively ball has gone, and that baseball is coming back to its old place, where speed and cleverness count.

Eddie Collins, captain of the Chicago White Sox, has stolen 26 bases this year. He stole only 19 in 1920, only 12 in 1921 and 20 last season. With half of the present season gone, he has passed his total for any one of the last three years. Certainly there must be a reason.

Just Running.

But Eddie Collins cannot explain it in any other way than this:

"I guess it's just because I'm running more. I like to run bases, and the opportunities have presented themselves more frequently this season than in the immediate past. I don't believe the ball has changed materially. It doesn't seem any different now than it has for the past few years. It's just a question of opportunities."

Collins is leading both major leagues in the matter of stolen bases. It is nothing new or novel for him, even though he is now 36 years old, according to the record book. He stole 81 bases in 1910 with the old Philadelphia Athletics and 88 the next year with the same club. He has stolen more than 80 bases in two seasons, more than 60 in two, more than 50 in three and more than 40 in two. That is a record for all of them to seek. This is his eighteenth season in the American League. He joined the Athletics in 1906 before he had graduated from Columbia University, New York. He later returned to finish out his course, but played with Philadelphia during the regular season.

Ty Cobb, the only base stealer to whom Collins had to bow in the past, has stolen only one base this season. Collins cannot explain that other than by taking the converse of his explanation of his own success.

"I suppose he isn't running," he said.

So it seems to simmer down to a question of whether you happen to be running. Of course, Ed forgot to say that there is a lot of ability needed in base stealing. Many men have been running bases through the course of their baseball careers, but have gone no place. You must know how and when to run. Eddie Collins knows how.

CUBS WIN TWO GAMES FROM SEVENTH PLACERS

BOSTON, July 7.—Chicago took both games from the Braves this afternoon, the first, 9 to 1, and the second, 5 to 3, making the Cub record for the season, to date eight victories and one defeat against Boston.

Alexander was hit often in the first game, but showed his mastery by keeping the tribe away from the plate except in the first inning. On the other hand, the Genewich and Benton offerings were combed viciously early in the game, and McNamara's excellent work late in the game was wasted.

Kaufmann's work in the second game in the box was fortunate. His stuff was banged right on the nose, but usually some active Bruin got in the way. Marquard was off color. Oeschger, the relief man, shut out the Bruins in the last four frames.

Accuracy From the Tees Will Be Necessary at Inwood, Sarazen Says

U. S. Open Golf Champion Tells How He Plans to Play Each Stroke in Championship Tournament Which Opens Monday.

By Gene Sarazen,
U. S. Open Golf Champion.

The Inwood Country Club course has been changed considerably since I played in the professional championship in 1921. At that time I considered it, a most excellent lay-out but with the new changes it is one of the most interesting and severest tests to be found anywhere in the country.

I played Inwood the other day in a practice round and the conclusions I came to when I had finished was that there will be plenty of excitement during the open championship which begins Monday.

At present the fairways are very fast and the greens soft and true. These conditions, of course, are ideal for fast golf and low scoring. I think the golf will be swift indeed this year—it is getting more so every season—but despite the dry condition of the fairways scoring won't be as easy as some imagine it will.

To begin with there is plenty of length at Inwood and all of the greens are exceedingly well trapped—in some places extremely so. There is always a wind on this seaside course and very troublesome rough.

Now if a player gets to hooking or slicing on a fast course where there is also a wind he is going to get into more trouble than if the links were slow and heavy. That means that the man who is straight, especially with his tee shots, is going to have a big advantage.

Accuracy Is Essential.

If, meantime, we should get a few days of heavy rain conditions will be greatly changed, and the course will be even harder with its length and trouble. The long hitter would then have the advantage and the man who can play a long iron shot will be in clover.

But regardless of whether conditions are fast or slow a contestant will have to play all of his shots carefully and accurately if he is to figure in this championship.

Long driving alone won't suffice. In fact on some holes you do better to take an iron from the tee. No, simply hitting the ball will mean nothing if you haven't thought out the shot in advance.

There will be the wind, the rough, the traps and length to consider. And if you disregard these elements and go slashing away you are going to encounter trouble and high scores in every direction.

Has Planned Every Stroke.

I will describe each of the holes and then explain what is the best way of playing to the green. We shall play this round here much as I hope to play it in the championship.

No. 1—distance 343 yards, par 4—Opening to green is narrow and of a hog's-back formation. Failure to be up with your second shot means that you will be playing your third out of a trap near the green. This hole calls for a straight drive and a mashie-niblick shot.

No. 2—distance 371 yards, par 4—The tee on this hole has been moved back into the marsh some 50 yards, so that you have to carry a stretch of marsh. There is a pond in front of tee to catch topped drives. There is a large shallow bunker extending out a distance of 175 yards. The green is open and built up behind, but there is a pond to the right to catch a sliced second and bunkers on the sides and in back. There are two ways of playing the hole: If you elect to carry the pit you have a fairly easy mashie shot left; if you keep to the left and avoid the pit you have at least a full iron shot for your second. It is best on this hole to keep over to the left all the way, as the green is opened up from that direction and offers a better second shot.

No. 3—distance 522 yards, par 5—There is a new tee on this hole also that has been put back 50 yards or more. This is a good three-shotter, and calls for a lot of hitting. If you get a good drive you can get home with a following wind, otherwise you will do well to get a 5.

Sounds Like Much Trouble.

No. 4—distance 530 yards, par 5—This is another three-shotter. A new high green has been built to the right of the old one. The green is long and narrow, and calls for a short mashie-niblick pitch after a good drive and brassie. There are large traps on both sides of the fairway all the way along.

The opening to the green is narrow, and breaks to the left, while at the back it slopes off. The contour of the fairway is curving, so that one must be accurate both on the drive and second shot. A ball can easily kick into trouble here if you are even a little off the line. The game is to drive out to the right, play your second over to the left side and then pitch on.

No. 5—distance 519 yards, par 5—Here again a new tee has been moved back some 30 yards, so that it is almost in the water. There is heavy wire grass to the right and intersecting ditches. A large bunker extends half way across the fairway 200 yards from green and a smaller pit 400 yards from tee has to be carried if a player wants to get home on his second. If you are straight here you can get your 5 easily enough.

No. 6—This is the first short hole—distance 177 yards, par 3. The green is heavily trapped, so that a missed shot here means trouble.

No. 7—Another short hole—distance 223 yards—par 3—There is out of bounds to the right and trees and rough to the left. This hole calls for accuracy and a driving iron or better, perhaps, depending on the wind, a wooden shot.

No. 8—Distance 418 yards, par 4—Fairway rather wide with traps to the right and in back of the green. This hole is a drive and about a No. 4 iron shot.

No. 9—This is the old twelfth hole—distance 360 yards, par 4. To the right is out of bounds and to the left a line of bunkers. The green is a punch bowl affair with a bunker in front. Ordinarily you might use a driver and a mashie-niblick, but because of the situation of the hole the best way to play, I believe, is to use a mashie-iron from the tee. That will leave you a full mashie shot for your second and the chance to bang the ball up to the pin without fear of going over.

The distance of this first nine is 3463, and par is 37.

Long Irons, Straight Tee Shots.

No. 10—295 yards, par 4—This is a very small green, well guarded. It is rather dangerous to try and carry green. Best to use driver or spoon play short and chip up.

No. 11—This hole, formerly the ninth, measures 421 yards, par 4. There are sand dunes and a bunker on the right and a row of trees on the left. You can get home with a mashie here.

No. 12—This is the old tenth hole, the pond carry of 108 yards, par 3. You can get par easily enough if accurate, but not if you miss the shot.

No. 13—distance 420 yards, par 4—This hole calls for a drive diagonally over a row of trees to reach fairway. It is no longer possible to play this hole via the eighteenth fairway. The second shot calls for an iron.

No. 14—This is the only par 5 hole on the inward nine—distance 497 yards.—There is out of bounds on the right and a large trap on the left calling for accurate play. The opening to the green is narrow. The green is quite large. This hole is a drive and an iron or spoon and it pays to be up here on your second shot.

No. 15—The last short hole—distance 173 yards, par 3. The tee here has been moved back about 25 yards. Now it is a good mashie iron shot where formerly it was a mashie-niblick. The green is of the plateau type, with a slope to the left.

No. 16—A dog-leg hole of 425 yards, par 4. From an elevated tee the drive calls for a shot over line of trees which form out of bounds. There is also out of bounds on left. The way to play this hole is to hug the trees or slice the drive, in which case you will be able to get home with an iron.

No. 17—Distance 425 yards, par 4. This is a drive and a mishie shot. Green is bunkered in back and on the sides.

No. 18—Distance 425 yards, par 4. This is a fine finishing hole. Bunker at left 200 yards from tee to catch a pulled drive. A pond guards the green at right. Second shot is all carry and is easily a full iron shot. In back of green is a road and on the right side a narrow bunker.

Thus it will be seen that Inwood puts a premium on long iron play and on accurate driving. The long hitter will have some advantage if he is straight. And as I stated before, a player will want to look over the lay of the land carefully before playing his second shots.

M. H. SEXTON SUPPORTS HICKEY IN RIOT CASE

By the Associated Press.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., July 7.—In answer to the criticism directed against President Hickey of the American Association by Manager Kelly of the St. Paul club for the manner in which the league president reprimanded the St. Paul team for the recent riot in that city, President M. H. Sexton of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs today issued the following statement:

"It was upon the express request and direction of my office that President Hickey imposed such a severe reprimand upon the St. Paul club and individual members of the team for the recent outbreak. No possible excuse or provocation can condone outbreaks such as this, and in every instance where the league executive fails to inflict proper penalties the National Association will step in and see that the offenders get their just deserts."

Sweetser Wins Victory Cup

Champion Defeats Sandy Armour and Gains Permanent Possession of Trophy.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Playing the same relentless golf that won him the amateur championship at Brookline last year, Jesse Sweetser today gained permanent possession of the Victory cup at the Wykagyl Country Club by defeating A. ("Sandy") Armour, 6 up and 5 to play.

Sweetser took the lead on the first hole and was never headed. He was out in 35 to Armour's 39 and made the turn 4 up on Sandy. The match ended on the thirteenth green when Jess and Sandy halved the hole with par 3 figures.

Sweetser's golf today was annihilating. He was long for the fee and all his iron shots were played with a crispness that carried them straight to the pin. His work with the putter, while not so brilliant as his play with the other clubs, was consistently good.

Sweetser Beats Anderson.

In the morning Sweetser beat Johnny Anderson, 2 up and 2 to play. In winning Jess went around in 72, par for the course, but Johnny also played nice golf and made the turn for home 1 up on Sweetser.

On the homecoming nine our champion settled down to business and ended matters on the sixteenth green. His card on the last nine was dotted with three birdies and an eagle. This gives an idea of the golf Jess was putting forth.

Sweetser started right after Armour in the final match. He won the first hole in par figures and became 2 up at the second when he got a birdie 3. The third and fourth holes were halved with par 4s, but Jess got his siege guns working on the 397 yard fifth hole and got another birdie 3 by virtue of a fine drive and a great second shot that left him four feet from the pin. Armour just missed a half on this hole when his first putt of 40 yards rimmed the cup. This put Jess 3 up in the five holes played.

The champion kept up his fine play and won the sixth, when Armour took three putts to get down. The short seventh hole was also Sweetser's, Armour's drive landing in a pit, and Sandy took a 4, making him 5 down. The eighth was halved, but Sandy got a birdie 4 on the long ninth hole and made the turn 4 down to Jess.

Match Ended on 13th Green.

But Sweetser refused to slow down. They halved the tenth, Sweetser making a fine recovery from the sand pit, pitching his third shot right up to the pin. Then Jess opened his bag of great guns and let two birdies fly out, leaving Armour dormie 6.

On the thirteenth Sandy made a game effort to prolong the match, his first shot landing on the edge of the green and about twenty feet from the hole. But his putt trickled past the rim of the cup and Jess got his halve, ending the match and giving Sweetser his third Victory Cup triumph.

Their cards follow:

Out Sweetser	4	3	4	4	2	4	2	5	5	—35

NEW YORK SATISFIED WITH RECENT DEAL

NEW YORK, July 7. — Analyzing the deal whereby the Giants became the possessors of John Watson, pitcher, and Hank Gowdy, catcher, in exchange for Jess Barnes, pitcher, and "Oil" Smith, catcher, it would appear that the Giants got the better of the trade from a pitching standpoint, and the Braves the better between the catchers.

Though Watson hasn't won as many games as Barnes this year, he is a younger man, a tougher man, and can be used oftener. Barnes had to have careful handling. He was good about once a week. There were stories afloat last fall that his pitching arm wasn't just right. He dispelled them in the World's Series, but they cropped up again this spring when he wasn't used in regular turn with the other Giant pitchers.

Peoria Oarsmen Win Regatta; St. Louisan Stars

August Muckler Wins Both Single Sculls Races—Century Club in Third Place.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DECATUR, Ill., July 7.—Going into the final event of the sixteenth annual Central States Amateur Rowing Association regatta on Lake Decatur here this afternoon two and a half points behind the Lincoln Park Boat Club of Chicago, the Illinois Valley Yacht and Canoe Club of Peoria, senior eight-oared crew rowed a beautiful race to defeat the Windy City oarsmen and captured their first point trophy in the history of the organization with a total of 161 points.

After a mishap had delayed the start of the eight-oared event, the three crews got away in good shape, but the Peoria and Century crews soon jumped into the lead and it was a great fight until the final quarter when the Ivy Club boys showed a burst of speed that carried them over the finish mark a good two and a half length ahead of the Centurys with the Lincoln Parks a poor third. It was the only victory of the afternoon for the Peoria oarsmen, but it gave them the point trophy and will give them the right to send their senior eight to the national regatta in Baltimore.

St. Louis Crews Win.

Oarsmen from the St. Louis club won two events with ease when they captured the senior four-oared shell event over the mile and a quarter course. The St. Louis men were not doped to win the event, but they went into the lead at the mile mark and finished ahead of the Peoria by a length.

As was the case Friday, the St. Louis club barge crew took the lead at the very start and were never in danger of defeat. The work of the Century Boat Club was the feature of the race for they were in fourth position at the last quarter, but came through with a wonderful drive to capture second place.

Muckler the Star.

August Muckler, the crack oarsman of the Western Rowing Club of St. Louis, won the two events, the quarter-mile dash for single shells aand the senior single shell race. The latter was especially trying on the oarsmen owing to the fact that the speed boats had cut up the water in their exhibition 10-mile race. Several of the boats had a hard time to finish, but Muckler's oarsmanship stood out in great shape, and he was an easy winner.

Point total: Illinois Valley Yacht and Canoe Club, Peoria, 161; Lincoln Park Boat Club, Chicago, 139½; Century Boat Club, St. Louis, 81; St. Louis Rowing Club, St. Louis, 78; Western Rowing Club, St. Louis, 41½; Central Rowing Club, St. Louis, 12½; North End Club, St. Louis, 8; Baden Rowing Club, St. Louis, 0.

Jerusalem Churchmen Appeal for Funds to Save Holy Places Heretofore Cared For by Russia

Western Church, Which Has Not Had Any Share in Preserving These Scenes Associated With Life of Christ, Urged to Take Up the Burden.

THE sacred places of the Holy Land—Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Nazareth, Olivet—are in danger.

The holy places in the life of Christ around which cluster so many precious memories for all those who acknowledge Christianity are calling for the help of the church of the United States, Canada, in fact, the entire world.

This is the message which has been flashed from one end of Christendom to the other. And the message has been heard. Already prominent American churchmen are organizing to give the much needed assistance and protection.

The Church of the Holy Sepulchre and the Chapel of St. Helena; Gethsemane, at the foot of Olivet; Church of the Virgin, where it is said the Virgin Mary was buried; Church of the Ascension, on the top of Mount Olive—these in Jerusalem; the Church of the Nativity, in Bethlehem; Church of the Neapolis, built on Jacob's well where the good Samaritan woman met Christ; Church of the Virgin at Nazareth, where Christ lived as a carpenter's son; Church of the St. Elias, on Mount Carmel, where Elijah had the contest with the prophets of Baal; Church of St. John, at Ain-Karin, where St. John was born—these are the most important of the sacred places in jeopardy.

The Eastern Orthodox Patriarchate of Jerusalem, one of four patriarchates of the Eastern Orthodox Church, which from time immemorial has cherished these sacred rites, is in such financial straits that its future guardianship of these holy places is in imminent jeopardy.

The Bishopric of Jerusalem, on which the Patriarchate of Jerusalem was subsequently based, dates back to James, "the Lord's brother," in the days of the Apostles. The Patriarch, with the Brotherhood of the Holy Sepulchre, which has grown up around him and of which he is the official head, has, with various vicissitudes and interruption, been the guardian, or at least the principal guardian, of the holy places, to which pilgrims and worshipers from all the nations and communions of Christendom have continually resorted. Christian churchmen have declared that words and figures cannot express the debt which the Christian world of today owes to the Patriarchate and Brotherhood for its preservation of these shrines through the centuries of the early church, the Dark Ages, the Crusades and since, down to the present day.

Western Church's Chance.

Americans who now are mobilizing to help believe that the Western church, which heretofore has not had any direct share in the responsibility for preserving these sacred places, should now have presented to it the opportunity and privilege of assuming such a share.

This opportunity comes to the American churchman largely as a result of the war. The constituency of the Patriarchate, comprising only about 100 churches, never was able in recent times to sustain its many activities by its own contributions. Besides the care of the shrines and the conduct of the services required, and the usual work of the churches themselves, the Patriarchate maintains and operates, or rather did until the war stopped them almost entirely, orphanages, hospitals and other eleemosynary institutions, grade and high schools, hospices, monasteries and a theological seminary. One of the educational institutions is located with the Patriarchate of Antioch. The care of pilgrims has been an immense and costly duty. During and since the war relief of every description has been administered to the native population and to refugees without sectarian discrimination.

The money to conduct these religious, educational, charitable and hospitable activities, over and above the relatively small percentage collected from the constituent churches, has come very largely from Russia, partly from Russian land holdings of the invested proceeds of the sale of such lands, and partly from the offerings of Russian pilgrims. It is calculated that by 1914 no less than 64 per cent of the whole income of the Patriarchate was derived from Russian sources. Other properties in the Holy Land itself and elsewhere produced additional funds through rentals and sales.

Russian Income Lost.

But for many years the revenues have been inadequate to meet running expenses, while the effect of the war has been to cut off absolutely all revenue from Russian sources, greatly reduce it from other sources, depreciate the purchasing power of all available funds and occasion extraordinary expenses and extraordinary borrowing, so that the debt has been run up until it stands today at $2,000,000.

The creditors are various: merchants, banks, professional money lenders and lay communicants. The securities given for payment are various. In the aggregate they constitute practically a mortgage on all the Patriarchate, through centuries of time and turmoil, have slowly acquired and faithfully held sacred. Substantially the entire revenue of the Patriarchate now comes from its rented properties. If the courts take these over for the benefit of its creditors, then the Patriarchate will be without substantial financial support and must collapse.

In that event not only will one of the most venerable and dignified historic institutions of the Christian faith dwindle, almost disappear, but the places made sacred by the human ministry of Christ must gradually become shabby for lack of funds for their upkeep.

Will the American church permit this to happen, is what the American Committee on Preservation of the Sacred Places in the Holy Land is asking of the people of the United States and Canada today. The committee points out that all of this would have happened before now but for the fact that the Government of Palestine has declared a special moratorium. This moratorium expires on Aug. 1, 1923, and there is no reason at this time to expect an extension.

The High Commissioner, Sir Herbert Samuel, appointed a commission of inquiry, which reported its findings two years ago, including measures advisable for liquidation of the debts of the Patriarchate. The basic measure advised was the appointment of an official commission of liquidation and control, to concern itself partly with re-establishment of a sound budget. The advice was acted upon, the commission was appointed and is now functioning.

Must Act by Aug. 1.

The amount of money which this commission has to apply on the debt after paying running expenses and interest charges out of receipts from the properties under its control is so small that it affords the commission no basis for negotiating with the creditors for further patience before taking legal action to realize on their accounts and securities, which they will have the right to do on Aug. 1. This is the principal reason why the American committee has been organized. The present running expenses represent only a bare skeleton of the former activities of the Patriarchate, all of which it ought to resume, it is

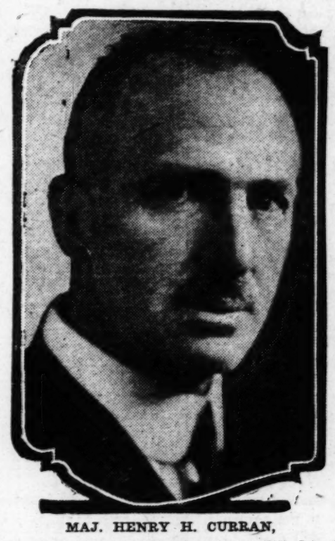
New Ellis Island Immigration Commissioner Tells of Need of Revision of the Quota Law

FINDS APPORTIONMENT ERRONEOUS AFTER WEEK IN OFFICE

Law Under Which 20 Per Cent of Total Allowed From Any One Nation in Year May Be Accepted in a Month Is the Cause of Racing Between Ships and the Attendant Hardships Among Immigrants and Overcrowding at Port.



MAJ. HENRY H. CURRAN,
New Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island

If This Percentage Were Cut in Half, the Present Intolerable Conditions Would Be Eliminated and a Better Class of Future Citizens Would Be Secured, Although Objections on Latter Ground Have Been Largely Overcome.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, July 7.

IMMIGRATION has suddenly become dramatic. Ever since America became the so-called Promised Land the wrinkled faces and burning eyes that have landed at Ellis Island from every ship have interested those with a turn for sentimental pathos. But during the last week immigration has changed from a labor problem and a sentimental problem into an international race rivaling the efforts of Sir Thomas Lipton. Every day the newspapers have told of the dash of ships to make port before the number of their Greek or Italian passengers allowed to enter the United States during July has been exhausted.

Maj. Henry H. Curran was landed on Ellis Island on July 1 to take charge of the horde that is arriving on every ship. Maj. Curran has had contact with immigrants before in several different capacities. Twenty-five years ago he was a ship news reporter, and for more than a year he described the arrivals of immigrants daily. As a magistrate in New York City later in life he became familiar with the troubles of arriving immigrants after they have been admitted to the Promised Land and started in business to collect the promise. He also helped to administer a fresh air fund and in that capacity came in contact with the humanitarian phases of the problems of immigration. But, one month ago he did not expect to be called upon to use his interest in immigrants, and now suddenly he has been confronted with some of the most baffling phases on one of the country's most troublesome and most important issues. In his speech at Spokane last week President Harding testified to the importance of the immigration problem by his statement that "another century will give us a population of probably 300,000,000." Secretary of Labor Davis is so much impressed with the perplexities of the immigration problem that he sailed Wednesday for Europe for the specific purpose of studying the problems of immigration from that end.

Interest Everywhere in Immigration

The night before he sailed the writer asked Secretary Davis to discuss some of the problems of immigration, but he said that he preferred to answer my questions upon his return from Europe, after he has studied the problem. He intends to visit Great Britain, France, Germany, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia, Italy, Turkey, Greece and the other countries that supply most of our immigrants. "I shall be able to talk to them in their own languages," said the Secretary. "I worked with men from all nations when I worked in the steel mills, and I learned enough to be able to get along."

But the problem of the moment is the problem of the Commissioner of Immigration, Henry H. Curran. I saw Maj. Curran at Ellis Island on the Fourth of July which happened also to be his fourth day in office. He wished first of all to make it clear that his impressions are first impressions, and that he will not be able to generalize until his experience warrants generalization.

"Immigration," said Maj. Curran, "is at present interesting to everybody. And everybody seems to have a plan to solve its problems immediately. People will tell you on the telephone how to deal with immigration thoroughly. I prefer to study it first, and fortunately I have the opportunity, for Congress is not in session and will not be in session until I have had a chance to consider some of the suggestions which should be presented to it by the Department of Labor.

"At present we have an immediate, pressing problem: how to get rid of thousands of immigrants weekly so that the couple of thousand arriving daily can be handled. Two-thirds of the immigrants who arrive in this country land at Ellis Island, and in the last four days I have been confronted with all the ramifications of that problem. During the last week and up to Saturday night we will have handled more than 16,000 immigrants. The most we can accommodate easily are 2000 each day, so you see that we have cause for work and worry."

"For those who can regard it impersonally," said Maj. Curran, "this race for port is a pretty problem in the nature of chess and with all the elements of a game of chess, because we never know exactly how many people we shall have to accommodate. Every time I look out of my window I seem to see another boat coming up the harbor." A few minutes later Maj. Curran got up to look out of the window, and there really was another boat coming up the harbor.

"But for those who are also interested in humanity our problem is not merely a pretty and perplexing game. What we do means comfort or lack of comfort for thousands, and I am interested in preventing suffering. Fortunately the weather has been with us. If we had hot weather, and if we get hot weather, there will be considerable suffering, because ventilation in ships usually works effectively only when the ship is under way and not when it is lying in port waiting to be unloaded."

"What effect has the present rush to fill quotas on the quality of the immigration?" I asked.

Quality of Immigrants Improving

"I cannot answer that exactly," said Maj. Curran, "but I am under the impression that the quality is slightly higher than the average. It is to the interest of the steamship companies to bring those who will be admitted, because in many instances the steamship companies must return passengers who fail to gain admission at the expense of the company and must also refund the passage money to this country. That ruling is in some measure responsible for the high quality of immigrants in spite of the rush.

Some of the immigrants who landed this week were Scotch jute spinners with jobs waiting for them in Brooklyn. There were also large numbers of Scotch and English mechanics, ship-builders and automobile workers who left immediately for the West where they are needed. I asked Maj. Curran whether any measures were taken to insure such proper distribution of immigrants with regard to their particular abilities as will get them jobs immediately.

"The humanitarian societies try to arrange for such distribution. Officially, we can do nothing to insure it. That is one of the many perplexing problems that must be worked out."

The present quota system provides that only 3 per cent of the nationals who were born abroad of any one nationality already resident here shall be admitted during the year. That is, 3 per cent of the Greeks who were resident here according to the 1910 census will be admitted this year, beginning July 1. During any one month of the year only 20 per cent of those 3 per cent are allowed to enter. I asked Maj. Curran if it would not be better to establish quotas on economic rather than artificial national standards.

Evils of 20 Per Cent Allotment

"I do not know enough about it yet," said the Commissioner. "But I can say now that the provision that 20 per cent of a quota be allowed in one month should be revised. That is the cause of our present rush. Only 10 per cent of each quota should be admitted each month. That would distribute the immigration throughout the year instead of bringing the bulk of it during the summer months."

"What did the framers of the law have in mind when they established 20 per cent each month?" I asked.

"Immigrants prefer to come here in spring and summer," said Maj. Curran. "It was in an effort to cater to this preference that the percentage was placed as high as 20. That is the cause of our present rush. The majority of immigrants prefer to come here when the skies are clear rather than in the cold winter weather. But that desire should not be catered to if it results in the present congestion. John Alden came here in winter, and the majority of the Pilgrims landed in cold weather. Some of the larger numbers who have followed these Pilgrims must do likewise. At present we have a few months of great overcrowding like the present condition at Ellis Island, and then in the winter months the pressure will be less. We shall have enough to do all winter, but the problem would be simplified if the percentage was changed from 20 and 10 and immigration was thereby distributed throughout the year."

Maj. Curran and the staff at Ellis Island have been working daily and Sunday and holidays. Last week the staff lost two holidays, Sunday and the Fourth of July. "I intend to make up those holidays to the staff sometime during the year," said Maj. Curran, "because I appreciate the fact that there has been no grumbling at the necessity to give them up. The staff should be mentioned in anything I say in the newspapers. The inspectors, in spite of the rush, have treated the immigrants courteously and with patience."

Commissioner Has No Director

"Another point I wish to make," Maj. Curran said, "is that I, as Commissioner, have no power to decide who shall be admitted to this country and who shall be excluded. People are generally under the impression that I am the judge. I am nothing but the administrator of a clearing house. All appeals on the decision of the Investigating Board go to Washington and are decided by the Secretary of Labor or his assistant. I can forward a recommendation after talking with the immigrant, but that is nothing like a suggestion, and that is the extent of my power. We are doing all we can to hurry decisions on appeals so that we can get as many immigrants off the island as fast as possible. These decisions have been forwarded by mail. Now they are being telephoned to this office from Washington. The Assistant Commissioner-General of Immigration, as soon as he recovers from an illness, will come here from Washington and decide on appeals in this office. That will hasten decisions considerably."

Maj. Curran himself is one of those who have been working Sundays, holidays and evenings so that immigrants may not be kept in the steerage of steamers any longer than necessary. The Commissioner slept at Ellis Island last week. One night he came in contact with an immigrant whose case illustrates the human nature of the Commissioner's job. This man was a colored buck and wing dancer.

"I went through the dormitory and saw him doing a perfect buck and wing dance of the kind you see only professionally on the stage. I was sure from the action of his feet that he must be a citizen from the South, and I wondered what he was doing at Ellis Island. When I questioned him, he insisted that he was a Hindu. He had told all the inspectors in a pure southern station accent that he was a Hindu. I discovered that in vaudeville he was billed as a Hindu, and that he intended to stick to that nationality for the honor of his stage reputation. I pointed out that Hindus are not admitted to the United States. He finally admitted that he was born here, but he could not quite remember where. First he said it was in Philadelphia. We telegraphed to Philadelphia and could find no trace of him. Then he said he had made a slight mistake, that it was Pittsburg. There was no trace of him in Pittsburg. Finally, he said he thought he was born in North Carolina, and we located his family in North Carolina. He is probably today doing his fine buck and wing dance on a nearby vaudeville stage as a genuine Hindu."

The Commissioner is interested in all phases of his perplexing problems, including the buck and wing dance.

Do We Need a New Canal to Supplement That at Panama? "Not in Many Years!" Says Expert

U. S. Naval Commander Says Present Waterway Can Be Enlarged to Handle Traffic for 30 Years and Beyond That None Can Guess What Our Needs Will Be.

By LIEUTENANT-COMMANDER P. V. H. WEEMS, U. S. N.

WASHINGTON, July 7.

IT is only recently that the Panama Canal has begun to operate under normal conditions, free from the effects of the World War, and with the slides sufficiently under control to make the operation of the canal continuous. The canal tolls for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, amounted to $11,197,832, while the cost of operation was $7,407,998, leaving a net revenue of $3,789,834. Since the present canal commenced to yield a revenue over and above the cost of operation, suggestions have been made by various parties that another canal be dug across the Nicaragua route. While there are arguments in favor of another canal, the need is so remote that the undertaking of another canal at this time would be a poor investment.

It is good business for a manufacturing concern to have the manufacturing facilities expand in proportion to the demand for the articles purchased, but it would be poor policy to double these facilities years before the capacity of the original plant is reached. In other words, the plant should grow in proportion to the required output and not so far in advance of it as to make the business a poor investment. In the case of the Panama Canal we have only about 25 per cent of the possible capacity utilized, yet there is considerable agitation for the construction of another canal doubling the ultimate capacity of the present canal. If we could worry along without any sort of canal until 1914, it seems that we should be able to get along with the greatest canal in the world at least 30 or 40 years. Especially is this true when it is known that the possible capacity via the Panama Canal is something like 50,000,000 net tons a year.

Conditions Analyzed.

Granting that several years would be required for the construction of the Nicaraguan canal, yet if the capacity of the Panama Canal should be reached in the near future it would mean such a business boom that we could well afford to push the construction of a new canal to the limit regardless of the cost of the work. This, no doubt, would cut the time of construction below the original estimate and would embarrass shipping only a few years, if at all. It is far better to invest the relatively small sum in increasing the capacity of the present canal before we undertake the tremendous cost of building a new canal.

Some of the principal advantages of a Nicaraguan canal would be: (1) The amount of traffic could be doubled provided there is sufficient shipping. (2) The military advantages of having two routes. (3) Shorter distances via the new route. (4) Preventing any other country from undertaking the construction of such a canal. The principal arguments against the canal are the first cost and the fact that the capacity of the present canal can be increased fourfold at relatively small cost. At present, about 12,000,000 net tons of shipping pass through the Panama Canal each year. The traffic is handled between 7 a. m. and about 10 p. m. By continuous operation for the entire 24 hours the transits would be increased a proportionate amount.

Conserving Water Supply.

After the capacity of the canal has been reached in regard to the physical operation of handling the traffic, the number of transits might be limited during the dry season to the available water supply. The water from Gatun Lake is distributed approximately as follows: 50 per cent through Gatun spillway, 25 per cent for hydro-electric power, 11 per cent to evaporation on the lake surface, 164 square miles; 11 per cent for locks ages and 3 per cent for municipal and other purposes. These figures vary from year to year, depending on the run-off and the number of transits through the canal.

Either by saving more of the water which is wasted over the spillway, or by restricting the amount of water employed for hydro-electric purposes, the amount of water for lockages can be increased. The evaporation is nearly constant from year to year, and the amount of water used for municipal and other purposes is negligible. From March to November, which is the wet, season, the water supply is greater than needed. The lake is filled to the maximum level of 87 feet above sea level, after which the surplus water is wasted over the spillway. A higher level than 87 feet would flood the motors operating the lock gates. During the dry season, lasting from about December to April, the water supply is not sufficient to maintain the lake level at 87 feet. During the dry season of 1920 the lake reached the lowest recorded level, 81.7 feet. The minimum level should not be less than 79 feet, as this would give a minimum depth in the canal of 39 feet. In order to reduce the amount of water now used for generating power, fuel must be supplied to generate the power—a costly makeshift.

A comprehensive scheme is proposed whereby the greater part of the water now lost through the spillway may be utilized for lockages. The plan is to construct across the Chagres River at Alajuela, about 10 miles up the river from Gambos, an impounding dam 157 feet high, which would raise the storage lake to a level of 237 feet above the sea. The amount of water thus stored during the rainy season would be sufficient to raise the level in Gatun Lake three feet, or the amount of water storage would be increased about 40 per cent. The estimated cost of the project is about $5,000,000. Since the discharge from the Chagres River is more than half the total water supply of the lake, such a dam would give practically full control of the water supply.

Raising Canal's Capacity.

By constructing another set of locks alongside the present ones, making the locks triple instead of double ones, the capacity of the canal would be further increased by 50 per cent. It is estimated that after these proposed alterations have been made the canal can handle 50,000,000 net tons of shipping annually. At present the canal is handling about 12,000,000 net tons annually. In other words, by making a comparatively small investment at the present canal, its capacity can be made to handle four times more tonnage than is now being handled. Experts estimate that these improvements will be sufficient for at least 30 years, after which the canal might be outgrown.

Thirty years is a mighty long time. By 1953 air routes might be in competition with the water routes. At any rate, any calculations made for 30 years hence have an excellent chance of being thrown out by changing conditions. Even supposing that the canal should draw more shipping than it could handle, the inexorable law of supply and demand could be utilized and the amount of shipping decreased by increasing the tolls. It would be almost beyond all expec-

THE POLITICAL PRISONERS.
A Brave Man's View of Freedom.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE read the letters of ex-Maj. Hall and ex-Judge Duke Frederick opposing amnesty for the political prisoners. I am neither an ex-major nor an ex-judge; I am merely an ex-buck private, who got five pieces of shrapnel in him in Argonne Forest and was crippled for life. I have no great command of words and cannot muster the eloquent rhetoric which they display.

But I have read the history of the trials of the political prisoners, and I am convinced that none of these people received a fair trial, and that none of them could have been convicted under normal conditions. One man was sentenced to 10 years on testimony that he said he would "like to see the man responsible for the war locked up on bread and water for the rest of his life." Well, in France I heard soldiers express more emphatic views than that about the people responsible for the war. When I woke up in a field hospital with some of my best bones shattered I didn't feel very kindly toward the people responsible for the war myself.

I have seen a lot of these gentlemen who still have their war paint on. They like to orate at meetings of the American Legion. But I can't remember having seen any of them at St. Mihiel or the Argonne. I saw lots of them in Paris. They liked to wear their Sam Browne belts and talk to the mam'selles.

When I went to France—as a volunteer—I understood it was to defeat Prussianism, not to transfer it to the United States. I think the Post-Dispatch's crusade for the freedom of political prisoners is a great work for civilization. I can't walk, so I don't travel much, but if ex-Judge Frederick and ex-Maj. Hall will come to see me I can tell them some things about peace—and war.

EDWARD SIMMONS.

Beauty and the—Major.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WITH regret I've read the letter of ex-Major Hall. What is wrong with Hall? Did he not have a chance to shoot anyone during the infamous war? There was no reason for the war as far as the poor were concerned, and he knows it. He knows full well that the war was only to protect the interests of the capitalists.

All prisoners of the type in question should have been released immediately. They did nothing more than voice their opinions, which is right. No one living has a right to condemn the other for exercising his right of free speech. I think all Robert L. Richard in his letter of yesterday. Teach the ex-Major the Lord's prayer. Keep up the good work, Post-Dispatch.

If It Were Elias' Opinion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE writer wishes to challenge the statement of A. T. Elias, of East St. Louis, in your newspaper of June 21. Every man has a right to form an opinion, so has a newspaper. Evidently Mr. Elias has formed his. Shall a man be sent to prison for forming and expressing that opinion regardless of peace or war?

The Constitution of our great Republic says no. Then why criticise our press when it has the backbone to uphold our Constitution? It is a disgrace that we should hold men in prison for expressing their opinion. It is much easier for a man to talk out of prison than in, and if Mr. Elias was in prison for expressing his opinion, leaving his wife and babies without support or care, I would challenge my Government for his release. If Mr. Elias were in prison as long as these men he refers to he might look like one of the bunch of "roughnecks," but regardless of what he looked like, that is no reason why he should be held in prison to suffer after the evil war is over.

The father or mother who upholds their children in wrongdoing when they should correct them, set a bad example to their children, and a Government that don't hold up its Constitution does likewise. Yes, Mr. Elias, you have a public right to challenge your press and to express your opinion, and any true-blooded American would fight for your liberty if you were put in prison for expressing yourself. A. J. SNYDER.

"Speaking for" the Soldiers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

AS AN ex-soldier and member of the Legion, I would like to ask Maj. Hall and Duke Frederick by what authority they make the statements that they "speak for a majority of the men who went to France." The views of the men who went to France have never been officially ascertained on this subject, and, as one who knows a good many of them, I don't believe a majority are guilty of any such views. A man who is careless about stating facts on one subject is likely to be careless about stating facts on other subjects, and I'll bet that neither of these war-like letter-writers knows anything about the facts in the cases of the political prisoners. If so, why don't they state them?

EX-PRIVATE.

MR. HARDING'S RUTHLESS POLITICS.

The proposal advanced by Mr. Harding in his St. Louis speech for a self-perpetuating World Court was analyzed at length and with great clarity by David Hunter Miller of New York in the Post-Dispatch Thursday.

Mr. Miller says Mr. Harding's speech ended the possibility of American participation in the court. He shows how Mr. Harding has reversed himself, reversed Mr. Hughes by rejecting the Hughes plan which Mr. Harding had adopted as his own and by throwing over the whole electoral scheme drafted by Mr. Root.

The Root method for electing members of the court is presented in detail. By that method the Council and the Assembly of the League of Nations elect the Judges of the World Court, but the candidates for such election are not nominated by the Council or Assembly. Those candidates are chosen by "national groups" appointed by the Arbitral Tribunal of The Hague. Those "national groups" consist of not more than four individuals. The American "national group" is made up of Elihu Root, Oscar Straus, Judge George Gray and Judge John Bassett Moore. The "national groups" of the other nations are citizens of comparable eminence and character. By such men are the nominees chosen from whom the Council and the Assembly elect. And in order that every nation may have a voice in the election it is necessary for a candidate to procure a majority both in the Council and the Assembly to be elected.

The plan as devised by Mr. Root has worked well. This plan, obviously, is predicated on the machinery of the League of Nations, without which it would have been inconceivable. And as Mr. Root has himself explained, the existence of the World Court, which the nations have long dreamed about, is due to the fact that the League of Nations provides the machinery which made a satisfactory method of electing the Judges possible.

The "curse" of the League of Nations which Mr. Harding is so bent on lifting from the World Court is a myth of wretched factional politics. It is to this vicious influence that Mr. Harding has yielded. He scraps the one and only practicable plan for electing the Judges of the World Court and offers as a substitute a plan which, Mr. Miller clearly shows, would transform the World Court into a super-government—a plan which no nation would ratify.

Mr. Miller's conclusion is that Mr. Harding's plan "is not one for a World Court, but it is a plan for a united Republican party."

For the sake of a united Republican party Mr. Harding is willing to wreck what he himself describes as the greatest institution yet created for minimizing the risk of war and maintaining world peace. Has ever a President played politics more ruthlessly and more destructively?

A SHRINE FOR MARK TWAIN.

The "Mark Twain" Memorial Park Association has undertaken a work which is a sweet antidote to the gross materialism of the times. It has conceived the project of preserving as a literary shrine the birthplace, with its environs, of the man who has won for Missouri a wider and more permanent fame than any other of her native sons.

The organized movement was originated by the editors of Northeast Missouri, whose special interest in the immortal humorist is occupational. S. L. Clemens was a pioneer of Missouri journalism. But a great deal of the credit for initiating the scheme must be awarded to M. A. ("Dad") Violette, who rescued from the wreckers the shanty at Florida, Mo., in which the author was born, had it moved across the street, restored it to order and furnished and surrounded it with the objects of a century ago.

The purpose of the association is to raise by popular subscription funds necessary to purchase the old home and about 100 acres of surrounding land to become a national shrine and retreat for visitors. A picnic gathering at Florida on July 12, to which all interested in the author of "Tom Sawyer" are invited, will open the campaign which is to include various events calling attention to the life and works of Mark Twain.

There are few, if any, causes of cultural effort in Missouri more worthy than this. "He cheered and comforted a tired world," says the inscription on the Mark Twain monument erected by the State at the intersection of the crossroads entering the tiny village of Florida. Is there anything in the world of more certain value than something that will make it laugh? And Mark Twain was not only a humorist but an artist and philosopher who made the public think.

OKLAHOMA'S HARSH LESSON.

Gov. Walton of Oklahoma has tried to justify his extraordinary action in placing Okmulgee County under martial law by charging a reign of "lawlessness and terror." But the proof he offers in support of his charge is unconvincing and even trivial and has been riddled by the frank statement of the Sheriff of the county. It should further be observed that the country at large has heard nothing about this condition of "lawlessness and terror" which somehow has managed to keep out of the news. Further still, the people of Okmulgee County themselves seem to be unaware of their plight and are dazed by the Governor's action and the presence of the militia.

But apart from the Governor's outrageous Okmulgee proceeding his administration has been tempestuous and distressing. The resignation of the president of the University of Oklahoma is charged to the Governor. Of similar, but more flagrant, stripe was the retirement of the head of the Agricultural College and the appointment of a political henchman of the Governor's to the post, who assumed the office with a display of armed force.

The Walton administration, though in its first year, is going strong—running wild, in fact. It has already succeeded in pretty well demoralizing the State's two leading educational institutions, has indicted one of the populous and progressive communities of the State, and is brandishing the same threat of martial law over other counties.

The people of Oklahoma are getting more than they bargained for when they elected Jack Walton Governor, but hardly more than they deserve.

They knew Walton. They knew him in private life as an engineer of sorts, but had never been able to find out from what school of engineering he was graduated. They knew him as Mayor of Oklahoma City to be a noisy purveyor of bunk, a blatant incompetent, a vociferous "friend of the people," a professional enemy of "the interests." They saw him as a candidate for Governor catering to almost every element of discontent, listened to his demagogic tirades and preposterous promises, and knew, or should have known, that neither by training nor native talent was he fitted for the office.

Had the thousands of Democrats who voted for Walton as a matter of party loyalty, and held their noses while doing it—had they exercised their intelligence they might have elected to the governorship a man of force, experience, ability and thorough knowledge of the State's needs, particularly the needs of the farming industry. But that would have meant voting for a Republican. So they voted for Jack Walton, a nominal Democrat, actually a political nondescript, and the result is turmoil and notoriety.

It is a harsh, costly lesson, but it may be worth while if it teaches the people of Oklahoma—and other states—to elect men, not spurious party labels, to high office.

IMMIGRATION AND THE 12-HOUR DAY.

The exchange of letters between President Harding and Judge Gary of the United States Steel Corporation on the subject of the 12-hour day is not hopefully regarded by Samuel Gompers. The veteran head of the American Federation of Labor has no confidence in Mr. Gary's guarded promises.

To Mr. Gompers the letters look suspiciously like the first move in preparing the public mind for opening wider the immigration door. The President is admittedly impressed by the scarcity of labor cited by the Steel Corporation, and Judge Gary, making the most of the concession, agrees that the 12-hour day can be abolished when "there is a surplus of labor."

Shortage of labor, however, has not been a chronic condition in this country, and, as has frequently been observed, the Steel Corporation's adhesion to the 12-hour day has never wavered, even in the presence of 5,000,000 unemployed.

It is undeniable, of course, that, under the present immigration law, shocking cruelties have occurred and barbarous spectacles witnessed. But the fault lies in the administration of the laws rather than in the laws themselves. A remedy must be found, but it will not be found in the repeal or devitalizing of those laws. Restricted immigration is now an American policy. It will not be abandoned. It is sure to stay just as the 12-hour day is sure to go. Public opinion is fixed on those two points—a fact to which the United States Steel Corporation must conform.

PANETELA.

NO. Luella,
McAdoodle
Isn't doing
As he should;
Seems as if
His candid dryness
Does not do him
Any good.
Where a lot
Of people like him
And his prestige
Has increased,
People are afraid
He could not
Cut the caper
In the East.

In the West
His chance is better.
But with Harding
Dry as dust,
Looks as if
The West had someone
It as like
As not could trust.
Wherefore,
Democratic chances,
Hardly promising
As yet,
Rest in Eastern
States made hopeful
By the fact
Of being wet.

So we have it,
Sweet Luella.
Very much
To our regret;
Since we had
In McAdoodle
Quite a dandy
Little bet,
Seemingly
The ablest of them,
He whom sanity
Extolls
Still must rest
His case according
To his virtue
At the polls.

Thus does
Prohibition plague us,
Whether on
The land or sea,
Always that
Which interposes
Something that
Is not to be,
Laying down
Its ugly shadow
On the fair world
Of our hopes,
Leaving what
Had been a frolic
Hanging limply
On the ropes.

So does life,
A thing of promise,
When the showdown
Comes at last,
Leave us much
More understanding
Of the follies
Of the past,
Not by wise
Men are we governed,
But by those
Whom some such truce
By the followers
Of great men
Find expedient
For use.

Sir: You are quite right. We discovered too late that bad roads are what we wanted. You have no idea what the difference is out in the country. Formerly we lived a quiet life and called the farm our own. The country read enjoyed a place in our affections. Dust meant the approach of a friend. It is nothing like that now. There is a roar of traffic upon the road, and dust as like as not means that somebody is coming to steal your watermelons. As predatory a horde as ever marched with Caesar or Sherman overruns the country, and the farmer dashes from one front to another trying to protect his property. I know one man whose fruit is so close to the road that he has to guard it with a shotgun. If you have a piece of woods you almost have to build an electric fence around it to keep the Italians from locating a still in it. One seldom sees a farmer in the country any more. Everybody is from the city, and the farmer is hiding out. You don't know what night a car loaded with gunmen is going to leave a body in your corn patch, and it is no trouble at all to take your potatoes out of the ground if you aren't looking. When I think of the good old days of dirt roads and isolation I can bawl like a baby.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publications, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

PRESIDENT AS PREACHER.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

PRESIDENT HARDING told an early Sunday morning crowd at Colorado Springs that he wished he could preach a sermon, as he found it in his heart to do so. As a matter of fact, he did something of the kind. He put his plea for greater international helpfulness on a spiritual plane, deplored the hatred and suspicion in Europe and spoke feelingly of world brotherhood and fraternity that would bring "a state of blessedness to humankind." Such sentiments do Mr. Harding credit. He is a peace-loving man. His sincerity is obvious. But the task before the world cannot be performed by the most earnest preaching. Furthermore, hatred and suspicion are not confined to Europe. There is quite as much of it, here as there is on the other side, and the President should strike more directly at manifestations of this evil which come home to him. The campaign against the World Court is based upon hatred and suspicion, and opposition to our joining the court has taken the form of preaching distrust of other nations. There is no other basis for such opposition. When Mr. Harding surrenders to this opposition and expresses his willingness to separate the World Court from the League of Nations he contributes to this campaign of distrust. What reason has he for reversing his attitude on this question except lack of trust and confidence in the nations that are members of the league? If he is not suspicious of them, his action can only be attributed to political expediency. A President who is so distrustful of Europe that he has not made a single definite move to co-operate with other nations should not preach sermons on European suspicion and hatred. He should confine himself to combatting the distrust and suspicion of Europe fostered during the campaign of misrepresentation that preceded his election to the presidency.

WORLD COURT SENTIMENT.

From the Houston Post.

AN advocate of the international court, after a check of commencement addresses by college presidents during the past month, finds that every speaker who mentioned the subject supported President Harding's original recommendation that America participate officially in the maintenance of the court. The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, with which 31 Protestant denominations, with a combined membership of 20,000,000 are affiliated, is sending to 125,000 congregations an appeal to the members to rally to the support of American membership in the court. These are fairly illustrative of the trend of sentiment in moral and cultural circles in the country. Neither the educators nor the church men are looking at the question as a political issue. With them, the supreme issue is world peace, and the world court appears to them to offer the best available opportunity for America to assume its responsibility. This is a character of support true to any movement that hopes for success. It is support that served mightily in supplying the national morale which contributed so greatly to the winning of the war, which was believed to be a war to end war. That sentiment is still at work. Opinion is not unanimous in these circles regarding the League of Nations, but it is unanimous regarding a desire for peace and progress. With the policy of isolation a failure acknowledged by its chief sponsors, it is apparent that the pendulum is swinging well toward the other direction. The best hope for the President's recommendation is the tendency to remove it from the realm of partisan politics and to regard it as a national issue.

CHURCHMEN APPEAL FOR FUNDS TO SAVE HOLY PLACES

believed. If the debt is lifted the money now used for interest charges will make possible the resumption of considerable work.

The situation which alarms the American churchmen is that on Aug. 1, or as soon thereafter as legal formalities allow, much of the property of the Patriarchate will pass out of its hands and also out of the hands of the commission of liquidation and control. Then will follow either neglect, dilapidation and possibly obliteration of some of the holy places.

The American church does not intend that any of these things shall happen. This is the assurance that has been given Panteleimon Athanassiades, Archbishop of the Patriarchiate of Jerusalem, who was commissioned by the Patriarch of Jerusalem to come to the United States to seek aid. He brought with him the hearty indorsement and sympathy of the Rt. Rev. Rennie MacInnes, Bishop of the Anglican Church in Jerusalem. As the Archbishop's business advisor, the Patriarch has commissioned Shibly Jamal, a Syrian educator and a communicant of Bishop MacInnes' church.

The major objectives of the committee organized to meet this situation have been expressed as follows:

1. Procuring an extension of the moratorium, if possible.

2. Setting up for a term of years or permanently some sort of advisory or controlling relationship, representative of American interests, to assure wise administration of the business affairs of the Patriarchate for the future, to such extent as these affairs may have a bearing upon any possible recurrence of the present situation. In this connection there will be full co-operation with the Government commission of liquidation and control, since one of its important duties is the re-establishment of a sound budget.

3. Co-operation with other committees, organizations or movements whose objects may tend to further the broad purpose which underlies the present appeal. That purpose is the preservation of the sacred places of the Holy Land from neglect, exclusion or exploitation. The grave danger which threatens is a story which the committee wishes to tell, and have understood from one end of America to the other.

To protect itself as well as those to whom it intends to appeal the committee has taken upon itself to certify the correctness and authenticity of the claims of the Patriarchate. The information which the committee has was gathered from Government sources and has been verified.

The committee itself is headed up by the Rt. Rev. William T. Manning of the Episcopal Church of New York and the Rev. Charles S. MacFarland, of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Associated with them are two score or more of churchmen and a considerable number of prominent laymen.

"DO WE NEED A NEW CANAL?" NOT IN MANY YEARS, SAYS EXPERT

tations to have the maximum number of ships sent through the canal with the toll rates raised, say, 25 per cent.

After considering these points, it would seem more logical to hold full rights in Nicaragua, but to postpone actual construction of another canal till its need is clearly seen. The reduction in the distances via the Nicaragua route would be comparatively small. The military advantage is an important consideration, yet with a small portion of the amount necessary to build another canal a force could be built and left on the west coast to compensate for the ships which might be cut off through the destruction of the Panama Canal. If we give due credit to Gen. Goethals' judgment, the danger of complete destruction of the Panama Canal is not so great as some would have it. Gen. Goethals stated that in order to put the canal completely out of commission it would be necessary for the enemy to place bombs behind the gates of the locks, and he wondered what our force would be doing in the meantime.

Doubtless the destructiveness of bombs have been greatly increased since the General made this statement, yet the mere dropping of bombs in the vicinity of the locks or spillways would not necessarily put the canal out of commission. The solar plexus of the canal, to judge from casual observation which anyone may make who passes through it, would seem to be the Miraflores spillway. This could be corrected in large measure by the construction of a second dam near the present one. The construction of a second canal would entail the expense of its defense and would give the enemy one more outlying point open to attack.

New Accounting System.

From a commercial standpoint, the present canal seems to be a paying proposition. Last year a new accounting system was put into operation. The value of the canal was estimated as for any commercial concern and hereafter the financial reports will be based on the estimated valuation. The canal activities have been divided into three classes: (1) Canal transit property, (2) canal business property and (3) defense capital expenditures. The value of the canal transit property was estimated to be $246,418,990; that of the canal business property, including the docks, repair shops, etc., at $25,760,208, and for defense capital expenditures $110,997,602, making a total of $386,176,900, which was the approximate cost of the canal. The amount of the canal defense expenditures might be said to be the amount the property was written down, in order to place it on a purely commercial basis.

The canal transit property was amortized on the basis of a life for fixed property as 100 years, with allowed interest at 3 per cent, and with the business property depreciated on the basis of its estimated life. Hereafter if the yearly report shows a revenue above the operating expenses, including the annual amortization, the canal is on a sound financial basis, and in 100 years the entire value of the canal would be written off. Of course, we hope for even better financial returns, and these hopes are more than justified by recent performance.

However bright the present prospect of the Panama Canal, the expenditure of $300,000,000 in the construction of another canal via the Nicaragua route would appear to be a risky adventure. Let's hope we see the day when the capacity of the present canal is reached before we undertake the construction of another canal. By canceling a few "ifs" we would not have the present canal; therefore, it seems that we should worry along with what is the greatest canal in the world a few years longer, at least.

Masked Youth Holds Up Groceryman

An armed youth wearing a straw hat and a handkerchief mask over his face entered a Kroger grocery at 3809 Lee avenue, at 7 a. m. yesterday. He forced John Hartwig, the manager, to hand over $45 in small bills and change he was counting at counter and $2 from a cash drawer. The robber then ran from the store and into a nearby alley.

The Motoring Mind

By One of America's Best-Known Psychologists

IN AN ELECTRIC AGE, most of us are mentally attuned to the ox-cart or the Irish jaunting car. To hire a taxi in Dublin is like diving from Eads Bridge. It can be done—but it involves dangerous risks.

There is a pedestrian mind. Thoreau had it. There is a horse mind. Stevenson had it. There are fifty-seven varieties of the motoring mind. Barney Oldfield has one of them. A driver like Barney, going through France, had his attention called to the closeness of the gravestones.

"They ain't gravestones," the driver said, "they're milestones!" That is the super motoring mind.

The pedestrian is tuned to a low key. The riding mind is higher, the motor mind higher still and the aero mind highest of all. Some there are who have had all these in succession. Today we are pedestrians and look with impatience upon the motorist. Tomorrow we are at the wheel and asking the slow pedestrian, as we almost run him down, why he doesn't wake up.

The motoring mind is like success. When it is balanced and attuned, quickened and heightened, a new series of energies are released in the soul. A new set of emotions are put in play and the storehouse of the subconscious mind is overhauled and enlarged to hold the new mental furniture acquired by the increased momentum.

Whether a man drives a taxi or a roadster, a motor truck or a model of the moment that costs from ten to fifteen thousand dollars, he is a more intelligent human than one who has no motoring knowledge. The reason is quite plain. He is called upon quite often to make quick judgments, and by these decisions his mind is unconsciously quickened and developed.

The driver of a motor truck may not look alert at his wheel, but he has stored away a thousand and one experiences of adventure that the pedestrian never knows. He really functions with a higher mental gear.

There's nothing like active use, clean living and right thinking to keep a man's mind running smoothly in "high."

So the motor mind is not a mania for speed nor an abnormal stimuli in the nerve centers. It is an adjustment to a labor-saving, pleasure-giving machine which has become an essential part of life.

Therefore, get a good car. If price is a consideration, buy one that has seen some service. Such service only proves the value that is inherent in the cars offered for sale over in the Post-Dispatch's Classified "Automobile" columns. Pick your car from the splendid models advertised today.

DEODORIZATION PLAN FOR RIVER DES PERES

City Considers Using Chemicals to Stifle Smell Until Waters Are Walled.

Complaints to the Health Department about far-traveling odors from the River des Peres, which continues to "say it with smells" in the western and southern sections of the city, resulted in a survey yesterday to determine deodorization measures until the $11,000,000 closed sewer and storm channel, a bond issue project, is constructed and the river "bottled up."

With the return of warm weather the odor from the stream, a drainage carrier for about 60 sewers, has become more obnoxious. Residents along its course have complained against the health menace. Other objections have come from motorists in Forest Park, who are forced to hold their breath and speed when near the stream, which winds through the park.

The survey was made by City Bacteriologist Willis and his assistant, Dr. C. L. Pfau.

It is planned to stifle the odors, if possible, with chemicals. Chlorine gas will be placed in the water, sacks of copper sulphate anchored in the stream, and hydrated lime strewed along the banks.

Smells in the vicinity of the river are more noticeable at night than during the days, as the sunlight has a purifying effect.

City engineers hope to start construction this year on one section of the sewer and storm channel, which will enclose the stream for its entire length in the city. A bill appropriating $500,000 for the first section now is in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and will come up for passage in the Board of Aldermen when it reconvenes.

The general plan provides for building a great closed sewer from the point where the stream crosses the Western city limits, near Clemons avenue, to a point south of Forest Park. From there on a large closed sewer will carry foul water from the district sewers. Above this closed sewer will be a large, open top concrete waterway, which will carry storm drainage. The complete sewer and storm channel will be 13 miles in length.

Eagle's Safe Robbed of $500.

Joseph J. Gallagher, 1720 South Jefferson avenue, secretary of the local Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, reported to the police Friday that a safe in the Eagles' Building, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, had been broken open Thursday night and $500 cash taken. Gallagher reported that he found the combination of the safe knocked off and the inner door forced open. A crowbar was laying on the floor near the safe, he said. Another safe in the same room was not disturbed.

OUTING FARM FOR UNION ELECTRIC EMPLOYES

Grand-Leader Recreation Place on Meramec Purchased and Will Be Improved.

The Union Electric Light and Power Co. has purchased the Grand-Leader outing farm on the Meramec River, St. Louis County, from the Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., and will use it as a resort and recreation place for its 1500 employes. Officials of the department store said lack of interest was the reason for abandoning the farm, which was going into disuse.

The power company plans to allow its employes to operate the resort themselves. They will be encouraged to build bungalows on the farm at no expense aside from the house, the land being granted to any employe who desires to build. Rules and regulation of participants in the joint enjoyment of the place will be made by the employes, and they will elect their own manager and governing body.

The records of sale filed at Clayton gives the purchase price as $46,000. The company expects to spend several thousand dollars on improvements, and the establishment will cost the company $60,000 altogether.

The farm, which is on the Missouri Pacific Railroad, and also can be reached on the Sulphur Springs road, is about 25 miles from St. Louis. It comprises 50 acres, and is equipped with three dormitories to accommodate 156 persons. A dance pavilion also is on the grounds, and other holiday outing appurtenances are to be installed. These will include a number of boats for the river, which runs at the foot of a 250-foot bluff on which the farm is situated.

MILITARY DRILL FOR GIRLS

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Ill., July 7.—A form of military drill has been inaugurated at the Geneva State School for Girls here by Roy James Battis, state superintendent of child welfare, as a means of developing the physical condition and the mental alertness of the girls, and has the sanction of the department of public welfare. The drill takes the form principally of artistic formations having just enough military discipline to keep the girls alert.

The innovation was tried out as a surprise recently, when a group of girls, who had been trained for several weeks by Battis, staged a drill in the presence of the other girls of the school.

Electric Cleaners

Including Complete Set of Attachments

$53.50 Value for

$43.50 Cash

$46.50 On Deferred Payment Plan—
$5 Cash and Small Monthly Payments

¶ This special offer is limited to 100 Cleaners and to be assured of securing one, we urge you to make your purchase tomorrow.

The name "Hotpoint" is really an indication of this Electric Cleaner's dependability, but to convince yourself of its efficiency, we ask you to see it demonstrated here tomorrow.

The powerful suction and adjustable nozzle of the "Hotpoint" make it thoroughly efficient in the cleaning of all kinds of rugs. Its rugged construction gives it remarkable durability, yet it weighs but 11 pounds. Being instantly controlled by a switch mounted on a strength-saving handle, it is most convenient to use. The "Hotpoint" guarantee accompanies every machine.

The attachments which are included in this special offer are invaluable for cleaning draperies, mattresses, upholstered furniture, walls, stairs, radiators and automobile interiors. The set is regularly sold at $10.00.

PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE

Every person afflicted with rectal troubles can be cured just as Mr. Burns was.

Mr. C. W. Burns, a retired farmer, came to me—was cured in two weeks—went home sound and well. His letter, which follows, speaks with more force to the afflicted than I can. Read it carefully, then do likewise. Mr. Burns had a very bad case. I cured him without the use of chloroform, ether, going to the hospital, or loss of time.

Creel Springs, Ill., July 3, 1923.

Dr. C. Matthew Coe,
501 Pine St.,
St. Louis, Mo.

My Dear Doctor Coe:

For the benefit of other people who are afflicted with Piles as I was, I desire to express my gratitude to you, and most earnestly advise all who are afflicted with Piles or Rectal trouble of any kind to go to you and be cured. Words can not express how happy I am and how well I feel since you cured me.

All the claims you make in your advertisements are true. Altho my case was very bad, you did not lay me up for a single day. Others I saw under treatment, while I was at your office, continued their daily work, as if nothing unusual was happening.

Your treatment is wonderful, it is mild, and so easy on your patients. It certainly causes little or no more pain than the disease itself. Your charges are very reasonable. I would not take many times the cost and be back where I was.

Doctor, I thank you with all my heart for what you did for me and I hope any who are afflicted as I was, will not delay, but go to you and be cured.

Your grateful friend,

C. W. Burns

I'll gladly answer any who are in need of a cure, and wish to write to me.

If cost of space would permit, I could fill almost this entire paper with just such letters. If you are afflicted, don't hesitate. Remember my charges are reasonable, treatment is mild, soothing and permanent—and I guarantee a positive and permanent cure, in every case of Piles.

I give consultation and make examinations free at my office, and give consultation by mail free. Send for free question blank.

1000 New Model CORONA TYPEWRITERS OFFERED FREE of All Cost by the POST-DISPATCH

The Personal Writing Machine
Weighs Less Than 7 Lbs
Fold it up and Take it with you
Typewrite Anywhere

Has every new Corona refinement, embracing the best principles of portable typewriter construction

The Newest and Best Product of the Corona Typewriter Co., with a definitely established retail selling price of $50

Complete, Convenient, Durable, Speedy, Serviceable

Corona folds for compactness. It weighs less than seven pounds because all necessary parts have been eliminated, and light, strong aluminum has been used instead of heavy, brittle cast iron.

With Corona you can write just as fast and just as neatly, make as many carbon copies, cut as clear stencils and write on as small labels as any typewriter made.

The uses of Corona are legion. It knows no restrictions of time or place—and, best of all, anybody can operate it. Children coronatype before they can form letters with a pencil, while men and women whose fingers are stiff with age have no difficulty in pressing its keys.

In thousands of homes Corona is considered as indispensable as the telephone. It helps the children to become better students; it enables Mother to keep up her correspondence, and it relieves Dad of the necessity of working overtime at the office.

Every Corona award made by the Post-Dispatch will include carrying case, brush and oiler, the manufactu rer's guarantee and free service for one year—frequent cleaning, oiling, adjusting, etc.—exactly as if you had paid $50.00 for your Corona.

Delivery of Coronas Will Be Made Within Five Days After Award —ALL CHARGES PREPAID.

SUES HOUSING TRUST FOR RETURN OF $1788

Action of Woman Based on Recent Decision of State Supreme Court.

A recent Supreme Court decision that the loan plan under which certain housing trusts operated in the State constituted a lottery, is made the basis of a suit filed Friday in Circuit Court by Miss Helen C. Keane, a milliner, of 3681 Cook avenue, to recover $1788.50 paid to the Lincoln Housing Trust.

State Finance Commissioner Millspaugh, recently appointed receiver and trustee of the Lincoln Housing Trust, are named as defendants. The suit was filed by Attorney Ephrim Caplan.

The petition states the plaintiff bought several certificates from the housing trust, of a type entitling the purchaser to a loan after a certain number of monthly installments had been paid, and that she had paid in $1788.50 since Jan. 16, 1920. Payments on some of these certificates have been made past the maturity date, but no loan could be obtained, it is alleged. Demands for payment of the surrender value of the certificates have been refused, it is charged.

It is contended the plantiff is entitled to recovery under a State law enabling individuals to file suit for recovery of money paid into a lottery or gambling game.

The Supreme Court held that the housing trust plan of granting loans contingent upon the order in which applications for contracts have been filed constitute a lottery. Forms of contracts used by housing trusts in the State are similar. Thirty-two such concerns in Missouri are in receivership.

Arrangements are being made by the Lincoln Housing Trust to convert into a building and loan association, under the supervision of the State Department of Finance. This is a result of the repeal by the last Legislature of the act under which the housing trusts were formed. Examination of the Lincoln's affairs are being completed by examiners under Commissioner Millspaugh.

FRENCH SOCIETY CELEBRATION

Members of the Societe Francaise de St. Louis will celebrate the Fall of the Bastile next Saturday evening, July 14, at Moolah Temple.

Gus V. R. Mechin will preside and addresses will be made by Mayor Kiel; Frank G. Jonah, chairman of the City Executive Committee of the American Legion; Marc Seguin, French consular agent, and Capt. Henri de Lecluse, president of the French War Veterans Association. Mrs. Karl Kimmel will sing the "Star Spangled Banner" and A. deVos, Belgian tenor, will sing the "Marseillaise." Dancing in costume by members of the "Ignatz Jan Paderewski Society," singing by the "Hlahol, Czecho-Slovak," and a French play and dancing by all who desire will close the evening. The proceeds will go to support orphans in France.

Nervousness Over Political Situation and Dearer Money Prospects Viewed as Equally Responsible for Trend of Prices.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post

LONDON, July 7.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in weekly review today, says:

"Nervousness over the political situation and dearer money prospects are equally responsible for the depression in securities during the past week. As regards the latter factor, the first effect of new bank rate was discounted, but I expect the net result to be a further gradual liquidation of investment securities, settling down later into comparative stagnation. Prospects in the other markets largely depend on political developments, and this leads to consideration of the first of the factors mentioned above. Without necessarily involving a break in relations between France and Britain, it is clear that there is a clash of views concerning the handling of the reparation problem. We, rightly or wrongly, believe that Europe's best interests, including those of the allies, consist in treating reparations and in every way it will be found to the economic advantage of Germany's creditors to accepting Germany's proposals for investigation with independent experts' decisions of her capacity to pay, subject, moreover, to rigid resistance of German militarism in any form. We believe the best interests of peace and security are obtainable by aiding Germany's recuperation.

"France, however, evidently not only mistrusts but is afraid of Germany, and it is highly difficult to distinguish between proper and justifiable apprehensions and the actual militant spirit on the part of France.

"Our banking half year has been very profitable from the standpoint of normal earning capacity, and it is probable that a considerable further allowance will be necessary for bad and doubtful debts owing to the prolonged trade depression. Forthcoming interim dividends doubtless will be maintained, but there is some uncertainty as to the nature of final dividends six months hence.

"Some anxiety is felt over the continued weakness in Brazilian exchange."

FARMERS CO-OPERATIVE'S FIRM ON 'CHANGE GETS NEW WHEAT

Producers Grain Co. Offers Us First Cars of Newly Harvested Missouri Grain.

Newly harvested wheat began arriving on the local market at midnight but less than a dozen cars, in the aggregate, had arrived at the clock's close. The movement to market was nearly two weeks later than a year ago, the first car arriving here on June 22, 1922.

The first car of the new wheat to be handled in the St. Louis market is a farmers' co-operative organization, authorized under the Capper-Tincher act, recently upheld by the United States Supreme Court, was offered on the Merchants' Exchange yesterday.

The grain was received by the Producers Grain Co., which is owned by the Missouri Farmers' Association, from Truesdale, Mo., being handled by the Producers' Exchange, a similar organization being a member of the Missouri Farmers' Association.

The Producers' Grain Co. is the only representative of a farmers' organization with membership in the grain exchange at present. The United States Supreme Court upheld the right of farmers' organizations to become members of grain exchanges under the Capper-Tincher act.

The firm will charge the regular commissions and in every way it will abide by and follow the long-established rules of the exchange, realizing that many of these rules are the outgrowth of half a century of experience at the hands of some of the largest and best business men in the country," William Hirth, a director of the Missouri Farmers' Association declared at the time the organization was planning to enter the exchange here with its own firm. He added that the association would "play the Merchants' Exchange to play the game according to Hoyle," asking only that under the terms of the recent decision of the Supreme Court it be permitted at the end of the year to distribute co-operative profits in a co-operative way to the members.

Henry J. Fehr is president and Samuel M. Jones secretary of the new concern. Both are members of the exchange.

Wall Street News and Comment
—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 7.—For the third consecutive day the upward tendency predominated on the Stock Exchange today. This did not necessarily denote the beginning of a fresh upward movement. But it was the most impressive recovery that has occurred for a month past.

The advance in the stock market, somewhat hesitating at first, finally became quit rapid in the second hour in the speculative leaders. When covering purchases set in in stocks like the Studebaker, Baldwin Locomotive, Corn Products and American Can, it was found that the available supply of the stocks was comparatively small and that it was necessary to bid prices up pretty sharply.

When the market position had again been tested by another drive against Delaware & Hudson and a similar offering down of one or two other stocks, and it had been found that no further liquidation was to be brought out, the shorts set about buying in their contracts with considerable urgency. Studebaker jumped over six points from its low, and Baldwin about the same. Kennecott drew across 34 and Anaconda drew well up to 40.

The market closed strong, well up to the best of the day. Railway stocks were especially prominent in the trading at the end. Union Pacific got above 160. Canadian Pacific was up nearly 7 points from where it was selling early in the week. New York Central crossed 98 and Baltimore & Ohio 46.

The Bond Market.

The bond market today showed the same characteristics as for the past few days. High grade securities were relatively firm and there was some buying of United States bonds. The market, however, was not active and investors showed no anxiety to follow prices up. Speculative rails moved irregularly with recovery in some issues and furthr fractional losses in others. There was little change in the foreign list. Except for a fractional advance in Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean 6s there was little worthy of comment.

Dealers and traders point out that despite the disturbances in the security market, corporate financing during the month of June reached the total of $324,131,825 against $249,658,000 in May. It is not surprising, they argue, that some old and seasoned securities have not been able to stand in the face of this competition.

Due to the holiday there was a letup in the output of new offerings this week. The total was $54,046,-111 and of this amount $40,000,-000 was in the Youngstown Sheet and Tube 6 per cent debentures. The balance was made up of $3,250,-000 in three public utility issues, $1,-500,000 in two land bank offerings and the rest in State and municipal descriptions.

One notable feature of the week was the absence of what used to be called the July reinvestment demand. It is not entirely plain whether investors have been discouraged by the reactionary tone of the market or whether the income tax has diverted so much capital to tax exempt securities ,that the demand for old line bonds which used to show itself twice a year, in January and July, did not appear this July. Probably both causes have been operating. At the same time there has been little or no institutional buying. it was said.

Speculatively speaking the feature of the week was the decline in New Haven bonds following the report of the committee appointed by the New England governors to make a survey of the entire New England situation. The weakness in New Haven bonds had more or less effect on other speculative railroad issues.

Foreign bonds have stood up remarkably well in view of the news from abroad.

GRAIN LIST HIGHER ON LOCAL MARKET

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, July 7.—Grain futures closed higher at the week-end session on the local market, covering for the Government figures on Monday was a factor.

In the local cash grain market Saturday new red winter wheat was 1c lower and old wheat was down more. There were four cars of new soft wheat, three cars grading No. 2 red 12.2 to 12.6 per cent moisture, selling at $1.12 destination weights. The other car, graded sample grade 58.4-lb. test of 17.2 per cent moisture, and was sold late at $1.

There was not much demand at prevailing premiums. New No. 2 red in transit was offered at $1.10. It was reported 40,-000 bushels bought by Southern mills for July-August shipment on private terms. Hard wheat was steady. Car new No. 2 dark hard, Kansas, 82 per cent dark, was offered at $1.10 and got $1.09 bid. Six cars new No. 2 hard Kansas billed in 130 per cent protein was bought to arrive at $1.08 quick shipment, and 5000 bushels old 12-lb. Kansas 12½ per cent protein at $1.06. The few cars old wheat offered on track went to an elevator buyer who paid $1.02 for No. 2 hard and $1.01 for test. Corn was unchanged to ⅛c higher and yellow ⅛c to ⅛c better. There was a good deal of covering by people and shippers with the local trade and industries taking some. Supplies were cleaned up. Oats offerings were heavier than receipts would indicate, some of Friday's carry-over being on sale. Prices were irregular, top grades ruling unchanged to 1c lower, while No. 3 and No. 4s were steady to ⅛c higher. There was good demand from shippers and local trade at irregular levels and everything cleaned up.

The early range of prices was moderate and subsequent to opening the market was unchanged to higher, corn showing the better tone. There was covering up over the week-end and also pending the Government crop estimate Monday. Liverpool closed ½d to 1d higher.

September wheat opened at $1.01⅝. December wheat $1.04⅝. September corn 74¼c and December corn 69c.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 457 cars of wheat, compared with 563 a week ago and 358 last year, Minneapolis receiving 122 cars, Duluth 52 and Winnipeg 283.

Local wheat receipts, which were 38,400 bushels, compared with 72,000 a week ago and 190,800 last year, included 13 cars local and 19 through; corn receipts which were 101,400 bushels, compared with 87,100 a week ago and 54,600 last year, included 67 cars local and 12 through; oats receipts, 58,000 bushels, compared with 80,000 a week ago and 62,000 last year, included 16 cars local and 13 through; rye receipts were 13 cars local and 6 through.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators were 1,250,587 bushels of wheat, 1,191,000 bushels corn, 85,654 bushels of oats; grain stocks comprised 884,5 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 41,940 bushels of No. 2 hard winter wheat, 26,559 bushels of No. 2 corn, 7914 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 22,000 bushels of No. 2 white corn, 44,563 bushels of No. 2 white oats, 4783 bushels of No. 3 white oats, 2,632 bushels of No. 2 rye, 24,000 bushels of kaffir corn.

Primary receipts of wheat were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 566,000 bushels; corn receipts were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 577,000 bushels; oats receipts were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 1,307,000 bushels.

Primary shipments of wheat were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 599,000 bushels; corn shipments were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 431,000 bushels; oats shipments were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 1,307,000 bushels.

Clearances were 29,000 bushels of wheat, 23,000 barrels of flour and 139,000 bushels of wheat and flour.

WHEAT TRADE OF SMALL VOLUME AT WEEK - END

CHICAGO, July 7.—Wheat trade today was of small volume. Prices were a little better, but the advances were difficult to hold. There was a further effort made to start prices upward and bulls because of the strength in Liverpool.

The high wave short lived because of selling by Winnipeg people and some of the local houses. Locals switched to the bear side, but buying on the strength in corn caused them to cover. There was a demand for sale on the bulges, but the dips found offerings light. Fair amounts of wheat were booked for arrival overnight and on the bulge today. Milling demand for wheat was quiet. Export trade was slow. Gulf sales were reported. German marks sold at a new low point and this together with the strike by Liverpool dock workers entered export trade situation. Weather was generally favorable, but high temperatures in parts of the Northwest were looked upon as favorable for the spread of black rust. Market closed ¼@⅝c up, July $1.04@1.04⅝, September $1.01⅞@1.03¼. December, $1.00⅝@1.06¼@1.06⅝.

Corn reacted a little stronger than wheat. There were periods of depression, but they did not last long. Shorts were the principal buyers, although a little commission house buying was noted early. Cash corn premiums were firm. A little corn was booked to arrive on the advance. 15,000 bushels. Shipping demand was strong. Market closed ⅝@⅞c up, July 80¾c, September 75⅜@75¾c, December 63@63¼c.

July oats rose 40c on covering by shorts on stop loss orders and then reacted 1c. Market was firm with corn. Cash demand was not so good as of late. Market closed ¼@⅜c higher, July 39, September 35¼c, December 37c.

Provisions were easy in tone because of declines in hogs. Lard and ribs closed unchanged to 2½c lower.

Reserve System on Grain Marketing.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—A special circular was issued by the Federal Reserve Board today calling the attention of all reserve agents to "the importance of the Federal Reserve System functioning effectively in providing adequate financing for the orderly marketing of agricultural products" during the market season just ahead.

While making no definite suggestions other than that proper financing should be provided, the board left no doubt that it desired the reserve system to be on a watchful eye over the agricultural industry so that the recovery noted in the last three years may be continued without halt.

"Your attention is called specifically," said the circular, "to the near approach of the American wheat harvest. The movement of this commodity to the world markets will soon be on and will require financing, as well as expert handling, in order to effect orderly marketing movement and avoid periodical congestion at terminal market points, which is very much to the disadvantage of the producer in that it permits a combined buying arrangement on the part of foreign countries."

Hog Prices Higher.

Even with a recess over Independence day this week the hog run approximated 60,000 head, as against 70,000 the previous week and 72,000 corresponding time a year ago. Around the circuit of the five chief Western markets runs were rather light. Market on hogs was difficult to keep up with throughout the week. It was about as uneven a session as has been encountered locally in some time. Trade at times became unruly and many days were featured by a flare in prices, which invariably caused excitement and maneuvering of both buyers and sellers. On the whole prices are 50c to 80c higher than they were at the close of the previous week. The $8 extreme top Saturday may be compared with a $7.20 high on Monday, while the peak Friday $8.40 was paid, but this was merely a flurry and $8.20 was the practical top on that session. Last half of week market eased off considerably and it was a mighty slow affair. Most of the good butcher around shipping hogs moved around $7.85 and $7.90, but heavy kinds were a drag on the market. Some few early deals around $7.80 and $7.85 were reported, but $7.75 was being bid after that, with result that in some instances sellers put their holdings under cover for the initial session next week. Pigs advanced in about the same proportion as hogs. The market closed around 70c higher than last week, and in spots even a little more. Bulk of 120 to 140-lb. kinds sold Friday moving around $7.50 to $7.75, with 100 to 120-lb. kinds around even money to $7.25. Packer sows which sold last week around $5.50 to $6.65 sold around $6.25 to $6.50 late this week after enjoying a top of $6.75 at one stage of the week. Stags closed around $4.75 to $5.25.

Sheep Are Scarce.

A good moderate supply of sheep and lambs, nearly all lambs arrived last week, the total being around 22,500 head and as there was only any market on Wednesday that made a right good supply each of the other days. Sheep of all kinds were very scarce, while there was a fair number of lambs on the market each day. Most of the lambs came out of Missouri and Illinois. The week opened on a lower basis, the best lambs early in the week at $14@14.50, and none higher, but after the middle of the week lambs advanced and on Friday a good number brought $15.25, showing a gain over the forepart of the week of 75c. Other good weights toward the end of the week sold at $14.75 and better medium grades $14@14.75, fair $12.50@13.75 and culls and other common lots $9@11. Thin lambs were mighty poor sellers at all times. Sheep of all kinds sold the entire week without change, but there was a gain in prices that have prevailed for several weeks. Best mutton sheep went at $5.50, heavy and plain ewes $3.50@4.50, feeder lambs $7.50@8; plain kinds, $6.50@7.25; choppers and bucks, $2.50@3, and canners, $1@1.50.

Horses and Mules.

Horse and mule receipts were exceedingly light the past week, commission arrivals in both departments not exceeding much over 100 head. Demand was about proportionate and prices were not materially changed.

Livestock Elsewhere

CHICAGO, July 7. (U. S. Department of Agriculture)—Cattle receipts, 500; compared week ago most killing classes steady to 25 to 75c higher; spots more; values now largely back to season's high time; extreme top matured steers $11.50; best long yearlings steers and yearlings heifers, $11.35 and $10.35, respectively; bulk sales about steady; veal calves $1.00 to $1.25 higher; stockers and feeders firm; week's bulk prices follow: Beef steers $9.15@10.60; stockers and feeders $6@7.50; butcher cows and heifers $5.50@8.75; canners and cutters 240@360; veal calves $10.00@11.

Sheep—Receipts 11,000; mostly direct; native offerings on sale unevenly lower; compared week ago, good and choice fat lambs 25c to 50c lower; sorts considered; in-between grades off more; culls and sheep steady; week's extreme top westerns lambs, $16.25; closing native top $15.25; culls generally $8@9; native feeding lambs $9@9.25; westerns $12.50; bulk fat ewes $5@6.25; top $7; heavies downward to $3.

KANSAS CITY, July 7.—The hog market at Kansas City enjoyed a considerable advance during the current week, Friday's sales being the highest in nearly two months, says the weekly summary issued here today by the United States Department of Agriculture. Friday's top price was $7.60, against $6.95 a week earlier. Receipts were 38,000, against 47,625 the preceding week.

The cattle market was irregular, but desirable killing classes showed unseven gains, while grassy kinds weakened off to some extent. Yearling offerings enjoyed the broadest competition and scored greatest advance. Best steers sold at $11 and a few others cleared at $10.75 a $11.90. Receipts were 30,000, exclusive of 8500 calves, against 40,715 the previous week.

Sheep and lamb receipts fell down to 27,000, against 25,846 the earlier week. Lambs ruled steady. Bulk of native lambs made $14.25 to $15.20 with a top at $15.25.

*Holiday Wednesday. Holiday Monday.

Cattle and hog prices ranged upward at the St. Louis National Stock Yards the past week, while sheep and lambs closed just about steady for the period. Considering the holiday Wednesday, receipts were fair in the various departments. The cattle market registered a weak trend Monday, but reflected marked improvement other days of the week. Native beef steers closed a shade 25c higher for the period. The bulk sold from $7.50 to $10 per cwt. with $10.50 per cwt. paid for both matured steers and yearling steers constituting the top. There were close to 1500 cars of Texas and Oklahoma steers on sale. Prices in this department gained 25 to 50c, with most of the improvement applying to the cheaper grades. The range in price was $3.25 to $8.25, while a spread of $5 to $7 took most. A rise of 25c to 50c featured the trade in light yearlings. Most cubed from $7.50 to $9.50, with straight heifers topping at $10.25. Butcher cows moved up 25c to 50c and canners and cutters 25c. Most of the butchers sold from $4.50 to $6, with $2.50 to $3.75 taking most cutters and $1.75 to $2.50 the canner offering. Bulls met a moderate demand. Veal calves advanced sharply. The top at $11.50 Friday and bulk at $11, comparing with a top a week ago of $9.50 and a bulk of $8.50 to $9.75.

Hog receipts were 38,000, against 47,625 the preceding week.

The cattle market was irregular, but desirable killing classes showed unseven gains, while grassy kinds weakened off to some extent. LIVE POULTRY—Heavy hens, 22c; light hens, 17c; stags and cocks, 10c; 1923 springs, 2 lbs. and over, 31½c; 1½ to 2 lbs., 28c; leghorns and black springs, 23c; culls, cocks and chickens, 5c to 10c; turkey hens, 30c; toms 26c; cull turkeys, 15c; spring ducks, 19@22c; old ducks, 11c; muscovy ducks, 16c; spring geese, 15c; geese, 9c; guineas, dozen, $4.

VEALS — 1200@160 pounds at 24½c; 160@180 pounds at 24½c; 180@200 pounds, 7½@8c; rough, coarse, underfed, unsprung, etc., selling for charges. Sheep, 3@4c; bucks, 2@2½c. 1922 spring lambs available at from 10@12c per lb., according to quality; culls less.

ROASTING PIGS—At 8c per pound.

FROGS—Per dozen. Jumbo at $2.50; medium at $2.25; small at $1.25; babies at $1.00.

VEGETABLES

ARTICHOKES—California, $8 per drum.

BEETS—Home-grown, 10c to 15c per dozen bunches.

CABBAGE—Home-grown cabbage, 15c to 25c per bu; $6 per crate.

CARROTS—Home-grown, 15c to 20c per dozen bunches.

CELERY—Michigan boxes (3¼ doz.), $2.50 per box.

CUCUMBERS—Alabama hampers, 50c to $2; Arkansas bu baskets, $1.75 to $2; Illinois climax baskets, $1.

GARLIC—Louisiana single strings, 25c to 60c.

GREEN CORN—Louisiana barrels, $1.75 to $4.50; Texas bu. baskets, $1 to $1.25; home-grown, 10c to 15c per dozen.

GREEN ONIONS—Home-grown, 15c to 25c per dozen bunches.

GREEN PEAS—Chicago telephone, $1.50 per bu.

GREEN PEPPERS—Alabama hampers, $1.75 to $2.

OKRA—Texas, $2 per hamper.

KOHLRABI—Home-grown, 25c to 30c per dozen bunches.

LETTUCE—Home-grown, 25c to 40c per box; Washington iceberg, 50c to $3.50; Chicago, as has been encountered locally in some time. Trade at times became unruly and many days were featured by a flare in prices, which invariably caused excitement and maneuvering of both buyers and sellers. On the whole prices are 50c to 80c higher than they were at the close of the previous week. The $8 extreme top Saturday may be compared with a $7.20 high on Monday, while the peak Friday $8.40 was paid, but this was merely a flurry and $8.20 was the practical top on that session. Last half of week market eased off considerably and it was a mighty slow affair. Most of the good butcher around shipping hogs moved around $7.85 and $7.90, but heavy kinds were a drag on the market. Some few early deals around $7.80 and $7.85 were reported, but $7.75 was being bid after that, with result that in some instances sellers put their holdings under cover for the initial session next week. Pigs advanced in about the same proportion as hogs. The market closed around 70c higher than last week, and in spots even a little more. Bulk of 120 to 140-lb. kinds sold Friday moving around $7.50 to $7.75, with 100 to 120-lb. kinds around even money to $7.25. Packer sows which sold last week around $5.50 to $6.65 sold around $6.25 to $6.50 late this week after enjoying a top of $6.75 at one stage of the week. Stags closed around $4.75 to $5.25.

Sheep Are Scarce.

A good moderate supply of sheep and lambs, nearly all lambs arrived last week, the total being around 22,500 head and as there was only any market on Wednesday that made a right good supply each of the other days. Sheep of all kinds were very scarce, while there was a fair number of lambs on the market each day. Most of the lambs came out of Missouri and Illinois. The week opened on a lower basis, the best lambs early in the week at $14@14.50, and none higher, but after the middle of the week lambs advanced and on Friday a good number brought $15.25, showing a gain over the forepart of the week of 75c. Other good weights toward the end of the week sold at $14.75 and better medium grades $14@14.75, fair $12.50@13.75 and culls and other common lots $9@11. Thin lambs were mighty poor sellers at all times. Sheep of all kinds sold the entire week without change, but there was a gain in prices that have prevailed for several weeks. Best mutton sheep went at $5.50, heavy and plain ewes $3.50@4.50, feeder lambs $7.50@8; plain kinds, $6.50@7.25; choppers and bucks, $2.50@3, and canners, $1@1.50.

Horses and Mules.

Horse and mule receipts were exceedingly light the past week, commission arrivals in both departments not exceeding much over 100 head. Demand was about proportionate and prices were not materially changed.

3 DEPOSITIONS TAKEN IN POLICE KILLING

Women Witnesses Unable to Identify Two Gangsters as Griffin's Slayers.

Depositions of three women witnesses for the State in the case of the five Cuckoo gangsters charged with murder, in connection with the killing of Patrolman William E. Griffin, were taken at Clayton yesterday by lawyers representing Leo Cronin and August Webbe, two of the defendants.

The purpose was to ascertain if the women would identify either Cronin or Webbe as having had any actual connection with the killing. The same five gangsters were indicted for the murder of John Surgant, a produce merchant. Both murders were committed June 10 in an outbreak of crime which began in the county and ended in the city.

The witnesses who gave depositions, Miss Jacqueline Perry, Miss Clara Dauphin and Mrs. Grace E. Cummins, related facts which did not differ materially from those related by other witnesses at the preliminary hearing of the gangsters in Justice of the Peace Werremeyer's court June 22, when the defendants were bound over to the grand jury.

Mrs. Cummins and Miss Dauphin, who were at a table in Telegraph Inn with Patrolman Griffin when he was shot, testified Cronin and Webbe were in the inn when a command was given by someone, whom they could not identify, to "stick 'em up." They saw revolvers in the hands of several of the gangsters, they said, but did not identify Cronin or Webbe as having fired any shots.

Miss Perry gave similar testimony, but stated she could not identify the man who had shot Patrolman Griffin. Several of them had revolvers in their hands, she said, but she could not say that either Webbe or Cronin fired any shots.

The trial has been set for July 22 in Circuit Judge Wurdeman's court.

Small Parties, Swimming, Polo and Luncheons Occupy Time of St. Louisans Remaining at Home

Reaction From Spring and Early Summer Gaieties Here; Miss Ruth Dutton's Engagement to Wed Robert H. Dohn Announced; Kirkwood Girl and Cape Girardeau Man Are Married.

IMPROMPTU swimming parties, golf foursomes or an occasional game of bridge, often played in the morning and followed by a luncheon, form the chief diversions for that part of society which is remaining in town during the warm months. The seasonal reaction from the gaieties of spring and early summer has arrived, and with it a dearth of formal entertainment. The country club is a mecca for young persons searching for amusement, and a day or two ago a group of young last year's debutantes including Miss Eleanor Simmons, Miss Audrey Faust and Miss Catherine Louise Crunden, obtained horses and tried polo at the St. Louis Country Club field in imitation of the men's polo team. In spite of the heat this year an unusually large number of St. Louisans seem to prefer the spacious rooms of their own homes to the smaller cottages of the resorts, and with motor cars, the roof gardens for informal dinner parties, the opera or the movies, a calendar of parties for a day may easily be arranged.

The Saturday night dinner dances at the St. Louis Country Club dances are among the most popular of the summer parties. Last night Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zeibig entertained a group of friends for Ralph Jester of Dallas, Tex.; the guest of Mrs. Zeibig's brother, Samuel Capen Jr., and a brother of Loven Jester, who came to St. Louis for Miss Alice Busch's debut ball last winter and who has visited the Busch family since. Mr. Capen and his guest are classmates at Yale.

One bright spot in the midst of the dullness is the engagement of Miss Ruth Dutton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Dutton of 22 Windermere place, and Robert H. Dohn of Grand Rapids, Mich., which was announced yesterday at a bridge luncheon given by Miss Margaret Teasdale, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Willard Teasdale, 4310 Delmar boulevard. The guests, eight close friends of the prospective bride, were Misses Annette O'Reilly, Janice Feldman, Marion Laessig, Mrs. Arthur C. Brooks, Mrs. A. W. Dehlendorf and Mrs. Harry Cantwell. The luncheon table was decorated in bright colored, old-fashioned flowers, and the announcement was made by cards bearing the names of Miss Dutton and Mr. Dohn concealed in the centerpiece and attached by ribbons to individual corsages.

Miss Dutton was educated at Miss Fuller's School, Ossining, N. Y. She did not make a formal debut, but has been active in the social affairs of the younger set.

Mr. Dohn attended the University of Michigan and served in the aviation corps during the war. He has been in St. Louis for four years and makes his home at the Missouri Athletic Association. He is also a member of the Glen Echo Country Club.

The wedding will take place in October.

A wedding of interest which took place last night was that of Miss Emily Amanthus Kimball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Kimball of Kirkwood, formerly of Platteville, Wis., and John Francis Lilly of Cape Girardeau, Mo. The ceremony was performed at the Kimball home, Clay and Washington avenues, at 8:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Alfred Franklin Smith. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her sister, Miss Marydelle Kimball, was maid of honor, and C. P. Simon of Evanston, Ill., was best man. Those present included only members of the families and about 20 out-of-town guests.

Mrs. Lilly wore a gown of sheer georgette trimmed in pearls and a bridal veil of tulle caught to her hair with a coronet of orange blossoms. Her flowers were lilies of the valley and white sweet peas. The maid of honor was gowned in cream lace over Italian blue and carried Ophelia roses and blue delphinium in a loose arm bouquet. Both gowns were made in the period of our grandmothers with bouffant skirts, that have become fashionable at some of the Eastern weddings. There was an informal reception after the service was read.

The bride received her A. B. degree from the University of Wisconsin and her A. M. degree from Northwestern University. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi and Zeta Phi Eta sororities. Mr. Lilly was educated at St. Louis University and is a banker at Cape Girardeau, where he

St. Louisans Are Gathering in Force at the Popular Eastern Summer Resorts

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, July 7.—At Wellesley the class of 1923 was favored with a week's perfect weather, making for a commencement of unusual brilliancy. One of the events was the annual play, presented by the "Barnswallows," Wellesley's most famous dramatic club, a fantasy entitled "A Thousand Years Ago," in which Italian players and Chinese court figures mingled. Among those taking part were Miss Marion Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Wilson of 14 Windermere place, St. Louis, of the 1924 class, and Miss Frances Warfield of Kirkwood, a graduate of this year.

Judge Samuel A. Fordyce of St. Louis was among those who came to Cambridge for the twenty-fifth anniversary of his Harvard class, an event which was celebrated throughout the week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Endicott Searle, whose wedding was an event of the early June season at Rye Beach, N. H., are booked to sail for Europe next Thursday for a two months' honeymoon in Sweden. Mrs. Searle (Miss Jeanne Hortense Schroers) was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Schroers of St. Louis. The summer home is "Les Hirondelles," Rye Beach, where, after the marriage ceremony at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, a small reception was held.

Miss Janet Holmes of St. Louis came East to act as bridesmaid at the recent wedding in West Newbury, Mass., of Miss Catherine Everett, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Herbert E. Everett of Philadelphia, to Richard A. Noyes of Weston.

The Alpha Delta Pi National Sorority Association held its seventy-second annual convention at Marblehead last week. The banquet took place at the Rockmere, with 233 members present. At the election of officers Mrs. Mabelle E. Sperry of St. Louis was chosen president. Speakers at the banquet included Miss Hildah Neibert of St. Louis.

Numbered among those who will be missed by Magnolia people is Mrs. William H. Scudder of St. Louis, whose death occurred last winter. Mrs. Scudder came to the North Shore many years ago with her father, the late Samuel Cupples, and the young daughters of the family have grown up among the Shore residents. The Scudder estate will be leased for the summer. Mrs. Gustavo Di Rosa and Mrs. John H. Overall of St. Louis, daughters of Mrs. Scudder, are stopping at the Adams Villa, Magnolia. Mr. and Mrs. Henry McRee of St. Louis, the latter another daughter, are to spend the summer at Bucksport, Maine.

Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick of St. Louis arrived last Saturday at "Stonehurst," her estate at Magnolia, for another season. With Mrs. Kilpatrick is her cousin, Mrs. B. James of St. Louis. Her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Perry Jr. of New York, with whom Mrs. Kilpatrick has been visiting, will spend the summer with her.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Hussey and family of

ST. LOUISANS ARE GATHERING AT THE EASTERN SUMMER RESORTS

St. Louis are to arrive about the middle of July for the remainder of the summer, having taken apartments at the Oceanside, Magnolia.

The Magnolia summer home of the late Col. Nelson, owner and editor of the Kansas City Star, was sold recently, and this attractive shore estate will again be the center of hospitality such as existed when the Colonel and Mrs. Nelson entertained during the summers.

Mrs. George Angue Dobyne of New York, formerly of St. Louis, and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Kahler, have returned to Beverly Farms from a visit of six weeks in England. They went over primarily for Miss Kahler to be maid of honor at the wedding of Miss Muriel Sneed and Capt. Robert Marsh in Cornwall. Mrs. Dobyne was one of the winners at the Rose Show of the North Shore Horticultural Society last week at Manchester. The Dobyne won two firsts for roses, honors for calceolarions, and a first for the best vase of pansies.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob L. Loose of Kansas City have opened "Sea Rocks," their summer estate at Bass Rocks.

The artist colony at East Gloucester, which includes some of the best known painters and sculptors in the country, was grieved at the sudden passing of Paul Nornoyer, for the past few years a resident of East Gloucester throughout the year. Mr. Cornoyer was prominent in the life of the East Gloucester studios and did much to make successful the North Shore associations. He was one of the original members of the North Shore Arts Association, of which he was vice-president. Mr. Cornoyer was a native of St. Louis, who moved to New York.

The third annual tournament for the Inglelowe trophy presented by Mr. George A. Dobyne of the Beverly Farms section, will be played on the links of the Essex County Club, Manchester, on July 23, 24, 25, 26 and 27. One round a day will be played and there will be special handicaps.

Tom Barnett, artist and architect of St. Louis, has arrived at his studio on Old Bear Skin Neck, Rockport, where many artists congregate during the summer months.

Mrs. Louise Upton Brumback of Kansas City, president o the Gloucester Artists' Association, has arrived at her cottage at Rocky Neck.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanford Crawford of St. Louis arrived at the North Shore early in May. They stayed at the Sea Gull, Marblehead Neck, while their own cottage, "Rockmarge," at the corner of Harbor and Ocean avenues, was made ready for their occupancy.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thompson of St. Louis are spending the summer at their cottage, Grey House, Beverly Farms.

Mrs. Samuel M. Kennard of St. Louis arrived early in June at her summer home on Fuller street, Magnolia. With her were her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Ely Smith and their three children of St. Louis. Also with Mrs. Kennard was her grandson, Samuel M. Kennard, III, whose parents will arrive later in the season.

Mrs. Powhatan Clark and Miss Clemens of St. Louis have made reservations at the Hotel Moorland, Bass Rocks, for the midseason.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Langenberg and family of St. Louis have come to "Edge Hill," at Rockholm, Annisquam, for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver F. Richards of St. Louis are located at the Earle Cottage, Annisquam, for a long season at the shore.

Mrs. Francis A. Lane with her daughter, Miss Belle Lane, came east early in the spring and they have been visiting her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Nathaniel T. Lane, at York, Penn., and Mrs. Robert DeC. Ward, daughter of Mrs. Lane in Cambridge Mass., before coming to their summer home on University Lane, Manchester, for the summer. Later they will be joined by Mrs. Nathaniel T. Lane and her son, Nathaniel, Jr.

Former Ambassador David R. Francis and family of St. Louis are at their summer home at Rye Beach, N. H. Mr. Francis is a frequent visitor to the North Shore resorts.

Mr. Henry Nicholaus and his daughter, Mrs. Edwin T. Stannard, of St. Louis, have taken a cottage at the corner of Ocean Spray and Rockaway avenues, Clifton.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Pettus and family of St. Louis have arrived at the Adams homestead in the Annisquam section of Cape Ann, to spend the summer.

Mrs. W. G. Pettus and family of St. Louis are in a small cottage on Cambridge avenue, Annisquam.

Mrs. William L. R. Gifford of St. Louis arrived last month at her cottage on Norwood Heights, Annisquam.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Carter and their daughters. Misses Elizabeth, Mary and Margaret Carter, of St. Louis are again occupying the Lingard estate, "The Pines," one of the most delightfully situated places at Annisquam.

GARDEN CLUBS MEET IN NEWPORT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 7.—The first big event of the Newport season was the convention last week of the Garden Clubs of America, which brought some 500 delegates from all parts of the country. Fifty-seven clubs were represented, among them the Garden Club of St. Louis, of which Eugene H. Angert of Clayton is president. Many of the loveliest of Newport's gardens were opened to the visitors, and in addition several large social affairs were arranged, the convention ending with a "Rhode Island Clambake" at the Clambake Club.

Most of the large estates at Newport are opened, the notable exception being Marble House, owned by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, which has not been occupied for several years. Mrs. Vanderbilt came early to The Breakers, but is there alone so far this season. Her son-in-law and daughter, Count and Countess Szechenyi, and their family, who were with her last summer, have taken the estate of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney for the season.

All the cottage colony is taking a great interest in the international tennis tournament to be staged at the Casino next week. This is the first time this event has been held at Newport and the visitors from abroad are being lavishly entertained. The regular invitation tournament will be held as usual during August.

MANY ST. LOUISANS AT WATCH HILL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WATCH HILL, R. I., July 7.—Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. West of St. Louis have leased Sunnycroft, on Neptune road, Watch Hill, for the summer. Last year the Wests and their family were also at Watch Hill, having deserted York Harbor, where they had been for several years.

The Rev. Edward S. Travers of St. Louis has arrived at his cottage, Irisrock, on Sunset avenue, for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Moore of St. Louis have taken Tarrento cottage on the Westerly road, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter McKittrick and family of St. Louis are at the Ocean House, Watch Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus A. Busch Jr. of St. Louis have reserved apartments at the Ocean House, Watch Hill, for the midseason.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Yantis of St. Louis are to be at the Ocean House, Watch Hill, for the season, as they were last summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Nugent of St. Louis, who for many years have had a summer home at Eastern Point, New London, entertained a dinner company on the night of the Yale-Harvard boat race.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Jenssen and Oscar C. Jenssen of St. Louis, were recent guests at the Mohican, New London, en route by automobile to the Rhode Island shores.

Mr. and rMs. Walter A. Hecker of St. Louis, who are touring in New England, were at the Balsams, Dixville Notch, N. H., over the week end.

Miss Helen Rand of St. Louis is spending July at the Aspinwall, Lenox, Mass., in the Berkshire region.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. McKnight of St. Louis have arrived at Bar Harbor, Me., where they are located at the Newport, for an extended visit.

and his bride will make their home after a Western honeymoon trip. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. M. A. Lilly of Cape Girardeau, mother of the bridegroom; his brothers, Meredith and Robert Lilly of Centralia, Ill.; Edwin Kimball of Worcester, Miss.; Miss Ruth Hotchkiss of Elkhorn, Wis.; William J. Williamson of Chicago; Miss Josephine Buckner of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Oliver and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Graves of Cape Girardeau. Mrs. Lilly isa granddaughter of Mrs. Ewell Buckner and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Lee W. Buckner of Kirkwood, and is related to prominent families in Virginia and the South.

MISSOURIAN IS 'PERFECT GOB'

Liberty Sailor Has Had Untarnished Record for 20 Years.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The perfect "gob" has been found and publicly identified by the Navy Department in the person of Samuel S. Gant, chief pharmacists' mate, whose home is in Liberty, Mo.

Secretary Denby today commended Gant upon his transfer to the fleet naval reserve after 20 years of active service during which there was not a single report against him for infraction of naval regulations. "A clear record of service covering such a lon period of time is extremely rare," the Secretary said.

How to Lose Your Tan, Freckles or Redness

A day's motoring, an afternoon on the tennis court or golf links, a sunbath on the beach or exposure on a water trip, often brings on a deep tan or vivid crimson or, more perplexing still, a vigorous crop of freckles. A very necessary thing then is mercolized wax, which removes tan, redness or freckles quite easily. It literally peels off the affected skin—just a little at a time, so there's no hurt or inconvenience. As the skin comes off in almost invisible flaky particles, no trace of the treatment is shown. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's and use this nightly as you would cold cream, washing it off mornings. Soon you will have an entirely new skin, beautifully clear, transparent and of a delicate whiteness.

Greater Beauty for Every Complexion

For over 80 years GOURAUD'S ORIENTAL CREAM has rendered greater beauty to thousands of women the world over. We have now extended its usefulness so that those who desire to closely harmonize their complexion with their particular shade of beauty can do so to the best advantage.

Gouraud's Oriental Cream

is now available in three shades.

Flesh—for those who desire to bring the glow of roses to their cheeks.

Rachelle—for those who desire the enchanting depth of color, just off the white shade.

White—popular for all complexions for over 80 years.

Gouraud's Oriental Cold Cream and Gouraud's Medicated Soap are indispensable complexion aids and should be used in conjunction with Gouraud's Oriental Cream.

Send 10c. for trial size bottle in either shade, or 25c. for a trial size bottle of Gouraud's Oriental Cream, any shade desired, a cake of Gouraud's Medicated Soap, and a tube of Gouraud's Oriental Cold Cream.

Waddock. Mr. Wilkinson has been working principally with more than 30,000 Slav students who have come to the University of Prague from the various parts of the earth, to complete their educations; he has also just completed a study tour of 14 European countries, in the interests of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, leaving his mother, Mrs. John C. Wilkinson, and his sister, Miss Dorothy B. Wilkinson, in Grenoble France.

210 DOWNTOWN CHILDREN LEAVE FOR EUREKA FARM

Two hundred and ten children left Union Station yesterday morning for a two weeks' stay at the Frank Wyman Outing Farm near Eureka, St. Louis County. The children, who were accompanied by a number of young women as entertainers, came from several centrally located churches, from the Mullanphy playground and the Municipal Nurses, and through individual recommendations.

Yesterday's consignment of children was the second that has gone to the farm this season. The farm is supported by contributions, $10 sufficing to give a child from the crowded downtown residence districts a two weeks' outing on the 82-acre farm. The children are selected without distinction of creed or nationality. Some of the contributions come from persons who are about to go for their vacations, and who thus insure happiness and healthful surroundings for some child during the time of their own summer enjoyment. George A. Roth, 421 South Seventh street, treasurer of the farm organization, receives contributions.

A LAGOON AT FASHION SHOW

Among the varied scenes to be presented at the St. Louis Fashion Pageant, to be held in the Municipal Theater at Forest Park, Aug. 8 to 25, inclusive, is a Venetian setting. The orchestra pit and half the stage, which is 150 feet wide and 300 feet deep, will be converted into a lagoon, over which gondolas will float. The St. Louis Grand Opera Company, with Italian singers, will sing in this scene.

Other effects will be a fountain patterned after one at Versailles, a winter scene with ice skating, and numerous special settings for ballet dancing.

MISS DELPHINE CRAIG, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Craig of 1716 Oregon avenue, has chosen August 4 as the date of her marriage to William Guerdan of 2553 Albion place. The wedding will take place at the Immaculate Conception Church at 3:30 o'clock, the Rev. Father J. P. O'Connor officiating. Miss Viola Craig will attend her sister as maid of honor, and Miss Melba Owen will be bridesmaid. Milton Craig of Indianapolis, brother of the bride-elect, will serve Mr. Guerdan as best man and A. Funsch will be groomsman. Jane Clair Craig will be flower girl.

Miss Jean Lennon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Lennon of 3450 Pestalozzi street, was married the morning of June 23 at St. Margaret's Church to Terry George of Webster Groves. Miss Margaret Lennon, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Norman George, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. There was a reception at the Lennon home in the evening attended by 100 guests. The house was decorated with pink roses. The couple have gone to Buffalo and Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Clevenad for a month's honeymoon trip. Miss Margaret Lennon has motored to Kirksville, Mo., with Mrs. H. P. Slaygen of that city, who came to St. Louis for the ceremony.

Miss Bernice Fagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Fagan of 4058 Page avenue, and J. J. Staddard were married Tuesday morning, June 26 at St. Ann's Church. After a small reception for the immediate families at the home of the bride's parents, the couple left on their honeymoon trip. They will be at home after Aug. 1 at 1478 Laurel avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Block of 1229 Blackstone avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Belle Block, to Joseph Greenblatt, Friday, June 29. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents at 5 o'clock in the presence of the immediate families and was followed by a dinner. The couple are spending their honeymoon in the North.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Georgia Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Meyer, to Irving P. Sittig, Tuesday, June 26, at St. Mark's Church. The couple are making their home at 1428 Arlington avenue. Miss Marie Bell was bridesmaid and Mrs. Frank Muehlig was matron of honor. Frank Muehlig, a brother-in-law, gave her away. T. Black was best man. A dinner was served to relatives of the couple after the ceremony.

News has reached St. Louis of the wedding of Miss Helena Callilly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Callilly of Washington, D. C., to John Stone Higgins, son of the late Charles P. Higgins of St. Louis. After residing in Washington for a few weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Higgins will come to St. Louis to make their home.

Miss Marguerite C. Phillips, formerly of Centralia, Mo., and Henry L. Moore, formerly of Springfield, Ill., were married quietly Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gallager, 4515 Enright avenue, Justice of the Peace William Moore officiating. After a short honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Moore will make their home in St. Louis.

Would You Be Beautiful?

Beauty has been the quest of all ages. Thousands of lovely women attribute their beauty to the use of Nadine Face Powder. The cheeks have just a tint of color—the skin can only be equalled by the soft texture of a rose petal. Nadine will keep the roses in your cheeks. It will adhere and protect the skin from the sun, wind and dust. It contains no white lead or other ingredient to harm the skin or the eyes. It's the same pure powder, popular for so many years—only the box and fragrance have been improved.

Money refunded if you are not pleased. At your toilet counter 50c. Miniature box sample by mail 4c.

COLLEGE CLUB WOMEN TO MEET IN OREGON

The convention of the American Association of University Women will be held in Portland, Ore., July 16-21. The St. Louis College Club, St. Louis, branch of the association, will be represented by Mrs. Roscoe Anderson, Mrs. William I. Wittrig, Mrs. Elma H. Benton, Miss Elizabeth Hays, Miss A. M. East and Miss Leigh Harris. Mrs. T. C. Parrish of Vandalia, Mo., director of the Southwest Central section, of which the St. Louis branch is a part, will go with the delegates. Mrs. Roscoe Anderson has been national recording secretary for four years. Her term of office expires this year.

The Portland branch is planning entertainment, including a reception, given by President and Mrs. Scholz of Reed College, and a drive on the Columbia River highway. Among the important business sessions will be an open educational meeting, conducted by Mrs. Frances Fenton, [illegible] nard, the educaton secretary of the association, and the international meeting with Miss Mary E. Wooley, president of Mt. Holyoke College, as chairman.

The delegates will leave St. Louis July 8.

Mrs. Joseph W. Folk, widow of the late former Governor of Missouri, has been spending the last two weeks in Washington closing her beautiful home in Woodland drive. This house will be put immediately on the market and sold, although it is said that Mrs. Folk will spend her winters in the capital, where she has a host of friends.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS FOR OZARKS

The third national convention of the Evangelical Sunday schools, which closed a five-day session here last week, voted to encourage the plan of the general assembly of the church to establish Sunday schools in neglected districts, particularly in the Ozark Mountains.

Training schools for Sunday school workers at Dunkirk, N. Y., and Cincinnati received encouragement and the Near East relief movement was recommended. A total of 1329 delegates attended.

DWIGHT DAVIS HOST TO "LION OF ARGONNE" IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The departure of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis on the Leviathan for Europe on the Fourth of July leaves Secretary Hughes about all there is of the government in Washington. The hot days have no terror for the Administration. Premier and his wife since they have settled in their quaint country place, "MacFolly Farm," on the Rockville pike.

Mrs. Hughes is sharing the enforced stay in Washington with the Secretary and many pleasant little dinner parties served al fresco in the old-fashioned gardens enliven the dullness of the summer calendar for the officials detained here.

St. Louis' representative in the Cabinet, acting Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis had his hands full this week welcoming the latest official visitor, Gen. Gouraud, "the Lion of the Argonne," the gallant Frenchman who lost an arm in the fighting. All his official parties were in charge of Mr. Davis who was personally one of the party when the Frenchman visited the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington and gave the sleeping boy the salute of fraternity in service.

Fortunately, General Pershing was in town so Missouri's warrior son and the son of France could meet and rehearse again the glorious days of the Argonne. He gave a large dinner at the Army and Navy Club on Friday which was attended by all the military officials in town.

Gen. Pershing will leave the first of the week for an extended inspection tour over a large part of the country.

Mrs. John B. Henderson Sr., accompanied by her grand-daughter, Miss Beatrice Henderson, daughter of the Late John B. Henderson Jr., have gone to Bar Harbor for the remainder of the season where they will open their villa. Boundary Castle in Washington has been closed, but the tennis courts and swimming pool are still open by invitation to many social celebrities, especially of the diplomatic corps.

Col. and Mrs. James M. Thomson came to Washington the early part of the week and accompanied Col. George Harvey, Ambassador to Great Britain, to Deal, N. J., where they were guests until Wednesday, when they sailed on the Leviathan for Europe. Mrs. Thompson was Genevieve Champ Clark and this European visit is one which they have been planning ever since their marriage at Bowling Green, Mo., in 1915. First the war, then the death of their young son, followed within the year by that of Speaker Clark, prevented the journey. They will tour Europe for three months after which they will return to America, stopping en route to New Orleans to visit Mrs. Thomson's brother and sister-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark in St. Louis. Mrs. Champ Clark, who is in Bowling Green, is said to be planning a trip to Washington in connection with the publication of her interesting memoirs of public life, "Two Towns and Some People."

Capt. and Mrs. Patrick Bellinger, U. S. N., and their small son, "Pat Jr." have gone to Virginia to be the guests of Miss Isabelle Wells at her country place near Harper's Ferry. Mrs. Bellinger was Miss Miriam Benoist of St. Louis.

Mrs. James A. Reed has returned from a brief stay in Atlantic City and will leave the end of next week for Missouri to join Senator Reed there.

Prof. and Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins of George Washington University departed yesterday for a month's tour of North Shore resorts. Early in August they will return and go to Missouri, where they will visit in Columbia, which is the old home of Mrs. Hodgkins.

Former Assisstant Secretary of State and Mrs. Breckinridge Long closed their town house in Washington and departed Monday for Newport, where they will pass the remainder of the season.

Last minute parties are being given in farewell to Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz of Missouri, who will leave his post here as chief of naval operations to take command of the Pacific fleet the last of the month. Admiral Coontz will entertain at dinner in honor of his successor at the Navy Department, Rear Admiral Edward E. Eberle, upon his arrival here.

INTERNATIONAL AIR MEETING MAY MAKE CITY FLYING CENTER

Possibilities for St. Louis Growing Out of October Contest Emphasized in Pamphlet Just Issued.

Officers of the St. Louis Air Board, in charge of preparations for the international air races in St. Louis, Oct. 1, 2 and 3, yesterday expressed satisfaction with the manner in which the heavy traffic to St. Louis Field, near Bridgeton, was handled last Wednesday for the air circus.

It is believed, in the light of Wednesday's traffic movement, that the problem of getting the public into and out of the grounds during the international races has been solved and that there will be no jam of automobiles in Natural Bridge road, such as held traffic up for hours at the aerial show there May 6.

The United Railways last week began double-tracking its Bridgeton branch and will put in a loop just north of the Natural Bridge road. About two miles of the St. Charles line, between Bridgeton Junction and St. John's Station, will also be double tracked, giving a continuous double track from the flying field to Wellston.

A new folder, giving complete information about the air races and emphasizing the future of St. Louis as an air terminal, was issued from Air Board headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce building yesterday. On the subject of "St. Louis, the Aerial Crossroads of America," the pamphlet says:

"St. Louis must have an air terminal. Ten years hence the city without such facilities will be as far behind as the city today without adequate railroad facilities. Practically every city of importance in Europe and America is today equipped with either a municipal or commercial landing field. At the present time, perhaps, the finest equipped field in the Middle West is located in Kansas City. Omaha has an excellent field. Tulsa, Memphis, New Orleans and Cincinnati are planning to make themselves air centers by offering suitable terminal for potential air traffic. St. Louis is the logical place for a great central air terminal. With such a terminal station St. Louis is destined to become the aerial crossroads of America.

Meet Will Open Way.

"It is the purpose of the St. Louis Aeronautic Corporation to utilize the International air races as the instrument with which to force its way into aeronautic prominence and obtain an air terminal for St. Louis."

Explaining the financing of the permanent field, in connection with the races, for which $200,000 is being raised through the sale of stock in the St. Louis Aeronautic Corporation at $50 a share, the statement says:

"The land which will be acquired consists of 183 acres situated at Bridgeton, in St. Louis County. The land has been purchased at a cost of $73,200, but is rapidly increasing in value owing to its proximity to the railroad, trolley line and highways leading to St. Louis. The grading improvements will make every acre available for subdivisions and subsequent sale as residence property. It is the opinion of th directors that if necessary, the land could be sold for sufficient to liquidate the corporation after the proposed improvements have been completed.

"Earning Power—The revenue of the corporation will be received from the following sources:

"1. Use of grounds by commercial air lines.

"2. Use of grounds by aviation corporations. The establishment of this field, it is believed, will attract manufacturers of airplanes and aeronautic equipment to St. Louis and the industry will be built up around St. Louis Field.

"3. Renting of field by agricultural exhibitions. Definite offers have been received for the renting of the field for Mid-Western livestock exhibitions, and other similar purposes.

"4. Renting of space for exhibition grounds for conclaves and encampments and for open-air automobile shows.

"5. Renting of hangar space to airplane owners.

"6. Renting of field for flying exhibitions.

"7. Sale of lots of ground which may not be needed by the corporation."

Will Attract Factories.

The pamphlet closes with this statement:

"With a permanent field established, it will be possible to attract other aeronautical manufacturers to St. Louis, locate their plants around the field, and thus develop an air terminal in every sense of the word. St. Louis occupies an ideal position, both geographically and commercially, to encourage such enterprises."

The officers of the St. Louis Aeronautic Corporation are as follows: B. F. Bush, president; W. Frank Carter, vice president; Carl F. G. Meyer, vice president; R. F. McNally, treasurer; Arthur B. Birge, general manager and secretary; Judge William T. Jones, general counsel; Elsa Schreiber, assistant secretary.

The Board of Directors consist of the following: W. Frank Carter, B. F. Bush, J. L. Johnston, Maj. A. B. Lamber, John G. Lonsdale, Carl F. G. Meyer, Col. Albert T. Perkins, Joseph Pulitzer, M. E. Singleton, W. Palmer Clarkson, Aaron Waldheim.

Wrinkles and Facial Blemishes Removed

For years European and American beauty specialists have been able to remove fine lines and wrinkles from about the eyes, face and neck as well as remove facial blemishes, including small-pox pits, blackheads, comedone pits, freckles, blotches, scars, enlarged pores, powder and birthmarks without the use of surgery.

For these purposes "Carintol" and the "Gordon Painless Process," originated by a famous French dermatologist, have been almost universally used.

These famous treatments may now be obtained for home use from the Gordon Laboratory Company, 2044 Tramway Building, Denver, Colo. Literature completely describing this process sent those interested on request.

Just 300 Beautiful Dresses

A Limited Group Proffers Dresses of Exquisite Quality in a Diversity of Styles

At $19.75

THE choice of Frocks from among this group is a joyous task—every Frock wins applause for the individuality of its design. Especially priced for this selling, values exceptional are featured.

A decidedly new and dominant Frock in the group is developed in foulard with wide pleated panels of Georgette from shoulder to hem.

Particularly pleasing to the slender woman is a model of Canton and printed crepe in combination. The Canton crepe fashions the Dress, the printed material the trimming — puff sleeves from elbow and pleated apron which can be utilized as a cape.

Sport Dresses of Roshanara crepe, smartly tailored in daringly simple styles, offer interesting choice.

Light or dark colors, sizes 34 to 42, make this feature of interest to every woman and a rare opportunity for savings. Two of the styles pictured.

Sale starts promptly at 8:30 a. m. We advise early attendance.

Belleville Unionists' Wages Increased.

Four hundred men are affected by the settlement of a new wage agreement between the manufacturers and members of the Stove and Steel Range Mounters' Union and Metal Polishers' Union of Belleville. The wage scale expired June 30. Under the new agreement that will end June 30, 1924, the members of the unions get an increase of 16.2 per cent in wages. The new scale is retroactive to July 1. Under working agreements the union men are paid by the piece-work plan.

Total	$1296.60

Three benefit shows, a lemonade stand and three cash donations added $61.27 to the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund yesterday, bringing the fund to a total of $1296.60.

An entertainment at the home of Mrs. R. L. Taylor, 324 West Madison avenue, Kirkwood, furnished $28.55 of this amount. The program included a number of miscellaneous songs and recitations, a playlet, "Bedtime," and a one-act play, "The Sewing Circle." Following the affair, the children sold ice cream and soda. Those who took part in the evening's entertainment under the direction of Mrs. Taylor, were: Dorothy Taylor, Frances Taylor, Mary Katherine Kurre, Melva Kurre, Dandridge Taylor, Eleanor Bopp, Nedra Kurre, Trula Kurre and Elizabeth Elme.

Beatrice Meyer sent $12.26 to the Fund with a note stating that it had been earned by a show, but she neglected to state the time or place of the performance. Those who assisted Beatrice were Peggy Price, Paula Yawitz, Billy Anspacher and Ida and Edna Pollack. They gave a short play, "Little Women," and a vaudeville program, followed by a moving picture show.

Four girls, all of them less than 10 years old, produced a play July 3 and realized $3.80 which they donated to the fund for the babies. The show was given at 4912 Pershing avenue, and the workers were: Elsie Rauh, Jean Rauh, Vivian Jane Meyer and Elaine Meyer.

Elinor Levis and Kathleen Stanley managed a lemonade sale at 4621 McPherson avenue and earned $2.66 for the fund. Cash donations included a check for $10 from C. L. Carter, Pierce Building; $3 from Bess C. Thompson and $1 from Jacob Ruwart, 6069A Shulte avenue.

WOMAN MENTIONED IN NEWS ITEM NOT PROPERLY IDENTIFIED

In a news item published in the Post-Dispatch last Friday relating to the divorce suit of Mrs. Gertrude Swinney of 4063A Kennerly avenue, it was erroneously stated that she was president of the American Women's Council of Justice. She is president of the Women's League for Home Training, which is in no way affiliated with the other organization.

The American Women's Council of Justice is not, as the news item stated, opposed to liquor regulation, but is interested in having the Volstead act modified so that the manufacture of light wine and beer may be permitted. It is opposed to the return of the saloon, but primarily is fighting for State rights as against centralization of power, and is interested in many other legislative matters.

Don't Grow Old Before Your Husband

Science Now Shows What Often Causes Premature Loss of Youth, Beauty and Attractiveness and Makes Women Fretful, Nervous and Run-Down

What Women Need Is Not Cosmetics or Stimulating Drugs But Plenty of Pure Red Blood Rich in Iron

How the Newer Form of Iron Helps to Enrich the Blood, Strengthen the Nerves, Build Up Physical Power and Make Weak, Pale, Careworn Women Look and Feel Years Younger, in Many Instances in Only Two Weeks' Time.

Look for the woman who appears younger than a man of the same age and you will find the exception to that vast majority upon whom anaemia—lack of iron in the blood—has fastened its grip and is gradually sapping the health, vitality and beauty which every woman so longs to retain. In most cases men safeguard their health better than women by eating coarser foods being more out-of-doors and leading more active lives, thereby keeping their blood richer in iron and their bodies in better physical condition. The very moment a young women allows herself to become weak, nervous and run-down she is placing a drain upon her whole system which overtaxes the power of the blood to renew wasted tissue and keep active the natural life forces of the body. There are thousands of women who are ageing and breaking down at a time when they should be enjoying that perfect bodily health which comes from plenty of iron in the blood, simply because they are not awake to their condition. For want of iron a woman may look and feel old at thirty, pale, haggard and all run down — while at 50 or 60 with good health and plenty of iron in her blood she may still be young in feeling and so full of life and attractiveness as to defy detection of her real age. But a woman cannot have beautiful rosy cheeks or an abundance of strength and endurance without iron, and there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron — to help supply this deficiency and aid in building a race of stronger, healthier women.

It's NOT always the youngest woman that is most sought after—there is an indescribably alluring fascination in the ROSY CHEEK, the INVITING LIPS and SPARKLING EYES of a woman whose blood is filled with iron. You may be afflicted with IRON STARVATION of the blood and not know it, just as thousands of other women are.

ONE PERSON IN THREE in America today suffers more or less from MALNUTRITION—lack of nourishment, which is caused NOT BY LACK OF FOOD, but in many cases by LACK of sufficient IRON IN THE BLOOD to enable you to get the strength and nourishment out of your food. Indoor life, over-eating and modern methods of cookery are sapping the iron from the blood of hundreds of thousands of women. Our forefathers to whom history refers as a NATION OF RED BLOODED AMERICANS ate the husks of grains and the skins and peels of vegetables and other coarse foods rich in strength giving organic iron, which the modern woman does not get.

To make up for the great loss of iron caused by the life woman is compelled to lead she should eat more such iron-containing vegetables and fruits, as spinach and baked apples, and take organic iron like Nuxated Iron from time to time to help enrich her blood and revitalize her worn-out, exhausted nerves.

NUXATED IRON represents organic iron in such a highly condensed form that one dose of it is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating half a quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It's like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.

At 20 Years

At 30 Years

At 40 Years

Over 4,00,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. It often increases the bodily and mental vigor, strength and endurance of weak, nervous, "run-down" folks in two weeks' time. Your money will refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results. Beware of substitutes. Nuxated Iron comes in tablets only—never in liquid form. Always look for the word "Nuxated" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

OAKLAND HANGS UP NEW SPEED RECORD

The Oakland Six hung up another speed record on the Pacific Coast which followed on the heels of the sensational victory of the Oakland in the Yosemite Economy run in which it won both the sweepstakes trophy and class cup.

In an officially observed test run over the Cotati speedway recently near San Francisco, the Oakland Six, driven by Bill Cooper and Leo Hordenschuld, covered 500 miles in 442 minutes—an average of 67.8 miles per hour for more than seven hours of continuous running.

MOON SALES INCREASE 200 PCT. FOR 6 MONTHS

F. H. ROGERS, sales manager of the Moon Motor Co. of St. Louis, reports that Moon sales for the first six months of 1923 show an increase of 200 per cent over the same period last year.

"This is particularly gratifying," says the sales manager, "in view of the fact that sales of cars generally have increased approximately 100 per cent according to National Automobile Chamber of Commerce statistics."

Rogers also calls attention to the Moon showing in various cities, especially Chicago, where he declared June registrations show more Moon cars were sold than any other six-cylinder car of the same or a higher price.

CALLS ATTENTION TO BAD INDIANA ROAD

On his return from a trip to the Westcott factory at Springfield, O., Herman L. Schnure, president of the Velie Auto Co. of St. Louis, Westcott distributers, called attention to a bad spot on the road East, between Terre Haute and Indianapolis, Ind. At this section of five miles near Brazil, Ind., Schnure states, new concrete is being laid and in making the road, small engines are being used. When the engine is hauling a load the road is blocked and cars must travel on the dirt along the side. Because of the lower level there is danger of the flywheel and axle touching.

Accompanying Schnure on the trip were Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Winklemeyer. Four cars were driven back from the factory after the dealers' meeting last Monday, Schnure driving two of them.

The party returned on July 4 and Schnure tells of having passed more than 300 cars between St. Louis and Highland, Ill., that morning, all bearing St. Louis licenses.

Louisiana made the greatest percentage gain in motor vehicles in 1922 registering 31.3 per cent increase.

The Saving Lubricants Streett's MOTOR OILS "Seal and Satisfy"

But who wants to do it?

You can run your car without oil—but not very far. You can run your car on cheap oil—but not very long. That is, not very long in terms of the mileage which you may reasonably expect from your automobile.

But who wants to do either?

By consistently lubricating your car with Streett's Motor Oils, you can get out of it every mile which it was designed to give, with less trouble and expense.

Streett's Motor Oils are as superior to cheaper oil as the latter is to no oil at all.

The greatest HAYNES week in 1923 registers the nation-wide recognition of the new

HAYNES 60

at $1295 (F.O.B. Factory)

Instant and tremendous was the response of the American public to the announcement of the new era of value-giving inaugurated by the introduction of the Haynes 60. In the week of June 23-30, more Haynes cars were shipped from the great Haynes factories than in any previous week of this great Haynes year.

If you have not already seen this newest and most amazing Haynes creation—see it now, in our display rooms. A complete line of open and enclosed, sport and standard models—with the famous Haynes-built six cylinder engine, 121-inch wheel base, 32 x 4½ cord tires—at lower prices than ever in Haynes history.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

Inquiry among Single-Six owners will reveal to you that many of them expect to drive their cars for five years and more. Thus they are avoiding the loss always involved in frequent changes.

This is one of the reasons why the conviction is growing that ownership of a Packard is downright economy. This conviction is fortified by the surprisingly low cost of operation and maintenance.

It is probably a reasonable assertion that nowhere can you purchase so much motoring satisfaction at so low a cost.

Any Packard salesman will gladly amplify this statement and prove to your satisfaction the greater investment economy of the Single-Six.

PACKARD

IS THIS MOTOR CAR EXPERT CORRECT?

How Many of These Things Do You Do—in Your Driving?

This list of things we often do is compiled by Erwin Greer, president Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago, Ill.:

Start the engine with the switch turned off or without gasoline in the tank.

Forget that using the starter a certain number of times will exhaust the supply of current in the battery unless the engine is run sufficiently to recharge it.

Fill the lubricator in the engine and neglect to lubricate all other parts of the car.

Neglect the lubrication of any part of the car.

Advance the spark when starting the engine.

Allow the clutch to engage suddenly.

Apply the brakes suddenly when it isn't at all necessary.

Push in the starting button when the engine is running.

Blame the starter when the engine doesn't start, without looking into the gasoline tank.

Neglect to inspect the level of the acid in the storage battery, even after two or three weeks have gone by, and overlook a supply of distilled water needed.

Shift from third to second or first gear when the car is running at a high speed.

Shift reverse gear when the car is moving ahead.

Neglect to investigate any unusual sound which may develop in the car.

Drive fast and attempt to stop suddenly on a wet pavement.

Overlook keeping the tires properly inflated.

Release the clutch when the throttle is open very wide.

Use the starter to run the car, even while understanding that excessive overload on the battery is very injurious.

Allow our car to stand in puddles of oil or water, while perfectly aware that neither one is good for our tires.

Overlook the fact that pan, engine and other mechanical parts of a car should be kept clean.

Turn corners too fast, liking to be spectacular even at cost of tires.

Open the throttle quickly without giving the motor a chance to pick up gradually.

Find it too much trouble to keep our brakes adjusted—or at least too much trouble to keep our mind on it.

Neglect to familiarize ourselves with the use of the hand lever brake and thus be prepared for emergencies.

Release the clutch before shifting gears.

Fail to examine the car occasionally for loose nuts and bolts.

Fail to heed the squeak that calls for oil.

VELIE
V A L U E

Only the airplane engines and those of the very highest priced cars have lubricating systems comparable to that of the Velie-built motor.

Automatically lubricated at every point, even to the piston pins, it adds quietness and long life to the acknowledged superiority of the valve-in-head type of engine.

The four-main-bearing crankshaft, precisely balanced, and with pistons and connecting rods accurately matched for weight, gives complete absence of vibration at all speeds, from two to sixty miles an hour.

AUBURN TOURS 24,000 MILES IN 42 STATES

An idea of the excellent advantages enjoyed by the modern tourist is shown by the experience of H. C. Pearse, of Oklahoma City, who has just finished a business trip in an Auburn car, covering 24,000 miles and visiting 42 states.

In all of this long trip Mr. Pearse had but little difficulty with roads, and everywhere he found good hotels and suitable accommodations for the itinerant motorist.

Mrs. Pearse travels with her husband. It is quite apparent that they are out for a good time, and that they know how to get real fun out of what might ordinarily be termed a "long hard trip."

Removes that dull film: keeps cars looking new!

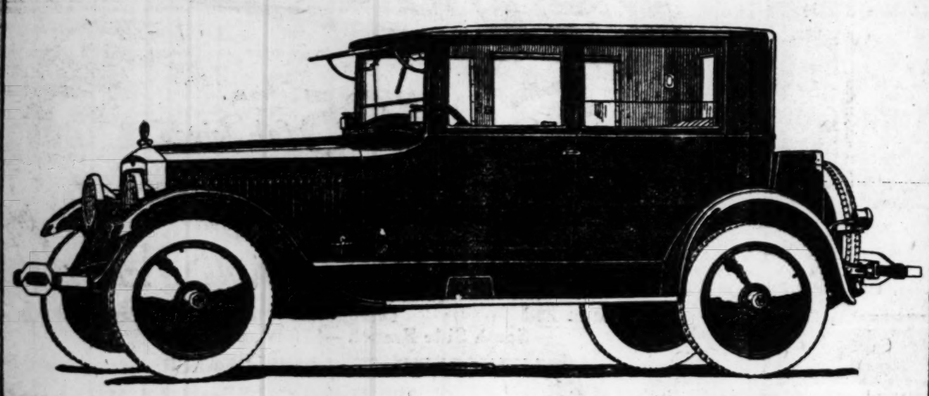
STUDEBAKER BIG-SIX FIVE-PASSENGER COUPE $2550



The Big-Six Coupe Offers a Rare Combination of Elegance and Utility

Into the Studebaker Big-Six five-passenger Coupe have gone, without compromise, the finest design, materials, workmanship and the best of Studebaker's 71 years' experience.

Nothing has been left undone to make this big, roomy coupe as fine an enclosed car as can be built.

Certainly no car performs more brilliantly or is more reliable. None possesses greater beauty or is more luxuriously comfortable. None is more enjoyable to drive—and no other make of car is more completely equipped.

You will appreciate the generous roominess of this Big-Six Coupe, its sterling quality of body and chassis and its wealth of refinements—including the large trunk; extra disc wheel complete with tire, tube and tire cover; handsome nickel-plated bumpers, front and rear; courtesy light; motometer; flower vase; clock; aluminum-bound running boards with corrugated rubber mats and step pads; rear-view mirror, automatic windshield cleaner, glare-proof glass visor, and many others.

The Big-Six Coupe offers every requisite for lasting satisfaction—yet its selling price is considerably lower than one would have to pay for any other make of car of comparable quality.

Its low price is due to large volume and to the fact that Studebaker overhead is shared by three models—all sixes. Then, too, only one manufacturing profit is included in the Big-Six price because all vital parts are manufactured in Studebaker plants.

Studebaker has been building quality vehicles for more than two generations. The name Studebaker stands for quality, durability, comfort and integrity.

Power in surplus measure to satisfy the most exacting owner

PAIGE THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA $2450

Compare the Paige Point by Point with Its Two Competitors

Of forty manufacturers of quality cars the two cars leading in sales are priced at $2885 and $2685; the Paige at $2450. What difference is there to justify the extra price? Check Paige points against these competitors—and you will realize that never before has $2450 bought such a car.

131-Inch Wheelbase 5-Foot Springs

Paige has a wheelbase of 131 inches—providing for roomy comfort besides roadability. Riding ease rarely equaled is further assured by rear springs more than 5 feet long. Check this against costlier cars! Paige leads them all in comfort.

More Power for Weight

Mark Paige piston displacement—compare it with others. Here is reserve power for all needs. Paige weight is 3850 pounds, yet the ratio to piston displacement is only 11.4 pounds per cubic inch. This low ratio is why Paige out-performs its competitors—climbs hills easier and at lower speed—gets away faster. Compare it in the chart—nearly two pounds less per cubic inch—15% more ability!

Easy Handling

With a driving range of 2 to 70 miles an hour in high there is small need of gear shifting, though it may be done at a bare 3-inch movement, without clash or missing under any guidance. Steering is easy for the frailest hand—strain is absent.

What Is Equipment?

You wouldn't compare a car with three wheels to a car with four wheels, in relation to their prices. So Paige must be compared as to equipment with what its competitors would cost you if similarly equipped. Note the twelve items of equipment in the chart above—all things which you would eventually buy for any car. Paige has them all! One competitor has only three of them—and the other five—least costly items. Calculate the cost of this equipment, and see how much more you get in the Paige.

Why Paige Can Be Sold at $2450

Tremendous volume on our smaller car—the Paige-built Jewett—reduces overhead on Paige cars to a negligible amount. This saving makes the Paige price possible. With the Jewett—Paige builds twice as many cars as either competitor shown on the chart. Under any other conditions Paige with its present high standards could not be sold for less than $3000.

To fully appreciate Paige—see the car—drive it. Measure it against your requirements in a fine car. Call or telephone for a demonstration at your convenience. There is no obligation, of course. If desired—payment terms may be arranged. [501-A]

SIX COLE MODELS FOR 1923 SEASON

"A model to satisfy the whim of every class of motorist," is the slogan that prevails at the Cole plant in Indianapolis, and yet, after careful analysis, they find that the desires of the American motorist are very simple and that he needs only six models to satisfy every whim. The announcement of their six Master Models, which they released to the public June 11, shows this conviction.

These six master models are the Westchester, a seven-passenger semi-open equipage. The Volante, a sport model. The Imperial coupe, the Broutta, the four-passenger closed car—roomy and comfortable for all passengers—the Royal sedan, of full seven-passenger-carrying capacity, and the Royal limousine, which has the distinction of being rapidly convertible into an intimate family conveyance.

Ford Drivers! Safeguard yourselves against ignition trouble. Equip your cars with an IXL—the one timer for Fords that is dirt, dust, oil and WATERPROOF!

IXL SEMI-PROOF TIMER
IXL
For All Ford Engines

Gives dependable service, regardless of weather and driving conditions. Non-conducting Bakelite Case and waterproof Flexible Metal Conduit encloses and protects every vital part from dust and outside. Makes fouling and shorting impossible. Gives more power, bigger range, quicker getaway, less vibration. Earns cost quickly in time, trouble and repair expense saved.

Guaranteed to give uninterrupted service for one full year. No other timer gives you such a guarantee against trouble.

AUSTRALIA WANTS AMERICAN MACHINES

Dort Distributor Tells of Auto Conditions on Island Continent.

"Aside from the fact that Australian motorists keep to the left side of the street while driving, instead of the right, there are many other differences between automobiling in Australia and in America," says R. J. Hancock, director of Dort sales in Australia, who is visiting the Dort factory in Flint.

Mr. Hancock, who has traveled 10,000 miles to learn more about American-built cars, reports that business is booming in the island continent, particularly as regards the sale of automobiles and more particularly as regards the sale of American-made cars.

"At least 75 per cent of all the cars in Australia—and there are more than 100,000 cars—are American-made," says Mr. Hancock. "The balance are English, Italian and French cars. Australia is rapidly cultivating the American idea of trading in cars after a period of two or three years. This undoubtedly is largely responsible for the popularity of the American car, which actually gives more value for the money in that time than European automobiles.

"The cost of motoring is much higher in Australia than in your country," continued Mr. Hancock. The Dort four touring, which is listed in the States at $885, is sold for $2000 in our country. The difference, although being very great, is easily accounted for when you consider at least $500 for duty, boxing costs, freight, insurance and other transportation charges.

"Australians demand more luxuriously appointed bodies, more ample seating accommodations, reclining seats and longer, lower bodies than Americans. Consequently, most of the cars running on the other side of the Pacific have Australian-built bodies. These bodies withstand the different road conditions very much better than the imported product.

FRANKLIN CELEBRATES ITS 21ST ANNIVERSARY

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 7.—In July, the Franklin Automobile Co. will celebrate its twenty-first sales anniversary. The company is fifth oldest among automobile manufacturers in the United States. During its 21 years of existence it has grown from a single floor of a small building and a production of 13 cars the first year to a plant occupying 24 acres of floor space and having a present rate of output of 14,000 cars per year.

In keeping with the spirit of the celebration, the Franklin company is recognizing in a number of special ways the great body of Franklin owners throughout the United States.

As a feature of the anniversary Franklin sales organizations throughout the country will endeavor to ascertain the longest record of continuous ownership in each territory and in the entire United States.

The search will also be made for the oldest Franklin still in operation and the Franklin with the greatest mileage record.

The first car sold by the factory in 1902 was later returned to the company by the owner and it is now retained for exhibition purposes at Syracuse. Several Franklins of the vintage of 1904 are known still to be in active operation. Records of cars with a mileage surpassing the 400,000 mark are in the company's possession.

Rickenbacker

A · CAR · WORTHY · OF · ITS · NAME

Again—the Most Talked-of Car of the Year!

—and now four wheel brakes—the greatest engineering accomplishment, not only of the year, but of the last ten years!

It seems that practically every motor car accomplishment of any consequence during the last couple of years has been incorporated in the Rickenbacker first.

First there was the tandem flywheel—which eliminates vibratory periods.

Then came the air cleaner—which does away with excessive carbon deposits.

And now, four wheel brakes—which prevent skidding, eliminate accidents and in any number of different ways makes motoring a greater all-around pleasure.

Announced just last week, the whole country is now scrambling to get Rickenbackers. Everyone wants to see this wonderful new performer.

Better come in today and let us give you your demonstration. For here is a car that will take your breath away, so soft, so sweet, so smooth is its entire operation.

After you drive, once, in this car you will never be satisfied or happy until you own a Rickenbacker.

BUILT To Maintain Reputation

Empire 'Wear Longest' TIRES

WE cannot afford to give our customers 5,000 or 6,000 miles tires when we have educated them to expect from 10,000 to 12,000. No dealer can afford to offer a tire of less quality than that upon which he made his reputation.

EMPIRE TIRES enable us to preserve our reputation for fair dealing during the period of price competition when the quality of many tires was slashed unmercifully.

Long Mileage, dependability and satisfaction have always been the principal factors for the big demand for EMPIRE TIRES. Yet by the application of modern business methods to production and distribution, by the elimination of all unnecessary waste and overhead, the manufacturers enable us to offer them at

NEW JEWETT PLANT WILL BE TIME-SAVER

Advanced Architectural Design for Addition to Detroit Automobile Factory.

Further facts regarding the new $1,500,000 Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. plant in Detroit have been received by the Newell Motor Car Co. here. This plant will furnish more than 500 cars daily to Paige and Jewett dealers.

The initial expenditure in the expansion program of the Paige Co. will be entirely for the betterment of production conditions in the building of the Jewett, says H. M. Jewett, president of the company. The present main plant will be turned over to the production of the larger Paige 6-70. Besides the main plant, the present manufacturing divisions of the Paige Co. will be maintained.

Contracts for the new plant generally known as an addition to Plant No. 2, the Jewett Motor Plant, have been let and construction is well under way. Under present plans machinery installation will be completed before the first of January, 1924, when the production lines will start moving.

While the new plant is termed an addition to Plant 2, it is more than three times the size of the present engine plant. Today the Paige Co. is turning out approximately 250 Jewett motors daily at Plant 2.

"Plans for the new Jewett plant were considered for several months," says Jewett. "With the final decision came the placing of orders for steel which, under the present contract, must be in place on July 8.

"The building construction will then be rushed in a similar manner. With time-saving as the keynote of its architecture, the contractors have been given plans which will make this unit of the Paige Co. one of the most efficient in the automobile world today.

"The principal thought was the lowering of production costs through elimination of past time-wasting methods. The result was the approval of plans for a one-level plant, doing away with elevator delays suffered ordinarily by both men and production.

"This necessarily meant that a greater area was needed. The new unit covers a plot of ground nearly 1500 feet long and about 400 feet wide."

Albert Kahn, architect, has allowed less than .01 of 1 degree variation in the floor level of the new unit and the present motor plant. Upon completion nearly two-thirds of the 47-acre plot of ground secured by the Paige company when it built the present Jewett engine plant will be covered.

Included in the new unit on completion of the present building project will be the motor plant (now running); an assembly plant, 1176 feet long and 360 feet wide; loading and unloading docks at either end, incoming and outgoing docks along one side, the entire length of the building; three large warehouses and a monster power plant.

SPORT MODELS USED ON SUMMER TOURS

With fine hard roads stretching forth throughout most sections of the country and with the development of motor cars to a point where they provide luxurious ease of travel and absolute dependability, America has become a nation of tourists. The fact is more pronounced this summer, with its vast increase of cars than ever before.

"Literally hundreds of thousands of cars whose license tags bespeak great distance from home, dot the highways throughout the country during the summer months," says E. H. McCarthy, general sales manager of the Nash Motors Co. "Along about this time of year it is interesting to note the appearance on the streets of almost any large city license plates bearing the inscription of practically every state in the union.

Indiana transported 36,875 children to school daily by motor busses during 1922.

DODGE BROTHERS
COMMERCIAL CAR

Although the Commercial Car has long enjoyed a world-wide reputation for faithful, low-cost service, Dodge Brothers are continually making it still better.

The semi-floating rear axle with which it is now equipped, for example, is almost twice as strong as it need be to carry its maximum load.

An extraordinary number of bushings and bearings add immeasurably to the life and stamina of the car.

The multiple disc clutch endures stubbornly in the face of terrific abuse.

The starter and carburetor are noted for responding promptly in any weather.

Combined with unusually attractive body lines, these pronounced advantages make the Commercial Car an investment of undoubted merit.

Another Strauss Work, "The Gypsy Baron," Is This Week's Offering

Libretto of Comic Opera, at Municipal Theater, Based on Novelette by Moritz Jokai, Famous Hungarian Author.

TWO distinguished talents cooperated in the creation of "The Gypsy Baron" ("Der Zigeunerbaron"), which the Municipal Theater Association will present this week, beginning tomorrow evening, as the seventh undertaking of the present series. The composer was Johann Strauss, whose "Die Fledermaus" was produced two weeks ago, and whose "Queen's Lace Handkerchief" was given last year.

The book was adapted from a novelette called "Saffi," by Moritz Jokai, a famous Hungarian writer of fiction, poet and dramatist, whose name is one of the most brilliant in Magyar literature. The libretto was fashioned by Ignaz Schnitzer, himself well known by reason of several excellent stage-pieces for the Hungarian theater. "The Gypsy Baron" was first produced at Vienna on Oct. 24, 1885; it was the tenth of Strauss' 13 operettas, following 11 years after "Die Fledermaus" and five years after "The Queen's Lace Handkerchief." It is said that "The Gypsy Baron" was last seen in this city in the late '90s at the Olympic Theater.

During the year 1884 Strauss went to Budapest for a gala production of his operetta, "The Merry War," and took occasion to call upon the eminent Hungarian novelist with a request for material for a comic opera. Jokai consented, and soon afterward sent to Strauss a sketch of his novelette. The result, on the composer's part—so affirms his biographer, Ludwig Eisenberg—"was the first stagepiece in which the master realized his higher yearnings, in which his music forsook the conventional paths of operetta, and achieved a bolder manipulation of form and a greater depth of content."

Story of the Operetta.

THE hero of the fable is neither a gypsy nor a Baron. He is one Sandor Barinkay, who as a boy, accompanied his father into exile. The father, a land owner, had offended politically, and was dispossessed of his property in the Banat. After many years, in consequence of a general amnesty, the youth returns to his home, and gains possession of his patrimony through the good offices of Count Carnero, a royal commissioner.

The handsome property, in the interval, has become desolate and waste, a refuge for poor and homeless gypsy folk. The only personable neighbor is a rich hog dealer, Kalman Zsupan, whose beautiful and well-educated daughter, Arsena, attracts the young man's regard. He wooes her, but is repulsed by the haughty damsel with the counsel not to venture a second attempt unless he can return a Baron, at the very least.

Angered rather than wounded by this affront, Barinkay seeks distraction and entertainment among the gypsies, finds pleasure in their primitive trustfulness, and accepts the honor when they offer to make him their "Wojwode." This title means that he is now a Baron—if it is only a "Gypsy Baron." Meanwhile, he is so enchanted by the charm and simplicity of the gypsy maiden, Saffi, that without further ado he makes her his wife.

Unearths Buried Treasure.

IN the second act we find the hero digging for a treasure which his father, before going into exile, had buried under an ancient bit of masonry. He unearths a quantity of jewels and a chest filled with gold pieces.

There appears on the scene Count Carnero, who is about to imprison him for his failure to apprise the Government of his opulent treasure-trove. But in the nick of time comes Count Peter Homonay, with his Hussars; he is beating up recruits for the Austrian army. Barinkay offers his entire treasure for the war-chest, and enlists for the campaign with all his gypsy band.

The third act, played before the gates of Vienna, is sheer festivity and merriment. The army returns victorious; and Barinkay, for his patriotic services, is created a genuine Baron. He is reunited with his Saffi, who turns out to be nothing less, if you please, than the daughter of a Pasha.

How Characters Are Cast.

THE cast for the production is as follows: Count Homonay, Thomas Conkey; Count Carnero, Detmar Poppen; Sandor Barinkay, Craig Campbell; Kalman Zsupan, Frank Moulan; Arsena, Blanche Duffield; Czipra, an old gypsy woman; Flavia Arcaro; Saffi, Helena Morrill; Mirabella, Arsena's governess, Fannye Block; Ottokar, her son, Roland Woodruff; Pali, a gypsy, Gay Burgess, and Istvan, a servant, Grace Brinkley.

The score is said to differ from that of "Die Fledermaus" in providing more frequent opportunities for the chorus. Among the better known numbers are "Sail With Me, Sweet"; "It's Such Fun," "The Cards Foretold," "Now Make Your Mark," "The Gallant Comes to Woo," "A Face Will Soon Entrance," "Zingrah," "As in a Dream," "Kling, Klang," "Who Made Us One," "Take the Shako" and "To Vienna."

Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts" will have its concluding performance tonight. The announcement for next week is Franz Lehar's "The Merry Widow."

'Vanities of 1923' Stripped for Action

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 7.

EARL CARROLL'S new musical revue, "The Vanities of 1923," with Peggy Hopkins Joyce and Joe Cook heading the list of principals, actually opened at the Earl Carroll Theater Thursday night. It is probable that no stage production of the year has stumbled so uncertainly toward Broadway.

First it was equity difficulties which held up rehearsals for weeks, and then came three postponements of the premiere, owing to various obstacles in the preparations. Even as matters stood on the opening night, it seemed that many of the most beautiful girls in the large ensemble were forced to go on without sufficient time to dress. Here, aside from being a smart, lovely and intoxicatingly rapid music show, is one that is as thoroughly stripped for action as anything we have seen this or any other summer.

Carroll selected Peggy Hopkins Joyce with a view to attracting curious men and women who would pay to look at the thin young blonde who has done more than anyone else to make the chorus worth while. And once he got her into his cast he turned the attention of everyone concerned in her direction. As a result, even Joe Cook, the talented young "one-man vaudeville show," was seen last night acting as foil for the lady in a scene which really did not amount to anything. She promised to disrobe for Joe if he would play for her, but nothing came of it.

We are not so certain that Miss Joyce measures up to all that is demanded of her. She is delicately formed, she has an alluring gaze, and her hair is fair beyond words. But she sings a little, and this is too much. The fur coat which she wore in the first act was a gorgeous garment, and the allusions made by chorus men and others to Miss Joyce's apartments and Rolls-Royces were rich.

Joe Cook's extremely funny antics, in which he impersonated every kind of act known to the two-a-day, were the only discernible contributions of fun, although Jimmy Duffy was there trying as hard as he knew how. Miss Irene Ricardo, a Fanny Brice comedian of more than fair accomplishment, sang songs that were drowned by the stage crew, and Dorothea Neville also sang a few.

"Vanities" is better in its first half than in its second, because it moves with more dispatch. William Collier and Sammy Lee have joined hands to put speed into everything that is shown, and later on the show will in all likelihood lose even the few pauses which marred its later moments last night. Fine taste has been displayed in the settings and costumes. The music is pretty most of the time. the "Vanities" ought to be a go. It is another one of the best of these things.

The heat of the week overcame four more shows, and they withdrew tonight. "Icebound," "Go Go," "So This Is London" and "Little Nelly Kelly." Only 18 productions remain on view. The coming week brings no recruits, and, with the exception of two or three revues, the month will continue barren of dramatic excitement.

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

Work has been started on James Cruze's Paramount production of "Ruggles of Red Gap." Included among the featured players will be Edward Horton, in the title role; Ernest Torrence, who will have the important role of Cousin Egbert, and Lois Wilson, who will take the part of Klondike Kate. Other featured players are Fritzi Ridgeway, Charles Ogle and Louise Dresser.

Every notable spot in Hollywood will find a place in James Cruze's new Paramount production called "Hollywood." Taking the film capital as a background, the story proceeds along a well-defined path to a surprising goal. A galaxy of stars and a number of people less well known or not at all familiar to the screen public will appear.

Maurice Flynn has the distinction of being one of the very few motion picture actors who ever went through an entire scene with only his feet showing. Lying on a cot in the next room in a log cabin, he allowed his feet to stick out into camera range to show that he was there.

Nita Naldi will play an important role in Cecil B. DeMille's production "The Ten Commandments."

One of the hard things a Paramount player had to do recently was to register great joy as he pretended to sniff the sweet aroma of baking apples when in reality the air was reeking with paint. Owen Moore was the player. It happened while they were making a scene in "The Silent Partner."

George Melford is leading a strenuous life at the Paramount West Coast studio these days. He is engaged in the double task of supervising the cutting of his latest picture, "Salomy Jane," featuring Jacqueline Logan, George Fawcett and Maurice Flynn, and at the same time is aiding in preparing for his next production, "The Light That Failed," which F. McGrey Willis is adapting from Rudyard Kipling's story.

Thomas Meighan and a company of Paramount players making his

Johnny Hines has been re-engaged for an indefinite period by the Warner Brothers. He recently completed the starring role in "Little Johnny Jones," a picturization of George M. Cohan's play of the same name.

"Isle of Lost Ships," "Children of Jazz" On Current Bills

"Scars of Jealousy," "The Remittance Woman," "The Critical Age" and "Self-Made Wife" Also Showing Here—Benefit for Dustin.

MAURICE TOURNEUR'S novelty melodrama, "The Isle of Lost Ships," is the principal feature this week at the Grand Central, Lyric Skydome and West End Lyric Theaters. Surrounding it are short-film subjects, including the Lige Conley comedy, "Hold Tight;" Luis Firpo in "Will He Conquer Dempsey?" showing the South American heavyweight challenger in training, the news and views and the Fables. Bartram and Saxton, vocalists, appear on the stage at the Grand Central only.

The cast of the "Isle of Lost Ships" includes Milton Sills, Anna Q. Nilsson, Frank Campeau and Walter Long. The picture takes its locale from the fantastic yarns of seafaring men who allege that the peculiarities of the currents in the Sargasso Sea bring all derelict ships to a certain point where floating hulks, fastened together in the tangle of seaweed, form a floating island. Director Tourneur has populated this strange island with survivors from various wrecks and they live according to their own laws.

Anna Q. Nillson, Milton Sills and Frank Campau, in "The Isle of Lost Ships"—Grand Central and West End Lyric and Skydome.

Miss Nillson, as a rich heiress; Frank Campeau as a detective, and Milton Sills as his prisoner thus arrive at "The Isle of Lost Ships," where Walter Long, in a villainous role, is the chief and ruler. There is a law that any woman who comes there must choose a mate on the day of her arrival and the mate must defend her against all others.

Thomas H. Ince's production, "Scars of Jealousy," is the principal offering at the Capitol Theater this week, supported by a Harold Lloyd revival, "Captain Kidd's Kids," in which Bebe Daniels and bathing beauties appear.

"Scars of Jealousy" features Lloyd Hughes, Marguerite DeLamotte, Frank Keenan and Eddie Burns. It is a drama similar to "Tol'able David," laid in Alabama. A Southern colonel strives to make a man out of his son, who is a drunkard, but failing, finally disowns him. He goes to the mountains and meets a young "native," whom he brings to his home, educates him and treats him as his own son.

The heroine tells the mountaineer that he has been responsible for the son's break with his father, and the boy decides to go back to the hills. Here comes the son also and the mountaineer brutally beats him into manhood. There is a spectacular forest fire to supply the typical Ince punch.

"Children of Jazz" with Theodore Kosloff, Eileen Percy, Ricardo Cortez and Robert Cain is at the Missouri this week.

The theme elaborates upon the contrast between the young folks of today and yesterday. Babs Weston, daughter of a financier becomes engaged to three men simultaneously. Richard Forestall, son of a man who maintains the social ideas and customs of the folk of 1850, is devoted to her, but when he hears of her escapades, he denounces and quits her.

Subsequently, Babs is induced to take a trip in a hydroplane with two of her other admirers and the machine is wrecked in a storm off an island. The quartet is rescued with difficulty and they find Forestall on the island with his father and servants. Forestall is skipper of a schooner, the crew of which mutinies. This and other unusual situations are the means of regenerating the jazz exponents. On the program will be "The Harmony Trio," a vocal aggregation that will feature some of the newer song hits. An added feature will be "A Trip Through Filmland," a motion picture which reveals the mysteries of camera and its manufacture.

"The Critical Age," picturized from Ralph Connor's "Glengarry School Days," is the principal attraction at the Delmonte Theater starting today. It is the story of a young dreamer, a poor farmer's son, whose ambition is to go to college. He rescues a girl from death in the rapids and later he helps her father, a member of Parliament, save his political prestige.

A massive dog plays one of the important roles in the production. All the scenes are said to have been taken upon the exact location as called for by the novel. In the cast are Pauline Garon, James Harrison, Harlan Knight and Wallace Ray.

"The Self Made Wife," with Ethel Grey Terry in the principal role, a six-reel dramatic feature, and Reginald Denny in a new episode of the "Leather Pushers" called "Don Coyote," forms the double bill at the Rivoli Theater.

"The Self Made Wife" is the story of a poor couple who slaved and struggled to save a few dollars with which to buy oil stock. One day an oil gusher made them immensely rich. They moved to New York, purchased a fashionable home and began a new mode of living.

In the cast are Phillip Smalley, Crauford Kent, Virginia Ainsworth, Dorothy Cummings, Honora Beatrice, Frank R. Butler and Laura La Varnie.

A testimonial entertainment for the benefit of Eddie Dustin, a St. Louis pioneer motion picture and theatrical manager, will take place tomorrow and Tuesday at the Liberty Theater. The benefit is being given by the St. Louis F. L. L. M. Club, the Salesman's Organization, the Exhibitors' League and the Theatrical Brotherhood. Dustin was a former president of the Film Board of Trade of St. Louis, an exchange manager for a number of years, and an early associate of O. T. Crawford in the production of motion pictures in St. Louis. He was stricken with a serious malady two years ago in California while directing a motion picture called the "Unfoldment," and has never regained his health.

The program will consist of the Naval Reserve Band of 40 pieces, with Al L. Bartlett director; a minstrel troupe of 30 persons, made up of motion-picture salesmen and professionals; the Egyptian act, composed of 12 members; the Mendelssohn Quartette, the three McKean sisters, Baby Alloyd Bartlett, child toe dancer; Helen Brady, Elmer McDonald and J. Harris, and performers from the Clarke Dancing Academy. The proceeds of the entertainment will be turned over to Dustin's family. The arrangement committee is composed of Barney Rosenthal, Joe Mogler, Floyd Lewis, Tom and Charles McKean, Mike Nash, Jack Well and others, all managers of film exchanges and officers of the Exhibitors' League.

"The Remittance Woman," with Ethel Clayton, is the feature at the Kings. It is the story of a beautiful American girl as the pivot of a gigantic intrigue that rocked a Chinese throne; the enthralling story of a mysterious vase on which hung the fate of a nation, with an American girl pitting her brains against the crafty intrigue of the yellow man, and winning out.

NEW MISSOURI PACIFIC HOSPITAL OPEN SOON

Employes' Million-Dollar Institution at South Grand Boulevard and Shaw Avenue.

Modern equipment and many innovations have been installed in the new Missouri Pacific Employes' Hospital, South Grand boulevard and Shaw avenue, representing an expenditure of more than $1,000,000 which will be opened for the reception of patients before Aug. 1. The building, of six stories and a basement, with an adjoining annex of 30 rooms for negroes, will accommodate 300 patients. The old hospital, California avenue and Henrietta street, will be abandoned.

The new structure has a reinforced concrete frame with a brick and steel exterior, and marble walls, terrazzo, linoleum plastic, cork and granitoid floors inside. The building faces Grand avenue and there are wings projecting toward the west.

The modern hydro and electro therapeutic rooms, X-ray and chemical laboratories, a circulating brine system of refrigeration, a completely-equipped laundry and an ice plant with a capacity of 400 pounds every 24 hours are among the features of the building. A dial telephone system automatically operates a switchboard and its 65 telephones without the aid of an operator.

The building also is equipped with a 30-gallon ice cream freezer, three centrifugal pumps assuring uniform water supply and pressure, a chapel with a seating capacity of 50, barber shop and gymnasium. A tank in the basement supplies the building with water kept at a temperature of 40 degrees the year round.

There are special quarters for nurses, physicians, student nurses and orderlies with their own bedrooms, recreation and dining rooms. A sun parlor is on the northwest corner of each floor.

There are no general wards in the building but rooms contain accommodations for from one to four persons. Two dressing rooms are on every floor, one in each wing, assuring immediate attention for all patients in time of emergency. Special sterilizing apparatus, serving rooms and diet kitchen are also on every floor, any one of which might be isolated without interrupting the work of the hospital.

Floors Are Noiseless.

All ward rooms have cork floors, as have the corridors, assuring a noiseless tread. The "silent" system will be in effect, a patient having only to push a button at his bedside.

The four operating rooms in the north wing on the sixth floor, are constructed of white tile. Temperature is regulated by automatic thermos control. The physician has only to indicate the desired temperature on a device and the radiator automatically regulates itself.

There is one general kitchen, in the central part of the structure, on the sixth floor. Meals may be conveyed to bedrooms in thermos carriers which keep the food hot or cold for 24 hours.

There is a garden and solarium on the roof, floored with "promenade tile," to which an incline, permitting the passage of wheel chairs, leads from the sixth floor.

The fund for the erection of the building was realized through the payment of dues ranging from 50 cents to $2 a month assessed according to individual income among the 40,000 employes. The railroad company promised to pay for one-half of the equipment, which cost $150,000.

Charles H. Wray was the architect, and E. M. Tucker, supervising architect. A. T. Cochrane was the superintendent of construction and the James Stewart Co. the contractors.

Dr. Paul F. Vasterling of 4720 Arsenal street, will be head surgeon and Walter J. Grolton is superintendent.

Surgeon Has 40 Years Experience

Dr. Vasterling has been connected with Missouri Pacific hospitals for 40 years, having entered the old hospital at Fifth and Haven streets. Carondelet, in 1883 as a surgical dresser. He was educated at the Southeast Missouri Teachers' College, Cape Girardeau, and the medical school of Washington University, graduating from that institution in 1883 and entering immediately on his duties at the hospital. Dr. Vasterling's predecessor, Dr. W. B. Outten, was a railroad surgeon for 34 years.

Dr. Vasterling has seen two Missouri Pacific hospitals come and go. He was transferred from the Carondelet hospital in 1884 to the new institution at California and Henrietta. He was appointed assistant chief surgeon there in 1907 and became chief surgeon in 1911.

A Missouri Pacific hospital is to be constructed in Little Rock in the fall. It will care for 125 patients and cost $300,000.

ST. LOUISAN MADE CHAIRMAN

National Concert Managers' Association Elects Officers in Chicago.

Miss Elizabeth Cueny of St. Louis was elected chairman of publicity at the meeting of the National Concert Managers' Association, recently held in Chicago. Miss Cueny has served the organization as secretary and president since its formation four years ago. She continues on the board of directors.

Mrs. Katie Wilson Greene was elected president for the ensuing year; Selby Oppenheimer of San Francisco, vice president, and Margaret Rice of Milwaukee, secretary and treasurer.

A survey showed that the 70 members of the association handle $75,000,000 a year in fees for artists, rentals, advertising, printing, salaries and office maintenance.

Cruising 'Round the World
Make the Dream Come True

GOING Around the World is more or less of a dream to most people. Everybody has it. Everybody expects it to come true some day. But the idea is so full of the unknown, so imaginary, so adventurous, so wonderful, that to most people it remains a dream.

Make the dream come true.

Under the experienced management of the American Express Travel Department a cruise around the world is a very practical possibility—easily arranged, easily financed. It is the most real, the most stimulating, the most luxurious experience of a lifetime.

It is so easy to make the dream come true.

Consider the coming Cruise of the Cunarder FRANCONIA. Built especially for long distance cruising, and just launched, the FRANCONIA is the last word in modern ship construction. Safe and speedy—a floating palace of luxurious recreation—a fine and comfortable club with every convenience and refinement suggested by 80 years of Cunard experience—and with perfect management and ship discipline at sea.

Under charter of the American Express Travel Department, the FRANCONIA sails from New York November 15th—returning March 27th. 30,000 wonder miles leisurely covered in 133 never-to-be-forgotten days. Carefully planned shore excursions from all ports of call included in initial cost. Special inland trips optional. Itinerary includes—Havana, Panama Canal, San Francisco, Hilo, Honolulu, Japan (13 days—Yokohama, Kamakura, Tokyo, Kobe, Kyoto, Nikko, Inland Sea, Miyajima), Shanghai, Hongkong, Manila, Batavia, Singapore, Rangoon, Calcutta, Colombo, Bombay, Port Tewfik, Cairo, Naples, Monaco, Gibraltar—and home.

The Franconia Party will be limited. Reservations should be made now. Interest in World Cruising has been so stimulated by the success of last year's American Express' World Cruise that an early closing of bookings is indicated.

Make the Dream come true. Write for full details—deck plans and illustrated book of the Cruise. Experienced travel representatives of the American Express will give you every assistance in perfecting your plans. Call, phone or write.

Matters of Current Interest to St. Louis Lovers of Art

History of Russian art forms an incongruous background for modern Russian painting unless regarded from a psychological viewpoint, when it is apparent that the modern styles are reactionary instead of evolutional.

Since the Tenth Century, the Academy in Russia resembled, in its oligarchical supremacy, the very rigidity of that country's stern government. Academicians were lawgivers to artists and students, all obeying unquestioningly the orders of taste given by the court. Thus, when the Russian court declared that Russian art should follow the Classicism, Romanticism and other tendencies experienced in French and Italian art, the Russian painters were forced by tradition to submit, whatever their private convictions might be.

It was not until the middle of the Nineteenth Century that a Russian artist dared to revolt. At that time, a small group of painters banded themselves together, called themselves the "Wanderers," and left the country. For a time these pilgrims roamed Europe, painting anything or any way they chose. Then the group began to disperse, every man seeking the country of his choice. The influence of the "Wanderers" is probably the strongest one felt in modern Russian painting today. While the Academy still rules Russian technique, it has little influence over the aesthetic inclination or growth of its painters who now take a similar place with the writers, poets and dramatists of that country.

It is with the works of one of the most singular of this band of artistic rebels, Alexandre Eugenievitch Iacovleff, that we are now concerned. An exhibition of some of his paintings, drawings and water colors is now installed in Galleries 30 and 31 of the City Art Museum. The majority of these are studies of phases of life in China and Japan, the countries to which Iacovleff went as a "Wanderer."

It will be noted that all of Iacovleff's paintings here shown are painted upon paper instead of canvas. The effect is odd, although consistent with his lack of reflection. A feeling of solidity results from the opacity of his paintings which could not be obtained had he attempted the rendition in transparency.

The most outsanding feature of Iacovleff's work is his instinctive power of painting direct observations, observations which are searching studies of principles. His insight into the underlying spirit of things, and his ability to expose as well as interpret these motives, are the only characteristic identifications of the artist's nationality, except his name.

A sort of merciless grandeur pervades all of Iacovleff's works. They roar; they fascinate; their strange chasms of emotion seem ready to devour the spectator should he be weak enough to fear.

The first view of the large decorative panel entitled "Soochow in Moonlight" gives the effect of a topsy-turvy house. Queer walls and roofs and bridges and balconies greet one's gaze. uBt how significant they are! How indicative of the instability of the flimsy Japanese architecture! In the wavering perspectives, one soon grasps the effect of the unsubstantial houses perched on bamboo stilts beside the dock. In their indecisiveness, they duplicate the rocking motion of the water that laps against the hulls of small bamboo water-craft that floats weakly hither and thither.

Artist Painted Portrait of Friends.

A magnificent piece of painting is his "Portraits, Port-Cros." The complete composition might best be regarded figuratively. One sees four friends of the artist, and the figure of one who is probably himself, in their respective characteristic attitudes, grouped together and deep in meditation. They are atop the jagged, barren heights. In the background, and far below, he has pictured the little village and bay of Port-Cros.

Perhaps the village and bay were favorite spots with him, and he chose to picture them thus as a background against which his friends and he should live in this portrait. Three men and two women are seen. To the extreme right, a tall, clean-cut blonde youth in white English clothes, stands, leaning against a rock on the precipice. In one hand he holds a sheet of sketching paper; in the other, the hand of a white-robed maiden who sits upon a low stone beside him. Nearer the foreground, a dark, bearded man, in soft shirt and white trousers, lounges in an attitude of profound meditation. One hand upon the rocks behind him supports his body, and the other hand rests upon his bare foot.

Self Portrait Is Accurate.

In all probability this is a portrait of Iacovleff himself. Other portraits of the man show him to be just such a person, and a line in the preface of the catalogue describe him as a "bearded and cameo-profiled, he might have stepped from the Aegina pediment." A woman clothed in a warm yellow-orown garment and wearing a grass hat looks up toward the spectator from a sheet of paper she holds before her, from which it appears she has been reading. Perhaps the verses she has just read have caused the lovers at the right to join hands, and the atmosphere of deep thoughtfulness to spread over the entire company. To the extreme left, another blond youth looks placidly over his shoulder at the contents of the page. At the feet of these two, is a dog, his head stretched comfortably forward, a pensive look in his half-closed eyes. The powerful character portrayal and atmosphere of this picture is a gigantic thing. The personalities of the five vivid people strike out as forcefully as if they had spoken. It is masterfully executed.

"Seaweed Fishers" Shows Rhythm.

The pictures of "The Seaweed Fishers" are like dim chants from the depths of the sea. They are expressions of the rhythm of moving water, the fascination and mystery of the creeping things that live at the bottom of the sea. In "The Boy Seaweed Fisher," which is less pictorial in subject although equally symbolic with "The Seaweed Fishers of Oshima Island," Iacovleff has sensed a series of rhythms; the swinging motion of the youth who carelessly walks the crests of the ocean crags; the eurves of the rocks which show the imprints of swirling waters washing in ever-changing circles against the stone; and the motion of the trailing seaweed as it writhes with the movement of the water. In "The Seaweed Fisheries of Oshima Island," the crouching figures of the fishers appear like land demons who have come to rob the sea and who are being punished now, by straining under the monstrous weight of the ocean above them.

The painting of the "Manchu Woman" is like an ancient Chinese enamel. The daring, glaring blues, purples, reds and whites in the costume and complexion of the woman seem to be glazed. The small figures in the background and the bits of street architecture give vivid glimpses into the life of the people.

All of Iacovleff's works contain intimate, sympathetic comprehension of the life of the Chinese and Japanese. How far are his works from the present fashions of Moscow?

Friendly "Advice" Proved to Be a Form of Manslaughter

How a friend's suggestion as to a "fine medicine" turned out most tragically is told in one of the recent magazines. The fact that the friend meant to help was no consolation to the husband and the five orphaned children.

The mother had been suffering from headaches. A friend recommended a "relief" which had "cured" her on several occasions. Headaches may be the symptom of any one of a dozen ailments, and in this case the mother's headache was due to a heart affection. The friend's "relief" was just the opposite of what she needed—and she died.

A doctor would have found first what caused the headache—and then treated the cause with the personal requirements of his patient in mind.

Isn't it logical that we don't like to "prescribe" something for an ailment? Our work is to see that the doctor's orders are followed.

The DUO-ART

The Reproducing Piano of Today

"I welcome the opportunity to advise publicly the general adoption of the instrument known as the Duo-Art."
I. J. Paderewski

"In fidelity of reproduction, in brilliancy, power, delicacy, quality and variety of tone, the superiority of the Duo-Art is now definitely established."
Harold Bauer

THE Duo-Art Piano offers more to the music lover than any instrument ever before created.

It offers him the privilege and satisfaction of owning one of the finest Grand or Upright Pianos the market provides—a Steinway, a Steck, a Wheelock, a Stroud or a famous Weber.

It offers him in its Pianola action, even if his hands are unskilled, the means of playing the piano himself.

It offers him the inestimable privilege of bringing the greatest pianists in the world—Paderewski, Hofmann, Bauer, Ganz and a host of other artists—to his own home, where, in comfort and at his will—he may hear them play.

You are cordially invited to visit the Duo-Art Salons.

"In the reproduction of my own playing, the Duo-Art is so far superior to any other of its kind, there can be no real basis for comparison."
Josef Hofmann

"The 'immortality' of our playing is preserved from a performance that is essentially our own."
Rudolph Ganz

PHYSIO-THERAPY FOR DISABLED VETERANS

New $1,500,000 Hospital South of Jefferson Barracks Makes Use of Nature's Agents in Treatment.

Physio-therapy, the treatment of disease by nature's agents, has a prominent part in the care of disabled World War veterans at the Government's new $1,500,000 Veterans' Hospital overlooking the Mississippi River south of Jefferson Barracks.

Among those being carried toward recovery by these methods are 10 men undergoing helio-therapy treatments for surgical (bone or gland) tuberculosis. Each day, when the weather permits, the men are placed upon cots on the flat top of the main hospital building, where the rays of the sun upon their bare skins may work their healing effects upon the diseased parts.

One man, a sufferer from tuberculosis of the spine, who had to be kept in a plaster cast when he began Government treatment two years ago is now said to be almost cured. His movements are active. His body is well filled out, even muscular, and his skin is tanned almost the color of mahogany. He looks the picture of health, and shows it. His teeth flash in a happy smile as he tells of his recovery.

Patients Get Sun Bath.

He is the veteran of the helio-therapy colony, but there are others apparently nearly as healthy. By the hue of their skin one may know how long these men have been under treatment, for their tours of relief under the beneficial rays of the sun are a gradually lengthening process, beginning with five minutes' exposure of the ankles and progressing until the patients are receiving a two-hour sun bath daily. By following this gradual method, harmful reactions are prevented.

On cloudy days these patients receive ray baths beneath an ultra-violent ray machine, these rays being that portion of the sun's beams which produce the health-giving results. Both the men and the physicians, however, prefer the direct sun treatment, as the fresh air seems to push the patients farther along the road to recovery. The ultra-violet rays are also 10 times as powerful as the sun, and the indoor bath periods have to be shortened to a tenth of those spent on the roof.

Other physio-therapy methods in use are the electric and hand massages. One of the veterans was so afflicted by rheumatism that all of his joints had become cramped and set, and he could hardly move. Now, however, under the massages and other treatment, he is able to walk with a crutch and is showing steady improvement.

Hydro-therapy, effective in cases of nervous disorders, is also employed. Special rooms contain showers and sprays so arranged that attendants can see at a glance the exact temperature of the water they are playing upon the patients. Whirlpool arm and leg baths, to increase the blood circulation, also are provided, as is a continuous flow bathtub for disturbed mental cases.

The hospital also makes use of occupational theraphy, in which the patients exercise their muscles and forget their ailments, while weaving baskets, rugs and carpets, making toys or doing carpentry work.

These treatments are only a part of the course available for patients. The hospital is able, with its modern equipment and its staff of 18 physicians, aided by nearly a score of consulting experts from St. Louis hospitals, to provide the general medical and surgical treatment necessary for the relief or cure of war sufferers. Dr. P. W. Wipperman is the medical officer in charge.

Patients From Several States.

Veterans of the war are sent to the hospital, the only Government-owned one in the district, from the States of Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas and Iowa. The Government has a general hospital in a leased building at Kansas City and another for mental diseases in Knoxville, Ia.

The 200 patients now at the hospital do not lack recreation facilities. Each Monday night 10 of them are guests of the Municipal Opera management at the open-air theater in Forest Park. The veterans also enjoy river excursions through the courtesy of the Streckfuss steamboat line.

A baseball diamond provides outdoor exercise for those able to play, while a team of hospital attendants engages outside nines for the amusement of the other patients. Motion pictures are shown twice a week in a large recreation hall. Vaudeville and other entertainment programs also are given frequently, these, like the rest of amusement features being arranged for by representatives of the Red Cross and the Knights of Columbus, who are stationed at the hospital.

A radio receiving set, with loud speaker, enables the patients to enjoy the programs from K S D and other powerful stations. Disabled veterans unable to leave their beds have a library of 4000 volumes from which to draw reading matter.

LEGION POST TO GIVE SHOW

Benefit Vaudeville Program at Architectural Club Tuesday.

The Edward E. Walker Post of the American Legion will give a benefit vaudeville show Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the Architectural Club to establish a fund for needy World War veterans.

The Wientge Players, all young St. Louisans, have offered their services, and they will present nine singing and dancing acts. After the performance a dance will be given for both players and audience. Miss Patricia Carson is in charge.

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN THE MOVIE STUDIOS

latest picture, "Homeward Bound," have shifted the scene of their work from the Paramount Long Island Studio to the Tebo Yacht Basin at the foot of Twenty-fourth street, Brooklyn, where night scenes are being filmed on the schooner "Nancy B." Some of the most dramatic scenes of the picture take place on this decrepit craft which is wrecked at sea. Lila Lee, who plays the role of Mary Brent, is injured by a falling spar in this sequence and is saved by the heroic efforts of Jim Bedford (Meighan), who is captain.

Matt Moore, another illustrious member of the acting family that includes Tom and Owen Moore, has been signed by Associated Authors to portray the leading role in Elmer Harris' screen version of Frank R. Adams' Cosmopolitan story, "The Love Hater." Matt Moore is considered one of the best eccentric leading men on the screen and it is said his part in this production will give him his greatest opportunity. Lloyd Ingraham will direct.

Johnny Harron, brother of the famous Bobby Harron, who was a Griffith star for many years, has been signed by the Warner Brothers to play a prominent role in the David Belasco production, "The Gold Digger." Hope Hampton, Windham Standing and Louise Fazenda are also members of the cast.

Ethel Shannon who gets her first chance at handling a featured role in "Daughters of the Rich," once played child parts on the legitimate stage with Maud Adams.

B. P. Schulberg, producer of Preferred Pictures, is the youngest executive in the industry, having just celebrated his thirty-first birthday.

Gasnier, who recently made "The Hero," once directed serial thrillers, two of which were "The Perils of Pauline" and "The Exploits of Elaine."

With the exception of four years in the French army during the World War, Gaston Glass has spent his entire life on stage and screen.

Kenneth Harlan is one of the famous film stars who started out to be a professional dancer his first engagement being a vaudeville act with Gertrude Hoffman.

Walter Long will have a comedy part in his next picture, "The Broken Wing," the Goddard-Dickey stage play recently filmed by Tom Forman.

Lloyd Ingraham, Douglas MacLean's director and a veteran of the legitimate stage, will make his first appearance on the screen in the important role of "Kercadiou," in "Scaramouche."

Another secret about Nita Naldi has been discovered. She was the original Benda girl and was the first model he used in making the Famous Benda masks. It was in the days when Benda was unknown in the art world.

Vaudeville at Grand Opera House.

The bill at the Grand Opera House, beginning with today's matinee, is as follows: The Cheyenne Days Co., in a round-up of roping, riding and humor; Eddie Clayton and Frank Lennie, in "The Chappie, the Chap and the Hat," a comedy effort; John P. Medbury and Phyllis Eltis, in a comedy turn; Harry Rappi, violinist; the Georgalis Trio, sharpshooters; Tom Davis and others in "The Persuader," a comedy playlet; Donna Darling, Murray Earle, Tod Watson, Jack Healey and Naomi Garnella.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months.

CUTICURA HEALS ITCHY RINGWORM

Eruptions Formed. Pained Badly. Could Not Sleep.

"My trouble began with a ringworm on my limb. As time went on the matter grew worse and itched badly. When I scratched sore eruptions formed, which at times pained so badly that I could not sleep. My stocking used to irritate the breaking out.

"I tried many remedies but none of them helped me. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and finding that it helped me I bought more and in less than two weeks I was healed." (Signed) Miss Mary Geisman, 416 Garfield St., Chelsea, Mich., July 17, 1922.

CLEARS COMPLEXION AS IF BY MAGIC

No Longer Necessary to Be a Victim of Unpopularity on Account of a Bad Complexion.

Very often a pimple, blackhead or irritation of the skin is simply nature's way of warning you that you are careless, and is reminding you that you must take care of your skin, clean it of the dust and grease which collect in the pores, so they can throw off impurities from the system, which otherwise collect and then fester, causing blackheads, pimples and other face ruiners.

Women who endured these distressing things for years and who seemed to be able to find anything which would really get rid of them are now using Black and White Cleansing Cream because it really keeps every one of the little pores cleaned out, healthy and active in getting rid of the things which ordinarily cause pimples and sore skin.

By using Black and White Cleansing Cream regularly you make your skin soft, smooth and lovely. Then, instead of putting on just any face powder in the mornings, first use the Powder Cream, which keeps the skin clear, free from surface grease and makes the Black and White Face Powder stay on evenly instead of making your face look "pasty" and "over powdered."

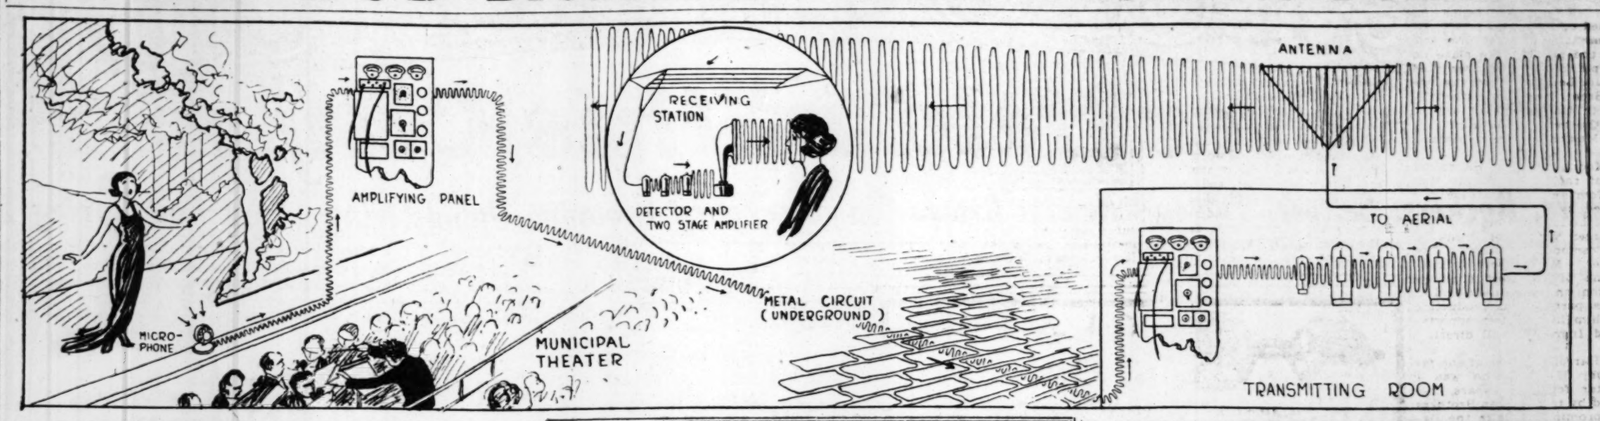
RADIO FOR THE AMATEUR AND EXPERT

How K S D Broadcasts From Remote Points



HOW K S D BROADCASTS FROM REMOTE PLACES

Explanation of Arrangements and Details Necessary to Make It Possible.

For the many thousands of radio enthusiasts who listen-in to the va- programs presented by station , only a very limited few are ar with the great amount of plans and preparations neces- to make possible broadcasting places other than the studio the Post-Dispatch building. ring the past winter programs been broadcast from churches, ters, a hotel, and from the Coli- . This article is to explain how done.

e question has arisen in the ds of many as to where the mitting instruments are located "broadcasting from" a certain . The apparatus which does actual transmitting is perman- installed in the Post-Dispatch ding on which the antenna is ted, and the speech or music is ved to this building over a me- circuit just as though it were phone conversation.

nnouncements are made either the theater or from the roof, ding on the program to be mitted. When broadcasting the Municipal Theater, an- ements are made from the mitting room of K S D. srn mitting room of K S D.

e microphone, a small instru- about four inches in diameter an inch thick, is the device picks up sound vibrations and erts them into electrical waves. s they travel over a three-wire to the first "line amplifier." those who are technically in- ed, it may be added that the mi- hone is of the double-button and of the wires connecting it, is neutral while each of the oth- connected to one of the carbon ns on either side of the dia- gram).

fter passing through the first plifier as shown above, the waves nducted by wire to the trans- ting room on the roof of the Post- atch building. This amplifica- is necessary because of the "line " which occurs when feeble cur- s are conducted over wires to great distance, and without this plification—several million times ere would be insufficient energy erate the transmitter.

the transmitting room at the on they are again increased by pparatus which is an exact dup- of the amplifier in the theater. is at this point that the ac- ntrol of the volume of ampli- on is governed, being increased as may be necessary, ding upon the program trans- ted.

m this, they pass through a t tube which also increases energy and then through the 50-watt transmitting tubes— cillators and two modulators— om these, to the antenna to be t into infinite space.

greatest problem is encoun- when broadcasting from a the- as many tests and experiments ecessary in order to determine best location for the micro- s. Every auditorium has dif- t acoustical properties and must be taken into considera- in locating the microphones.

most cases, a microphone is sus- d from the balcony, for or- music, another is placed in the r of the footlights, for or- al music, while still another is ed about the center of the stage, ly cut in only for vocal num- . Changes from one to the other, ding on the music, to be picked e made by the operator at the ting panel back of the stage. announcements are to be a signal from the announcer the operator to cut in a phone in small sound-proof "back-stage," constructed for purpose, and when they are con- ed, another signal notifies him ange back to the other micro- . This accounts for the so often heard just before announcements.

This room is draped canvas to prevent echoes, which tend to make perfect trans- impossible. The room is pro- with three microphones, one speaker's table and two oth- ated in different parts of the A telephone connects the with the roof and is used by erator for suggestions to the in charge of the studio which help to increase the efficiency broadcasting, such as request- singer to stand closer or far- away from the microphone, or of trouble to temporarily the program being given.

chimes so often heard at the ning of the studio program are located in this room. Many wondered why they were used. reason is that they enable listen- tune in without missing any announcements.

concerts broadcast from Sta- tion K S D are played on the roof, as this is the only available space for large groups of musicians.

The daytime market reports are announced by the operator on duty at the time. The reports come in by telephone and messenger. The announcements are made from the transmitting room proper and for those who have wondered about the "echo" it may be explained that this is due to the fact that the walls of the room have not been draped to prevent the reflection of the sounds. The bugle calls are played on a talking machine, their purpose being the same as that of the chimes, to enable those who desire to get the reports to "tune in" without missing any of the announcements.

Upon entering the transmitting room, the most conspicuous objects are three large panels, one—the amplifying panel referred to above. Another controls the power from the motor-generators, while a third contains the meters and wave-length control of the transmitter. The five tubes indicated at the right of the above drawing are located behind this panel.

Suspended from the ceiling, is a large horn connected to a loud-speaker through which may be heard all that is being broadcast. This acts as a monitor and enables the operator to better control what is going "into the air." The meters also must be closely watched as they too, indicate the efficiency with which the program is being transmitted.

In the adjoining room are two motor-generator units, one of which is an auxiliary set. Change from one to the other is effected by means of a ten-pole double-throw switch. The motors are of five horse-power each, and are direct-connected to 14-volt and 1600 volt generators. The 14 volts are provided to heat the filmaments of the transmitting tubes, while 1500 volts is suplied to the plates of the oscillaltor and modulator tubes.

This room also contains the storage "A" and "B" batteries which provide current for the relays and amplifying tubes.

Washington Signal Laboratory to Reopen.

Maj. J. O. Maubourgne, Signal Corps, who was recently placed in charge of the Signal Corps Laboratory at the Bureau of Standards, expects that experiments will start there on July 15. Among the early experiments planned is the development of suitable terminal apparatus for transmitting General Squier's new universal alphabet. Since this code alphabet is intended to increase the speed of automatic transmission in cable, wire and wireless dispatches, the development of the transmitting and receiving apparatus is necessarily somewhat complicated. With its perfection, it is understood that the Army Message Center located in the Munitions Building here will conduct some long-distance speed transmission tests, as soon as the apparatus can be installed there and at a distant station.

When Soldering Copper and Brass.

For all radio work, when copper and brass are to be soldered, only rosin should be used. Any paste or liquid will inevitably corrode the metals, and it is a difficult job to get all the paste off after the joint is made. For this reason, use only rosin-core solder wire. This is a tube of solder filled with rosin, and no cleaning up is necessary afterward.

Government Summer Schedule.

With the advent of summer and the troublesome static, Government radio broadcasting activities are slowing up. Last week the broadcasting of band music from NAA ceased and this week the Department of Labor transmitted its last radio broadcast for the summer months. Labor will resume broadcasting by radio on Dec. 1, Secretary Davis says. The Public Health Service will broadcast this week messages on hay fever and weeds from NAA on 435 meters.

To Check Summer Static.

The following are a few things which can be done to reduce the effect of static on a receiving set:

Using a low, short single wire antenna.

Employing an indoor aerial which in most cases, brings in the local stations clearly and distinctly.

Using a crystal detector instead of a vacuum tube. This is particularly recommended where one or two stages of radio-frequency amplification precede the detector.

RADIO CONCERTS ON PARIS BOULEVARDS

Public Listens In Over Loud-Speaker in Front of Newspaper Office.

"Le Matin," the well-known Parisian daily, is operating a concert radio receiving set in front of its office on a popular boulevard, where crowds gather to listen to news, concerts and statistics from fourteen amplifying horns. The amplifiers are sufficiently loud to be heard over the terrific traffic noises, Consul Ives reports from Paris.

The public listening-in station was installed by the Societe Francais Radio Electrique, which broadcasts two concerts daily on 1780 meters. Other broadcasting is done by the Eiffel Tower on 2600 meters, and the Superior School of the Telegraph and Telephone Service of the Government on 450 meters.

No provision for a royalty to broadcast has been made in France, beyond the payment of an annual fee of ten francs to the French Postal Service by owners of wireless receiving sets. The Eiffel Tower broadcasting is for the benefit of the general public, and the Superior School broadcasts are carried on in the interest of education and experimentation. The Societe' Francais Radio Electrique, however, states that it obtains its remuneration by the sale of the "Radiola" receiving sets adapted to the broadcasting system used by the Societe', explaining that in order to receive its wireless concerts properly it is essential that a "Radiola" set be used.

Listening-in, is becoming popular in France, it is reported, although not as extensively as in the United States. Anyone may own a receiving set "over there," but transmitting outfits must be licensed by the Government. French receiving sets are advertised for sale as low as 250 francs each. No specific import duties are prescribed for complete radio receiving sets, but the different parts are dutiable separately.

Most of the French broadcasting is done on long wave lengths, except those of the Superior School. It was learned recently, however, that the French military authorities are experimenting in broadcasting on a 45-meter wave length.

COMMERCIAL RADIO IN DENMARK

Radio Telephone System Now Open to the Public, Connected With Land Lines.

Radio telephone connection between Copenhagen and the island of Bornholm in the Baltic Sea, heretofore poorly equipped with means of communication, is now an accomplished fact, Trade Commissioner Sorensen reports. Radiotelephony between the two points is now open to the public. The radio circuit, which consists of the first stations: Amager, Lyngby, Hammeren and Ronne Radio, is based on the Poulsen arc system, manufactured by the German firm Lorenz. The installation permits of communications in either direction simultaneously. The radio is connected with the ordinary Copenhagen telephone system, so that any subscriber may ask for a number of Bornholm Island and get connection. The cost for a call is 3.50 crowns for a three-minute period.

Naval Officer Operators.

Very few naval officers assigned to communication duties are efficient radio operators, according to naval records. An officer assigned to such duty should consider it his first duty to learn at once the code, and, after mastering it, a few hours "listening-in" each day with an experienced operator, will soon enable him to operate. Only by this method can an officer acquire first-hand information regarding the inefficiency of his operators in transmitting and in the observance of procedure, communication officials say.

New Jersey Station Closed.

The Naval Radio Traffic Station at Cape May, N. J., has been closed and abandoned. The transmitter at that station was removed to Radio Compass Station at Henlopen, the latter station becoming the Compass Control station for the group composed of Cape May, Cape Henlopen and Bethany Beach. Traffic formerly handled by the Cape May Station will be handled by the Radio Station at Philadelphia.

WIRED—WIRELESS IN GERMANY

Communication Between Berlin and Stolp Effected Over a Line 400 Kilometers Long.

Experimental work in wired-wireless is progressing in Germany, Consul Richardson advises the Department of Commerce. Recently communication was effected between Berlin and Stolp on the Baltic coast over a 400 kilometer line. This high-frequency telephone line has been turned over to the Federal Post authorities by the firm of Lorens A.-G. Three calls at a time were put through successfully; one on the normal wave length, another on 45 kilometer wave, and a third on a wave of 25 kilometers. Instead of cathode tubes, a special high frequency generator was used.

Radiograms.

It is estimated that there are no fewer than 200,000 radio receiving "pirates" in England.

There are approximately 25,000 receiving sets in Argentina, as compared with 100 a year ago.

There are only two broadcasting stations in Paris: Station FL, Eiffel Tower, operating on the 2800-meter wave length, and Radiola Station, broadcasting on 1600 meters.

The United States Army Signal Corps has perfected a radio system that reaches to all parts of the world and nearly all army messages are sent in this manner as well as many other Government radiograms.

Music is supplied at a Presbyterian church in New York City by use of an amplifier attached to a receiving set. By timing the services just right, an organ prelude broadcast from another church is picked up.

Radio broadcasting stations in the United States have increased from three in September, 1921, to 595 at the present time.

A Citizens' Radio Club has been organized in Omaha, Neb., to protect the legal rights of broadcasting stations and listeners-in.

Radio programs through loud speakers are furnished to inmates of the Ohio State penitentiary every evening between 6 and 7 o'clock.

Radio microphones, loud speakers and vacuum tube amplifiers are now used in directing vast crowds and mob scenes in moving picture spectacles.

1200 Miles With 2 Kilowatt Set.

The United States Shipping Board reports that with the 2 kilowatt arc and "chopper" installed on the S. S. Eastern Glade, reliable night communication was accomplished on 600 meters from Durban, South Africa, to Madagascar for a period of over a month. The distance between the above mentioned places is approximately 1200 miles.

Locating the Aerial.

When planning to erect an aerial be sure to estimate the distance to the nearest electric light or power wire and estimate as closely as possible whether any break in the aerial during a storm might make it possible for a wire to blow across the light or power wire and carry the high tension current into the house.

RADIO INTERFERENCE AT HAWAII

Naval Stations Report Trouble at All Points With 200 Miles of Pearl Harbor.

Recent reports from the Navy Department indicate a very considerable amount of interference from mush and harmonics at all points within 200 miles of Pearl Harbor. Current transformer circuits will be installed on the Honolulu transmitters of the navy within the near future, which will eliminate this interference, it is hoped.

Naval experts admit that arcs and spark transmitters create a considerable amount of interference in their vicinity, unless special circuits are installed to reduce such interference. Transmitters of these types are being modified as rapidly as funds permit. On arc transmitters current transformer or similar circuits are being installed and spark transmitters are being replaced by tubes. Owing to the large number of transmitters operated by the navy and the limited funds available, this work is, of necessity, proceeding slowly, but it is expected that the greater part of this interference will be eliminated during the next fiscal year.

Seven Broadcasting Stations in Vicinity of Oakland.

The Oakland Tribune in California is planning to increase the power of its broadcasting station, and hopes by October to be in a position to apply for a Class B license. At present K L X is operating as a Class C station on 360 meters with a power of 250 watts. New apparatus for a 500-watt set has been ordered from the Western Electric Co., and with a 300 foot antenna, a far wider broadcasting range is planned this fall.

There are seven broadcasters in Oakland and its vicinity; two "B" stations and four "A" stations being in San Francisco, across the bay. The new G. E. station planned at Oakland will make a total of eight.

Examination for Radio Gunner.

It is expected that the Naval Bureau of Navigation will hold an examination for Gunner (radio) about the middle of August, 1923. The Bureau will notify the service at large as soon as it is definitely settled. In all probability, requirements for this examination will be the same as those incorporated in the Bureau's Manual. This is a step in advance for radio in the Navy, as the gunner is a warrant officer and stands next to the commissioned personnel.

A Suggestion.

Attach a pulley on the top of the pole when erecting an aerial. In this way it will be easy to lower the aerial when an inspection is to be made.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All Queries Must Be Accompanied by the Name and Address of the Sender.

Q. I have 50 feet of space in which to run an aerial. Please tell we how many wires to put up and how far apart they should be spaced for best broadcast reception.

S. S. S.

A. One wire is sufficient. It may be necessary to add a loading coil in the circuit, with an aerial of this size, unless your lead-in is unusually long.

Q. Is the one-tube reflex circuit as easy to tune as a single-circuit set? (2) Are UV-199 and C-299 suitable for use in a reflex set? P. S. P.

A. (1) In the opinion of many enthusiasts the reflex set with a loop aerial is the more simple to tune. (2) Yes.

Q. My crystal set gave very good results until just a week ago. Since then I have not been able to hear anything. What is the trouble?

E. W.

A. The probability is that your crystal is burned out. Substitute a new one for it.

Q. Some St. Louis firms are selling Baldwin type "C" phones for less than $7, while others charge $12. Is there a difference between the cheaper ones and the original Nathaniel Baldwin phones? K. P.

A. The original type "C" phones of the make you mention are made in Salt Lake City, Utah. All other phones of this make are made by manufacturers who have purchased the right to construct phones on the same principle.

Q. How far should I ordinarily be able to receive concerts this time of the year on a twin-variometer variocoupler set with one step of audio frequency amplification? E. J. T.

A. The distance regenerative set will receive in the summer is quite variable. Under some conditions fairly long distance reception can be obtained, but most of the time only local stations are audible.

Q. Until recently I have been getting very satisfactory results with my single-circuit set with one step, but now I am troubled with terrible scratching and rumbling noises which sound like static, but they continue even after the aerial has been disconnected. It seems to be confined to the amplifiers, as the noise is not heard when the detector alone is used. At times they stop entirely, then they start up again. I have brand-new "A" and "B" batteries. What is the trouble? W. A. B.

A. In all probability tracing the wiring in your set will disclose a loose connection. Perhaps a joint which was soldered has become loose or there is a poor connection at a binding post.

Q. Please advise how I can stop the whistling in my set, consisting of two variometers, a vario-coupler and a variable condenser? T. N.

A. We would have to see the hook-up you are using before any suggestions could be offered. Perhaps the whistling is caused by too much filament current on the detector tube.

Q. If I connected a pair of 3000-ohm receivers in place of my 2000-ohm headphones, would the signals be any louder? B. T. G.

A. Not necessarily. Because a certain manufacturer says his telephones are wound to 3000-ohm resistance does not mean that these receivers are any more sensitive than another manufacturer's phones rated at 2000 ohms. Impedence, not resistance, is the important thing, but impedence varies with the signals received, and a manufacturer cannot rate his phones by an impedence standard.

For the Notebook.

It is not advisable to use tubes of different filament voltage on the same circuit.

A variometer and a variable condenser make an easily and simply operated set for beginners.

After soldering connections, be sure to wipe off all surplus flux.

Always turn down the rheostats before relighting the tubes, as the battery may recuperate and produce too high a voltage for the tubes.

A pencil-size electric soldering iron, with a platinum heating unit and an extra fine point, has been developed for radio assembly and repair work.

In connecting various pieces of apparatus in a radio receiving set, see that all wire connections run as nearly as possible at right angles to each other. Keep all connections as short as possible.

Some of the synthetic crystals are found to be better than galena.

A variometer connected in series with a coil or circuit, increases the wave length of the set.

Heavily insulated wire may be used for an aerial as well as bare wire.

Never ground a set on the wiring of a house.

There are three ways of varying the inductance of a soil: By means of a slider, taps or by using a variometer.

An indoor aerial can be made with a piece of wire 40 feet long placed back of the picture moulding around the room.

The center, or carbon, rod is the positive side of a dry cell battery. The outside, or zinc connection, is always negative.

Because the loop antenna is a directional receiver, it works best when the pointed end is turned towards the transmitting station.

Care of Headphones.

A good pair of telephone receivers is one of the essential parts of a radio receiving outfit.

It is best to have a convenient hook on which to hang the receivers when they are not in use.

Do not remove the cap from the receivers or look for suspected trouble inside; such cases are rare.

Never press upon the metal which is seen through the hole in the cap. This diaphragm is made of very thin metal and the slightest dent or bend will ruin a diaphragm.

An ordinary receiver, such as used on your office phone will not do to receive radio signals. While the principle of operation is the same in both, the receivers designed for radio are many times more sensitive and time spent with the former is usually wasted.

Concerning Batteries.

The "A" battery may be a dry or storage cell. From an economical standpoint, a storage battery is best. It is more quiet, and may be had in large capacity so that it will provide current for a long time without recharging, and has a reasonably constant voltage until near its discharge point. A storage battery is best because the current taken by the six-volt tubes is considerable, and the set is usually used for many hours at a time.

NEW AMATEUR RADIO REGULATIONS ISSUED

Prohibit Transmission Between Hours of 8 and 10 P. M. and on Sunday Mornings.

The Department of Commerce has authorized a wider band of wave-lengths for general and restricted amateur radio stations, and created a new class of amateur operator's license to be known as "Amateur Extra First Class."

The new regulations [illegible] to all District Supervisors of Radio follow:

June 16, 1923.

Supervisors of Radio and Others Concerned:

General and Restricted Amateur Radio Stations—Licenses will be issued permitting the use of any type of transmitter (CW, Spark, AC-CW, ICW, unfiltered CW and phone) with the restriction that when using pure CW they are authorized to use wave-lengths from 150 to 200 meters and when using spark, AC-CW, ICW, unfiltered CW and phone the wave-lengths from 176 to 200 meters only can be used. The types of transmitters must be specified in the application and in the license.

Special Amateur Radio Station Licenses will be issued permitting the use of pure continuous wave transmitters only, authorizing the use of wave-lengths from 150 to 220 meters.

For the purpose of application to amateur stations, pure CW is defined as follows: A system of telegraphing by continuous oscillations in which the power supply is substantially direct current as obtained from (1) a generator, (2) a battery, or (3) a rectifier with an adequate filter. (A filter is not deemed adequate if the supply modulation exceeds five per cent.)

General Restricted and Special Amateur Stations are now permitted to use a transformer input exceeding one kilowatt, or equivalent of this power based upon watt input to plates of tubes are used. (Where input rating of tube is not specified by manufacturer this rating will be considered as double the manufacturer's output rating.)

On licenses issued for amateur stations you will include the following: "This station is not licensed to transmit between the hours of 8 and 10:30 p. m., local standard time, nor Sunday mornings during local church services."

Special amateur stations must be operated by persons holding an extra first grade amateur operator's license, or a commercial first class operator's license, or a commercial extra first class operator's license. Applicants must also meet the requirements of Regulations 63.

A new class of amateur operator's license is hereby established to be known as "Amateur Extra First Grade." Licenses of this grade will be issued to persons passing the required special examination with percentage of at least 75 and code speed in sending and receiving at least 20 words a minute, five characters to the word; who have had at least two years' experience as a licensed radio operator; and who have not been penalized for violation of the radio laws subsequent to the date of these regulations.

Respectfully,
A. J. TYREE,
Acting Commissioner.

Approved:
S. B. Davis,
Acting Secretary of Commerce.

The Strength of the "B" Battery.

Although the "B" battery is small in size, it has a powerful kick, and extreme care should be exercised to see that it does not happen to become connected in the circuit in such a way that its high voltage passes through the filament of the vacuum tube.

Cause of Sound Distortion.

Distortion of sounds from a radio receiving set is sometimes caused when many steps of amplification are used and not sufficient amount of high plate voltage employed on the last tube or tubes.

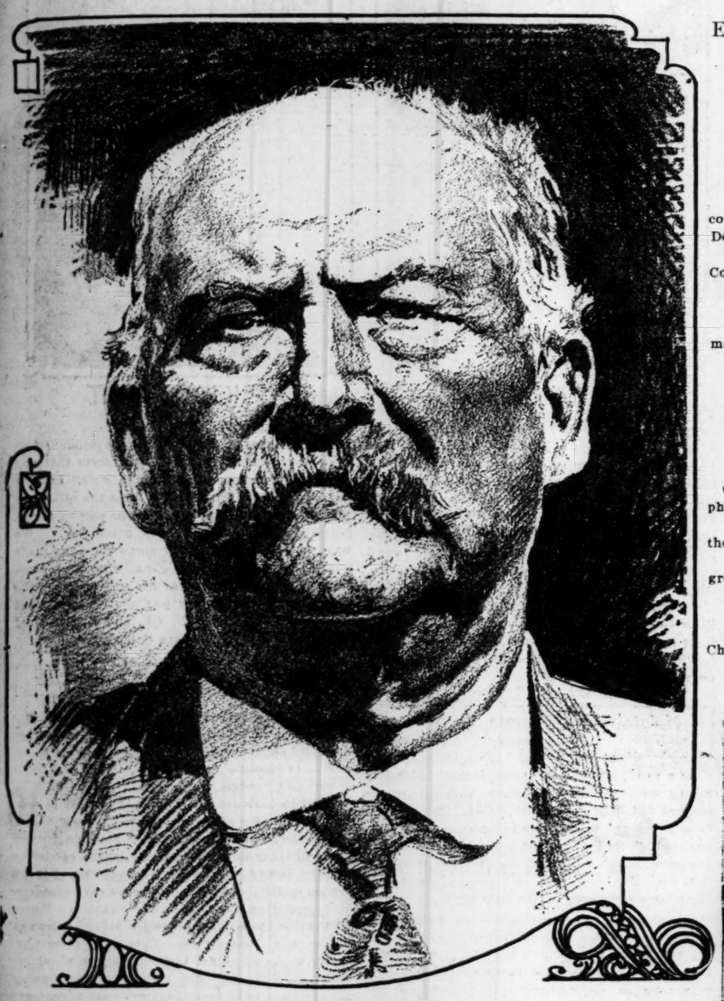
Town Banker Made Mourns Because He Did It With Others' Money

STORY OF "UNCLE EEL" BUNTON, OF MAYSVILLE, MO., WHO WAS A PHILANTHROPIST ON HIS DEPOSITORS' FUNDS



ELI BUNTON,
Banker, conversationalist, philanthropist and all-around Pooh-Bah, known among the inhabitants of the countryside for miles around as "Uncle Eel."

Easily the First Citizen and Poohbah of the Community, He Might Be Going Yet in That Role But for the Curiosity of a Bank Examiner Who Didn't Like His Bookkeeping System, With Its Confusing Pencilled Memoranda and So Insisted That He Get a New Manager to Take the Place of the Three Women Who Did Merely What They Were Told—New Cashier Took a Look Around, Resigned as Quickly as Possible and Called in the State Banking Department.

BY F. A. BEHYMER,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MAYSVILLE, Mo., July 7.

AGAINST the front wall of the Exchange Bank, at the corner of the Public Square, is a stone seat where a wayfarer may rest. In days gone Eli Bunton, banker, sat there, when tasks were finished, and his neighbors gathered around him and he talked to them about business, politics, religion and houn' dogs. Especially houn' dogs, for houn' dogs were Eli Bunton's hobby.

If a funny story was told by Eli Bunton or one of his neighbors, Bunton's laugh boomed across the Public Square, and if it was especially funny he left the stone seat and hung to a telephone pole and laughed the louder.

The stone seat is vacant now. Eli Bunton doesn't sit there, and if he did his neighbors would not gather around to hear him talk about his hounds. Bunton the banker has fallen and great has been his fall. The liabilities of his bank are about $200,000. The town which acclaimed him its greatest citizen has turned against him. His back is to the wall. He is fighting to save something from the wreck of his life's work. It is a grim fight, with the weight of 70 years upon him, and his laugh doesn't boom across the Public Square.

Fighting his fight, Eli Bunton asks no quarter. He feels the hurt of his neighbors' hate but he fights on. Rheumatism has fastened upon his great square frame and he walks uncertainly with a cane, but his face is to the fray. "By doggies," he says, "I'm just what I am. Them that like me, all right. Them that don't can go their way."

Maysville is to a great extent of Bunton's making. His enemies admit that. They add that he did it with other people's money. There is truth in that. It is also true that he paid them more interest for their money than they could get from anybody else. But that is not good banking and his bank failed.

Known to Kin as "Uncle Eel"

For a long time, to keep it from failing, Bunton made free, it seems, with the funds of his depositors, hoping to muddle through, but the law frowns upon such practices, taking no account of the resources of one who makes free that way, and now Banker Bunton has indictments to face, while his fortune, which he felt was ample to protect all who trusted him, is in a fair way to be swallowed up in the processes of liquidation.

"Uncle Eel," as Bunton is called by numerous kin and near-kin of DeKalb County, is fond of saying that he never had a home outside of DeKalb County. He was born in a log house near Maysville. He qualified to teach school but turned his gifts to the running of a threshing machine. Then he became a clerk in the store of his uncle, Joe Truex, at Osborn, and after his uncle died in 1883 he clerked for George Van Camp.

Politics was to his taste and he began by getting elected collector of Grand River Township. Then he moved to Colfax Township and was elected treasurer and trustee. The county was strongly Republican and Bunton was a Democrat but he ran for County Treasurer and was elected by a big vote, with the help of a large relationship of Smiths, Truexes and McCreas and others and a battalion of lodge brothers, for he was a great "jiner."

It was while he was County Treasurer that he seems to have got the notion of paying big interest. He kept the county funds at the Stewartsville Bank, which paid 10 per cent for them. It went broke, as might have been expected, and $10,000 of county funds went in the crash. Bunton's bondsmen made it up. Bunton contrived to have himself appointed trustee for a $25,000 estate. The bondsmen were reimbursed and judgments were obtained against the bank owners, who made over certain lands to Bunton.

His active banking career began about 30 years ago when he was made cashier of the DeKalb County Bank. It failed about 25 years ago, but before that Bunton had left it and had gone into tornado insurance. The lands which the Stewartsville bankers had turned over to him went up in value. He bought the bank and from that time was its principal owner, operating it most of the time in the later years with the aid of three women, Miss Susan Duncan, cashier; Miss Gertrude Winters, assistant cashier, and Miss Minnie Brant, bookkeeper.

His Multifarious Activities

Without regard to sequence, which doesn't matter, these are some of Bunton's activities during the time that he ran the bank:

He farmed 250 acres at the edge of town.

He was chairman of the Democratic County Central Committee 26 years and made the county Democratic and was spoken of as "the Democratic party of DeKalb County."

He was a member of the State Democratic Committee eight years.

Operated a cider press on his farm.

Operated a saw mill on his farm.

Operated a grist mill where farm and town met.

Was a grain dealer.

Raised hogs.

Raised prize cattle and sheep.

Fed cattle.

Served on the school board.

Was Mayor several times.

Organized the DeKalb County Mutual Telephone Co., and was its president and manager.

Helped organize and was first president of the Maysville chautauqua.

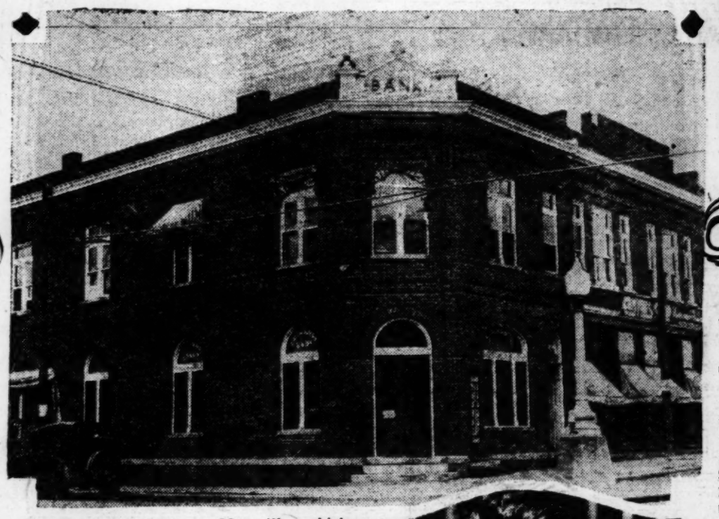
Organized a county fair, established fair grounds on his land and erected fair buildings.

Established the electric light plant.

Built the opera house.

Was a trustee of the Southern Methodist Church.

Taught a Sunday school class.



The Exchange Bank at Maysville, which under "Uncle Eel's" administration has brought up in a hopeless muddle because it paid a higher interest rate than its competitors.

At right is R. E. Shelby, newly appointed cashier of the bank, who, after arriving on the scene and taking one look at the state of affairs, turned in his resignation and hastened to notify Finance Commissioner Millspaugh of Bunton's irregular methods.

Established a tombstone business.

Had a hardware business.

Owned coon dogs.

And a few other things that do not come to mind.

Some of these enterprises have passed from his hands from time to time. The fair grounds are deserted and the buildings are tumbling down. Farmers lost interest in the fair when they discovered that Bunton's way to make it self-sustaining, if not profitable, was to get hold of the finest stock in the county and the fastest horses in the county and win all of the prizes.

The tombstone business is now in other hands. The tombstones, in a weed-ridden lot on the Public Square, among them a dejected marble figure with laurel wreath in hand, form a forlorn memorial to Eli Bunton.

His Name Led All Subscription Lists

In addition to all his enterprises, Bunton's name led all the rest on every subscription list and he was the champion lender of this section. He would loan anything from a threshing machine to his favorite coon dog. No farmer ever came asking the loan of farm machinery and went away empty. He never knew where to look for his machinery when he needed it. If a neighbor dropped in and didn't ask to borrow something, "Uncle Eel" thought it was an oversight and offered suggestions and pressed him to take something or other. He would get up in the middle of the night to do anybody a favor and would give a friend the coat off his back.

He had a good many men working for him, at one thing or another. That is, they were supposed to be working for him. They gathered at the bank Saturday night and Bunton asked them how much he owed them and he paid them according to their own versions of the work they had done. If they erred it was in their own favor.

And he was that way at the bank. He was the whole thing there. He owned most of the stock. He had a board of directors but they did not interfere with him. The three women who did the clerical work were capable and painstaking and knew how a bank should be run, but they did as he told them to do.

The bank was a big family affair. To all his customers Bunton was "Eel" or "Uncle Eel," and the women were Susie and Gertie and Minnie, and the president of the bank and his assistants addressed the customers the same way.

Bunton's efforts were applied to getting enough money in the bank to accommodate all of his borrowing friends. If he couldn't get it at the usual rates of interest he paid more, 6, 7 or 8 per cent. Sometimes he loaned money for less interest than he paid a depositor for it. And sometimes he took a note for it and sometimes he didn't.

MISS MINNIE BRANT,
the bank's bookkeeper and one of several women employes, who was accumstomed to carry out Bunton's instructions and not criticise his manner of handling accounts.

Loaning on first mortgages went out of fashion in Maysville. If Bunton found out that a man, with more money than he needed, was going to loan some of it on a first mortgage, Bunton would take it and pay more interest for it and give the moneyed man the bank's note for it. The bank's note sounded big and most of them fell for it. They still have the bank's notes.

Keep Peter Busy Paying Paul

Even though he worked day and night and hung around the square after banking hours to accept deposits, there were times when Bunton needed money and did not have it, and it is now alleged that at such a time Bunton credited himself with a depositor's money or securities, penciling a memorandum on the depositor's balance sheet, which was ignored in balancing the pass book. If replacement became necessary and there were not funds in the bank for the purpose, it was a simple matter to credit himself with something from Peter's account and pay Paul.

Bank examiners, year after year, ignoring the penciled figures on the balance sheet margins, found agreement between the penned figures and the other records and their suspicions were not aroused.

But last year when Chief Examiner Walton E. Todd came along he found the bank carrying too much paper. In view of Bunton's age and of the fact that all his helpers were women who, it might be inferred, would not presume to question his methods, Todd told him he would have to place the bank under new management. Bunton asked him to recommend some one. R. E. Shelby was cashier of a bank at Martinsville. He wanted to get into a bigger field and had told Todd to let him know if he heard of an opening anywhere. A meeting was arranged and Shelby was engaged as cashier under a contract giving him the right to acquire an interest in the bank at the end of a year.

How First Discrepancy Was Discovered

Shelby entered the bank about the middle of September. He at first gave his attention to the note case in an effort to reduce the loans. His suspicion was first aroused Nov. 17, when Bunton wrote a check for $2000, "pay to loan," and charged it to the account of E. W. Pierce. The $2000 was credited to accounts of several depositors. Shelby examined the ledger and found very minute figures penciled on the margins of the credited accounts, corresponding to the amounts which had been credited to them.

A week or 10 days later Pierce, a land owner, had a settlement with his stock lease man, Bert Whitfield, and gave him a check for $4000. When Whitfield cashed the check Shelby found that, according to the ledger, it overdrew Pierce's account by something like $250 or $300. He spoke to Bunton about it.

"It's all right," said Bunton, "cash interest will be coming in within a few days which will make up the overdraw."

A few days later Shelby met Pierce in front of the bank. "Did Whitfield cash my check?" he inquired.

"Yes," said Shelby, "but it overdrew your account a little."

"Like hell it did," said Pierce. He pulled out his pass book and showed a balance of more than $3000.

"Did you know that Bunton charged your account with $2000 a few days ago?"

"No."

"Well, I think there is something wrong

Because His Name Occurs Most Frequently in Obscene and Unprintable Communications Detailing His Alleged Gallantries With Attractive Women, Investigators Say This Fact Suggests Him as the Perpetrator—Notable Cases of Series of Anonymous Letters and Stories of How They Split Communities by Their Lies and Misrepresentations.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch
NEW YORK, July 7.

WITH at least one suicide and nine divorces traceable to its sinister work, the mysterious "poison pen," which for years has loosed its flood of scurrilous letters upon the city's most select circles, is being hunted to its source, with the prospect of an early solution of the mystery.

At last the authorities have set in motion their forces to arrest the stream of espistolary abuse that has kept many of America's most prominent persons in uninterrupted torment and a grand jury, after listening to more than 100 complaining witnesses, has returned one indictment, naming as the offender, George Maxwell, society and club man and president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Before long a jury will decide whether or not he is guilty. But whether the writer is Maxwell, as the authorities believe, or some embittered woman, as Maxwell's attorney contends, everybody is satisfied that the culprit to be dealt with is a maniac; an individual with a twisted mental make-up that delights in the dissemination of scandal.

In a period of something like seven years no fewer than a hundred persons of wealth or prominence in New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburg have been the objects of vengeful attacks, in which the defamer has viciously maligned husbands and wives to each other, "warned" each of the other's misbehavior with other men or women and denounced all in sneering, unprintable verbiage. As a result of them, homes have been wrecked and several persons driven to insanity or suicide and all apparently for the sole purpose of gratifying the assailant's vindictive nature.

No Blackmail—Gratuitous Vindictiveness

There were many peculiar phases brought to light in the recent grand jury investigation, which included examination of some 157 of the letters, but none perhaps was more astonishing than the fact that not one of the notes suggested blackmail or hinted that the writer expected them to bring him one cent of financial reward. There seemed to be no motive other than the bitter satisfaction afforded by defamation. The letters themselves appeared as the author's sole recompense for the risk he ran. In each case the notes were typewritten, neatly folded in blank sheets of paper and enclosed in hand-addressed envelopes, and in all but one or two instances, were unsigned. In some cases they had been sent in rapid succession to the same individuals. In others the attacks had ceased, only to be continued after a year or two with renewed bitterness.

The contents were strikingly similar in typing, phrasing and vocabulary, and in most cases obscene, scandalous charges were made regarding some of the most prominent women in New York society.

Some were accused of conducting improper affairs with Maxwell. Other notes were directed to husbands telling them in vile terms of the misdeeds of their wives. Actors and actresses were especial marks of abuse, but there was little indication of partiality. So long as any individual was wealthy, socially prominent or well known to the public, it seemed, his or her eligibility to denunciation was established.

Fewer than one tenth of the names of the persons attacked have been made public by District Attorney Banton, but the partial list which follows conveys an idea of the defamer's choice of subjects.

Allan A. Ryan, multimillionaire stock plunger and son of Thomas Fortune Ryan, warning him against Maxwell's alleged attentions to a member of his family.

Mrs. Allan A. Ryan, warning her to watch her husband.

Mrs. Enrico Caruso, the former Dorothy Park Benjamin, who got missives extolling the charms of Allan Ryan.

Thomas W. Cridder, former Government official, who died suddenly following receipt of letters alleged to have told of misconduct by a member of his family.

Countess Santa Eulalia, widow of the late John B. Stetson, multimillionaire hat manufacturer of Philadelphia.

Albert R. Gallatin, socially prominent Philadelphia broker.

Mrs. Gallatin, wife of the broker and a leader in Philadelphia society.

Mrs. Louis R. Page, also a Philadelphia social leader.

Eva Gauthier, a concert singer widely known as an interpreter of exotic music, especially the folk songs of Java.

Eva Burnside, an actress and said to have been a personal friend of Maxwell.

Mrs. Phoebe Hunt, a moving picture actress.

John Drew, famous actor.

Among the hundred or more persons not yet named by the District Attorney are said to be many of equal prominence. Some of them, it is declared, are persons who recently have figured in sensational divorce suits. The public in general and especially members of high social circles are now waiting with tense interest for the rest of the list to be made public.

It was Ryan's complaint that brought about the investigation resulting in the indictment of Maxwell. For months, it seems, the financier had been the target for vile anonymous notes, in which the name of Maxwell was frequently mentioned. Maxwell is well known in New York through his position as head of Ricordi & Co., the Italian house which controls the Puccini operas. Finally aroused by the poisoned messages, Ryan took his case to the District Attorney, and it was laid before the April grand jury. A secret inquiry followed, during which scores of prominent persons were called upon to testify.

Many Witnesses Were Reluctant

They came unwillingly at first, reluctant to discuss the indelicate statements in which they figured. Then emboldened by the relentless stand Ryan had taken, many told their stories and produced the defamatory messages. Others refused to testify, and it is said that dozens left New York, going to various out-of-the-way summer resorts, and even to Europe or South America, to escape being questioned.

Basing their inquiry upon the assumption that one of the recipients of the letters was the author also, the authorities soon found reason to suspect Maxwell, who at that time was in Europe visiting his father, Sir William Maxwell, of Edinburgh.

The investigators regarded as especially significant the fact that he had been mentioned in so many of the letters to other persons. Specimens of his handwriting were obtained and compared with that on the envelopes. Experts said that it was the same. The indictment on a forgery charge followed, because of the fact that one of the letters to Ryan bore the signature of a name that was not Maxwell's. The indictment also accused him of misdemeanor under section 531 of the penal code, which applies to slanderous and obscene letters.

Maxwell vigorously denied the charges. He was in London when news of the indictment reached him and immediately dispatched a statement declaring his innocence and offering to return at once to the United States to face his accusers.

When he did return recently, furnishing $5000 bond and declaring his readiness "to submit to full questioning" the District Attorney's faith in the indictment was severely shaken. He had not believed that Maxwell would come back. However, he is proceeding, though cautiously, with the case, determined to carry it to a finish.

Maxwell gave the following statement to newspaper men when he appeared at the District Attorney's office after his return from abroad:

Accused Man Denounces Charge

"The charges against me are viciously false and I am absolutely innocent.

"I deeply resent the cowardly attacks made against me, and the feeding to the press of sensational accusations, innuendos and insinuations. These were unfounded fabrications made recklessly and wilfully, in bad faith, without any attempt to investigate or corroborate; all with a view to bringing disgrace and discredit upon me.

"From the outset my attorney voluntarily laid before the authorities a mass of anonymous letters received by me and my friends. He requested of the District Attorney's office that the most exhaustive investigation he made to run down and apprehend the actually guilty persons, and offered to co-operate in every way to that end. He also produced witnesses and furnished all information that might throw light upon the matter.

"He informed them of the investigation which I had caused to be made by the Federal authorities some five years ago. He offered to have me return forthwith and, although there were no charges then pending against me, to have me sign a waiver of immunity and to answer all questions.

"I grieve beyond measure for those of my friends who have so innocently been drawn into this scandal and who have been subjected to such disagreeable and extremely unpleasant notoriety."

At the office of Assistant District Attorney Pecora, Maxwell's attorney, Nathan Burkan, added his voice of denial to that of his client. Questioned by Pecora about the scurrilous letters, Burkan termed them a "work of a woman."

"It was all done deliberately out of jealousy to ruin this man's career," he said. "We will not be satisfied with dismissal of the indictments which I will demand in a few days. Mr. Maxwell will get to the bottom of this and see that the guilty one is punished.

One Typewriter or Many?

"Though the District Attorney's office has intimated that all the letters were written on one typewriter, experts declare that twelve different machines were used and the notes all showed different literary styles. I believe the persons responsible went to a central bureau and paid to have these letters written and that most of the work is traceable to a woman.

"This persecution has continued over a period of seven years. It even went so far that on one of Mr. Maxwell's trips abroad the captain of the ship received a letter accusing Maxwell of all sorts of infamous things and suggesting that he be closely watched."

Burkan then produced 40 of the poisoned missives which he said Maxwell had received and pointed out that he had complained to the Federal authorities about them as early as 1918. Other friends of Maxwell also have rallied to his support, asserting that many of the letters attributed to his pen were received during a period when he was too ill even to sign checks in his capacity as head of the Ricordi company. Other defenders were found in the membership of the Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

At the time of his appearance, Maxwell had little to say about Mrs. Ryan, but when asked if he had seen her in Europe, replied:

"Yes, indeed, I saw her and I left the lady on very friendly terms."

GEORGE MAXWELL.

This photograph of George Maxwell, who returned a few days ago to answer the charge of authorship of the poison pen letters that have had New York society in a ferment for a long time, was posed for by him on his appearance to give bond to answer the charge which he vehemently denies. The portraits at the top of the page are those of some of the best known recipients of the anonymous and scurrilous letters.

Maintaining Elaborate Bachelor Apartment

As a result of the indictment, investigation has turned to Maxwell's elaborate bachelor apartment at 272 West Nineteenth street. There detectives found and seized as possible evidence numerous embroidered and initialed pieces of flimsy feminine lingerie. The initials on these garments, it is declared, correspond with those of several of the women mentioned in the letters.

One phase of the case about which much interest and speculation has centered is the search for the typewriter upon which the letters were written. Experts declare that typewriters have characteristics so distinguishing that they can be identified more readily than the average handwriting, and it is upon this peculiar method of research that the detectives expect to establish the strongest evidence in the case.

But what are these characteristics that make it possible to tell the work of one typewriter from another?

The question has been answered by Albert Osborn Jr. of 233 Broadway, whose father, Albert S. Osborn, is the author of two books on the subject, and who has conducted an office as a writing expert for 30 years.

"There is not only a difference between makes of typewriters," said Osborn, "but there is almost as much difference between the same types of machines. There are so many things to differentiate that it is almost impossible for two typewriters to be exactly the same except when they are brand-new. One machine leans to the left, another to the right; one strikes high, another low; and every machine has certain letters which print less clearly or are partly marred. By subjecting the print to a magnifying glass these distinctions are plain enough.

"To a person who has studied it there is just as much difference between an Underwood and a Royal typewriter as between a black man and a white. Despite this a great many anonymous letters, perhaps the majority of them today, are written on typewriters. The authors think they are protecting themselves, but they really are not doing so at all."

Using Poison Pen on Themselves

Osborn points out as significant the fact that most poison pen writers address some of the most vindictive letters to themselves and often make the most vigorous complaints about the attacks. This, he says, apparently appeals to them, as a natural and sure method of covering up guilt and one calculated to throw investigators off the trail. It happens so often, he asserts, that detectives have come to regard all recipients of such letters as possible authors of them until their handwriting and the peculiarities of typewriters to which they have access have been examined. Regardless of how much indignation this causes among the complainants, it is a necessary precaution, for it often happens that those apparently the most innocent are in reality the culprits.

"Some of the worst letters our office has ever been called upon to investigate," Osborn continued, "were written by Brooklyn school girls 14 or 15 years old. They were written to fellow schoolmates or occasionally a teacher and were as vile as any that can be imagined. One never would have supposed that mature enmity had not prompted them. No motive, however, was ever found, aside from childish jealousies and disputes among the girls.

"Years of experience with anonymous letters have convinced most writing experts that you never can tell who the author may be. In a big firm it is apt to be anybody from the office boy up to the president. We had one case of a man getting terrible letters day after day. We worked on the matter for some time and made considerable progress. Finally we got down so near to proving it was his own wife that he didn't want the matter pushed. Why did his wife write the letters? Oh, she was tired of him and wanted a divorce probably."

Reading Letters Aloud Gives Clew

"Sometimes letters are more easily traced after being read aloud. Characteristics of the author are more apparent when the letters are read aloud, and it is possible to distinguish whether there is a personal grudge in the letter or whether it is general in tone and the kind which might be sent to any one of a score of people.

"Writing experts can tell in a great majority of cases whether the author of the poison pen letters in hand is male or female. In handwriting it is a simple matter. But even when the correspondence is typewritten they are not thwarted. Women who write these letters usually revel in scandal, gossip and insinuations. They call names and throw mud. They are inclined to jeer about personal appearances. The man who writes anonymous letters talks less about personal appearance and scandal and is more apt to threaten violence. He usually mentions bodily harm and his terms are almost always more threatening rather than denunciatory.

"A woman brought several letters to our office which had disturbed her very much. The whole of every letter was devoted to nothing but clothes. 'You've been wearing the same hat for two years. It's a wreck and ought to be thrown away. Your dresses fit you like a man's overcoat!' And more of that caliber. In this case the woman was advised to throw the letters away and forget about them."

Osborn is of the opinion that anonymous letter writing is a form of insanity. "At least it is a perversion," he declares, "and many of the letters that we come in contact with have been written by persons with twisted minds. I believe it is the first step on the road to insanity at least. People who practice it have the instinct to hide their fanaticism, but it is there just the same. I would be inclined to think that most people who write such letters eventually lost their minds."

Foremost among poison pen letters of recent record are those which gripped the ancient city of Tulle and riveted the attention of all of France for three years. These caused a woman to commit suicide and four other persons to go insane. The first letter, signed "Tiger's Eyes," was received by an official just before the war ended, and in a few months the city was flooded with them. The plague reached a crisis when a document was posted on the municipal theater with the names of 14 prominent married men and women attached and charging all with secret love affairs.

The act caused an investigation to be started at once, and a young woman, Mlle. Angele Laval, was suspected. It was decided to examine the letters for finger prints by which the writer might be detected. But the next day a letter signed "Tiger's Eyes" said such an undertaking would be futile, as the writer always used rubber gloves. A hypnotist called in on the case declared a young girl, the sister of an official in the office of the Prefect of the Corrom, had written them, and this description was answered by Mlle. Laval.

It was believed that the reason Mlle. Laval would write such letters was because she had been disappointed in love and was jealous of others' happiness. For a long time no sufficient proof could be found to try the girl. Public opinion was so sharp that the girl's mother committed suicide by jumping into a pond and the daughter attempted to do the same, but was rescued.

Months later Mlle. Laval was tried and found guilty of the authorship of the 300-odd letters which had caused so much suffering. She was sentenced to a month's imprisonment, fined 25 francs for public defamation and 5 francs for private defamation. Even after this, there were

Woman Social Leader and Clergyman Caught in Denver Bootlegging Exposure

Daughter of One of City's Richest Men Indicted With Colorado's Handsomest Priest

Ironical Aspect of the Case Is That Indignant Prohibitionist and Philanthropist, Who Resented Effort of Traffickers in Illegal Liquor to Use Home for the Aged He Maintained as Means of Getting Hold of a Supply of Booze, Finds That the Trail of Guilt Which He Followed to the Bitter End Reaches Into His Own Home and Involves an Idolized Daughter—Upheaval in Enforcement Office Follows Arrest of Suspects of High Community Standing.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, Colo., July 7.

BY a curious turn of fate, the zeal which J. K. Mullen, millionaire church leader and philanthropist of Denver, has exercised in defending public morals through his efforts on behalf of prohibition enforcement has brought him to grief and humiliation.

When, a year ago, a mysterious consignment of liquor, imported by unidentified agencies, arrived at the Mullen Home for the Aged Poor, which is one of the monuments to Mullen benevolence, and the indignant founder set about with a corps of Federal investigators to run down the traffickers, it did not occur to him where the trail might end. Indeed, that in itself did not seem a matter of great importance to him anyway. As he saw the situation then, dry law violators were all alike and so long as he did his best to make the inquiry a success in placing the responsibility where it belonged, he felt that his duty was being performed. It was up to his investigators to do the rest.

So Mullen did what he felt was his duty and the investigators did theirs. As a result of it all, his widowed daughter, Mrs. Katherine O'Connor, society woman and mother of two small children, must stand in Federal Court within a few days and answer charges of conspiring to violate the Volstead act. Mullen, his success as a prohibition enforcer now too complete, can only face his humiliation and let events take their course. As reward for his lifelong devotion to the cause of temperance, he faces the first scandal that has ever attached to his name and the old people's home which was the fruit of his philantrophy will stand as a mockery to him, for it was an important agency in the denouement.

"Colorado's Handsomest Clergyman Involved, Too"

The coming arraignment of Mrs. O'Connor is another development in the strange case of the Rev. Father Walter A. Grace, widely known as "Colorado's Handsomest Clergyman," whose connection with the liquor affair was revealed last March at the time of his mysterious disappearance from Denver and his subsequent surrender in Harrisburg, Pa.

The clergyman, who is pastor of the Shrine of St. Anne, at Arvada; his brother-in-law, John R. Walsh, and Mrs. O'Connor all were indicted on June 11 by a Federal Grand Jury and admitted to bonds ranging from $1500 to $2500. All were charged with illegal possession of liquor and conspiracy to transport liquor illegally, and in addition to these charges, Father Grace was accused of forgery.

Because of the popularity of the priest and the social prominence of Mrs. O'Connor, the case has resulted in a church and society scandal unprecedented in Colorado. Many persons in both church and social circles still cling to their accused leaders and refuse to place credence in the charges, but those who claim to be acquainted with the inside details of the affair assert that the case against them is a clear one and that official confirmation of the whisky smuggling story will not be long in forthcoming.

As the time for the final sifting of the facts draws near, Denver citizens feel a surge of pity for the good-natured clergyman and the young widow, but most of all their sympathy goes out to the aged invalid mother of the priest and to the father of Mrs. O'Connor who has dedicated much of his life and wealth to the betterment of the city and the comfort of its poor.

Mullen, who has been a resident of Denver since his early youth, is president of the Colorado Milling and Elevator Co., which operates a string of mills in this and adjoining States, employing a vast army of workmen. For the last 35 years a leader in the Catholic Church and a large contributor to worthy charities, he has been regarded as one of the city's most valued citizens, both because of his work in the development of industry in the West and his benefactions to suffering humanity.

Above and beyond his usual program of altruistic activities, however, Mullen had two transcendent interests. One was temperance and the other was the Mullen Home for the Aged Poor, which was the crowning achievement of his philantrophic endeavors. The miller had built the institution, furnished it and turned it over to the Little Sisters of the Poor to be operated as a haven for that pitiable class of human derelicts who in their old age have no place to turn but to the poor house.

Early one morning a little more than a year ago the sisters at the Mullen Home looked out with astonishment to discover a transfer crew preparing to unload a huge truck load of barrels. Not having ordered any barrels or barreled goods, the sisters halted the proceedings to satisfy their curiosity regarding the contents. Their astonishment was still greater when inquiry revealed that the consignment was liquor—15 barrels of it—and that the application for its transportation into Denver bore the name of a nun in the institution.

The nun in question declared the signature was a forgery. However, she admitted that at the instance of a clergyman whose name was not made public at the time, she had signed an application for one barrel upon the representation that the liquor was to be a gift to the institution for medical purposes and that her application was a formality necessary to its transportation there. As for the 15 barrels, she declared, she knew nothing, and the Mother Superior refused to accept the consignment or responsibility for it.

After some little wrangling over it, the liquor finally was stored in the vaults of the Federal prohibition enforcement department, where, so far as the public was aware, it remained.

Millionaire Prohibitionist's Wrath

Meantime, however, Mullen, righteously indignant that anybody should try to employ his pet institution of charity for expediting a whisky traffic, immediately took on himself the responsibility of running down the offenders, whoever they might be, and seeing that no guilty one escaped punishment.

First he went to the local enforcement authorities with his complaint. They made a half-hearted show of activity for a few days, only to discover—not the smugglers, but the fact that 10 of the 15 barrels which had been stored in their keeping had disappeared.

The insult added to injury was too much for Mullen. He forthwith took his case to Washington. When the inquiry was resumed, Mullen and a staff of special Federal agents from headquarters headed it.

The populace watched the progress of the hunt with good-natured curiosity. "Have you seen any of that 'Early Times'?" became a question of greeting much bandied about as the case gained notoriety. "Early Times" was the brand of the liquor that had disappeared. Various individuals with any end in view but that of helping enforce prohibition also took up the trail. All the exclusive bootleggers and even the most lowly dispensers of inferior moonshine were besought by prospective new customers, hopeful of getting a taste from one of those 10 strangely missing barrels. But the bootleggers seemed to know no more about the liquor or the disposition of it than anybody else. It seemed clearly evident that this was no ordinary mercenary enterprise, but one of gratifying fastidious thirsts.

The first intimation the public had that Father Grace was involved came when the investigators went, on the evening of March 20, to his home in Arvada with a warrant for his arrest and found him missing. He had been at home that afternoon, for neighbors had seen him about the place, but he had strangely and suddenly disappeared. His aged mother, who made her home with him, couldn't say where he had gone. He had just stepped out for a few minutes probably and would be back, she thought. Anyway, she was certain he wouldn't run away from justice if he was wanted on a serious charge. "Come back in the morning," she told the officers, "and you will be sure to find him." And they went back, but to no purpose. It was not until three weeks later that they were to hear of him again, although he was sought in every part of the United States.

Various theories as to his whereabouts were advanced, some suggesting that he might have been done away with by members of a whisky ring in order to cover up their operations, and some venturing the opinion that a woman was deeply concerned in both the liquor transactions and his flight.

Bishop Henry Tihen of the Colorado Diocese could throw no light on his absence. He had asked for and had been granted a five years' leave of absence, the Bishop said, but had offered no explanation of the reason for his planned departure and had not even stated when he expected to take it. Speculation, with more or less inaccurate deductions, continued until he turned up in Harrisburg three weeks later.

Immediately after the issuance of the warrant against him became known and the story of his disappearance noised about, details of the investigation, which had previously been kept quiet, began to come out. It was disclosed that the special agents had not been on the ground long until they discovered that the 10 barrels of liquor had been removed from the storage vault by Father Grace upon the representation that it was to be transferred to a Denver orphanage. Curious, then, to know why orphans required so much hard liquor, they had turned their inquiries in that direction, to learn that no liquor ever arrived at the orphans' home—or in fact had ever been heard of. Further investigations revealed, according to the agents, that Father Grace was the man who had forged the nun's name to the application that brought the shipment into Denver in the first place. The issuance of a forgery warrant then followed, with the discovery that Father Grace had vanished as completely as if the earth had swallowed him up.

MRS. KATHERINE O'CONNOR, Widowed daughter of J. K. Mullen, Denver millionaire, who unknowingly brought about her indictment on a liquor conspiracy charge through his efforts to have the prohibition law enforced.

THE REV. FATHER WALTER A. GRACE, Widely known as "Colorado's handsomest clergyman," who has been indicted on a charge of possessing liquor illegally and of forging the name of a Catholic nun to a liquor application. Last March Father Grace's mysterious disappearance from Denver, following the issuance of a warrant against him, resulted in a nationwide sensation.

The Shrine of St. Anne, at Arvada, Colo., of which Father Grace was Pastor. Shortly before his connection with the liquor case became public he obtained a five-year leave of absence.

Priest Delivered Liquor to Woman

Later developments were to indicate that instead of delivering the liquor to the orphanage, Father Grace had apparently turned it over to a prominent society woman, and although names were not made public at the time, it was not long before common gossip about Denver had it that the mysterious "woman in the case" was Mrs. O'Connor. Rumors were to the effect that she had furnished at least a part of the money with which the whisky was purchased and that she was the recipient of a portion of it after its arrival.

At that time, however, Mrs. O'Connor was absent from Denver, having departed for a lengthy sojourn in the East at about the same time the priest disappeared, so for some weeks no action was taken in her case.

On April 10, nearly three weeks after his disappearance, came the first definite trace of Father Grace. A dispatch from Harrisburg stated that he had surrendered there to a United States Marshal. He had been in Chicago, Washington and Philadelphia since leaving Denver, he told the officer, and declared he had not known of the search for him until a few days before. The charge he characterized as "absurd" and refused to discuss the case further, until he had conferred with Bishop Tihen and consulted an attorney. He was arraigned, however, before a United States Commissioner there, pleaded not guilty to the forgery charge and released on a $2500 bond returnable June 15, pending action by the Federal Grand Jury.

It was on June 11 that the indictments were returned in Denver and it was officially made public that the woman in the case was Mrs. O'Connor, daughter of the man who had unknowingly brought about her apprehension. As soon as warrants based on the indictments had been prepared the three surrendered. Father Grace and Walsh, who was accused of aiding him in transferring the liquor from the storage vaults, were released on bond of $2500 each and Mrs. O'Connor on bond of $1500 furnished by her father.

Upheaval in the Enforcement Office

Mrs. O'Connor, in the joint indictment, is charged with conspiring to violate section 37 of the penal code, which specifically concerns the Volstead act. The penalty, under this charge, is imprisonment for not more than two years or a fine of not more than $10,000 or both.

Out of the investigation of the whisky scandal grew an unheaval in the local Federal prohibition enforcement department which has resulted in the resignation or discharge of the chief and all but one or two of his agents. The same grand jury which indicted Father Grace, Mrs. O'Connor and Walsh, also returned three true bills against the chief, E. H. McClenahan, and four of his subordinates, charging technical violations of the regulations governing the office.

Out in the little suburb of Arvada where Father Grace was something of a local idol because of his interest in the activities of young people there is no lack of loyalty among his parishioners. While they admit that he may have fallen, they are convinced that the woman was most to blame.

Father Grace's failing, they will tell you, was his good looks. He was too handsome. Women were attracted to him and he enjoyed their admiration. No matter whether he stood in his clerical robes in the pulpit or pulled weeds in his garden he still had an Adonis-like bearing that appealed to feminine fancy and their regard appealed to his vanity. He was too ready, his acquaintances declare, to help a friend in any way possible, especially if that friend was a woman, and this is the way they explain his recent misstep. The woman or some of her associates, the parishioners believe, induced Father Grace to help them, through his position and influence, to provide liquor for their private use. Father Grace was willing to risk anything to oblige them and dishonor and disgrace was the result.

Town Banker Made Mourns Because He Did It With Money That Belonged to Others and I'm going to look into it."

He arranged with Pierce to enter the bank a few minutes later and inquire about the Whitfield check. He did so and the conversation which had taken place outside was repeated, giving Shelby a pretext for examining the books. He discovered that $4700 had been charged against Pierce's account.

The situation was called to Bunton's attention and he turned over to Shelby a draft and notes to cover what had been charged against Pierce.

Too Much for the New Cashier.

Shelby conjectured that other accounts were in the same shape. He went through the ledger and took a memorandum of the marginal pencilings. He found discrepancies between the ledger and the passbooks, corresponding to the penciled items.

That night he had a talk with Bunton. "It seems to me," he said, "that you are debiting accounts. Do the people you are debiting know about it?"

"Every one of them," said Bunton. "And I've got securities laid away to cover all of it."

"I ran across one the other day who didn't know about it," said Shelby, referring to Pierce. "If they know about it, why are the passbooks balanced without showing the debiting?"

"That's just a way we have of keeping memorandum here," said Bunton.

Shelby reminded him that it placed a liability on the bank, as it had to pay according to the pass books.

Next day Shelby resigned and notified Finance Commissioner Millspaugh. Chief Examiner Todd and Examiner James arrived Dec. 11. Bunton denied there was any irregularity. In three days the examiners found $96,000 charged against depositors. Bunton said he could account for $65,000 of it. The bank was permited to remain open on condition that Bunton put up good securities for $40,000 and an indemnity bond for $65,000. He complied. Shelby was replaced in the bank as cashier and representative of the State department.

Among the securities put up by Bunton was a note for $11,000, purporting to have been indorsed by Louis Fricke. This was found to have been taken from Fricke's safety deposit box in the bank, to which Bunton had a key. Fricke repudiated the indorsement and sued for the note and recovered it. In the trial of the case Bunton stood on his constitutional right and refused to testify.

Shelby concluded that there was no use of "monkey fiddling" any longer and notified Todd to come and get the bank. Todd came and closed the bank and on Jan. 2 placed it in charge of Shelby as special assistant examiner.

Some Illustrations of Bunton's Methods.

A complete examination of the bank's books disclosed, it is said, that approximately $100,000 had been charged against various deposits and credited to Bunton, on top of which are worthless notes for $80,000, and notes for $20,000 left at the bank for safe keeping, for which the bank is responsible are missing. The prospective loss, therefore, is around $200,000 and there will be little for the depositors.

Bunton is also said to have borrowed $65,000 from city banks and there is a $20,000 mortgage on his farm.

People around here think what happened to Louis Fricke was a pretty good example of high finance for a small town. Fricke, it seems, sold Bunton 180 acres of land for which Bunton was to pay him $12,000. The deed was drawn and when Fricke went away he left it in his safe deposit box and left the key with Bunton. The banker sold the land for $21,000. He then made out his note for $12,000 to Fricke, dropped it into Fricke's box and took out the deed. There was a real estate note for $3450 in the box. Bunton is alleged to have sold this to Bert Whitfield.

When Clarence Snider, a grocer's clerk, began making deposits at the Exchange Bank, Bunton agreed to pay him 6 per cent. Bunton made a notation to that effect. When the bank closed Snider had deposit slips for $2676, but his name was not on the ledger.

Mike O'Laughlin, a retired farmer, had $14.60 to his credit when the bank closed. He filed a claim for $17,048.60, including $14,000 which Bunton had borrowed from O'Laughlin's account on his personal note. O'Laughlin has died since. His widow is keeping roomers.

The Rev. C. C. Moore, a Baptist preacher and farmer of near Clarksville, had $3200, the savings of a lifetime. Bunton heard about it and drove over to see him and found him in the field and asked him about it. Yes, the preacher said, he had the money and it was in two banks. Bunton offered him 6 per cent for it. Moore drew it and turned it over to the Exchange Bank on Sept. 29. The next day Bunton credited himself with $2250 of this amount.

Just before the bank closed Moore came in and inquired about some securities. Bunton figured the interest that was due, added it to the amount of the deposit and gave Moore his note for five months for the total, taking up Moore's duplicate deposit slip. So the note is not a liability against the bank.

The books showed, when the bank closed, that J. A. Parten had overdrawn his account $10. He produced a duplicate deposit slip for $179.35, dated Dec. 13. The deposit was in the form of a check which Bunton had given him for wheat. He received no credit for the deposit. The check and original deposit slip were not found.

Charles W. Harvey deposited a check for $252.29 which he had received from Bunton for wheat. It has not been found.

Eight Indictments Against Him.

Eight indictments, charging embezzlement, forgery and receiving deposits while insolvent, have been returned against Bunton. One charge is the embezzlement of $71,641.08 by the process of crediting himself with depositors' money. The other charges involve amounts ranging from $534 to $11,000. A change of venue has been taken to Savannah, in Andrew County.

There are indications that affairs at the bank have been muddled for 15 years, with varying shortages. Bunton is believed to have used part of the money in his many enterprises and loaned the remainder to friends. He did not speculate and had no bad habits. He lived well but not extravagantly in a spacious brick house a block from the bank. Sitting there yesterday, he said, as he prodded the floor with his cane for emphasis:

"I had $175,000 on Dec. 1, last, more than ample to cover all my liabilities if I had a chance to work it out. Now I have nothing except what you see in this house."

And they say here in Maysville that the old man had to borrow $10 to retain a lawyer after his estate was tied up with the closing of the bank.

Eli Bunton feels that he has been badly treated by the State Banking Department. He says so plainly enough in a suit against Walton E. Todd, R. E. Shelby, the Exchange Bank of De Kalb County and Frank C. Millspaugh, the petition in which is spoken of hereabouts as a "ring-snorter."

In it Bunton alleges that Todd, after requiring him to get a new cashier, recommended Shelby and participated in the negotiations which resulted in an agreement for Shelby to buy 52 shares of stock. The terms, as Bunton understood them, were that Shelby was to receive two shares at once and the remaining 50 shares when $10,000 was paid for them within one year, but he says he found after signing the contract, without carefuly reading it, being in ill health, that he had obligated himself to make good all doubtful paper in the bank, which was not his intention or he would have fixed a price for the stock based on the face value of the paper, which would have made it $582.72 per share.

Grand Jury Not Impressed by His Excuse.

After Shelby took charge, Bunton says, he and Todd persuaded Bunton, for the sake of strengthening public confidence in the bank, to deed his real estate to the bank, under pledge that the deeds would not be delivered or recorded and that after confidence had been restored they would be destroyed.

Shelby took full charge, the petition says, and on Dec. 12 he and Todd called the directors together and threatened that unless a bond for $150,000 was given to guarantee the assets of the bank, it would be closed. The bond was given. The petition asserts that it is was procured by fraudulent representations and is void and asks that it be set aside.

About the same time, Bunton says, Shelby and Todd, the latter acting in all these matters in his official capacity, required him to deliver to Shelby new solvent notes for $35,000, asserting that he had been guilty of criminal action in the conduct of the bank, "although in fact plaintiff had not been in active charge of the affairs of said bank for years."

If, by the quoted words, Bunton intended to shift responsibility for the bank's practices to the three women, the grand jury did not share his view, and the community, while doubting that irregularities could have existed without their knowledge, is only partially disposed to blame them for an attitude which seems to have been complacent.

Turned Over $41,000 in Notes.

Pledging additional property to his friends, Bunton procured $41,000 worth of solvent notes, the petition says, and turned them over to the bank.

And then, Bunton alleges, having obtained his deeds and the bond for $150,000 and "having required this plaintiff to pledge the last vestige of his remaining property, personal and real, the accumulations of a lifetime," to secure notes for their benefit, and having acquired, as they believed, the majority of plaintiff's stock in the bank for little more than a nominal consideration, Todd closed the bank.

The deeds were then stamped and recorded, the bond and notes were appropriated and Todd "placed defendant Shelby, his ally, confederate and co-conspirator, in charge of defendant bank under the high-sounding and forbidding title of Special Deputy Finance Commissioner."

Since that, Bunton says, he has discovered that Todd or somebody for whom he is acting, is interested in the contract of purchase, that Shelby is a straw man, a tool and confederate of Todd in an attempt to rob Bunton of the accumulations of a life of industry and toil, and that "Shelby is an apt and obedient vassal, is acquainted with the design of Todd and has been from the beginning, is penniless in his own right, and entered whole-heartedly into the conspiracy to defraud plaintiff and expected to share in the booty acquired through the official pressure of Todd, coupled with his own perfidy."

Says Enemies Counted on His Early Death.

All things that were done, Bunton alleges, were done in the expectancy of his early demise, "but by the grace of an indulgent Providence he has been greatly restored to health," perceiving which "said defendants were filled with consternation," and that was why, instead of continuing to operate the bank, they closed it.

"They realized," the petition says, "that with plaintiff alive and well, and competent to testify, they could never hope to hold more than a hundred thousand dollars' worth of his property, of which they had defrauded him. They therefore changed the aspect of their conspiracy, pretended to throw defendant bank in official charge and instead of Bunton physically dead and his mouth 'stopped with dust,' they would make him civilly dead.

"The said defendants, therefore, in pursuance of this new conspiracy, and as the only way of escape, since fate had been unkind to them and sapred plaintiff's life, formed the plan of procuring plaintiff to be indicted, and in pursuance of this plan they apeared before the grand jury and there procured plaintiff's indictment upon eight different charges, all wholly without foundation, thus bringing upon plaintiff obloquy and shame through no greater fault of his than that his life had been spared to stand in the way of their designs to procure illgotten gain."

So he asks that the various transaction be set aside, that the defendants be restrained from proceeding under the various instruments, that they be decreed in unlawful possession and that a receiver be appointed.

Eli Bunton, leaning heavily on his cane, goes his tottering way, a little bewildered by the ruins of his life, lying about him, but there is fighting fire in his eyes, by doggies, and his laugh booms again as he tells how he fooled his enemies by escaping the grave.

"I'm a partizan," he says. "I always have been. In politics or religion or business, if a thing is worth my time and attention, I'm for it fully. I'm in this fight for the depositor. I want the people to get their money."

So there stands Eli Bunton, with his great broad back against the wall, leaning on his firmly-planted cane, for his 70 years and his rheumatism bear cruelly upon him, but fighting, and he'll fight, there's no denying, until death calls him from the fight and his neighbors carry him to his rest.

Then, maybe they will inscribe above him the tribute which, yesterday, A. J. Hitt spoke: "He has done more for this community than any other 10 men."

Meantime, though, the community for which Eli Bunton has done more than any other 10 men, is bitter against him. So the stone seat against the front wall of the Exchange Bank is vacant and nobody comes to hear "Uncle Eel" talk business, politics, religion and houn' dogs.

NEW YORK SOCIETY'S POISON PEN AND THE RUIN IT HAS WROUGHT

many people who believed the girl had been wronged, and she received numerous proposals of marriage.

Case That Baffles Scotland Yard.

Another poison pen case, as disastrous as that in Tulle if not as widely known, is that of the seaside resort of Littlehampton, England, which has been subject to a similar scourge for about two years. The perpetrator of this set of letters has not yet been seized, although the best minds of Scotland Yard have worked on the case.

The Littlehampton letters are undoubtedly written by a woman, and one woman was arrested, convicted and given a prison sentence. Each time while she was still confined behind the bars the vulgar and offensively phrased notes began to circulate again, and it was acknowledged the imprisoned woman could not be the guilty party.

Bankers, lawyers, doctors and men and women in all walks of life were recipients of the scurrilous letters containing all sorts of charges from dishonesty to immorality. All the notes revealed an intimate knowledge of public and private affairs in the town. After the Scotland Yard officials had taken over the case they caused the arrest of the young woman who had complained against the woman first arrested. There was not sufficient evidence and she was released. For a time the pestilence died down in Littlehampton, but it broke out again only a few months ago and is still unsolved.

Middletown, N. Y., was the center of an anonymous letter outbreak in 1915, when county and city officials received scores of letters. The majority were about young married women or women about to be married warning them against their husbands or the men they planned to marry. The postal authorities made an investigation and the flow of this type of correspondence ended abruptly.

Passaic and Elizabeth, N. J., have had similar experiences with poison pen letters and half a dozen homes were broken up in Ypsilanti, Mich., in 1914 as a result of a prolonged campaign. In that instance it was discovered a woman had written the letters for several years and sent them to men against whom she had grudges.

These have been typical and widely known cases of anonymous letter writing. Once in every few months or years an epidemic will break out again and the same difficult trail must be gone all over again in an effort to discover the heartless author of these slanderous and vile attacks. The path of the poison pen is strewn with suffering, suicides, instances of people driven to insanity and inestimable anguish.

UNIVERSITY CITY MASONS TO BUILD $150,000 TEMPLE

Holding Corporation of University Lodge No. 649 Buys Site at Delmar and Trinity.

PRICE PAID FOR TRACT NOT DISCLOSED

Embraces Two Lots With Frontage of 144 Feet on Delmar—Building to Be of Bedford Stone.

By Berry Moore.

The University Temple Association, a holding corporation of University Lodge, No. 649, has purchased the southwest corner of Delmar boulevard and Trinity avenue, in University City, as a site for a Masonic Temple to cost $150,000. The membership of the lodge is composed exclusively of Masons of University City.

The transaction was handled by W. W. Butts of the Butts Realty Co. The grantor was the Regent Mercantile Corporation, the president of which is E. G. Lewis, who reserved the site for a Masonic edifice when he laid out University City, according to Mr. Butts. The price paid for the site was not disclosed.

The site, which embraces two lots, has a frontage on Delmar boulevard of 144 feet, by a depth on Trinity of 200 feet, and is one of the most important in University City.

Will Be One of Group.

The building will be grouped with the Magazine Building and the Egyptian Building, which occupy opposite sites at the intersection of Delmar and Trinity, and which form the distinguishing feature of this attractive subdivision layout. The group eventually will include the proposed church of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, for which the southwest corner of Delmar boulevard and the entrance to University City, has been acquired.

The preliminary plans for the Masonic Temple, which will be designed after the Greek temples, have been completed. The columns and exterior walls will be in Bedford stone.

The plans were drawn by J. W. Leach, architect, with offices in the Railway Exchange building, who has been retained as architect and supervisor of construction.

The building will have a frontage of 100 feet on Delmar by a depth of 80 feet on Trinity, and will comprise two floors with all modern conveniences. It will stand in the center of the spacious site.

A banquet hall, library and lounge will occupy the first floor. The banquet hall will be finished in the Louis XIV style and the library in the Georgian period. The latter will be very luxuriously furnished.

Lodge Rooms on Second Floor.

The lodge room, ante rooms and lodge offices will be located on the second floor.

The equipment will be of the most modern type, including indirect heating and lighting and mechanical ventilation.

The plans contemplate two entrances, one on the south side of the hall, which will be on the second floor, and the other on the east front, which will lead to the banquet hall, which also will provide room for community usages on the first floor.

University City has been a notable case of expansion, which is reflected in both the residential and business districts as well as in the municipal center. The section is fairly teeming with construction which is on a comprehensive scale.

City Hall Being Extended.

The city hall on the south side of Delmar boulevard is being extended and increased from two to three stories, while a new engine house is under construction, just east of the city hall, both being indicative of the growth of University City.

The Parkview Realty & Investment Co., of which Harry J. Cohen is president, is constructing a four-story fireproof structure at 6324-42 Delmar boulevard in University City. It will contain nine stories, 44 apartments and a theater with a seating capacity of 1500.

The theater, which is to be known as the Tyrol, has been leased for 10 years to the St. Louis Amusement Co., controlled by Skouras Bros. and Harry Koplar.

The building will have a frontage on Delmar of 196 feet by a depth of 110 feet, the site for the project. It will involve an outlay of $600,000, having been acquired at the instance of the Weisels-Gerhart Co., which handled the transaction.

Subdivisions Being Developed.

Maryland Terrace, a subdivision of the Davis Realty Development Co., of which Everett Davis is president, University Park, controlled by the Cyrus Crane Willmore organization, the Olive boulevard apartment addition, recently launched by the E. Davis Mortgage Co., Pershing School Terrace and Delmar Garden, all of which are conspicuous subdivision successes, form integral parts of University City.

With the expansion of the city limits, which real estate men declare cannot long be deferred, and for which sentiment is fast crystallizing in University City, this superb residential addition will automatically become a part of St. Louis, of which it now is virtually an addition, there being no line of demarkation between the two.

The materialization of the Masonic Temple plan is heralded as auspicious development for University City.

The Delmar Improvement Association of University City, formed six months ago, and of which Henry R. Weisels, vice president of the Weisels-Gerhart Realty Co., is president, has been quite active.

New White Way Planned.

As a result of its activities the poles of the United Railway have been removed from the center of Delmar boulevard between Skinker and Kingsland avenues, while Delmar boulevard is to be repaved and a modern lighting system installed for a white way, which will rival the famouse Wilson avenue of Chicago, Weisels declared.

About 40 members of the association recently inspected the new electroliers placed on the United Railway poles on Delmar between Westgate and Melville avenue, and which have been placed on the sidewalk. All the members of the association are enthusiastic as to the new lighting device, which is an ornamental fixture with ripple globe and canopy. Four lights placed 90 feet apart on both sides of the street were sufficient to beautifully illuminate with a soft mellow light the entire block.

REAL ESTATE MORTGAGES PAY AN AVERAGE OF 6.10 PER CENT

Real estate mortgages held by insurance companies returned an average of $1.49 the $100, or 25 per cent, more than did stocks and bonds in the period from 1915 to 1921. This was disclosed by data compiled on the National Association of Real Estate Boards by the Institute of Research in Land Economics o fthe University of Wisconsin.

The average gross rate on mortgages was found to be 6.1, and on stocks and bonds, 4.6 per cent.

The average gross rates of income earned by insurance companies on mortgages and stocks and bonds follow:

	Mortgages, stocks and bonds.
1915	6.12	4.69
1916	6.12	4.72
1917	6.17	4.69
1918	6.17	4.38
1919	5.90	4.55
1920	6.08	4.68
1921	6.17	4.81
Average	6.10	4.61

Rehels has been in the real estate business in Belleville for the last seventeen years. Weixel is a well known business man of this city.

SWOPE SHOE CO. GETS WEST END STORE LEASE

Will Open Branch Shop Featuring Children's Shoes at 4463 Maryland.

The Swope Shoe Co., has acquired a lease of a store at 4463 Maryland avenue, adjoining the northeast corner of Euclid, which it will occupy with a branch shop for children's shoes. In addition the store will carry stockings for children and for women, but this will be the only deviation from children's shoes.

The store will open about the latter part of September. Alterations are contemplated which will make the store atractive and distinctive. The lease was made through the F. H. & C. B. Gerhart Real Estate Co., which own the building.

The main store of the Swope Shoe Co., is Ninth and Olive streets, the branch store having been conceived for the convenience of its West End trade.

TWELVE SALES REPORTED BY HIEMENZ REALTY CO.

Henry Heimenz Realty Co. has sold the property at 3415 Laclede avenue for the account of the H. G. Christopher Estate to William Duerbeck. Other sales by this company follow:

4388 McPherson avenue for account of W. E. Bell to Elizabeth Smith, represented by W. J. Bartling.

Southeast corner of West Papin street and Taylor avenue for account of F. O. Drake to Walter L. Freund.

1222-25 Hodiamont avenue for account of E. A. Freund to Sam Pogorelsky et al.

5514 Columbia avenue for account of Mrs. Nellie Yeager to Bernardo Urani and wife.

2129 St. Vincent avenue for account of J. F. W. Dammann to George C. Day.

Part of lot 11A, being the east side of Ninth street, for account of Louisa B. Allen to Charles Broz.

604-10 Ann avenue and 2201 S. Broadway for account of Thomas Allen to David Wolff and wife.

1836 Kennett Place for account of Simon Freund to Celestine Miller.

4.21 acres lying partly in the city and partly in the county, fronting on Rosedale and Clemens avenues, for account of Mrs. A. E. Bradley to Carl Gelan and wife.

SEVEN BUILDINGS REPORTED BY THE SEXTON CORPORATION

The Sexton Building Corporation reports that it now has under construction a garage in Carondolet; a six-room residence on Bellefontaine Road, just out of the city limits; a five-room residence at Chamberlain and Pardue avenues, in University City; a five-room residence at 6301 Hobart avenue in Wellston and a flat nearing completion at 3719 Meramec street.

It also reports completing plans for a large garage to be built at 800 South Broadway and a store building on Franklin just west of Jefferson.

CUNARD APARTMENTS SOLD FOR $155,000

Group at Page and Goodfellow Consists of Five Buildings of Six Families Each.

One of the important sales during the week by J. I. Epstein was that of the Cunard Apartments, of a group of five buildings of six families each. The lot has a frontage of 252 feet on Page boulevard, 125 feet on Shawmut place and 121 feet on Goodfellow avenue. The yearly rental aggregates $22,650. This group is beautified with large trees, shrubbery and a spacious lawn, making it one of the show places of the West End.

The property was sold for the Cunard Realty and Building Co., and Samoto Realty and Building Co., to a client of Leon Williams, for a consideration of $155,000.

FRANCISCUS REALTY COMPANY ANNOUNCES SEVERAL DEALS

The Franciscus Realty Co., announces the sale to M. Cunkel of 45 feet on Grand boulevard, 119 feet on Montgomery street, as a location for an oil station. Morris G. Speir, represented the purchaser.

The company also sold 3827-27A Botanical to John Mayer and two lots in Lee-Mar sub-division to Charles and Katie Uhrig and two lots in Lee-Mar sub-division to Mrs. Lizzie Hesse.

The firm closed a number of monthly installment loans on property in Webster, Kirkwood and Maplewood.

STANLEY EPSTEIN REPORTS SALE OF FIVE PROPERTIES

Stanley Epstein reports the sale of five properties during the week, three pieces of which were for the account of one client, the Unit Realty and Investment Co.

The apartment building, 6265 Cates avenue, was sold for the account of Victor Fierstine to the Revenue Realty Co. which has placed the property under the management of Stanley Epstein.

The business property 6909-11-13 South Broadway was resold within 30 days for Hilda Pastel to I. Novack and S. Kaiser.

The following pieces were sold for the account of the Unit Realty & Investment Co.: A single flat at 6719 Vernon avenue to Meyer Fendelman; warehouse and residence 1615 Carr street to V. Fierstine and the store and flat building 1715 Carr street to H. Berger, who was represented by J. I. Epstein.

KLEIN ANNOUNCES SALE OF GRAND BOULEVARD CORNER

Walter W. Klein announces the sale of the Northwest corner of Grand boulevard and Vista avenue being 125 feet on Grand boulevard running through to Natural Bridge. The Kritzer Real Estate and Investment Co., to a client of the Community Estate, Inc. He also reports the sale of a 7 room residence No. 5225 Garfield avenue to John D. and Nora Healy. The seller in this transaction was represented by Theodore Bothman Real Estate Company.

8-STORY BUILDING IS LEASED BY BAER, STERNBERG & COHEN

Firm to Occupy Structure at Southwest Corner of Fourteenth and Locust—Phoenix Furniture Co. Takes Five-Story Quarters.

Baer, Sternberg & Cohen yesterday acquired a lease of the entire eight-story building at the southwest corner of Fourteenth and Locust streets, while the Phoenix Furniture Co. took a lease of the five-story building at 1228 Olive street, adjoining the building it now occpies at 1226 Olive street. Both leases were arranged by Martin & Breitt.

The building leased by Baer, Sternberg & Cohen contains 140,000 square feet of floor space. This company is a manufacturer of ladies' trimmed hats and is the originator of that line of the manufacturing business in St. Louis.

Baer, Sternberg & Cohen started in business in 1900 at the northwest corner of Broadway and Washington avenue, with a floor area of 2500 feet. It now occupies a total of 85,000 square feet. The new building will give it an additional 55,000 square feet of floor space.

This company is also patentee and sole manufacturer of the De Leon bandeau, a patent head-size reducer sold all over the world. It has distributing quarters in England, France and Australia.

The property leased is owned by the Western Manufacturers' Building Co.

The Phoenix Furniture Co. will use the building at 1228 Olive street, in connection with the eight-story building at 1226 Olive street, which it has occupied for a number of years. The new building will give it about 25,000 square feet additional salesroom space. Modern show windows will be installed, while the building will be painted and decorated throughout. This company has been located on Olive street for the past 30 years.

The lease was made for the account of E. A. Manny and Mary M. Wyman.

12 NEW HOMES IN KIRKWOOD COMPLETED BY MAJESTIC CO.

The Majestic Homes Corporation announces that the first twelve of twenty-five colonial homes they are erecting in Merod Place, Kirkwood, one of the most highly restricted residential sections of the city, have been completed. One of these homes on Clay avenue has been decorated and furnished by the Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Company for public inspection. The company built forty homes on Chamberlain avenue, twenty-six of which have been completed, of this number twenty have been sold.

Among the seven sold during the past week, was the "Brides Castle" and the wonderful "Electric Home" which was visited by over 10,000 people while on display by the St. Louis Electrical Board of Trade. The Kirkwood homes are built on 100 foot lots. These homes, like those on Chamberlain avenue, will be sold on the company's liberal financing plan which requires an initial payment of only 15 per cent the balance being payable over a period of as much as ten years. The Kirkwood Trust company, Kirkwood, will be local sales representative and the furnished homes will be open each day and evening.

BRITH SHOLOM BUYS KINGSHIGHWAY TEMPLE

United Hebrew Property Taken Over by Congregation in $65,000 Transaction.

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. has effected the sale of United Hebrew Temple at the southwest corner of King's highway and Enright avenues, to Congregation Brith Sholom. The lot has a frontage of 100 feet on King's highway, by 155 feet on Enright avenue, and a depth of 170 feet on the west line to a public alley.

The United Hebrew Temple is an ornate rock and brick structure, with a seating capacity of about 600. An auditorium, known as Harburger Hall, connects with the main structure.

The Congregation Brith Sholom, which was formerly located on Glasgow and Dayton, was represented by President A. Moyrovitz and J. D. Gross, chairman of the building committee.

The purchasing congregation was organized in 1910 with a handful of members and within the past fourteen years membership has grown so rapidly that they were enabled to acquire possession of the beautiful United Hebrew Temple. The congregation will have a free Hebrew school for Jewish children of the orthodox faith. President Moyrovitz has been unanimously elected for six years as president of the congregation. Through the splendid services of Mr. J. D. Gross, well known steamship agent, the purchase of this property was made possible.

The United Hebrew Temple have purchased through the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., a lot fronting 200 feet by 140 feet on the south side of Delmar boulevard, near Clara avenue, upon which a magnificent temple is to be erected. Pending the erection of a new temple, the United Hebrew Congregation will hold their religious services in their present building until January, 1925.

THREE MORE HOMES IN MOORLANDS COMPLETED

Three of the sixteen homes under construction in The Moorlands were completed in the last week and a number of others are nearing completion, according to Shaw & Francis, agents for the addition, working through Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Company. The homes completed are for T. Frank Campbell, president of Campbell and Company; Henry Peterson, of the A. Leschen and Sons Rope Company and Mrs. I. C. Muckerman.

Olen Ridge avenue in Moorlands addition is nearing completion, it also was announced. This street is being paved with concrete. The work of paving Moorlands Drive, the central boulevard through The Moorlands, is going forward.

The shortage of housing accommodations in St. Louis is more acute than is generally realized, according to Shaw & Francis, and the probability of increased rents have brought about active buying of homesites by renters who are making preparations to build homes of their own. Many of this class of purchasers do not contemplate building this year, but they expect to escape the higher prices for desirable homesites resulting from the steady demand.

Investors who have bought in The Moorlands already have made a number of profitable re-sales.

LEAGUE OF BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS TO MEET

The St. Louis League of Building and Loan Associations will meet Wednesday at noon at the American Hotel to discuss plans for a more intensified home-owning campaign and arrange a conference with State Finance Commissioner Millspaugh, while it is the policy of the league to welcome the incorporation of new associations, the old-line organizations propose to take steps to prevent a recurrence of schemes that might trade upon the reputation of the building and loan institutions. They desire to make it plain that recent legislation and court action which put the so-called housing trusts out of business had no connection with the building and loan associations.

SIXTEEN POLICEWOMEN CALLED INDISPENSABLE

Chiefs of Departments in St. Louis Secret Service Bureau Rely on Them Fully.

The St. Louis Policewomen's organization has grown from a personnel of four, when it was started six years ago, to a membership of sixteen, from a unit the success of which was considered doubtful, to a body co-operating with the secret service bureau to such an extent that the chiefs of the departments declare it to be indispensable.

Included in the personnel are Misses Rachel Thory, Mary Gibson, Genevieve Walsh, Marjorie Whelan, Alice Buckley, Teresa Baldwin, Mary Hagerty, Julia Hammensteadt, and Marie Norris. Policewomen Mona Hayes, Ethel Hagensieker, Tillie Geisler, Delia Collier, Mary B. McGrath and Josephine Stapleton are widows of policemen. There is one negro policewoman, Mary Wilson. In filling vacancies in the division, preference is given to policemen's widows. No married women are eligible for appointment.

Some Traces of Feminine Taste.

The visitor to room 23 at Police Headquarters hears the businesslike click of the typewriter, mingling with the melodious warbling of a canary, and there is a potted palm placed on top of a file cabinet. There the traces of femininity end.

Arrests that have followed investigations by policewomen show charges from the most serious to petty cases of incorrigibility. The arrests run about 225 a month, and the number of convictions is high. Of 228 persons arrested in June, 138 were convicted and there are 64 cases pending.

The pay of the police woman was $90 a month in 1916. It has been increased to $125 for a full-fledged officer, and $100 for a probationary.

Lieut. John A. Brandenburger, who became the head of the Police Women's Division four and a half years ago, attributes its success to the fact that it has confined its activities solely to police duties and has not attempted any social work. All cases coming under the latter classification are turned over to the proper relief organization.

Policewomen have had much success in finding and prosecuting wife and child deserters, finding missing persons, arresting shoplifters and halting the activities of fake spiritualists. The department at present is bending its energies toward obtaining the conviction of fortune tellers who come to the city annually and some of whom have plied their trade in the very shadow of Police Headquarters.

Keeps Watch on Children.

A policewoman is always on duty at the Union Station where she watches incoming trains for children who have no one to meet them or who may be otherwise in need of aid.

Two thousand one hundred and eighty-nine persons were reported missing in St. Louis last year and of this number, all but 148 were found.

Policewomen untiringly pursue the wife deserter, not always with the view of prosecuting him, but with the idea of obtaining his parole upon the payment of a bond and leaving him free to work and contribute to the support of his family. A $2000 fund is available to return wife deserters from other cities.

Experiments Are One-Sided.

Policewomen are prepared to work in factories, restaurants and business houses or as servants in private homes in the conduct of their investigations. One of them worked as a waitress to get evidence that led to the seizure of a still and another found a place in a factory where she investigated a report that employes were forced to buy lottery tickets or lose their positions. Another formed the acquaintance of a woman who turned out to be a "bootlegger."

FIVE MURDERS IN JUNE THAT HAVE NOT BEEN SOLVED

Police Fail to Establish Identity of Slayers and Motives Behind Recent Killings.

POLITICIAN'S SON IS ONE OF VICTIMS

Robert Dwyer, 20, Was Shot When He Left Automobile After Being Accosted by Two Young Men.

There were five murders here in June in which the police not only failed to establish the identity of the slayers, but also were unable to find any motive for the crimes.

The murder of Joseph Powderly, live stock buyer, whose bullet-ridden body was taken from the Mississippi River June 3, and a shooting which occurred May 24, in a fishing resort at Long Lake, Mitchell, Ill., eight miles east of St. Louis, were believed by the police to be connected, but that theory was not supported by evidence that would have any bearing in court.

Powderly, who was 32 years old, left his home at 4545 North Broadway, where he resided with his wife and two children, after supper May 24. His wife did not worry over his absence, she said, he frequently absented himself on fishing trips on the East Side.

About midnight May 24, Frank Hackethal, proprietor of the Long Lake fishing resort, informed the Sheriff of Madison County that when serving chicken sandwiches to two men and two women in the back yard, several men in two automobiles, one a touring car and the other a sedan, drove up to the place and went into the barroom. Immediately after five shots were fired in the barroom and Hackethal stated that as he ran in through a rear door he saw a man being dragged out by the heels through the front door.

Slayer Covered Witness.

Hackethal said he heard one of the men exclaim, "He's dead," as they pitched the body into the touring car. A man living in Granite City, whose name the police did not get, said he was sitting in his automobile near the front door when the men came out, two of them dragging a third man. He said that one man covered him with a revolver and took his automobile keys from him, to prevent pursuit, and ordered the others to get away quickly.

Five Italians were arrested shortly after, when they crossed McKinley Bridge to St. Louis in a sedan. They had no revolvers, and later were released when Hackethal informed the police he would be unable to identify any of the men who had participated in the shooting in his saloon.

Powderly was wounded in the shoulder with a bullet May 3, in a manner which he did not explain satisfactorily. On that date a patrolman heard a shot in the vicinity of the saloon of Charles Dobbins, 5242 North Broadway, and later encountered Probationary Patrolman Leo Schultz, who explained the shot by saying that his pistol had fallen from his holster in a toilet of the saloon and had been discharged.

However, examination of the saloon later disclosed four bullet holes, not in the toilet, but in the saloon proper. One shattered a bar mirror and another lodged in a bar post.

Patrolman Discharged.

Neither Dobbins nor his bartender could be induced to tell anything of the shooting, but a witness said that a man who had entered the saloon drew a revolver and began firing in the direction of a cabaret in an adjoining room. He said he could not see the target, but from his account the Police Board deduced that the shooter was Probationary Schultz, and he was dropped from the department. Later Powderly said Schultz was not the man who had shot him.

Following the finding of Powderly's body in the river Schultz was arrested as a witness for the Coroner, but later was released.

Three women and seven men were held 20 hours by the police in connection with the murder June 20 of Frank Beebe, 39 years old, of 3626 Dodier street, in a saloon in which he was a partner at 2308 Benton street, but the only theory advanced, that he was shot in retaliation for the murder of another man, could not be verified and the investigation resulted in no prosecution.

William Ryan, 28, of 1413 North Thirteenth street, was shot and killed in Beebe's saloon at Eighteenth and Morgan streets, Aug. 17, 1922, by city detectives who were there on a routine inspection and were told by someone that Ryan, armed with a revolver, was in a rear room. Beebe's wife told policemen, after learning of Beebe's death, that friends of Ryan had threatened him.

Widow Is Arrested.

Members of the police homicide squad went to a house on North Thirteenth street and arrested a woman who had had some difficulty with Beebe. Two other women and a man, whom the detectives did not recognize, were there. Learning later that one of these women was Ryan's widow, they arrested the trio.

Four men were arrested in the vicinity of the former Beebe saloon, where Ryan was killed, because one of them corresponded in a general way to a description of a man seen leaving the scene of Beebe's murder. All denied knowledge of the crime.

Louis McKinney, 2303 North Market street, who was in Beebe's saloon a short time before the latter was killed, told policemen that two men, whom Beebe evidently knew, came in. Beebe shook hands with one and said, "Hello, John, how are you?" McKinney left.

The fatal shooting of Robert Dwyer, 20 years old, son of Phil Dwyer, former Democratic politician, is still unsolved, although detectives obtained the names of several youths who were with Dwyer either at the time he was shot or a few minutes before. Dwyer, who lived at 4048 Garfield avenue, was shot four times on a lot at Vandeventer avenue and North Market street the night of May 30, and died June 3 at city hospital.

Several different versions of the circumstances of the shooting were related to the police. Young Dwyer told his father he had been shot by a man to whom he had refused to lend money.

Companion Also Shot.

Dwyer and James McCarty, 23, of 2519 Bellegiade avenue, were riding around in a Ford the night of the shooting. At about 10:59 p. m., they were passing the lot when two young men on the sidewalk yelled at them and one flourished a pistol. Dwyer got out of the automobile and was shot. McCarty started to get out and was shot in the foot. He went away and the police were unable to find him.

Another version was that Dwyer was shot while pitching horse shoes, and another account had it that he was shot as he was leaving a drug store. Both were wrong. The police eliminated a theory that the shooting was due to a gang affair. Dwyer was a collector for the Bell Telephone Co., and had no gang affiliations.

The body of Peter McKeon, 25, a huckster, of 904 Rutger street, was found at 5 a. m. June 11 in an alley in the rear of 1019 South Twelfth street. It had two bullet wounds in the head and one in the left shoulder. Death apparently had occurred 8 to 10 hours previously.

Nearly a month has elapsed and the police have no information or theory as to how McKeon was killed, nor any suggestions that might explain the reason.

McKeon's mother said he left home at 3 p. m., the day before his body was found, to visit his sweetheart. The young woman told the police he did not appear at her house. A man residing near where the body was found told the police he heard three shots at 8 p. m., but did not see anyone who might have fired them.

Negro Singer Is Victim.

The only information the police obtained about the fatal shooting of Isaac Young, a negro cabaret singer, June 12 in Suburban Inn, a cafe at the western terminus of the Hodiamont line, was that the shooting was done by a white man in the mistaken belief that Young had entered the cafe as a customer.

Young had accompanied Waldron F. Crowley, an automobile salesman, in Crowley's automobile from Link's roadhouse on the Manchester road, where Young was employed in the cabaret, to Suburban Inn, where Young desired a negro friend who was in the cabaret there.

As they entered the front door of the cafe, Crowley said, a white man arose from a table and intercepted Young. Crowley walked to another table and a few minutes later heard a shot. The man who did the shooting disappeared.

Young was taken to the office of a physician, and while en route there in an automobile he said he had been shot by one of "Egan's Rats." He died several hours later. Policemen interviewed persons who were believed to have witnessed the shooting, but they all stated they had not seen it.

I. W. W. THREATEN TO FILL JAIL AND BANKRUPT TEXAS CITY

Governor Told Army Will Descend On Port Arthur Unless Police Brutality Stops.

NEW YORK, July 7.—A threat to flood the jails of Port Arthur, Tex., with passively resisting Industrial Workers of the World and to bankrupt the city by compelling it to care for them unless alleged brutality by the police toward I. W. W. members there was stopped, was sent to Mayor Logan today by John Shuski, secretary of the maritime transport division of the organization.

Shuski recently wired Gov. Neff of Texas, urging an investigation of alleged brutal treatment of three I. W. W.'s which, it was declared, ended in the turning over of the prisoners to a mob which was believed to have slain them.

"If you wish to interfere with our rights and treat our members brutally, we can—if compelled to—issue a call to our membership, and some 20,000 marine workers will pay your city a visit within a few weeks," today's message read. "We have no desire to bankrupt your city by making such a call, but it is the only way we know to protect our rights. We can flood your city with our members. Do you want us to do this? Or are you going to fulfill your oath of office and leave our members alone?"

Forest Appropriation Urged.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—An appeal to Director Lord of the Budget Bureau to reinstate in the Federal budget an appropriation of at least $20,000,000 annually for the purchase of national forest lands in the East was made public today by the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association. The association declared that lumbermen were alive to the need for forest conservation and that the continued purchase of reserves would be "a good investment."

SLAYER OF ALLEGED RIVAL HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

"I Am Tickled to Death I Did," Says Mother of Four Children After Shooting.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Within 24 hours after killing the rival for her husband's affections, Mrs. Minnie Bernatowicz, mother of four children, was recommended to be held to the grand jury on a charge of murder by a Coroner's jury.

Her victim was Mrs. Annie Andraski, whom Mrs. Bernatowicz shot when the two met on a street corner.

Mrs. Bernatowicz surrendered to the police.

She declared she and her husband separated nine months ago, after she had accused him of becoming too friendly with Mrs. Andraski, and asserted that she had threatened to kill her rival at that time. After the separation, she declared, her husband communicated with her, suggesting an exchange of mates between the Bernatowicz and Andraski families, and adding that Mrs. Andraski was willing to give her husband to Mrs. Bernatowicz in exchange for her husband, Joseph.

Bernatowicz, when questioned by the police, denied his estranged wife's statements, asserting that he had never been overfriendly with Mrs. Andraski and that trouble with his wife resulted from other matters.

"I am tickled to death that I did it," Mrs. Bernatowicz exclaimed to reporters from her police cell tonight. "She deserved worse."

WARRANTS AGAINST TWO YOUTHS CAUGHT IN STOLEN AUTOMOBILE

Maximum Penalty Under New Statute Is 25 eYars' Imprisonment.

Warrants charging larceny of an automobile were issued yesterday against Earl Keller, 22, of 5763 Westminster place, and Chester Foreman, 19, of the Marquette Hotel, who were arrested Friday night after a five-mile chase by city detectives through the West End. The maximum penalty is 25 years under a new statute.

The youths were in possession of a coupe belonging to Frank Watts Jr., 5399 Lindell boulevard, from whom it had been stolen Thursday night. They stopped only after 15 shots were fired by detectives and after they had raced from Union boulevard and Waterman avenue by devious routes to Westminster place and De Baliviere avenue.

Keller told police he met Foreman for the first time that evening and was invited for a ride and that he asked his companion to stop when the pursuit started. Foreman said a man had engaged him to drive the car to an address on Wydown boulevard. He is under bond under another charge of auto theft.

$18,000 SALE EXPENSE ALLOWED

Expenses in connection with the partition sale of realty at the southwest corner of Eighth and St. Charles streets for the estate of the late Patrick Yore were allowed yesterday by Circuit Judge Landwehr. It had been agreed that expenses should be limited to $18,000, which the court apportioned as follows: $9163.45 to the law firm of Anderson, Gilbert & Wolfort, counsel for petitioning heirs; $5336.55 for advertising and other expenses; $2000 to Robert A. Burns, a realty dealer, and $1500 to Clarence T. Case, an attorney, both of whom served as special commissioners in the matter.

The property was sold last November for $190,000 to the Nassau Investment Co., of which J. Lionberger Davis is president. In March, 1921, the same property was put up for sale and brought a bid of $140,000, which was rejected by the court on the ground that the price was too low. Anderson, Gilbert & Wolfort introduced testimony that their services were worth between $12,000 and $15,000. Litigation over the Yore property was in progress two years.

RUSSIA PLANS NEW DEPARTMENT

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 7.—The Government purposes the establishment of a bank for foreign trade and to combine the foreign and internal trade departments into a single department of commerce, it was announced today. Leonid Krassin, who has been Minister of Foreign Trade, will be the head of the ne wdepartment.

Christian Rakovisky will succeed Leonid Krassin as head of the soviet delegation in London.

ELKS ON WAY TO ATLANTA

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 7.—Thousands of Elks from all parts of the country are bound for Atlanta by train and automobile, for the fifty-ninth grand lodge convention and reunion of that order, which opens officially with a public session Monday night. The reunion will run through the coming week.

Preparations have been made by the general convention committee for 40,000 to 50,000 delegates and visitors. In addition to the hotels and other housing facilities, great tents have been thrown in the parks and Pullman car villages have been provided for in most of the railroad yards.

Mother of Army Officers Dies.

Mrs. Hannah McMahon, 66 years old, of 4461 Farlin avenue, died at 10 a. m. yesterday at St. John's Hospital, following an operation last Thursday. She was one of the founders and honorary life president of the auxiliary to 138th Infantry Post, American Legion. She was the widow of John J. McMahon. Five sons and three daughters survive. Col. Edmund J. McMahon formerly commanded the 138th Infantry. Two other sons, James J. and William J., were Captains in the regiment, and served in France. Funeral services will be held here at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow at Holy Rosary Church.

RAILROAD VALUATION HEARINGS CONCLUDED

Wisconsin Attorney - General Urges Fixing Cost of Roads to Date.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today concluded temporarily its hearings on principles involved in the Federal valuation of railroads.

H. L. Ekern, Attorney-General of Wisconsin, urged the Commission to find in its valuation data the actual cost of railroad property to date, together with reproduction costs.

"We must not overlook what is involved in this issue," Ekern declared. "It appears to be a sum of perhaps $12,000,000,000 and to raise a question of whether public users of railroads in this country may be called upon to pay an extra half billion a year for railroad service.

"Present day values of all railroad securities are perhaps $13,000,000,000, on the market prices. It appears that the Interstate Commerce Commission may conclude in its valuation, on the principles that it is following, that the property which these securities represent is worth between $19,000,000,000 and $22,000,000,000. Indeed, it is current in financial circles that the total might be $35,000,000,000. The farmers out in my part of the country are becoming aware of what these figures mean.

Commissioner Lewis asked Ekern if he considered the market valuation of railroad securites a guide in determining the value of railroad property, suggesting that the Chicago & Northwestern was today worth possibly $80 a share while ten years ago its market value was perhaps $150.

"I don't think the market prices of railroad securities are final," Ekern replied, "but I think they are of value. Certainly, there is an impression among the public that the valuation of railroads is going to be fixed by the present tremendous sums that would be needed to reproduce the railroads today. There is, further, an impression that the actual cost of building railroads at the time they were built was a very much smaller sum than would be represented by these reproduction costs.

"We now urge the Commission to determine the facts, and we think the law requires determination of the facts. It may be expensive to find these original investments totals, but what if it does cost the Government $25,000,000 to do that work? The difference in charges for railroad service that are possible as a result of fixing rates to give a return on the final valuation will be a half a billion dollars a year."

THREE BARRACKS PRISONERS DISARM GUARD AND ESCAPE

Men Charged With Desertion at Work on Roadway When They Break Away.

Officials of the military prison at Jefferson Barracks yesterday told of the escape Friday of three prisoners, each charged with desertion, after overpowering and disarming a guard. The prisoners fled toward St. Louis.

They were constructing a bump in a roadway near the street car station to discourage speeding in automobiles. As the guard, whose name was withheld by post officials, came near, the prisoners grabbed him, taking his rifle. It was returned to him after it had been unloaded and cartridges in his belt had been taken.

The prisoners who escaped were Dewey J. Walker, 23 years old; William R. Reno, 18, and Ely S. White, 22. Reno and White have been tried, but the result has not been announced. Walker's trial is pending.

Man Found Murdered in Road.

By the Associated Press.

MARSHALL, Mo., July 7.—The body of William Jones, 55, a laborer, was found late yesterday in the road about three miles south of here. His neck was broken and his body bore bruises indicating that he had been murdered, according to Coroner Bradshaw. Jones was last seen in town Thursday, when he is said to have had considerable money. Only two cents was in his clothing when the body was found.

TEACHERS SAY MADDOX KEEPS THEM IN DARK

Association Makes Public Statement on Effort to Obtain Increased Pay.

A letter from the High School Teachers' Association to Supt. Maddox of the Board of Education, dated June 21, has been made public by the association, which is seeking an upward revision of the salary schedule for high school teachers, because, they charge, they have been kept in the dark as to the superintendent's attitude in the matter.

The letter was sent, a statement says, following "repeated unsuccessful attempts to obtain definite information as to the considerations of the superintendent and the board with regard to the matter." It is added that, "in view of the fact that no enlightenment has been given to date, the same status of uncertainty continues."

The letter reviews the teachers' wage fight for the last two and a half years, suggests that the matter should not be delayed so late as to make a new scale ineffective at the opening of the school year in September, and requests an early interview for the Executive Committee with the superintendent.

Teachers' Public Statement.

The accompanying public statement, headed "Democracy in the Administration of the Public Schools of St. Louis," says:

"The school-teaching profession has ever been most conservative in its demands for economic justice. Indeed, teachers never have attained economic justice, primarily because they have not been sufficiently self-assertive. Ultra-ethical professional standards have dictated a policy of submission which long ago became traditional. The profession has, therefore, lacked the virility necessary to produce aggressiveness toward economic self-improvement.

"The high school teachers of St. Louis do not underestimate the value and importance of proper observance of constructive professional ethics. They have aimed, while urging for themselves an increase in salary, to keep within the bounds of proprietory in their representations to the Superintendent of Instruction and the Board of Education. They do not now intend to overstep such bounds. They wish merely to present facts relative to the response which has met their efforts to justify their request for better pay.

Action Considered Unsatisfactory.

"The committee charged with the conduct of the salary increase campaign has met the Superintendent of Instruction on several occasions, and has presented to him numerous statements and much statistical data in support of their request. Ample opportunity has been given to present the case, but there has been a complete lack of mutual discussion of the merits of the proposal. The teachers are still in total ignorance of the personal or official opinions the Superintendent may have regarding the entire matter. They do not know what actual consideration the question has received, or what investigation, if any, has been carried on to determine the justice of the claim. The only official consideration of the matter by the Board of Education of which the teachers have been advised is contained in the following paragraph which was approved at the June meeting of the Board as a part of the report of the Instruction Committee:

"'III E. From Hugh H. Barr, president, and Cora V. Heltzell, secretary, transmitting resolution adopted by the High School Teachers' Association, covering the question of increase in salaries. It is recommended that the proper official of the Board inform these petitioners that the Board of Education is unable at this time to give favorable consideration to the request for an increase in salaries.'

"Obviously, this action could not be accepted as a satisfactory disposal of a question which the high school teachers have for years considered so vitally important to their economic welfare."

OPEN VERDICT IN DEATH OF WOMAN FROM 'WRONG MEDICINE'

Husband of County Woman Testifies At Inquest That She Had Been Despondent.

A Coroner's verdict of death from swallowing carbolic acid was returned yesterday in the case of Mrs. Phoebe Pomeroy, 48 years old, 7325 McKain avenue, Richmond Heights, who died Friday night en route to a hospital after telling her husband, Thomas Pomeroy, that she had taken "the wrong medicine by mistake."

Pomeroy testified his wife had been under care of a physician for three months and was despondent at times. He said he and his daughter, Edith, were seated on the rear porch at 3 p. m. Friday when his wife walked out and announced she had taken the wrong medicine.

The coroner's verdict did not state whether the poison was taken by accident or intentionally.

LITTLE INSULIN FROM SHARKS

Experiments in Extracting Termed "Not Very Successful."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Experiments conducted by the Fisheries Bureau in an effort to extract insulin, the preparation used in treating diabetes, from the alimentary canals of sharks were said by bureau officials today to have been "not very successful."

Working with the public health service, the bureau obtained about 16 pounds of pancreas tissues from various species.

BUY COAL SUPPLY NOW, WARNING TO COUNTRY

Fuel Distributor Says Railroads Will Be Unable to Haul Supply Later.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Fuel Distributor Wadleigh today issued a warning to coal consumers to lay in immediately whatever stocks they needed. The warning followed a report from the American Railway Association that the railroads have not surplus equipment and facilities in sufficient quantities to offset the transportation requirements of heavy fall buying, in view of the fact that now the carriers are handling more revenue freight than ever before.

In a statement issued by Wadleigh he says that the association has advised "if the coal consumers do not purchae coal now in anticipation of fall and winter requirements they will experience difficulty in procuring it later when railways are taxed with a heavy movement of general traffic and particularly agricultural products."

"The warning," Wadleigh says, "should be acted upon as a simple matter of protection. If industrial consumers hold off purchasing coal during the summer and enter the fall months with insufficient stocks it will then be necessary for them to secure requirements just at the period when rail traffic is at its peak. The railroads are now moving each week the heaviest traffic in their history, considerably exceeding estimates.

"The necessity, therefore, for the heaviest possible movement of coal during the summer months is apparent, if it is desired to give the carriers the assistance they will surely need and avoid slowing up of the whole industrial movement."

It is pointed out that coal is cheaper now than it has been for a long time and that stocks are available for all orders. Reports to the geological survey show that during the present year 273,423,000 tons have been produced as compared with 187,850,000 for the same period in 1922. The weekly production has dropped to about 10,500,000 tons.

The tense situation on the railroads is disclosed in a statement issued by the Railway Association which shows that for the week ending June 23, over 1,000,000 cars were loaded with revenue freight, an increase of 13.66 per cent over the same week last year. Even now, with the peak more than two months away every railroad in the country is being strained to meet traffic requirements.

FIGHT IN PROSPECT OVER WHISKY PRESCRIPTION LIMIT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Prohibition officials are preparing for a lengthy legal battle over the right of physicians to prescribe unlimited amounts of liquor to their patients as a medicine, which now has been upheld by two Federal District Courts.

The fact that Judge Bourquin of the Montana District yesterday held that the restrictions against physicians were unconstitutional, as did Federal Judge Knox in New York, is troubling legal advisers of the prohibition unit, who are awaiting full information on the case before asking that an appeal be noted.

Enforcement officers made clear that as long as the legal fight is pending physicians must abide by the Volstead law as it has been interpreted heretofore. The unit maintains the ban against physicians was lifted only in the New York and Montana districts, in which the decisions were rendered and as an appeal of the New York case is pending in the Circuit Court of Appeals, restrictions are still effective in Judge Knox's district. A decision not to appeal the finding of Judge Bourquin would leave the Montana district the only one in the country in which physicians might use their full discretion in prescribing liquor.

CORONER'S JURY FINDS BABY DIED FROM EATING TABLETS

Strychnine Had Been Hidden in Phonograph, but Boy Discovered It.

A Coroner's verdict yesterday held that Lloyd Reeder, 15-months-old son of Raymond Reeder, 4505 Davidson avenue, came to his death Friday afternoon from eating strychnine tablets.

The tablets had been secreted in a phonograph by the father, who was taking them, under the direction of a physician, for heart disease. They were hid to keep the children from attempting to eat them.

Lloyd found the hiding place and swallowed nine of the tablets, evidently believing them to be candy, before his mother discovered the act. The child died shortly after the arrival of a physician.

KEWANEE

There was an amusing young bloke
Who invented the side-splitting joke
That a meal in St Louie
Tasted much like Chop Souie
And Liederkranz, pickles and SMOKE

He said St Louie air was so thick with smoke that every bite he ate was flavored with coal-gas—that fried chicken tasted like smoked-herring and deviled crabs reminded him of the boiler room. Whereat we glibly said, that was due to the fact that many of the boilers used in St Louie can't consume the gases. They had to go somewhere, and being fair and impartial gases, they went everywhere, even into the kitchen.

"Must I move out of St Louie?" he wailed. "No," we replied, "stay here. Sooner or later every big building here will be using the KEWANEE DOWN-DRAFT SMOKELESS FIREBOX BOILER, and when that happens, the SMOKE-EVIL "will fold its tents like the Arabs and as silently steal away." Little high and poetic for him, but he inhaled it nicely.

It is singular, and then some, that this KEWANEE SMOKELESS BOILER isn't in every big building NOW. Maybe we've been poor salesmen—haven't chattered enough about ourselves—been too modest and all that sort of rot. It would have saved St Louie a lot of double-edged grief if we had yelled a bit louder. But there's no longer any reason for overlooking the SMOKE REMEDY. Nope. It's right here, waiting to be grabbed and used—the one boiler in America that will burn ANY GRADE OR KIND OF FUEL economically and without smoke.

Call up our local office. Send for some of our representatives. They are alert and intelligent. Let 'em explain and demonstrate. Let 'em take you to some of the big buildings where the KEWANEE SMOKELESS BOILER is in active use. See what the boiler is doing. Example is better than precept. That's old copy-book stuff, but it will be good a hundred years from now.

Drop a line to The Old Man Behind the Boiler and ask him how he makes it and why? He is crazy about writing letters, especially to prospective customers

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

TUBBY—The value of a dime dated 1857 ranges from 10c to 20c.

JACK JR.—A half dollar of the mint 1811 is worth from 80c to 55c.

Frances B.—The words of the song, "Sole Mio," can be found at the Public Library.

NO NAME.—The company in question is located in the Railway Exchange building, St. Louis.

A. L. M.—Carpentry is taught at the David Ranken School of Mechanical Trades.

ALICE.—We do not advise you to wash your rajah silk dress. The best results would be obtained by sending it to a cleaner. If you do wish to press it, do not under any consideration dampen it, but iron it on the wrong side, dry.

READER OF P.-D.—Following are English novels and poems, etc., which illustrates the life of classical antiquity: Browning, "Cleon." Balaustion, "Adventure;" Byron, "Childe Harold's Pilgrimage;" Wallace, "Ben Hur;" Shakespeare, "Troilus and Cressida;" Pater, "Marius the Epicurean;" Lytton, "Helen of Troy;" Herbert Jenkins, Rome."

MRS. E. W.—Paste for paperhangers is made by using a cheap grade of rye or wheat flour. Mix this thoroughly with cold water to about the consistency of dough or a little thinner, being careful to remove all lumps; stir in a tablespoon of powdered alum to a quart of flour. Have boiling water, stirring rapidly until the flour is thoroughly cooked. Let this cool before using and then thin it with cold water.

L. M. G. (1) If the nickel parts on your stove can be unscreened do this before you begin to wash them, as they clean more easily when separated from the stove. Take a clean flannel cloth, dip it in kerosene, rub on it and rub the nickel well with this, then dissolve two teaspoons of baking soda in half a cup of water, and with a clean cloth apply this also to the nickelplate, being careful not to get this on the stove itself. Rub dry with another clean soft cloth. (2) Dampness, excessive heat, much moving and jostling are the agents which injure the amalgam that makes the value of the mirror.

T. G.—Indian summer is a period of warm or mild weather late in autumn, in and near the U. S. usually characterized by a clear or cloudless sky and by a hazy and smoky appearance of the atmosphere, especially near the horizon. The term is commonly applied to such a period occurring in October or November. The name of American origin, but the reason is unknown. The term is also used in England, where the period is sometimes referred to as St. Martin's summer.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

M. W. G.—A marriage under an assumed name is a legal marriage.

READER.—You do not need a passport to go to Canada.

W.—Anyone who holds a second deed of trust can foreclose on the property in the event of default. It is immaterial that they were strangers of the wife before her marriage.

WORRIED M.—As you agreed to pay $20 a week to the furniture company they can take the furniture back if you do not pay that amount. They cannot be compelled to accept a smaller payment.

C. M.—The sexton of the cemetery had no right to remove the stone which was upon your lot without your permission, unless such a privilege was reserved for the cemetery in the deed to you. You can examine your deed and see what it provides regarding this.

K. S. D.—You can put a window in your partition there is some restriction in your deed against your doing so. (2) He has a right to grade his property so as to throw the surface water off on his neighbor's property. You can grade your property as to do the same if you desire.

A. A.—As you have left the State, he may be able to attach your bank account without giving bond, in order to compel you to enter your appearance in the suit which he has filed. You should write to a lawyer in the town where the suit and attachment were filed, and ask him to protect your interests.

A READER.—The amount which a property owner is taxed for the making of a street depends on the cost of the work on the frontage and area of his property, and on the amount of other property which can also be taxed to pay for the work. If you have any particular case in mind, inquire at the Special Tax Office, City Hall.

ANXIOUS.—(1) You should make application at the Police Headquarters, 1200 South Twelfth street, and bring with you a letter from your employer asking for a license for you as a private watchman. You will then get an application form to fill out. (2) A deposit of $2.50 is required upon receiving your badge. This is refunded when the badge is returned.

A. J. Y.—If the facts are as you state, the attorney could be disbarred. You could take an appeal, putting up a bond, at any time during that term of court. You might also be able to have the judgment set aside during that therm under these circumstances. We suggest that you consult another attorney without delay, telling him all of the facts.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

MRS. E. O.—High blood pressure is dependent upon organic or functional derangement. the correction of which will correct the abnormal blood pressure. Varicose veins need support by bandaging, plain or elastic. Bursted veins should be ligated.

JOHN—Washing the nose with a solution made by mixing equal parts of salt, sugar, and cooking soda, one teaspoonful of the mixture to one pint of water will cleanse the nasal mucous membrane and may be followed by a spray of pineolum oil. If this does not relieve your condition, consult a physician for some derangement in the nose.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Eddie Farrell, who departed this life July 7, 1902. Gone but not forgotten by his MOTHER, ELLEN FARRELL. WIFE, ROSE FARRELL.

In memory of Catherine Regina Berry, who departed this life four years ago, July 13:

Near is the grave where our loved one lies;
Sweet is th memory that never will fade.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, GRANDMOTHER AND UNCLE.

In memory of John Q. Adams, who passed away July 13, 1922:

One long year has passed away
Since that sad and mournful day;
A precious one from us has gone.
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Emma Blany, who passed away July 8, 1922:

As we stood around her
To bid our last farewell.
Our hearts were aching fearfully
For her we loved so well.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Joseph Keller, who departed this life July 5, 1921:

Days of sadness oft come o'er us;
Years of silence often flow.
Love shall always keep you near us,
Though you left two years ago.
Never shall you be forgotten;
Never from our memory fade;
Loving hearts shall always linger
Around the place where you are laid.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, ANNA KELLER, AND CHILDREN.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of my dear husband, Dr. Frank J. Barto, who departed this life, July 6, 1918:

Time rolls on and will not stay.
What grief I felt since that sad day!
With one so loving, kind and true,
How hard it was to part with you!
Sadly missed by
YOUR LOVING WIFE. (c)

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Harry J. Armbruster, who departed this life one year ago July 9, 1922.

If we had seen you at the last
And heard your dying hand
And heard the last sighs of your heart
We would not feel so bad.
We did not see the pains you had;
We did not see you die;
We only knew you were away
And never said good-by.
When we lost our Harry
We lost one dearest friend.
We love you and we miss you,
And will until the end.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, BROTHER AND SISTERS.

In loving remembrance of Harry C. Miller, who passed away one year ago, July 7, 1922:

God's golden sun is shining upon our daddy's grave,
The one we loved so dearly and tried so hard to save;
And when we lost our daddy we lost our dearest friend;
We love you and we miss you and surely always will.
So rest in peace, dear daddy, your face in heaven's bower,
The day when we will meet you grows nearer every hour,
Sadly missed by
MRS. JULIA MILLER AND CHILDREN AND THOSE WHO LOVED HIM.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear husband and father, C. Robert Graf, who departed this life one year ago, July 2, 1922:

Nash Coupe, 1921
Here is an ideal car for the woman driver or for the salesman. It has just been repainted a rich maroon with black top, and can hardly be told from a new car. Mechanically it is in excellent condition. Equipment includes sturdy front bumper, motometer and five practically new cord tires. This car would cost over $1800 to duplicate today and without doubt it is a wonderful bargain at our special sale price—$1150.00. Terms.

Tortures of the Che-Ka Caused Daughter of Former Rich Russian Manufacturer to Lose Her Mind

She Was Arrested by Secret Society Because She Associated With Foreigners.

Samuel Spewack was for more than a year staff correspondent of The New York World and the Post-Dispatch in Russia, with headquarters at Moscow, the Soviet capital. He was born in Russia and his qualifications, with newspaper training in the United States, were unsurpassed for observation and understanding of the great experiment now being made in the former Empire of the Czars.

The censor has forbidden much and changed more of the pictures of life in Russia that have been offered to the outer world. Now that Spewack has left Russia, he is able to tell the truth about all that he saw. This he has done in these dispatches written in Riga while the memory is still fresh of the things regarding which he was not able to bring out a written record.

By SAMUEL SPEWACK,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.
(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co. The New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

RIGA, May 10.—It was an insurance building. Five stories of gray slab stone, set prominently into the Lubyanka Square; and at night the great illuminated clock on the roof tells the passerby the time and the fact he is facing the headquarters of the Che-Ka, the soviet secret police.

The windows are now barred. Iron doors replace glass in the former offices. The corridors, where once stenographers scurried, are dismally dark and have all the atmosphere of a prison. Put half of Sing Sing into the Metropolitan Life Insurance Building and you will get the same atmosphere.

Still, with bitter irony, signs hang in the corridor: "Insure your life before it is too late." • • • "Think of your family." • • • "We can help you."

It is difficult writing of the Che-Ka. As of most things Russian too much lurid fiction has been written that the truth, ghastly as it may be in reality, pales into obscurity. Now these are facts:

1. The Che-Ka is a gigantic spying organization, built on the model of the dreaded Czarist Ochrana.

2 In any emergency the Che-Ka arrests anyone it deems necessary to arrest.

3. Torture, intrigue, cunning, double dealing can be expected in any spying organization. Russian or American, and the Che-Ka is made infinitely dangerous because most of its members are fanatics and believe everything they do is for the communist cause.

You can appreciate the Che-Ka if you picture the American Department of Justice with free rein to arrest, to cross-examine, to imprison. Under the new economic policy they cannot try and execute. Courts are built for this purpose. But when the Government is united by a cause its component parts work harmoniously.

Right Arm of Communism.

The Che-Ka operates in complete secrecy. It is the right arm of communism. Any outside observer is horrified by the story of the Che-Ka. The communists see nothing wrong in it. They believe they are in a constant state of warfare with the outside world. Religion is only one of their enemies.

Two days after the outside world had protested the execution of Butchkevitch 38 persons were arrested in Moscow. Two of them were friends of mine. In Petrograd two score more found themselves suddenly in jail. Why? Because these 38 were believed to have information which might be valuable to the Government in handling the diplomatic crisis that had arisen.

All of them had known the members of the foreign missions, had attended receptions given by the foreigners. These 38 were to be pumped terrorized, and then sent back as spies. No apologist for the soviet Government can deny that this is the time-honored method of the Che-Ka, inherited from its Czarist predecessor.

Marie Morosova was one of the 38. Her father was the wealthiest manufacturer in Moscow. Her former home is now occupied by the A. R. A. (American Relief Association) as a headquarters. Young, attractive, gay during the worst days of the revolution, Miss Morosova astounded most foreigners by the cheerfulness with which she accepted her misfortune. Most formerly rich Russians spent days in whining. She often told me: "I don't care who's in power. The bolsheviks were the only ones that held Russia together and so I support them. I don't mind the loss of my things. It's better to be poor."

Driven Mad in Her Cell.

She lived in one room of a six-room apartment containing 12 adults and a flurry of children. With minute pains she sought to make her cramped quarters livable. She could paint a bit and redecorated the walls. The relics of once magnificent furniture were put into some semblance of order. She earned her living by dancing and because she could speak flawless English she spent much time with the foreign colony.

At 3 o'clock in the morning two Che-Ka agents knocked on her door. She was instructed to dress immediately and accompany them. When she reached the gray building with the illuminated clock she was thrust into a cell with a dozen other women. The next morning she was summoned for a third degree.

She spent three days in prison. Then she went mad. She was removed to a sanitarium on the Pritchiniskaya. She is still there. She cannot recognize anyone—stark, raving mad.

Miss Morosova's mother, tall, stately, gray-haired, with the presence of a dowager Queen in her shabby 5-year-old gown, was arrested immediately after her daughter went mad. She is still in jail. Why? Because the Che-Ka believed the mother knew something that might be useful.

"Red" Peters, leading figure in the Red Terror an amiable and delightful character, said that the Che-Ka would use any communist for its work. The agent provocateur, the pride of the Czarist Ochrana, is now the chief figure of the Che-Ka. The communist spy thinks he is doing noble work.

Ignorant Are Disregarded.

People are afraid to express their opinions in Russia. Mild criticism, yes. It depends to a large extent on the importance of the individual. A droshka driver can and does cuss the Government with much relish. But he is ignorant, and disregarded. An intellectual—since the leading communists themselves are intellectuals they fear this class most—thinks twice before venturing an opinion.

The extent of the spying system is tremendous. Take the Savoy Hotel, where most foreigners live. The telephones are tapped. Letters are opened. Everywhere one who goes in and leaves the hotel is noted and watched. Whenever there were more than three in my room, invariably—it might have been a coincidence—there was a knock on the door. It was the waiter. "Did you ring?" he would ask, scrutinizing each guest. I hadn't.

The Che-Ka has an office in the hotel. The hotel clerks are members of the organization. Even the porters and the bootblack and the barber are not overlooked. For the Russians have always loved spying. It is part of their nature, and they'll spy in any cause, or in none at all. In former days they spied for the Czar. Now they spy for the communists.

It is all based on the communist conception of perpetual warfare.

Communists are never happy unless they have an enemy. They were elated at the Fascisti movement. But they were disappointed at the release of William Z. Foster. That wasn't according to schedule. Every one in the world is against them. That is the way they hold together.

Part of the Che-Ka's terror consists in marching prisoners down the main streets in broad daylight. You see a squadron of cavalry, bayonets flashing in the sun, leading a motley group of five unarmed men and women, hands tied behind their backs. They are a lesson and a boast.

The Che-Ka stands supreme in the success of its terror. I have seen men and women who were released from it, and the fear in their own eyes was terrible.

"Well, what did they do to you?" I asked. "Did they hang you by the arms, or kick you, or drip cold water down your back? Specifically, what happened?

"No, they didn't hurt me. All night long, every time I would go to sleep, they held a revolver against my head and said they would shoot me unless I spied for them, but they didn't hurt me like you mean."

Inspires Oriental Terror.

Che-Ka terror was mental terror; Oriental terror. No crude Anglo-Saxon torture. I have yet to see anyone who has been arrested by the Che-Ka whose nerves have not been shattered by the experience. It also is a fact that thos foreigners who spent any time in the former insurance building have not yet recovered. Every thought is tinged with the experience, and what they write or say reflects it.

One of the duties of the Che-Ka is execution. Every Cheklst is sworn to secrecy. No official executioner is appointed. For ordinary executions soldiers are assigned. For special occasions, such as the death of Mgr. Butchkevitch, officials of the Che-Ka undertake the role.

Executions are humanely conducted. The prisoner is not told he is going to die. A guard takes him from his cell, presumably for another cross-examination. Half-way down the corridor the guards steps to one side. The executioner, lurking in the background, fires a bullet through the prisoner's head.

In addition to its extensive system in Russia, the Che-Ka further imitated the Ochrana by the organization of a large foreign service. Cheklsts are in America today gathering information, military and political, for the soviets. Berlin is full of them. In Paris they watch the emigres and the French Government.

Ruling by force—hidden and open—the soviets must and do regard the Che-Ka as one of their important institutions, and a necessary one. It is not true that Lenin "repented" its acts. As a communist, he explained these acts and justified them.

How Che-Ka Is Governed.

Much has been said of the "political power" of the Che-Ka. This and the notion that Trotzky wants to become military dictator of Russia are two misconceptions arising from ignorance of the nature of the communist party.

The Che-Ka is ruled by several communists who believe it is a means to the red end. They are absolutely under the discipline of the communist party as a whole. They are members of the "cause." They are fulfilling one of the functions of the soviet Government.

And that function is to impose upon Russia, whether it likes it or not, the communist system. No pretense at democracy is made, although much at the machinery of popular support. In all fairness it must be recorded the communists sincerely believe they are working for the betterment of humanity. You can question their methods, their aims, their psychology. You can question a rule of force and terror and intrigue. But you cannot question their sincerity as you cannot question the sincerity of a fanatic, or a madman.

And this must be added: Many visitors to Russia are impressed with the lack of violence on the streets. People come and go, live and die seemingly as they do, elsewhere. The country is poor. The people are poor. But you are not molested on the streets.

People in Russia are quite accustomed now to the Che-Ka. You see hundreds who have been in jail. You shrug their shoulders. At the cabarets comedians sing songs about it. Russians have been accustomed to autocracy and its ways. They want very little to satisfy them. They complain, but they never protest.

"The warriors of the revolution have done their work well.

A STUDY IN TYPES

Why the fond mother stopped the street car—The banner that broke up a suffrage parade—The bomb that failed to scare the millionaire — Appreciations of two great books—The jewelry clerk who lost a customer—One way to get rid of a poet —A year's supply for a poor widow and her daughter :: :: ::

WHY CONDUCTORS ARE MOROSE.

STREET car conductors often have their tempers tried by the inconsiderate portion of the public, but they are not allowed to ease their feelings by "talking back." One of them related yesterday an occurrence on his line a few days ago.

A very fashionably dressed lady, accompanied by a little boy, boarded a car which was quite full of people. "Conductor," she said, languidly, "let me know when we arrive at Pease avenue."

When the car arrived at that street the conductor rang the bell and the car stopped.

"Pease avenue, ma'am," he said, climbing off to assist her from the car.

The lady raised the little boy to his knees and pointed out the window at the name of the street which was on a board nailed to the corner of a fence.

"Look, Freddy," she said, "that tall, straight letter with a funny little curl at the top is a 'P.' Now, don't forget again. You can go on, conductor; we get off at Gray street."

TOO MUCH.

The independent society of emancipated women was about to form in line for the grand parade through the principal streets of the city.

They were a thousand strong and they were prepared to demonstrate that they were fully equal to man in strength, conrage and ability to cope with the world.

The young woman who was to head the procession and carry the banner stepped forward.

She was a magnificent brunette, 5 feet 8 inches in height, and with flashing eyes and determined manner.

The band began playing and an attendant brought her the banner she was to carry.

She took it in her hand and then, with a loud scream, threw it from her as far as she could, and sank upon the ground, trembling with fright. The banner was made of mouse-colored silk.

A PERSONAL INSULT.

A young lady in Houston became engaged last summer to one of the famous shortstops of the Texas Baseball League.

Last week he broke the engagement, and this is the reason why:

He had a birthday last Tuesday and she sent him a beautifully bound and illustrated edition of Coleridge's famous poem, "The Ancient Mariner."

The hero, off the diamond, opened the book with a puzzled look.

"What's dis bloomin' stuff about, anyways?" he said, and read:

"It is the Ancient Mariner
And he stoppeth one of three"——

The famous shortstop threw the book out the window, stuck out his chin and said:

"No Texas Sis can't gimme de umpire face like dat. I swipes nine daisy cutters outer 10 dat comes in my garden, I do."

HUNGRY HENRY'S RUSE.

Hungry Henry: Madam, I am State agent for a new roller-action, unbreakable, double-elastic suspender. Can I show you some?

Mrs. Lonestreet: No, there ain't no man on the place.

Hungry Henry: Well, then, I am also handling something unique in the way of a silver-mounted, morocco leather dog collars, with name engraved free of charge. Perhaps"——

Mrs. Lonestreet: 'Tain't no use. I ain't got a dog.

Hungry Henry: Dat's what I wanted to know. Now, fix me de best supper you'se kin, and do it quick, or it won't be healthy fur you. See?

RELIEVED.

A Houston gentleman who is worth somewhere up in the hundreds of thousands and lives on $11 a week, was sitting in his private office a few days ago when a desperate looking man entered and closed the door carefully behind him. The man had an evil, villainous-looking face, and in his hand he held with the utmost care an oblong, square-shaped package.

"What do you want?" asked the capitalist.

"I must have money," hissed the stranger. "I am starving while you are rolling in wealth. Do you see this little package? Do you know what it contains?"

The wealthy citizen sprang from his desk in horror, pale with fright.

"No, no," he gasped. "You would not be so cruel, so heartless."

"This package," continued the desperate man, "contains enough dynamite, if let fall upon the floor, to hurl this building into a shapeless mass of ruins."

"Is that all?" said the capitalist, sinking into his chair and picking up his newspaper, with a sigh of relief. "You don't know how much you frightened me. I thought it was a gold brick."

BOOK REVIEWS.

Unabridged Dictionary, by Noah Webster.

We find on our table quite an exhaustive treatise on various subjects, written in Mr. Webster's well-known lucid and piquant style. There is not a dull line between the covers of the book. The range of subjects is wide, and the treatment light and easy, without being flippant. A valuable feature of the work is the arranging of the articles in alphabetical order, thus facilitating the finding of any particular subject desired. Mr. Webster's vocabulary is large, and he always uses the right word in the right place. His work is thorough and we predict that he will be heard from again.

The City Directory.

This new book has the decided merit of being non-sensational. In these days of erratic and ultra-imaginative literature of the modern morbid, self-analytical school it is a relief to peruse a book with so little straining after effect, so well balanced and so pure in sentiment. It is a book that a man can place in the hands of the most innocent member of his family with the utmost confidence. Its material is healthy, and its literary style excellent, as it adheres to the method used with such thrilling effect by Mr. Webster in his famous dictionary, viz: alphabetical arrangement.

We venture to assert that no one can carefully and conscientiously read this little volume without being a better man, or lady, as circumstances over which they have no control may indicate.

"It will last you and your mother a year."

A GREEN HAND.

"I shall never again employ any but experienced salesmen, who thoroughly understand the jewelry business," said a Houston jeweler to a friend yesterday.

He took out a $20 bill and held it toward the poet.

"You see, at Christmas time we generally [illegible] more help, and sometimes employ people who [illegible] goods, but are not familiar with the fine points of the business. Now, that young man over there is thoroughly good and polite to everyone, but he has just lost me one of my best customers."

"How was that?" asked the friend.

"A man who always trades with us came in with his wife last week and, with her assistance, selected a magnificent diamond pin that he had promised her for a Christmas present and told this young man to lay it aside for him till today."

"I see," said the friend, "and he sold it to some one else and disappointed him."

"It's plain you don't know much about married men," said the jeweler. "That idiot of a clerk actually saved the pin for him and he had to buy it."

A SURE METHOD.

The editor sat in his palatially furnished sanctum, bending over a mass of manuscripts, resting his beetling brow upon his hand. It wanted but one hour of the time of going to press and there was the editorial on the Venezuelan question to write. A pale, intellectual youth approached him with a roll of manuscript tied with a pink ribbon.

"It is a little thing," said the youth, "that I dashed off in an idle moment."

The editor unrolled the poem and glanced down the long row of verses. He then drew from his pocket a $20 bill and held it toward the poet. A heavy thud was heard, and at the tinkle of an electric bell the editor's minions entered and the lifeless form of the poet was taken away.

"That's three today," muttered the great editor as he returned the bill to his pocket. "It works better than a gun or a club and the Coroner always brings in a verdict of heart failure."

A YEAR'S SUPPLY.

He was one of the city's wealthiest men, but he made no ostentatious display of his wealth. A little, thin, poorly clad girl stood looking in the window of a restaurant at the good things to eat. The man approached and touched her on the shoulder.

"What is your name, little girl?" he asked.

"Susie Tompkins, sir," she answered, looking up at him with great, haunting, blue eyes.

There was something in her pleading, innocent voice that stirred a strange feeling in the millionaire's heart. Still, it may have been indigestion.

"Have you a father?" he asked.

"Oh, no, sir; mother has only me to support."

"Is your mother very poor?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

"What is your mother's name?"

"Susan, sir. Just like mine."

"Tell me, child," said the wealthy man, clutching her arm in an agony of suspense. "Has your mother a wart on her nose, and does her breath smell of onions?"

"Yes, sir."

The millionaire covered his face with his hands for a moment and then said, in a trembling voice:

"Little one, your mother and I once knew each other. You have her voice, her hair and her eyes. If it had not been for a misunderstanding—perhaps—but that is all past now."

The man unbuttoned his overcoat and took from his vest pocket a package.

"Take this," he said. "I have more than I want. It will last you and your mother a year."

The little girl took the package and ran home in glee.

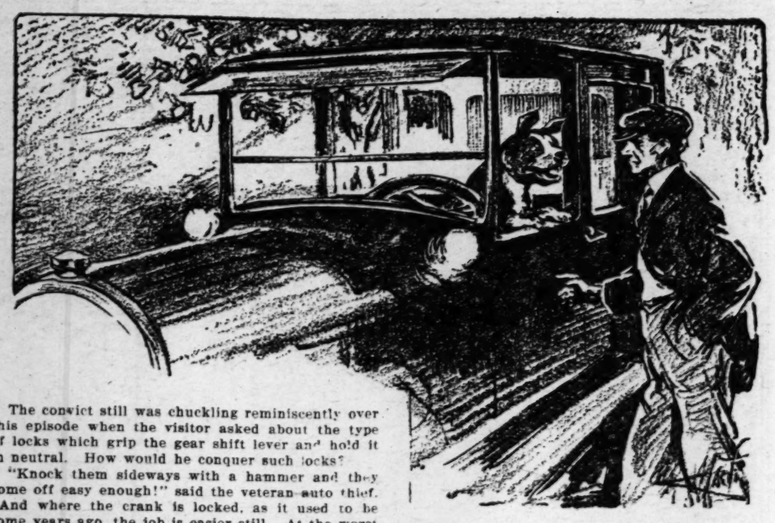
"Oh, see, mamma!" she cried. "A gentleman gave me this. He said it would last us a whole year."

The pale woman unrolled the package with trembling hands.

It was a nice new calendar. (Copyright.)

If You Don't Want Your Auto Stolen, Read!

Convict, now serving 10-year sentence in State Prison, says "Bosh!" to nearly all the safety devices—How he stole a limousine, chained by a wheel to telegraph pole, without having to cut the chain — His methods of dealing with other appliances—Then he tells about the only safeguards which are thief-proof :: :: :: ::



"There is nothing the professional automobile thief hates so much as a businesslike looking bull-dog, or one of those German police dogs. They are the best 'safety device' I know of."

"SAFETY device? Bosh! There is no locking device that can't be beaten in some way. Some are a little harder than others, it's true, but none of them is really safe."

Thus spoke a professional automobile thief when he was interviewed recently in the Vermont State Prison at Windsor. With the greater part of a 10-year sentence still to be served, this expert seemed willing enough to disclose the secrets of his criminal trade. And to his fellow thieves they are not secrets, anyway.

More than $100,000,000 of automobiles were stolen in this country during 1922, despite the combined efforts of city, state and Federal governments, so the subject seems a timely one. Auto owners will be interested in the scant respect that a "professional" cherishes for the safety devices on their cars.

"You say that all safety devices are useless?" asked a skeptical interviewer.

"No, not exactly useless," smiled the prisoner. "Most of them delay us a bit. But I can drive away any car, no matter what kind of safety device may be on it, if I know in advance what kind of a lock it has. That, of course, is something we always look out for.

"We rarely steal a car on the impulse of the moment. We know where the owner is and what make and model it is before we go after it, and most of the time we know what kind of a lock it's got."

"Let's have a few examples," suggested the visitor. "What would you do if the car had a first-class ignition locking device?"

"Ignition lock? Ha-ha-ha-ha! Say, you do make me laugh! That ain't a lock at all. All you got to do in that case is to ground the positive wire and connect the two wires outside the regular switch. A real thief always has a few lengths of extra wire in his pocket."

"How about a closed gas supply?"

"That's a cinch. A medium-sized hot water bottle filled with gas, a length of rubber tubing, and you can connect it up with the intake manifold and drive away as neatly as if you had the gas tank right on top of the motor."

"How about closed cars, when the doors are locked with Yale keys?" asked the interviewer, hoping that perhaps this question would stump even an expert.

"Well, I've let the window down and crawled through, several times, and once I went through the windshield after I had doubled it up."

"And what do you do when the clutch is locked?"

"A clutch lock is pretty hard to beat—same as a steering-post lock, which goes right into the interior of the post," said the prisoner. "The way we get away with that kind of cars is to substitute another steering post or clutch in place of the locked one.

"That requires foreknowledge and some preparation. But once we know that a certain car has such a device, and we find it standing where we have a few minutes' time, we can get the old clutch or steering post out, and a new one in, in about five or six minutes.

"You must understand that every professional car thief either owns a garage himself or is connected with some garage where they are in league with the gang. All the spare parts can be obtained from them at a moment's notice—although an owner probably could not get a steering post or clutch in that garage to save his life!

"Let me tell you about a car I stole one day in Cambridge, Mass. It was a big limousine, and a beauty. I made up my mind to get that car. When I stepped closer, the job didn't look like an easy one. In the first place, the grip was on tight—couldn't be budged. In the second place, one of the rear wheels was chained to the telegraph pole alongside. Almost anybody would say that the car was perfectly safe.

"But what do you think that fool owner had done? Well, he had a pair of spare wheels in the rear of the car. All I had to do was to jack up the car, as if to fix the tire, slip off the 'locked and gripped' wheel, put a spare wheel on and drive off!

"I left the locked wheel lying on the ground, chained to the telegraph pole. I bet that owner had the surprise of his life when he came to get his car!"

The convict still was chuckling reminiscently over this episode when the visitor asked about the type of locks which grip the gear shift lever and hold it in neutral. How would he conquer such locks?

"Knock them sideways with a hammer and they come off easy enough!" said the veteran auto thief. "And where the crank is locked, as it used to be some years ago, the job is easier still. At the worst it would take only two minutes, and two men always are on the job in such a case. One gets in and starts the ignition and the other lets in the clutch—and off she goes!"

Having run out of specific questions by this time, the visitor at the Vermont prison inquired what the convict, as an undoubted expert in such matters, would recommend as a real safety device to prevent cars from being stolen. Recognizing the humor of the situation with a laugh, he advised as follows:

"Have a member of the family sit in the car while it is waiting at the curb, or put a good-sized bulldog or police dog, or collie in the front seat while the owner is away. A dog of that kind is the most unsatisfactory animal to argue with—it doesn't like arguing, and you can't bluff it or tell it any lies—the only thing to do is to go away and try your luck somewhere else.

"There is nothing the professional automobile thief hates so much as a businesslike looking bull-dog, or one of those German police dogs. They are the best 'safety device' I know of."

This Vermont prisoner also described the way in which auto thieves change the license numbers on stolen machines. He said in explanation:

"If the police are notified within a few minutes after the theft of a car—which we professionals usually take for granted—it is necessary to change the numbers and waste no time about it, either. Suppose I was driving away with a stolen car and I had a hunch that the cops were after me: I'd pull into a deserted side street, where I would be safe from observation for a few minutes.

"Then I'd get out of my pocket my little emergency box of paints and a brush. The paints would be the colors used on the license plates of the State in which I worked, and one or two of its neighbors. Suppose, for instance, the number read 5390. All I would have to do would be to touch up the figures just a little bit, changing the 'three' into an 'eight' and the 'cipher' into another 'eight.' These changes would make the number read 5898.

"As the police are looking for a car with the number which has been reported, and as only a few minutes have elapsed before they see me with a car of the same make and type as the stolen one, but with a different numbers on it—well, they can't claim the one I'm driving.

"I usually got a license plate for the car I was going to steal before I stole it, and thus had the license all ready in my pocket when I jumped into the car and drove off. But once in a while things don't go just right, and somebody tries to block the game. One day I was caught dead to rights by the owner just as I was getting away with his car. He must have telephoned the motor cycle squad while he was looking out of the window and watching me drive away, because it wasn't a minute before two motor cycle police were after me.

"I had to step on her pretty hard, but she turned a big curve at better than 55 through the very center of Chelsea, Mass., right across the square. On the other side of the square I shot into a side street and out upon the road, then slid down the bank into the marsh alongside with all lights shut off and the motor silent.

"I jumped out and ran out on the road, turned and was coming back toward the square, walking jauntily, when the cops came up. They stopped and asked me if I had seen a big, black touring car going this way like h——! I told them I surely did see a car whizz by on the road to Boston, and going at least a mile a minute.

"Waiting until the sound of their engines had died away, I went back to the car, drove her out of the marsh onto the road and leisurely back to the garage, where I sold her that same night for $1000 flat."

The method of handling stolen cars was another matter into which the veteran thief gave an inside peep.

"As I explained before," he said, "every professional automobile thief either owns a garage himself or he is a silent partner in one which makes a business of disposing of stolen cars. It is no longer a mystery to most people how a car can be changed in a few hours' time by simply exchanging parts and fittings with half a dozen others.

"And, of course, the changed cars can be sold easily as used cars—once, in fact, I sold a stolen car back to its owner less than a week after I had stolen it from him. It is true that car had been so changed that even the manufacturer himself would

"Then I'd get out of my pocket my little emergency box of paints and a brush. . . . Suppose the license number was 5390. All I would have to do would be to touch up the figures just a little bit, changing the 'three' into an 'eight,' and the 'cipher' into another 'eight.' These changes would make the number read 5898."

Off To The North Pole In The U.S.NA

By LIEUT. CLIFFORD A TINKER.
Formerly of Bureau of Aeronautics, U. S. Navy.

ABOUT half way between New York and Philadelphia is the largest single room in the world. In it the finishing touches are being put on the enormous rigid airship which, within the next three months, according to Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, will be hovering over the North Pole, gathering data for future globe-encircling flights by commercial airships, and adding new knowledge to meteorological phenomena which is the basis of all air and oceanic navigation.

Near the little village of Lakehurst, N. J., the navy has started a new industry, which will revolutionize long-distance travel by making possible the combination of speed and safety in cross-continental and oversea commercial carrying.

Only a day or two ago I left a hot, dusty train at the little railroad station at Lakehurst, and rode by auto a short mile to the U. S. Naval Airship Station. Entering the giant hangar which houses the ZR-1, I walked the length of the building, went up to the catwalk under the peak of the building in an elevator, strolled down the catwalk and out onto the roof, then back again, down the elevator, retraced my steps to the front of the building, and found that I had traveled more than a mile, so huge is this shed of sheds.

Babe Ruth, with his greatest homerun swats, never batted a ball far enough to reach from one end of this building to the other, nor did he ever bat a fly high enough to reach the upper edge of one of its huge doors. The cubic contents of this enormous room would contain seven concourses such as that at the Union Station, Washington, and have plenty of room left over for baggage rooms, ticket offices, lunchrooms, and what not.

As I stood alongside of the ZR-1, a compressed air whistle, designating the time for shifting the afternoon crews, sent forth a shrill blast. It was nearly a minute and a half before the echoes died away among the steel trusses 275 feet above the concrete floor. This huge hangar is 800 feet long, 400 feet wide and 280 feet high, and its ground floor is practically one room.

Notwithstanding this enormous space, the ZR-1 stretches nearly the full length of the room, but it takes a huge airship to carry sufficient fuel and supplies necessary for an adequate crew to take her from Lakehurst to the North Pole and back.

The airship, ZR-1, with 30 officers and men, will sail from Lakehurst, N. J., about the middle of September —"The trip presents no difficulties not already provided for in plans and equipment," declares Admiral William A. Moffett—Land will be in sight all the way until about 360 miles from the pole, and this gap is expected to be covered in 10 hours or less—Ship has cruising range of 5000 miles without landing :-:

Will she make the pole?

"Certainly," says Admiral Moffett. "The trip presents no difficulties not already provided for in the plans and equipment of the ZR-1. The ship has the endurance to fly 5000 miles without landing, when fitted up for the North Pole venture. Normally, her range is 4000 miles, but by unshipping two of her engines and their cars and replacing their weight with fuel she can easily make the 5000-mile nonstop flight."

The ship will go direct from Lakehurst to the pole, following the fifty-fourth meridian of longitude, which will carry her along the coast of Hudson Bay and land will always be in sight until the eighty-fourth parallel of north latitude. From there the jump to the pole is only 360 miles.

"This is no voyage undertaken in a spirit of bravado," states Admiral Moffett, "but has tremendous military and commercial value. Then, too, an American naval officer was the first to reach the pole by surface methods, and American naval officers are going to be the first to reach the pole by the air route, and the ZR-1 is the ship to take them there.

"As a matter of fact, future commercial lines plying between the western and eastern hemispheres on routes north of the equator, will most generally traverse the Arctic regions for the shortest distances and the most economical routes, including the elements of favorable weather en route," the Admiral remarked.

"The pioneer voyages of the ZR-1 on her exploratory trips to 84 degrees north will furnish information of priceless value to commercial aircraft enterprises among all nations. The navy has always been a pioneer in the industries, and the ZR-1 is merely following the general policy of the navy in epoch-making undertakings."

By visiting Lakehurst and inspecting the ZR-1, it is not difficult for one to understand the enthusiasm of Commander Jacob H. Klein Jr., her executive officer, and the other officers and men making up her crew, who are intensely engaged in whipping her into shipshape condition the thousand and two appurtenances which make the airship a thing of vital dynamic force, able to fight her way to the pole between the sea and sky under all sorts of weather conditions.

From her nose to her stern the ZR-1 is as smooth as a piano top. Her "skin," or fabric covering, is stretched as tight as a drumhead. Her control car, in which will be stationed the navigator, steersmen and radio operators, is rigidly attached to the bottom of her keel, about 125 feet from her nose. The control car also contains an engine with an enormous propeller. Away aft, on the center line of the hull, is another engine car, while stretched along the sides are four more engine cars, two of which have reversible propellers in order to make the ship maneuverable under all conditions. She's a huge, gallant ship; she thrills by her size and her mechanical perfection.

That a new industry has been developed in America, and that American workmen excel all others in this industry, is readily apparent by inspecting the framework of the ZR-1. I have inspected the structure of British, French, Italian and German airships, and when one rubs his hands over the duralumin girders and braces on foreign-built ships, rough edges and rough rivet heads score the fingers. This is not true in the case of the ZR-1. I swept my hands over frame after frame and never once scratched the skin.

This is an indication of the perfection of the machinery specially designed for stamping out the duralumin parts and the care used in riveting these together to furnish the ribs and backbone of this giant of the skies. It is the same with the outside cover-

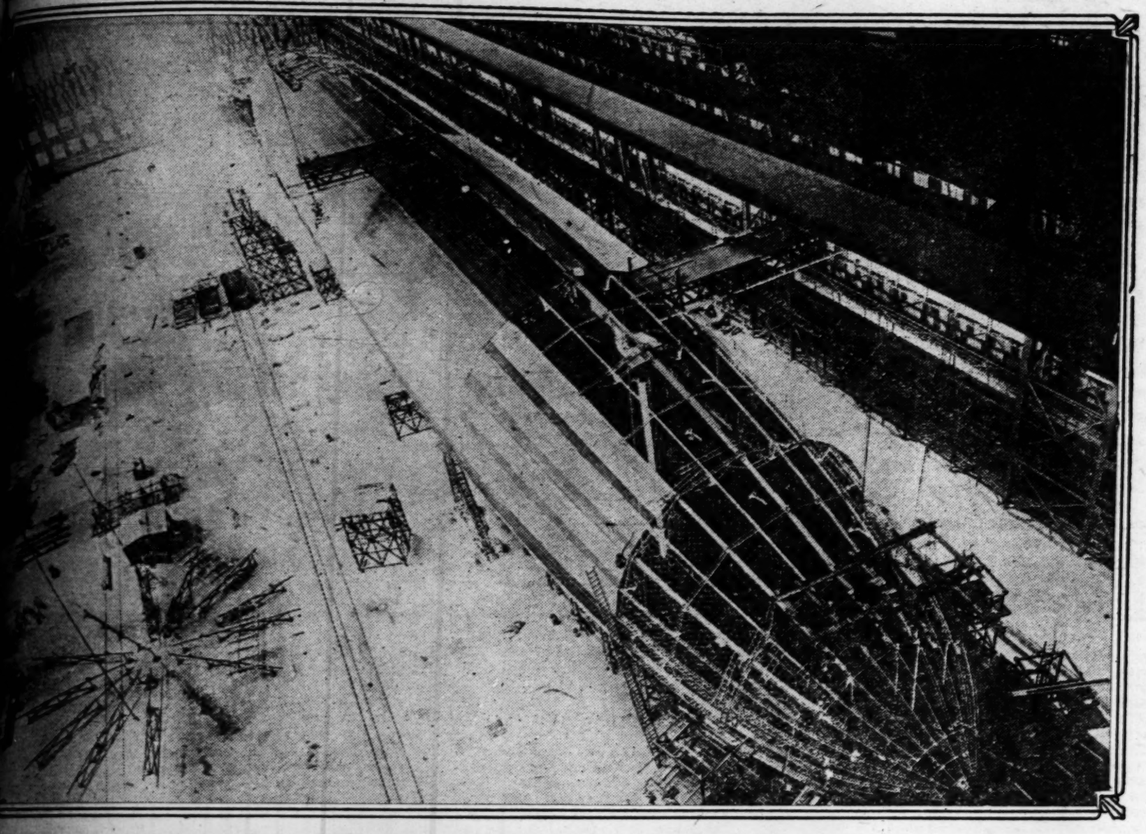
U.S. NAVY'S BIGGEST DIRIGIBLE!



Putting the "skin" on the completed frame of the ZR-1, in the largest hangar in the world, at Lakehurst, N. J. She will make several "conditioning" trips before starting on the flight to the North Pole. Non-freezing fuel will displace the ordinary ballast, and the crew will have special clothing.

...ng. In no foreign ship have I ever seen so taut a ...kin as that on the ZR-1.

In discussing the polar flight with Commander Klein, I learned that at Lakehurst is a duplicate set of ballonets, propellers, motors, control wires, rudders and elevators, and all other parts likely to need replacement as a result of trials and conditioning flights, so that it is reasonably certain that the ZR-1 will get away by the middle of September on her flight to the North Pole.

"We will need some special material," said Commander Klein, "and we are having it designed and built now. Aviators' clothing of the warmest type, impervious to moisture and air, is being made; face masks and electrically heated clothing for hands and feet will be provided. The time on watch trick of our men will be cut down from the proverbial naval four-hour watch to not more than one hour, while the men off watch will be provided with fabric-walled rooms about amidships, to which the exhaust from the motors will furnish heat, so that the men can 'lay in' in comfort when off duty. Special exhaust equipment is being provided for the engine to furnish this warmth and the heat to be used for cooking purposes.

"Food will be mostly concentrated rations in cans, but it will be ample. Medical attendance will be provided, and physical examinations will be made at frequent intervals or before and after changing the watches, which will provide invaluable data to future navigating by airship in polar regions."

Commander Klein has worked out the route to be taken by the ship from Lakehurst to the pole. Leaving Lakehurst, the ship will take a westerly course until over the fifty-fourth meridian of longitude, and that will be followed north over the Hudson Bay territory, with landmarks visible underneath until 84 degrees north is pricked off on the chart. Here the ship will necessarily leave all contact except that by radio behind.

The magnetic compass cannot be depended upon beyond that point because the magnetic North Pole is in the Hudson Bay territory. Thus, the 360-mile hop from 84 degrees north to the pole will be a bit of delicate navigating not heretofore undertaken by air navigators.

"We will make conditioning trips," continued Commander Klein, "running up and down the fifty-fourth meridian as many times as is necessary to test all our engines, gas controls, ballast controls and the meteorological factors which affect the navigation of the ship. Our aerographer, Lieut. J. B. Anderson, is now engaged in meteorological research in Arctic regions in conjunction with the Governments of Greenland, Iceland, Norway and Canada, in an effort to compute the prevailing weather conditions for the month of September. Thus far there is no indication that we will encounter unusually severe weather.

"It is no colder at the pole than at Duluth, Minn., or Montreal, Canada, under certain conditions and seasons, and the short hop from 84 degrees north to the pole can be made in 10 hours or less by taking advantage of prevailing winds."

Commander Klein and fellow officers, while elated at the prospect of being the first airmen to reach the pole, are as unconcerned and matter-of-fact about the necessary preparations as if such a trip constituted an every-day activity of the navy. I remarked the same attitude of mind in the case of Commanders Towers and Read, who handled the problems of the first naval transatlantic flight of the NC-4 boats in 1919, and the same can be said of the British pilots who brought the rigid airship R-34 from England to the United States in July, 1919.

The life of a naval officer, especially in aviation, is so well filled with remarkable and unusual exploits that such an undertaking as a flight to the barren icy wastes surrounding the North Pole is regarded as "all in a day's work."

Notwithstanding their nonchalance, those officers are the Pearys of their day. It has been said that it took 20 years of Peary's life to fit him for the dash to the pole. That is true beyond a doubt; but Peary's experiences are available for analysis; they are a textbook for these naval aviators, and I found them at Lakehurst studying Peary's book and the records of other polar voyagers, particularly concerning the factors which govern the physique of those who brave the northern climate, such items as food, clothing and medical care. Navigating and optical instruments, too, come in for their share of study, and the aerology of such a trip is not to be neglected.

Indeed, no phase of the projected cruise is being overlooked by these young men on whom rests the honor of the flag.

"Fully loaded," Commander Klein told me, "the ship weighs more than 160,000 pounds, yet so carefully do we 'weigh up' that two men, one at the forward and one at the after handling bars under her keel, can raise and lower her by the strength of their arms."

This indicates how carefully an airship is handled and how delicately she is poised for flight. Think of it! A ship 680 feet long, weighing 80 tons, can be raised and lowered by the strength of two men without the aid of pulleys or apparatus of any kind! How is it done? It is a simple matter. In preparing the ZR-1 for flight, it is first necessary to know how large a crew is going to be carried, and the length and nature of the flight. Knowing this, it is then possible to figure out how much ballast must be put on board, and how much fuel is required.

The officer in charge of the operation (in this case Commander Klein), having figured just what is necessary, informs the engineer officer, who proceeds to gas, fuel and ballast the ship. Gas is taken into the ship through a central gassing hose leading off into each gas bag or balloonet. There are 20 of these bags, each holding about 114,000 cubic feet of gas. This requires the presence of several men

Details of the Huge American Airship Which Will Attempt Trip to North Pole.

THE naval airship ZR-1. First American rigid airship. Built at the naval aircraft factory in Philadelphia. Assembled at the Naval Air Station, Lakehurst, N. J. Now 99 per cent complete.

Length, 680 feet—longer than all but the very largest ocean liners and any steamship on the Great Lakes or inland waters of the country. Diameter, 79 feet—about the same beam as the largest lake steamers.

Number of gas cells, 20; gas capacity, 2,100,000 cubic feet; gross lift, 136,600 pounds with hydrogen and 120,600 pounds with helium.

Engines, six 200-300 horsepower Packard.

Maximum speed, 75 miles per hour; cruising speed, 65.6 miles per hour.

Range at 75 miles per hour, 3060 miles (hydrogen); range at 65.6 miles per hour, 4010 miles (hydrogen).

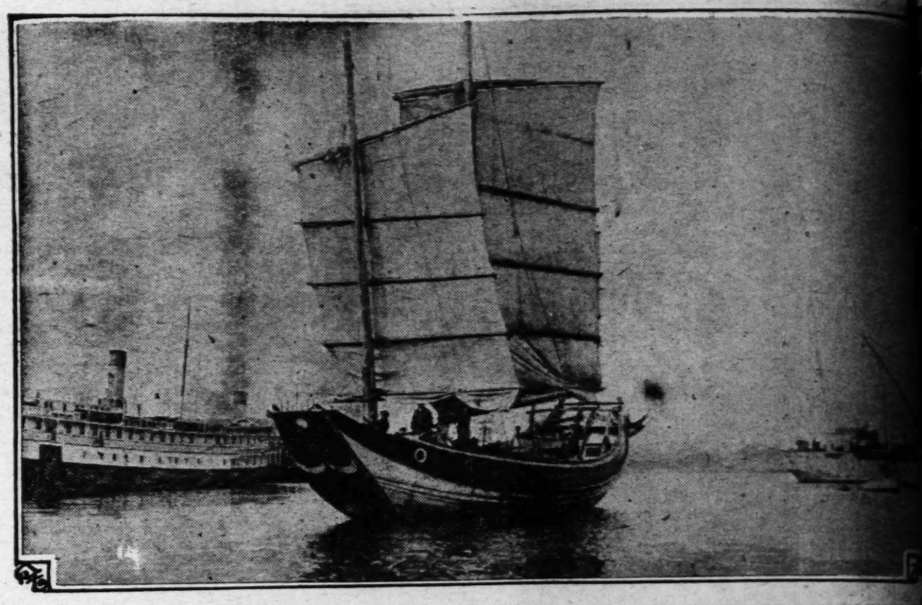
Crew, 30 men.

Will be known as Fleet Airship No. 1.

Designed as a naval scout for operations with the surface fleet.

Around The World On A Small Chinese Junk

The Amoy, only 53 feet long and of 14 1-2 tons displacement, went from Shanghai to Victoria, B. C., in 87 sailing days, riding out two typhoons on the way and being held up once on suspicion that it was a pirate craft—A Dutch skipper, his Chinese family and crew of three handled what is said to be the smallest vessel that ever crossed the Pacific—Panama Canal and Atlantic ocean next, on way to Holland and back home



The little junk, Amoy, sailing into the harbor at Victoria, B. C., after her bold cruise across the Pacific.

By HELEN PUTNAM VAN SICKLEN.

BUILT of Chinese native woods in a fashion long antedating civilization in Europe, the Amoy, smallest vessel that ever crossed the Pacific Ocean, sailed into San Francisco Bay Feb. 12, reached Los Angeles May 2 and went on her way down the coast to the Panama Canal. From the canal she will cross the Atlantic to Holland, pause for a visit, then proceed upon her way around the globe to her home port in China.

Gaily painted in bright red and yellow and blue, with shining black eyes on either side of the prow staring straight ahead, and under the special protection of the gods, she came safely through two typhoons and then was mistakenly arrested for a pirate ship off the coast of Unalaska!

A pirate ship in these days? Mrs. Robert Wraad, the Hollander captain's Chinese wife, is the daughter of an aristocratic Amoy family which for generations has sailed "police" or "war" junks convoying merchant fleets along the coast of China to make them safe from pirate attacks. Three or four of these small two-masted war junks, menacingly armed, always accompany a fleet of 20 to 60 laden merchant ships, that dare not sail unguarded.

The Amoy is 53 feet long and displaces 14 1-2 tons.

"I'd sooner have made the trip in a boat half this size," remarked Capt. Wraad, "except for the comfort of my wife and Robert Jr. Then we could have gotten on with a smaller crew, for you have to keep your eyes open all the time, anyway, on a trip like this."

Since the Boxer rebellion he had been, first, in the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs Service, later in charge of a British ship in Chinese waters. But last year spring fever aggravated a bad attack of homesickness, and almost before they knew what was happening, Capt. Wraad had a squad of men hard at work building the Amoy.

"The people of Amoy called it a 'joss,' or sacred ship, for I rented an old, abandoned temple for my workmen to live in. It's primitive—shipbuilding in China. I had about 20 men working for six months, and the whole ship only cost between four and five thousand dollars.

"The keel and rudder and big timbers are made of ironwood; the frame and fittings of camphor wood, bent naturally, while the planking is all of half-logs of Chinese fir, cut and smoothed by hand. The very few tiny nails used were also made by hand. All the fastenings are wooden trendles, or bamboo nails, for no metal bolts were used in the entire construction. The caiking was done with fish nets hammered into a soft pulp, and then covered with sheets of mixture of pulp and wood oil.

"It is identically the same type that the Chinese of a thousand years ago built, and for smoothness and steadiness cannot be equalled.

"The Egyptian influence is to this day but thinly veiled in the general lines of the Chinese junks. Yet the original square sail of the Nile has, in Chinese waters, become a lug of a most effective and serviceable kind. Stiffened by battens, hoisted on a pole mast, bent to both yard and boom, kept to the mast by a hauling parrel, fitted with topping lifts on both sides of the sail, the sail can be lowered instantaneously in a squall. It is the handiness of the Chinese rig which is one of its greatest virtues.

"My friend, a marine artist, did the painting and decorating, outside and in. And the inside decorations were literally done by hand, for he used no brushes. See these pictures on the walls and ceiling of the cabin? They depict Chinese legends of the sea, tales of prowess and bravery of the ancients and stories of wit and cleverness of the gods.

"With a daub of paint on each finger tip, red, yellow, blue, green, the artist painted very much as you would write on a typewriter, and just as fast."

Carefully and delicately done, they are the chief decoration of a very compact and comfortable cabin of two rooms, 8x8 feet, the family living quarters. Wide soft berths in the inner room, narrower berths couches in the outer, a few books, the ship's log, innumerable charts, a bit of sewing in the big armchair and attractive Chinese lanterns just about complete the furnishings. And everywhere the space is skillfully conserved for stowing away provisions.

"Meet Mr. Tai Toa Fat," continued the captain, introducing me to a porcelain image of the God of Happiness. "In his land, in order to be prosperous you must be either bald or fat, like himself. Tai Toa means heavily built, while Fat is Chinese for nice disposition. My crew came here daily to pay their respects, and Tai Toa guided us carefully. Besides, our 'eyes' had been carefully placed, and they watched constantly for fair weather and wind.

"The legend is that the patron saint of Chinese seamen, once wanting to travel, went aboard a junk and stated his wish to the master.

" 'But, alas,' said the sailor, 'we cannot start now, for our rigging is down.'

" 'Oh, that is nothing,' answered the patron saint. 'All that is necessary is that the ship's eyes be well placed, then we can sail and not come to grief.'

"So with care and a prayer, he painted the eyes of the ship, one on each side of the prow, sealing within them a few pieces of money, some scriptural verses and red good-luck papers. And after a drink of Samshu all around, they sailed away over the high seas with their rigging down, as safely as could be.

"Ever since, all wise sailors of China have sought the services of priests skilled in placing eyes to see fine weather. So if a ship sails out into a storm on its maiden voyage, it must return at once to have its eyes done over. And many's the ship that's gone back, for these priests are by no means 100 per cent fficient, and mayhaps they're grafters, too.

"But we were starting on a long trip and couldn't turn back, as I explained to the priest in the temple. So I paid him twice his usual fee—20 cents—for a perfect pair of eyes and the promise of good weather. At that we went through two typhoons and twice lost our rudder."

"I think my father doesn't really believe that superstition, he just does it for the crew. Anyway, I don't believe it's true," whispered little Robert, very earnestly, while his father winked broadly at me.

"Just three in our crew, two China boys and Saikhoa," continued Capt. Wraad. "You've heard, perhaps, of the head-hunter tribe on the northeastern frontier of India, whose custom demands that a bridegroom bring his bride a certain number of heads, those of Christians being preferred. Some years ago, while commanding an English merchant ship, I found this fellow, Saikhoa, hiding on board. He had just acquired his quota of heads when he nearly lost his own, and there he lay, terror stricken, hidden in a lifeboat. I befriended him, and ever since have had a loyal slave.

"They were a good crew and I hated to see them turn back to China from Victoria, but probably they were glad to board a larger vessel.

"By May 17, 1922, the Amoy was finished and amid the prayers and ceremonial farewells of friends and relatives at Amoy, and escorted for some hours by my wife's father's ship, we set sail, meandering up the coast to Shanghai, where we rested for 10 days. There I picked up our Dutch compass, the only thing on board that is not Chinese. Leaving June 21, we continued up the Sea of Japan.

"About 100 miles out we met our first real adventure when a giant python, probably carried out to sea in a storm, was washed aboard the Amoy. A few shots from a rifle finished him. Python meat is more delicate than chicken.

"Crossing into the Pacific at Hakodate, I had expected to go due east, but northwesterly winds carried us out of our course, and we practically followed the route of the Canadian transpacific steamers. Two of them sighted us and came to offer help, thinking us a fishing vessel, blown to sea. We had no wireless.

"Then day after day, week after week, we sailed on and on and on. From June to November is the typhoon season, but we only met two and came through easily. We have 1900 square feet of canvas in our three regular heavy sails and in addition another 1050 square feet in our three light extra sails. One man can lower them all in a minute and a half.

"Having blown so far north, we made our first stop at Atka, and attended to some necessary repairs. There, quite as much as in the Canadian and American cities which we have since visited, the Amoy was a great curiosity. Visitors crowded on board. Finally, to get rid of one old Indian, I had to sell him my gramophone and records. He gave us no peace, kept offering more and more money, until my men were half afraid of him.

"Proceeding after a few days, we had nearly reached Unalaska, when a revenue cutter steamed alongside, and finding the Amoy was unregistered, mistook it for a pirate ship and virtually arrested us, ordering us into Unalaska. But officials there took a lenient view, allowing us to enter and clear on our promise to proceed to Victoria to register, after they had heard the complicated old law which made it impossible for me, a naturalized Canadian subject, to register my own ship except in a Canadian port. Which was precisely what I had intended to do.

"Off the Aleutian Islands my sailors saw their first big fish, thrillingly large compared to the tiny ones on the Chinese coast. They fished all the time. I couldn't stop them. Lines out everywhere, as though they'd be the last big fish we'd see. For days they salted, dried and pickled—fish, fish and more fish.

"On Sept. 9 we sighted Vancouver Island, and by Sept. 16 were at anchor in Victoria. The first big adventure of our trip was over. A little over 5000 miles and nearly four months at sea, 87 sailing days from Shanghai to Victoria.

"What provisions did we carry? Half a ton of rice, 300 pounds of potatoes, salted duck eggs and fish, canned and dried vegetables of all kinds. Half a ton of coal, a few tons of wood, and a hundredweight of charcoal, which was used only for cooking. Anyone who happened to be hungry first was cook.

"Two tanks and three barrels held our water, 500 gallons, or about 8000 glasses full. And as for comfort and convenience, I'll enter our kitchen in any contest."

Five steps down a ladder into a bandbox of a place. A wee bit of a coal stove, hardly larger than a doll's, and an open charcoal burner on which most of the cooking was done in a steamer, everything cooking at once. A little corner of Spotless Town, blue and white and shiny.

"Robert helped a lot here," remarked his dad, with pride.

"We sailed so smoothly—that's due to the construction of the junk—that I never saw even a cup of tea spill on the table. Yes, lots of times when I'd look out over the great expanse of rolling walls of waves and the deep grooves between them, it seemed inevitable that we'd be swallowed up. But no. They never even washed over our deck.

"There wasn't much time for recreation. We kept eight-hour watches, though many times I stayed at the helm 24 hours without sleep. There's lots to do at sea in a ship so small as this, and every moment you're alert to every breeze and sound. Very little reading or sewing or studying, except Robert's lessons, with fair regularity."

"Reading is the one thing I like the least," put in Robert. "It's more pleasant to sit 'way forward watching for ships or land. My eyes are the best, and often I see things first of all."

"For the sport of it," ended Capt. Wraad, "I'd like to go back across the Pacific, but we're headed for the Panama Canal and the Atlantic. Robert shall see his Hollander kinfolk as we continue our way on around the globe."

"We met our first real adventure when a giant python was washed aboard the Amoy."

GOOLS AND THEIR MONEY: Sing a

How Tom Castro, Australian butcher, became a claimant to the Tichborne estate in England—From Wagga Wagga to Wapping the mere assertion that he was a Baronet made his credit good—More than $1,000,000 contributed by the public to help the claimant and defend him against perjury charge—After serving 12 years in prison he signed a confession, but later repudiated it—Title carved on his coffin. -:- -:- -:- -:- -:- -:- -:- -:-

TOM CASTRO sat wearily fanning himself. It was a hot day there in Wagga Wagga, the town for which Tom dispensed steaks, chops and joints. Flies bothered the butcher, and it was a most difficult matter for him to fight off the pests. He weighed 340 pounds—which was why. Could anybody reasonably expect the unofficial champion fat man of Australia to fight off the flies that attacked him on a sultry evening? Assuredly not.

The butcher business was getting unbearable for Tom. No longer was he able to handle the huge cleaver with skill and without fatigue. It was about as much as he could do to inhale and expel his breath, let alone manipulating meat ax, saw and butcherknife. Tom blew like a buck porpoise every time he tried to swing the heavy chopper. He had two sons who might be expected to grow up and relieve him of the hard work, but they were little tots, their father having married rather late. His native Australian wife had borne him four children in a few years, and now Tom was facing 50 with a considerable family on his hands—and still getting fatter. Sometimes he wondered what was to become of them all.

"I gotta do somethin' to get more money ahead," said Tom to himself, every now and then. "I just gotta do somethin'."

That particular evening the town lawyer, Gibbs by name, happened along. Mr. Gibbs carried a Melbourne newspaper. He sauntered into the butcher shop and glanced around to see that only he and Mr. Castro were present. Then he leaned over the meat counter and spoke softly:

"Castro, I've always known there was some mystery about you, and now I believe it is solved. Why are you chopping meat down here when you might be home in England, living on your own estates and"——

"Eh—wot's that, now?" heavily aspirated the overheated butcher.

Lawyer Gibbs stood erect, doffed his hat and made a sweeping bow.

"I salute you, Sir Roger Tichborne—at your service, sir!"

"Eh—wot?" gasped the butcher.

"Look at this picture in the paper, Sir Roger," invited the lawyer. "Then read the story. Have you no love left for your poor old mother, Sir Roger, pining away off there for her only son?"

Tom looked foolishly at the lawyer, who continued:

"You can't deny it, sir. Allowing for the passage of the years between, you nevertheless still bear a striking resemblance to this young man pictured here. I have taken the liberty to write your mother, Lady Tichborne, that her long-lost son is found. Tomorrow, sir, I shall call again; and, as I have said, Sir Roger Tichborne, I am at your service, sir."

"Sir Roger" grunted, but he accepted the newspaper and laboriously read the story indicated. It was an appeal from Lady Harriet Felicite Tichborne, widow of Sir James Doughty Tichborne, who had died some years earlier as holder of one of England's most ancient baronetcies. The published account went on to say that the heir of Sir James, young Sir Roger, was supposed to have been lost with the ship Bella, foundered in South American waters in the year 1853, which was about 13 years before the date of the lawyer's visit to the Wagga Wagga butcher. Lady Tichborne had refused to believe that her son was dead. She was appealing through the press for some evidence that he still lived.

Tom Castro thought it all over. It was true that he had been something of a mystery to Wagga Wagga; that had been his own business. During the night, too hot for sleep, he made up his mind to acquiesce in the lawyer's discovery. Well, why not?

When Mr. Gibbs came around next day the butcher made more or less full-breast confession.

"Game's up," he admitted. "I'm Tichborne, Mr. Gibbs."

"I knew it!" cried the lawyer, delighted. "Now for proof of identity; for, as you know, there is a little lad, your nephew, known as Sir Alfred Joseph Doughty Tichborne, who holds the title and the estates in your absence and assumed death, and no doubt you have a fight ahead to prove you are Sir Roger Charles Doughty Tichborne—as undoubtedly, sir, you are."

Followed a long conference between the butcher and the lawyer. The butcher, with exceeding labor, penned a letter to Lady Tichborne. He wrote illiterately, explaining that certain circumstances had kept him from writing to her "since the last letter" of some dozen years earlier. He was ready now to return to her and take his proper position as Sir Roger Tichborne. But he lacked the money required for passage, and would his dear mother be good enough to forward same? Lady Tichborne replied that she was overjoyed to learn that her beloved son was living, but that owing to the estate being in the hands of his small nephew's guardian she could not find the funds.

The butcher found the funds, right there in Wagga Wagga. When it became noised about that the humble meat cutter was none other than the wealthy Sir Roger Tichborne, getting money was an easy matter. Townspeople flocked to the meatshop to fork over generous loans. It was understood that the estates yielded something more than $100,000 a year, and Sir Roger, of course, would repay, with interest, once he was established in his rights. Lawyer Gibbs had much to do with the financing of the Baronet, and that person willingly signed a will in which the man of law was remembered most handsomely.

Some months later, after further correspondence between him and Lady Tichborne, the ex-butcher turned up in England with plenty of money to see him through for the time being. He did not go direct to Tichborne Manor. Instead, he made a secret visit to the plebeian town of Wapping. From Wagga Wagga to Wapping! thence to Tichborne Manor, where the elderly Lady Tichborne wept in his arms. Though her son Roger, when he sailed for Australia a dozen years before, was a slight young man and this person had the proportions of a prize hog specially fattened, the waiting mother identified and accepted him as her son without question. Before he left Wagga Wagga he had written her that he had grown so stout that she hardly would recognize him; so, as it seems, he had prepared the way for his hearty reception.

Immediately upon the news being printed that the lost Sir Roger had come home at last, there was an outcry against him. Relatives and friends and retainers of little Sir Alfred came forward to deny voicefully that this big, fat butcher from Australia was the son of Lady Tichborne, who in her youth had been a noted beauty. They began to accumulate evidence to prove the claimant a fraud.

On the other hand, Lady Tichborne steadfastly stuck to her identification of the Australian. She made much ado over him and undoubtedly got a lot of joy out of her belief that at last her son had returned to her. She resented all insinuations that he was other than the slight young Roger, who, at the age of 24, had sailed away and been reported drowned with all on board his ship. Roger had been her only child, and now that she was long widowed she rejoiced and was exceeding glad that "her darling boy" was back home.

The fact that Tom Castro of Wagga Wagga was an uneducated man, in contrast with the fact that Roger Tichborne had received a fairly good education, Lady Tichborne explained away. Roger, for reasons of his own which all should respect, had elected to bury himself in a small antipodal community. He had been associated with a rough class of people. Quite naturally, she felt, he had grown into the ways of those people and had forgotten such culture as he had acquired before he went away from home. Incidentally, he had forgotten Lady Tichborne's maiden name, though she did not hold this against him.

It was a matter of record that Roger Tichborne had grown up in France, where he was born, and that he learned to speak French before he acquired English. This man from Australia, it was discovered, knew no French. Well, he had forgotten his French, Lady Tichborne argued—wasn't that quite possible?

The claimant seemed also to have forgotten many things of an intimate nature that had occurred in his early years, or the early years of Roger Tichborne. Even the names of some of Roger's relatives he could not recall. But had he not put his old life behind him altogether, and was it not reasonable to assume that a man of middle age was not supposed to recall every trivial incident of boyhood and youth? Lady Tichborne, anyhow, appeared to think so. Her mother love conquered all barriers.

It was admitted on all sides that the claimant bore facial resemblance to several Tichbornes. The opposition argued that such a fact was totally insufficient to get him over as a member of the family. Was it not true that many persons "looked like" other persons to whom they were not related? And there was that prodigious stoutness—it simply wouldn't go down with the opposition. A pipestem youth could not, they declared, grow into a hulking ox in a dozen years. Corpulency was not a Tichborne quality. Roger Tichborne, if still alive, would weigh very much less than half the heft of the claimant to his identity and inheritance.

Gradually, as it turned out, the claimant "remembered" things about which he was either ignorant or hazy at first. His mind was coming round to normalcy, by degrees, and thereat Lady Tichborne rejoiced anew. She had but little income of her own, but nevertheless she settled upon "Roger" $5000 a year until such time as he could come into his rich estates and begin to draw that $100,000 plus which they yielded. But the impoverished lady was unable to supply funds for pushing his claim in the courts. That would require a great deal of money, since the opposition was determined to defend young Sir Alfred's interests to the ultimate ditch.

However, the newly arrived Sir Roger Tichborne did not find it necessary to sit down and brood over his affairs. Quite to the contrary, he discovered that it was even easier to find funds in England than in little old Wagga Wagga. In Wagga Wagga there was much less money and vastly less reverence for titles and landed estates than in England. In England any man entitled to be addressed as "Sir" and kowtowed to and salaamed before as such, had a natural field of credit as wide and as fertile as the County of Kent. That was so in those days, but it is not so now, things having changed considerably in half a century.

When it was made known that the poor, downtrodden Sir Roger Tichborne was being withheld from enjoyment of his baronetcy and its income, that cruel fate was keeping him outside the fold solely because he lacked money with which to promote his claim, little old England leaped to the breach and thrust forth multitudinous hands bristling with pounds sterling. Security? Why, what about Tichborne Manor and the thousands of acres of tenant lands environing the old homestead? Sir Roger will pay off with generous interest, never doubt that.

No. 8

Finally the jury was completed, and for 40 solid days those 12 good men and true sat through day-long court sessions, until virtually everybody was exhausted and the court took a long recess. At this first session the plaintiff, Castro or Tichborne, was on the witness stand for 27 days. He was examined, cross-examined, re-cross-examined, until it must have seemed to the crowded courtroom that the lawyers and the Judge had asked him pretty nearly everything capable of preceding a question mark.

The Tichborne claimant turned out to be a man of spirit. In his five years' association with high-quality folk he had outgrown much of his Australian uncouthness, though still he retained those 340 pounds, plus. He had acquired a veneer of culture, so that he could write and speak without revealing too plainly his lack of elementary education. When he faced the Judge and jury he bristled like a fretful porcupine, showing determination to give as well as take. He had much of both giving and taking before his ordeal was over.

The defense sought to prove that the claimant was one Arthur Orton, son of a butcher at Wapping. The claimant's side admitted that Arthur Orton had been in Wagga Wagga, but contended that he was quite another person from the butcher known there as Tom Castro and known in England now as Sir Roger Tichborne.

Both sides "proved" their contentions in very many instances, so far as testimony went. For many weeks it was a matter of conjecture as to which would win out. After the recess for recuperation, court reassembled and the case dragged on for 62 days more. Toward the end of the 102d day of the trial, the jury finally made up its collective mind that it had enough, and the foreman so told the Judge.

The verdict was that the claimant had not proved his case, that he was not the son of the late Lady Tichborne and her husband, that little Sir Alfred was the actual Tichborne heir.

The erstwhile Tom Castro of Wagga Wagga was arrested before he left the courtroom and was indicted on charges of perjury. Again went up from Merry England a moan of pity and a cry of shame. The very idea! Sir Roger Tichborne, victim of a conspiracy that was keeping him out of his honors and his income, charged with having lied as to his own mother! Let justice be done! Let it be shown, in the perjury trial, that Sir Roger had but spoken truth through his month of grilling on the witness stand! Let him finally, through this second ordeal rising triumphant, mount to his throne of universal respect as the true Sir Roger Tichborne!

That $600,000 was all gone. But what of that? All the fools and all their money were not gone. Not by a large, luscious purseful! So they subscribed approximately $400,000 more to help Sir Roger through his perjury trial. The same witnesses were called, most of whom swore again that the defendant was Sir Roger Tichborne. Virtually the same evidence in rebuttal was introduced. This trial lasted 188 days. Add 102 to 188, and you find that the Lord Chief Justice of England had held down the woolsack on the Tichborne affair for 190 days, or more than six months.

The jury found Arthur Orton, alias Tom Castro, alias Sir Roger Tichborne, guilty of perjury as charged, and the court sentenced him to serve 14 years in prison.

The litigation cost the Tichborne estate $600,000 and used up about $1,000,000 of fools' money in behalf of the big, fat butcher from Wagga Wagga.

In 1884 the Tichborne claimant was released from prison. He had lost some useless flesh in his dozen years of incarceration and was in fairly good health. He still found friends who helped him and his family along financially, for many persons continued to believe, on the evidence adduced, that he was indeed Sir Roger Tichborne. They declared that a terrible injustice had been done.

Ten years after his release, the claimant took sick and felt himself near death. In face of the imminent onset of dissolution he made a confession.

"I am Arthur Orton," he said, "and was born in Wapping. The name Castro I took in South America. Until I saw the late Lady Tichborne's advertisement in the Australian papers I never had heard of the name or family of Tichborne."

That, it seems, should have ended the matter. However, Arthur Orton is supposed to have recanted his confession before his death three years later, in 1897. At any rate, he was buried with the name "Sir Roger Tichborne, Bart.," on his coffin; and there are many persons throughout the world, and particularly in England, who still believe, or affect to believe, that his coffin plate bore his correct name and title.

And there the matter rests.

The case presents several points of extraordinary interest. One is the colossal effrontery which the claimant, if an impostor, displayed in attempting to palm off his gross 340 pounds for a man who had been of slight build only a dozen years previously. And the claimant's later actions raise the question: Was he really Sir Roger Tichborne, harried into the confession of fraud by his wealthy and relentless opponents, or did he put forward the claim for so many years that finally he believed it himself?

Tichborne tenant. The real defendants were the guardians of Sir Alfred Tichborne, who was designated on the court records as "an infant." Trial of the case opened May 1, 1871, Lord Chief Justice Bovill presiding. Chief counsel for plaintiff was Mr. Serjeant Ballantine, Q. C. Defendant had a high array of legal talent headed by the Solicitor-General of the British Government.

In the meantime Lady Tichborne, believing to the last in the claimant as her son, had died. Solicitor Ballantine admitted that her death was a blow to his client's case, but he brought forward more than a hundred witnesses who testified, in one way or another, that they remembered the Australian as the young Roger Tichborne. The defense introduced almost as many witnesses to prove that the plaintiff was an impostor of Betelgeuse magnitude. The Solicitor-General and his associate counsel were being well paid, and they put up a defense that has become memorable in the annals of litigation.

Getting a jury was a tough problem. Busy men didn't fancy serving in a case likely to take up months of their time and as title to an important baronetcy was involved, both sides demanded jurors of high social and commercial standing. The Lord Chief Justice fined several derelict talesmen 50 pounds each, which they paid with apparent pleasure, glad to escape service.

THE SELCHESTER MISSAL

by

J.S. FLETCHER

MR. GUY LAMPARD, junior partner in the famous firm of Scriven, Lampard & Polkinghorne of Lincoln's Inn Fields, solicitors, got out of an express at Selchester one autumn morning, wondering why he had been brought to that sleepy city. The cause of his coming there at all lay in his pocket in the shape of a telegram, and as he walked up Shoregate he took out and ran his eye over the wording for the twentieth time:

"Come here at once by next train. Most urgent and serious business.

"DEAN OF SELCHESTER."

The Dean of Selchester was well known to Scriven, Lampard & Polkinghorne. They had been his solicitors for many years, and his father's and his grandfather's. Consquently, Mr. Guy Lampard knew all about the dean. One fact was that he had only attained to his present dignity within the past 12 months—previously to that he had been vicar of a certain fashionable parish in the heart of Belgravia. Another fact—and one that seemed to have a certain relation to the telegram—was that he was a somewhat nervous and excitable man, and apt to fuss about trifles. It might be a trifle that made him summon his solicitor to Selchester; that anything of a really urgent and serious nature could ever happen in that somnolent spot, which always looked to be lost in the last mist of antiquity was beyond Mr. Guy Lampard's belief.

It was very quiet, very peaceful, very dignified in the ancient close into which Lampard presently turned through a vaulted gateway which had stood there, slowly crumbling, since the days of the Plantagenets. He had been to Selchester before, several times, and the objects which he saw there were as familiar as well-known faces. There was the precentor's house, with its fine old architecture and its famous yew tree, there the canon's residence, first built in the days of Henry VII, and notable for its roofs and gables; there the embattled gateway of the Bishop's palace. And here was the deanery, with its fine lawns and shady garden, and there, pacing towards him, his hands behind his back, his face bent earthwards, his whole attitude that of thought and perplexity, was the dean himself. He looked up at the sound of Lampard's footsteps, and sighed with evident relief, and hurried forward with extended hand.

"Oh, it's you, Guy, is it?" he exclaimed. "I'm glad. I was rather afraid Polkinghorne might come. And this affair wants youth and energy—at least I think so."

"What is it?" asked Lampard.

The dean glanced at the windows of the house, and then motioned his visitor to follow him into a quiet tree-shaded walk. There, beneath the shadow of beech and hawthorne, he turned to his visitor with a look of despair.

"The fact is," said he, in low, almost mysterious tones. "The fact is, the Selchester Missal has disappeared!"

Lampard let his mind go back to his last visit to Selchester. He remembered a pleasant afternoon spent in looking round the old cathedral; he particularly remembered an hour in the cathedral library, amongst the old books, deeds, parchments, the harvest of many a century. And he remembered the famous Selchester Missal, an illuminated manuscript of great age and value, which, in company with various other books of the same sort, was treasured in a glass-fronted case—to be looked at, but not handled. Antiquaries and bibliophilists came from all over Europe to look at that Missal; collectors from beyond the Atlantic came, too, to envy the dean and chapter of Selchester their possession of it. And Lampard had a vague recollection of hearing that one of these American collectors had offered to buy the Missal, and to write out, there and then, a check for 10,000 pounds for it.

"The Selchester Missal!" he exclaimed. "Disappeared!"

"Stolen, I'm afraid," said the dean, mournfully. "It's all most mysterious and distressing. And, so far, we can't think how, or when, or by whom it was stolen—that is, exactly when or how. I'd better tell you all about it. That, of course, was why I sent for you."

"But, my dear Mr. Dean," said Lampard, with a deprecating smile, "I'm not a detective, you know. Hadn't you better send for the police, or wire for a Scotland Yard man?"

"We don't want the police to know," answered the dean. "We don't want a fuss, naturally. I sent for you, hoping you'd advise. You'll no doubt be able to suggest something."

"Well," assented Lampard, "the facts, then."

"The facts are these," said the dean. "Today's Monday. Well. I saw the Missal myself on Saturday morning—I showed it to friends. In fact, I exercised my privilege and took it out of the glass case. I put it back with my own hands. Now, this morning, first thing—before breakfast—one of the vergers came hurrying here to tell me that the Missal had disappeared. I went over to the cathedral with him, and into the library. The case was locked, as usual. But the Missal was gone. There you are!"

"How many people know of the loss up to now?" asked Lampard.

"Nobody but this particular verger and myself," replied the dean. "We haven't even told the librarian, who is one of the minor canons. And, very fortunately, he's away from the city today. But the loss cannot be concealed long, you know. I've had the library locked up until you came. We'd better go across there."

"Wait a bit," said Lampard. "Let me hear all about Sunday. You say you yourself showed the Missal to some friends. Tell me about that."

"We had some people staying with us last week," replied the dean—"several people. Some of them were old friends; two or three were friends of my daughter, whom I didn't know very well. My daughter, as you know, is an art student in London; these people I refer to were some of her artist friends."

"Men or women?" asked Lampard.

"Women—young women," answered the dean a little impatiently. "Of course, there is no suspicion in that quarter; any friend of Margaret's would naturally be above suspicion. I'm merely telling you all this to account for Saturday morning's visit. I took the whole party round the cathedral, and, of course, into the library. As I said, I showed them the Missal—took it out and put it back myself. That was just before lunch—say, 1 o'clock. Now, according to Wilkins, the verger who shows people round, there were only two or three visitors to the choir and the library on Saturday afternoon, and he knew them, in each case. One was Lord Freeborough—he wanted to consult something or other. Another was a young lady of the town, who is making a sketch of St. Hedwige's shrine. The third was a well-known London architect, Mr. Blatherwayte. So there you are!"

"What about yesterday—Sunday?" inquired Lampard.

"No one is shown round on Sunday," said the dean. "The library is closed from 5 o'clock on Saturday until 9 o'clock on Monday."

"How many people have access to that case besides yourself?" asked Lampard.

"Only two," answered the dean. "The Bishop has a key and the librarian has a key."

"Perhaps one of them has removed the Missal?" suggested Lampard. "Have you made inquiry?"

"Might as easily suppose they'd remove the central tower," retorted the dean. "No; that's no good. Besides, the Bishop is away—been away for a month. My dear fellow, the Missal's been stolen!"

"Well, then, we'd better do something," said Lampard. "Let me have a look at the library and the case in which the Missal was kept. You'll have to call in the police, you know."

Left alone, he bent over the glass top of the case, examining the ancient things within it.

The dean led the way through the cloisters to the library, grumbling a good deal under his breath. It was such a nuisance, he said, calling the police. The thing would get into the newspapers, and there would be a scandal, and all sorts of unpleasantness. Let them see what they could do themselves—quickly—first. And, in order that everything should be quiet, he and Lampard and the verger who admitted them to the library, locked themselves into that ancient building, so as to be free from interruption.

The dean led the way to a glass-topped case which stood beneath a long, low window filled with colored glass. He pointed to a vacant space amongst the old books, parchments, fragments of pottery and time-worn relics with which the case was filled.

"That's where the Missal ought to be," he said, lugubriously. "And where it isn't. I put it back in that very place with my own hands on Saturday at, I should say, a quarter to 1. And, according to Wilkins here, the only person who entered the library after that was Lord Freeborough."

"Yes, sir; his lordship," replied Wilkins, pointing to a far corner of the library, "desired to consult our copy of Dugdale's Monasticon. I got it down for him from that tall case. I stood by while he examined it. His lordship merely wished to verify a reference, and he was only in the room a few minutes. After that we had no visitors in the library, and at 5 o'clock I locked it up, and it was never opened until I opened it at 8:30 this morning."

Lampard bent down to the case of exhibits and examined the lock.

"That's a patent lock, sir," remarked Wilkins. "There are only three keys."

One of which Mr. Dean has in his possession," said Lampard. "Unlock the case, Mr. Dean; let me see how it works, and if"——

He paused and looked up suddenly as the dean, who had been fumbling in one of his pockets, uttered a sharp exclamation.

"Bless me," he said, in a tone of indignant vexation, "the key isn't there! I am as sure as one can be sure that I replaced it in that pocket on locking up that case. I certainly wore these clothes, and"——

He hastily turned out the contents of all his pockets, and his vexation and bewilderment increased as the process went on. But no key was forthcoming.

"Most extraordinary!" he exclaimed. "I could not possibly have put the key anywhere without recollecting the matter. Impossible! My memory is splendid."

"But you don't usually carry that particular key on you?" asked Lampard.

"No; certainly not," admitted the dean. "I usually keep it in a certain corner of a particular drawer of my desk. But I am positive—absolutely positive—that, although I took it from that drawer on Saturday morning, I never put it back there. It should be in this pocket."

"Ah, but you must have returned it to its corner," said Lampard. "You've forgotten all about it."

The dean frowned, fretted, grumbled, and finally hurried out of the library to search for the missing key. The verger turned to Lampard.

"I can get the Bishop's key, sir," he said. "His lordship's away, but his chaplain will give it to me if I say the dean wants it."

"Do," said Lampard; "it may save time."

Left alone, he bent over the glass top of the case, examining the ancient things within it. There was nothing there that was not hundreds of years old—books, scraps of vellum, bits of metal work, fragments of glass and stone—all were old. But suddenly Lampard caught sight of something half hidden by the edge of a crumpled parchment deed which was not old. That something was a bit of enameled gold, a pendant such as those which hang from a woman's bracelet, and Lampard's sharp eyes knew that it was a modern bauble which had no rightful place amongst those hoary antiquities.

"Ah," he murmured; "now, how came that in there—that which more rightly belongs to Bond street and a jeweler's shop than to this musty old spot? Dropped, of course! And—by whom?"

Wilkins was back within a few minutes—the episcopal palace of Selchester adjoins the cathedral. He handed a key to Lampard, who immediately made an excuse to get rid of him.

"Haven't you got a register of your visitors?" he asked. "Just let me look at it, then. I'd like to see the recent entries."

Wilkins, who knew Lampard as the dean's solicitor, went obediently away, and Lampard hastily opened the case, withdrew the bit of enameled gold and saw that a link which had evidently attached it to something else had snapped. He realized the significance of his discovery at once. Some thieving hand—a woman's without doubt—had purloined the Missal while no one was looking, and in the very act had dropped this tiny pendant from a bracelet.

The dean and the verger came back into the library together—the verger carrying a big book, the dean hot and fidgety.

"Extraordinary!" he exclaimed. "I can't find that key anywhere. I've searched high and low. I must have dropped it, and in that case—oh, you've found it, eh?" he went on, as Lampard, having pocketed the pendant, turned the Bishop's key in the lock. "I dropped it here, then."

"No," answered Lampard. "This is the Bishop's. Wilkins borrowed it from his chaplain. But you've no doubt lost yours, and the thief must have picked it up and made use of it. Just let me glance at the register of visitors, and then"——

"But how could the thief get in here?" demanded the dean. "The whole thing is more puzzling than before. Suppose"——

Lampard rapidly glanced at the last page of the register, and closed the book with a decisive bang.

"Mr. Dean," he said, quietly, but emphatically, "we mustn't trifle with this. There is only one thing to do. You must come at once with me to the police."

The dean, being himself a man of authority, recognized that in this case he must yield obedience to his solicitor, and he accordingly accompanied Lampard across the cathedral square in the direction of the police station. But he made many faces of dislike, muttered more than once that there was nothing he disliked so much as the dragging of the affair into publicity.

"My notion was a quiet, unobtrusive inquiry," he said, as they turned in at the official portals. "If we could have recovered the Missal without letting the public know that it had ever been—er—appropriated, don't you know, eh?"

"Mr. Dean," said Lampard, with professional severity, "the Selchester Missal is, so to speak, public property, though nominally, I suppose, it belongs to the Dean and Chapter. You can't afford to leave any stone unturned—and," he added, with dark significance, "you don't know what's afoot nor what machinations have been going on. This may be the work of an unscrupulous and designing gang."

The dean and his companion found no difficulty in procuring an immediate interview with the chief constable. They were ushered into his private office at once, and there, evidently in close consultation with him, was the great magnate of that neighborhood, the Earl of Maxbury, chairman of the local bench of magistrates. He and the dean exchanged nods, and the Earl, with a sharp glance at the ecclesiastic's countenance, at once asked brusquely what ailed him.

"The matter," answered the dean, who had been prompted by Lampard, "is that my solicitor and I have come to report a most serious theft. The Selchester Missal has been stolen—at least it has disappeared under mysterious circumstances. Mr. Lampard, here, says it must have been stolen. I suppose—yes, I suppose it really has been stolen."

The Earl and the chief constable exchanged glances; then the Earl turned sharply on the dean.

"When was this?" he demanded.

"I should think Saturday," replied the dean. "It appears to have been on Saturday. The circumstances are these," he went on, and gave his hearers a complete account.

"Between 1 o'clock on Saturday and early on Monday—today, anyway. The important fact is that it's gone. Do you think you can help me?" he concluded, turning to the chief constable. "The Missal is, of course, priceless."

The Earl and the chief constable once more looked at each other; then the Earl smote his hands together. He was a big, bucolic sort of man, who looked very much like a respectable farmer, and his manners were vigorous.

"That settles it!" he exclaimed. "It's a regular put-up job; it's a gang! I was dead certain of that when I came in here. A London gang, of course, and deuced clever!"

"I don't understand," said the dean, feebly.

"Clear enough!" retorted the Earl. "You lost your book on Saturday; I've lost my medal—Sunday! The famous Maxbury medal, you know; unique, world famous. Given to one of my ancestors, either the eighth or ninth Earl—hanged if I remember which!—by a King of Spain—don't know which, either—for something or other the old boy did for him; only one in existence, of course. Famous, that Maxbury medal. People used to ask for that when they came around sightseeing—used to ask for it first of all. Used to lend it out sometimes—police to guard it, don't you know, and all that sort of thing. Very well, it's gone! There, last night and gone this morning. Fact! And, of course, it's all a piece with your Missal. Gang of London thieves. Selchester Missal, Saturday; Maxbury medal, Sunday. Good haul, and deuced clever!"

The dean, who had sat blinking his eyes and twiddling his thumbs during this speech, found his voice at last.

"Do I understand you to say that somebody has stolen the Maxbury medal?" he asked.

The Earl, who was calmly smoking a cigar, nodded and blew away a wisp of smoke.

"That's it," he answered. "Gone, vanished, faded away like that, only more so!"

"What are you going to do about it?" asked the dean.

"Don't know; ask Kilburn, here," replied the Earl, waving a hand at the chief constable. "What would you do?" he went on, twisting round on Lampard. "Lawyer, ain't you? Know your name, of course. What do you think about it? Rum business, eh?"

"I should like to know what your lordship can tell me about the circumstances under which the famous medal was stolen," answered Lampard.

"Circumstances, eh?" responded the Earl. "Oh, ah, well, very ordinary, I should think. That medal, now, was kept in a cabinet of curiosities in the south drawing room at Maxbury. I saw it latish last night myself. This morning, early, the house steward comes to tell me—gone! And a window in the room open. That's all."

"Was that cabinet locked, as a usual thing?" asked Lampard.

"Can't say," replied the Earl. "Don't believe it was, now I come to think of it. It wasn't locked last night, anyhow, because I took that medal out myself to show to some people."

"You have guests staying at Maxbury?"

"House full of 'em," said the Earl. "No thieves among those, anyhow; know every Jack and Jill of 'em. But I say," he exclaimed, his ruddy face suddenly lighting up with new interest—"I say, what an extraordinary thing that these people should go in for that old prayer book and my medal! What value is there in a Missal and a medal the size of half a crown? None, so to speak. Deuced mysterious, what?"

"The Selchester Missal," observed the dean, gravely, "is worth many, many thousands of pounds. An American person of wealth—a man who traded, I believe, in preserved meats—offered my predecessor 10,000 pounds for it."

"Then your predecessor was an old ass for not taking it!" exclaimed the Earl, heartily and ir-reverently. "I wish somebody'd even offered me half of that for the Maxbury medal. But then," he added, relapsing into gloom. "I couldn't have sold it, don't you know. It's a beastly heirloom!"

The four men looked silently at each other for a minute; then the dean brightened.

"I see it all!" he exclaimed. "At least, I think I see it. This is, no doubt, the work of a clever thief, or thieves, as Lord Maxbury suggests. I incline to the one-man theory. A thief with a penchant for valuable curiosities. Yes, I see it; oh, quite plainly!"

"Hanged if I do," muttered the Earl, with a wink at Lampard. "But I'm open to argument; always keep an open mind—best thing. What's the theory, then?"

The dean balanced his eyeglasses and swung one leg over the other.

"This," he said. "The thief heard of these two objects—the famous Missal, the famous medal. He determined to acquire them—for what purpose only his guilty conscience knows. He came here—he may probably have come attired as a gentleman, and put up at the Angel and Scepter Hotel. He obtained access to the cathedral library. He was probably hidden there when I took my party around on Saturday morning; it would be easy to hide there. And I fear that he saw me drop my key. I must have dropped it on the floor of the library. And, of course, after that nothing could be easier for him than to abstract the Missal, make his way out of the cathedral at a convenient moment, and"——

"Hang around a bit, and then come on to Maxbury to lift my medal," broke in the Earl. "Good notion. Well," he continued, rising and turning to the chief constable, as he prepared to lounge out, "same old game, I suppose, eh, Kilburn? Detectives—search for traces—fingerprints—and all the rest of it. Leave it to you, anyway."

With that the Earl of Maxbury went off, and the dean and his solicitor, after a little desultory conversation with the chief constable, also departed, and walked moodily back to the deanery.

"You're coming in to lunch, of course?" said the dean. "Bless me, it's nearly 2 o'clock! We're late! Well, this is a sad, a terrible business. Perhaps some new idea may occur to us."

Lampard had no particular desire for new ideas. He had one already, and he kept it to himself—at any rate until he had refreshed himself at the dean's table. But when lunch was over he contrived to draw the dean's daughter, Margaret, aside and to lead her into a quiet corner of the deanery gardens. He and Margaret had known each other since their pinafore days, and there was the fellow feeling and confidence of youth between them.

"Look here," said Lampard, once they were safely hidden amongst the trees and shrubs, "you can keep a secret as well as anybody. This is a big secret. I've got something to show you. You're not to say a word of it until I give you leave. Look at this," he continued, as he drew out the bit of enameled pendant and held it out to her on the palm of his hand. "Have you ever seen this before? Do you know to whom it belongs?"

He saw at once that the girl had seen and did know. Her cheeks flushed and her eyes sparkled.

"Why, where did you find that?" she exclaimed. "Of course I know it. It's a pendant which Mrs. Vanderkiste lost from a pet bracelet. She was looking for it all Saturday afternoon. Did you pick it up in the garden?"

"Who is Mrs. Vanderkiste?" demanded Lampard.

"She was staying here all last week," replied Margaret. "She's a woman we know in London"——

"Has Mrs. Vanderkiste gone back to London?" asked Lampard.

"No; she left on Saturday evening for Maxbury," said Margaret. "She's gone there for a week. Lord Maxbury's got a big house party for steeplechases, tomorrow and Wednesday. Why all these questions?"

Lampard put the pendant in his pocket and seized Margaret by the wrist. He gave her a dark and meaning look.

"Now, I will tell you all about it later on," he whispered. "There's a mystery. Gunpowder plot was nothing to this. Meanwhile, not a word, a look, a sigh. Utter silence—and confidence."

He left her then, and, walking swiftly into the house, roused the dean, who had retreated into his study and gone to sleep over the last number of the Quarterly Review, with a handkerchief thrown over his head.

"Mr. Dean," said Lampard, firmly, "you must come with me at once to Maxbury. I have just learned something very important, and you and I must see Lord Maxbury immediately. Now I'll order your motor car, and it will be at the door in five minutes. This is—urgent."

In the course of his six years' experience as a highly respectable family solicitor, Guy Lampard had known some strange things and seen some queer spectacles. But he had never known or seen anything stranger—or queerer than the effect on the Earl of Maxbury and the Dean of Selchester when closeted with them in the Earl's own special sanctum, a small room chiefly devoted to guns, fishing rods, cricket bats, sporting literature and choice French fiction, he told them all he had to tell, produced the pendant, and summed up his conclusion. Peer and cleric stared at him with open mouths and dropping jaws and their faces expressed resentment and disapproval. And when they spoke they were unanimous in opinion, if not in choice of language.

"Rot!" exclaimed the Earl. "Letty Vanderkiste! Pooh! Known her for Lord knows how long. She's straight enough—as things go. Come off it, dear boy. You're on the wrong horse."

The dean rose from his chair and shook his head, gravely, and with evident displeasure.

"My own sentiments," he said. "But, of course, in different phraseology. I quite agree with Lord Maxbury. It is utterly impossible that my dear friend, Mrs. Vanderkiste, could—oh, it is ridiculous! I have known Mrs. Vanderkiste ever since she was young. She was married by me. Since she lost her husband she has been a regular attendant at my old sphere of labor in London. Something, perhaps, of a rather worldly woman; the fact that she is fond of society and of—er"——

"Bridge," interrupted Lampard, who had had another five minutes with Margaret while the dean's car was being pulled out. "And racing and theater-going, and the latest fashions, and all the rest of the things which cost money. Very well. I have told you what I have discovered, and if you don't mean to pursue the matter further"——

He rose and walked towards the door.

"What then?" asked the Earl, while the dean raised a supplicating hand. "What are you up to?"

"Then I shall go and tell the chief constable of Selchester," said Lampard. "It's my duty."

The dean groaned miserably, and the Earl plunged his hands into his pockets and stretched his legs across the hearthrug.

"What a beastly nuisance!" he growled. "Of course, we'll have to ask her how it is that some of her property is found in that case at Selchester?"

"You certainly will," replied Lampard. "Further," he added, with a look at the greatly disturbed dean, "you'll have to ask her what she's done with your property!"

The Earl glanced at the lawyer with a new expression.

"Er—I say!" he remarked, drily. Ain't you rather condemning the lady before you've heard what she's got to say?"

"Yes, yes," said the dean, hurriedly. "I, too, feel that. —an—um!—we shouldn't judge by appearance, you know. I"——

"I should be very glad to hear what Mrs. Vanderkiste has got to say," retorted Lampard, "if you will give her the opportunity of saying—anything. I think you both forget that this affair is really out of your hands. You have both been to the police. The police are already at work. So, if Mrs. Vanderkiste is at hand, why not speak quietly and gently to her? There is still a chance of recovering this stolen property, you know, if things are done with diplomacy."

"Nothing to be frightened about!" she exclaimed, scornfully. "That's all you know."

The Earl looked at Lampard for a minute or two; then he silently rose and left the room. And Lampard turned to the window and looked out on the stately oaks and beeches of Maxbury Park, and the dean marched up and down, repeating one phrase: "Distressing—most distressing!"

The Earl returned in a few minutes, ushering in a smart, rather pretty, vivacious-looking woman, still well under middle age, who started at the sight of Lampard, and paled when she turned from him to the dean. And, after a swift glance at all three men, she involuntarily clasped her hands and ejaculated four words:

"Oh, what is it?"

The Earl, who had carefully closed the door, pushed a chair forward.

"I say," he said. "Of course, it's all right—sure to be all right, don't you know, but the fact is this gentleman is the dean's solicitor, and he wants to ask you a question or two. Do answer him, and let's have an end of it. You see, my ancestor's medal disappeared last night, and an old book was taken out of the cathedral library at Selchester on Saturday, and we've had to tell the police, and"——

Under Lampard's purposely cold eye, fixed implacably on her, the woman's own eyes fell, and her face grew paler than ever, despite the suspicion of rouge which ornamented it. And suddenly he plunged his hand in his pocket and drew out the pendant and held it before her.

"I know this is yours," he said, quietly. "It's off your bracelet—that very bracelet. I found it—found it this morning in the case from which the Missal was abstracted. I think you'd better tell us how it came to be in the case."

There was a tense silence for a time; then the Earl, who was unusually fidgety, spoke nervously.

"Better say something, you know," he said. "Nothing to be frightened about—eh? So long as you say something or other, you know—what?"

Mrs. Vanderkiste suddenly turned on him.

"Nothing to be frightened about!" she exclaimed, scornfully. "That's all you know. Nothing to be—Good heaven, it's because I'm frightened out of my life that I took them!"

The dean groaned sepulchrally; the Earl whistled.

"Whew!" he said, as a final note of surprise. "So you did take 'em? Both?"

"Both!" replied Mrs. Vanderkiste.

"What on earth for?" demanded the Earl.

"Because I had to!" she retorted. "So would you, if you were fixed as I am."

"Fixed as—— I wish you'd just say plainly how you are fixed," exclaimed the Earl. "Do! All amongst friends, don't you know."

"I'll retire if Mrs. Vanderkiste wishes it," suggested Lampard.

He moved towards the door, but Mrs. Vanderkiste stopped him.

"No!" she said. "You're a lawyer, and you'll understand. Oh, well, I'll tell you and be done with it! The truth is, I'm completely in the power of somebody—a woman. You know her," she went on, turning to the Earl, "or you know of her. Leonie!"

"What! The woman who makes gowns?" vociferated the Earl.

"Gowns—yes; but she's two other businesses," answered Mrs. Vanderkiste. "She runs an establishment in which she sells antiques, curiosities, and so on—and she's also a registered money lender."

"Tell us all about it," counseled Lampard.

"I owe her money—a pretty big lot," continued Mrs. Vanderkiste. "Dressmaker's bill to begin with. Then I borrowed from her in her money-lending capacity and have her bills, and, of course, I had to renew constantly. And at last I got head over heels in debt with her. And then she suggested to me that, as I was constantly visiting country houses, I had admirable opportunities of picking up"——

"Missals and medals!" snorted the Earl, who had been vigorously punching one clenched hand into the palm of the other. "What a pity this infernal old nag is a woman! Lampard, of course, Mrs. Vanderkiste isn't the real culprit, don't you know. It's the other"——

"Where," asked Lampard, quietly, turning to Mrs. Vanderkiste—"where are the Missal and the medal?"

Mrs. Vanderkiste shook her head.

"I sent them to her by registered parcel post this morning," she answered. "I sent them myself from the village postoffice here. Here's the receipt with her address on it."

Lampard took the scrap of paper and carefully put it away. Then he turned to the other men.

"That parcel won't be delivered until tomorrow morning," he said. "We must be at this woman's address when the postman arrives. There's no need for you to go up to town, Mr. Dean—I'll act for you. But you ought to go, Lord Maxbury."

Off to the North Pole in Navy's Biggest Dirigible

inside the ship who keep a record of the amount of gas going into each bag, and who tie them off when the proper amount has been reached, while the gassing coxswain registers the whole amount of gas going into the ship, the list of bags filled and tied off, and other gassing details.

Riggers are detailed to put water ballast aboard, as it is needed to offset the lift due to the incoming gas. This is an important detail, for water ballast must be put in to keep the ship's trim constant, for a ship 680 feet long cannot be allowed to lose trim; too much water in at one end or the other exerts an upsetting movement, which brings the overballasted end down on the ground, or hangar floor, and exerts an excessive lift on the other end, which might strain the ship dangerously.

As water ballast goes in fuel goes aboard. Water ballast and fuel must go aboard at a rate sufficient to compensate for the lift of the incoming gas, keeping the buoyancy of the ship approximately the same at all times; otherwise the ship would not only be strained and perhaps injured, but she would probably break away and become unmanageable.

Once gassed, fueled and ballasted, a very careful lift and trim is taken and charts made showing the amounts and location of all fuel and ballast. These charts are posted in the control car, where they can be referred to by the operating officers at all times during the flight. This is as necessary as knowing the draft and depth of water under a surface ship under way. At this point in the proceedings the engineer force checks and runs all the engines and the ship is ready for flight.

When the ship is thus prepared for flying the crew goes on board, sufficient ballast being discharged to compensate for the actual weight of the men and their clothing. The ship is then taken from the hangar by a large crew called the "ground party," this operation being in charge of an experienced officer, for improper ground handling might damage the ship, just as ocean ships are damaged by improper handling while docking.

Before being taken out of the hangar the ship is ballasted about half a ton light to facilitate its handling on the ground and to make sure of having positive buoyancy for leaving the ground. As soon as the ship is clear of the hangar the stern is allowed to pay off, or trail in the wind, thus putting the ship's head to the wind, in which position she is "walked" by the ground handling crew to the desired point for taking off. Here the ship is again weighed off to check lift and trim, which, if satisfactory to the commanding officer, is followed by the starting of the engines, the release of the handling party, and the huge rigid is on her way.

If the ship is at a mooring mast, gassing, fueling and ballasting are carried on through pipes leading up the mast, but the details are the same. It should be noted here that on the polar flights the ballast will not be water, on account of the possibility of freezing, but the ballast bags will be filled with nonfreezing fuel instead.

Once in the air, the ship is navigated much the same as a surface ship, but there are differences which are vital to air navigation and which are supplemental to the strenuous work of navigating ships on the surface of the sea. In fact, an airship, that is, a dirigible such as the ZR-1, is nothing more than a huge balloon with motive power attached. Hence, one must first be a balloonist to be an airship pilot or navigator.

For instance, on the ZR-1 en route for the North Pole, the ship will be "conned," or handled, and orders will be given in accordance with standard navy practice, and watches will be relieved the same as on board a battleship or a cruiser; but in the control car there will be not only a steering or direction coxswain at the helm, but there will also be a "height" coxswain, who is charged with the duty of controlling the elevators that send the ship up or down at varying heights. It will thus be seen that airships are navigated in three dimensions instead of one, as in the case of surface ships. This allows a great range of maneuverability necessary for safety and comfort and surety of action.

"With a big ship and a small crew there will be plenty of work for all hands on this polar business," declared Commander Klein. "No laggards will be allowed on board, the crew will be hand picked and success is certain."

These are practically the words of Admiral Moffett, who told me that he had studied the problem from all angles and had made up his mind that the ZR-1 would be the first aerial visitor to the North Pole.

"Why should America wait until some other nation hangs up the prize?" the Admiral asked.

Why should she, indeed?

Where Rubber Roads Stretch Smoothly

EXPERIMENTS are being carried out by the Colombo municipality in the use of rubber as a road surface dressing, writes United States Consul Marshall M. Vance. The dressing, which is the invention of a Ceylon rubber planter, is now being used on a portion of the Darley road, which is one of the most used thoroughfares in Colombo.

The solution is made from pure bark and scrap rubber. The method of laying is similar to that employed with tar and asphalt prepartions, it being heated until liquid and then spread on the road with brooms. Fine gravel is then sprinkled over the solution and a steam roller binds the two.

The experiments so far show that this solution is easier to handle than tar. It is a secret formula and the inventor is still working toward its perfection.

No More Foot Pains!

Thousands Say New Invention Banishes Every Ache—Instantly!

No braces; no straps; no metal; no rigid appliances; no bandages; no trouble or bother of any kind. Yet every pain, twinge and soreness disappears instantly—as if by a touch of a magic wand!

NO longer need most of us suffer the tortures of tired, weak, aching, burning feet! For foot specialists have perfected a marvelous new device, which usually the very instant you make use of it—causes the pains and aches to disappear.

No matter how long you have suffered—no matter how many different treatments you have taken without relief—no matter how hopeless your case may be—this new invention is positively guaranteed to relieve you completely of all foot misery and to bring you glorious foot comfort, or it costs you nothing.

Agonizing twinges in the arches and instep—terrible drawing pains in the ankles and legs—torturous aches in the toes and heels—pains from burning, blistered, swollen joints—even pains from corns, bunions and callouses are at once relieved and you walk around with never a thought of foot pains. It's just as if you were given entirely new feet!

Why Pain Disappears Instantly

Science has proved that 99 of every 100 foot pains are caused by faulty arches. Your arches support the entire weight of your body. They consist of a series of delicate bones nicely fitted together so as to form a spring. The spring of your arches cushions your weight and absorbs the shocks of walking.

Now the bones of your arches are held in place by certain muscles in the legs and feet. But frequently these muscles become weakened and strained, with the result that the bones of your arches, under the weight of your body, are forced out of place. The moment this happens, you begin suffering all the tortures of fallen arches. The displaced bones are jammed into the tender flesh of your feet, causing unbearable agony. The foot muscles become torn and twisted; sensitive nerves are squeezed; blood vessels are choked. Then, too, with the flattening of the arches, the feet spread out in the shoes, causing excessive perspiration, and burning pains from corns, bunions, callouses and blisters.

Yet, no matter how sore or aching your feet may be, the pain is relieved almost the instant you make use of this sensational new scientific discovery. Why? Because this new device at once raises the flattened arches to their normal position, immediately relieving the unnatural pressure and friction that is causing your foot misery, and bringing you glorious foot comfort such as you never experienced before. The immediate relief from pain should actually amaze you! Furthermore, this new device strengthens your arch muscles with every step you take—so that they become strong and well again, and no further treatment is necessary!

How New Invention Works

The old way of treating fallen arches was to place rigid metal props under them, or to use cumbersome straps, bandages, or ugly looking specially built shoes. But instead of strengthening the arches, these old-fashioned methods in many cases actually weakened them. They did not permit the foot muscles to get exercise, and as a result the arches flattened out again the moment these unnatural appliances were removed.

But this new invention, which can be slipped into any styled shoe, is entirely different. It is called the Russian Sponge Rubber Arch Support, and is in the form of a light and springy pad, scientifically formed to the natural arch of the foot. Each pair is made of specially compounded Russian Sponge Rubber—one of the most resilient materials known—and to make this rubber even more springy it is actually surcharged with air. They are so light and flexible (as you can see in the little picture on this page) that were it not for the instant buoyancy and comfort they bring, you would never be aware of their presence.

These marvelous supports, which slip into your shoes, are so light and flexible that they can actually be bent, double. In diagram above, "A" represents a thin layer of soft, flexible leather. "B" is a wonderfully resilient pad of specially compounded Russian Sponge Rubber. The supports conform to the exact contour of the foot in every position—not only bringing you instant comfort, but strengthening the foot muscles with every step you take.

As you walk on them—and it is like walking on layers of air—this springy rubber exerts a marvelously gentle and even pressure at all points. This instantly raises the fallen arches to their proper position and automatically adjusts the displaced arch bones. At the same time, as this light, springy rubber yields to your weight it reproduces exactly the natural spring of your arch! Its contant compression and expansion at every step massages, exercises and strengthens the muscles in a natural way, thus quickly bringing back their old-time vigor and strength.

Results Positively Guaranteed

With this new kind of arch support you do not have to wait for results. They are usually evident instantly! Note how all pain disappears almost the moment you first wear these amazing new devices. Note how they give you a buoyancy—a new sprightliness. With them you can walk or stand all day—without feeling the least bit of fatigue. But best of all these results are permanent! For by exercising and strengthening the foot and leg muscles which support the arches, the arches are again made sturdy and vigorous, and no further treatment is necessary.

Therefore, the new Russian Sponge Rubber Arch Supports are positively guaranteed to banish all pain and build up the arches—and if, after trying them you are not more than delighted with results, they cost you nothing.

SEND NO MONEY

Many people have paid specialists hundreds of dollars for the benefits that you can now secure from the Russian Sponge Rubber Arch Supports for an astonishingly small amount.

Don't send a cent in advance. Simply fill in the coupon, being sure to give the exact size of your foot as instructed below. Don't hesitate to order by mail for every day we are fitting hundreds this way. In spite of the fact that these supports have regularly sold for $5.00—when the postman hands them to you, just pay him the amazingly low price of only $1.95 (plus few cents postage) in full payment. Slip the supports into your shoes. Walk on them. See if you are not amazed at the wonderful relief and comfort they bring. Try them five days. Then if you are not pleased in every way with what they have done for you, simply return them and your money will be instantly—and gladly—refunded without question.

This special low price of only $1.95 is being made for a short time only and may never be offered again. So mail the coupon today—now—and say "Good-bye" to foot pains forever. Thompson-Barlow Co., Inc., Dept. 437, 43 West 16th Street, New York, N. Y.

Game Birds Doomed to Extinction

Twenty-nine males are all that is left of the once plentiful heath grouse, cousin of the prairie chicken — Hens all destroyed in a forest fire — Experts predict extinction of the quail and other species of game birds now harried by hunters — Conservation is urged to prevent further depletion :: :: ::

AS SOON as the 29 surviving male heath grouse, the second cousins of the prairie chicken, die, it appears highly probably that the species will be extinct, according to the announcement made by Dr. William T. Hornaday, trustee of the Permanent Wild Life Protection Fund and director of the New York Zoological Park.

"The fate of this bird forecasts a similar tragedy for the quail," Dr. Hornaday said. "Unless immediate steps are taken by state Legislatures to reduce radically the present open seasons and bag limits, and to make bird preserves, the quail is absolutely certain to disappear in our own time, and generations of future sportsmen will be deprived of the perfectly normal diversion of quail hunting."

Mounted specimen of heather grouse, now almost extinct.

It is reported that Prof. A. O. Gross of Bowdoin College at Brunswick, Me., recently investigated the surviving stock of heath grouse and found only 29 birds, all of which were males.

About 1916 many, if not all, the females of the species were destroyed on their nests when a ground fire swept over the 2000-acre sanctuary at Tisbury, on Martha's Vineyard, Mass. For years efforts have been made by several Eastern states to preserve the species and by states both East and West to preserve the pinnated grouse, or prairie chicken, familiar to millions of Americans, but which now also, according to Dr. Hornaday, is threatened with the same extinction as its near cousin.

What has occurred to the heath hen is prophetic of the future of the pinnated grouse, or prairie chicken in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Iowa, according to Dr. Hornaday. Minnesota has already begun to take steps for a closed season.

Of the prairie chicken, there are a few flocks left in the Dakotas, but it seems unlikely that anything can be done now to save the scattered mates in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri. In fact, there are left today only enough birds for breeding stocks to bring back the species to some of these states.

"The door of oblivion," Dr. Hornaday said, "is now about to close forever on the last of the heath hens. For 20 years I have been holding up that species as a horrible example of the folly of shooting a game-bird species down to a point so low that on account of natural enemies and general weakness it cannot recover. I have tried very hard to make the quail-killers, and the Western prairie-chicken killers, take warning from the heath-hen example. We did think, however, that the determined, costly and very praiseworthy efforts of the Massachusetts State Game Commission would save the last of the heath hens from total extinction. No one ever dreamed that fire could enter in as the final destroyer of those birds, and the sheer perversity of that particular ill fortune is a lesson of tragic importance.

"This dramatic departure of a whole species, which the hand of man is now impotent to halt, comes as a rude shock to all those who seek a square deal for wild life, and to prevent all such calamities as this. If all hunters could be made to realize the usefulness of bird flocks in the agricultural economy of the country, we might expect some new measures to reduce the annual volume of killing by a large percentage.

"It is possible in conservation to direct trees, streams and fields to work for us. Wild life requires protection, not direction. The fate of the heath hen and the serious danger to the prairie chicken and the quail cannot go unheeded.

"In 1916 there were about 2000 heath hens. In 1921 there were 314. And, in 1922, only 117. Accidents, natural, enemies and finally a disastrous prairie fire have reduced the species almost to the point of extinction."

GIRL CHALLENGES ALL TO DANCE

Let Popular Chicago Teacher Demonstrate New System

Are you one of the thousands who say, "I'm sorry, but I don't dance." How many times have you thought "I wish I could dance—if only I could learn in a few minutes?"

Perhaps you have even imagined what dancing would mean to you—popularity, amusement, exercise, more friends, ease of manner, good times. All may be yours—quickly, easily and inexpensively, thanks to a young lady's wonderful idea.

Miss Ida Mae Roberts, one of Chicago's most popular teachers has perfected a system (not a course) of self-instruction for dancing the Waltz, Fox-Trot and One-Step, that is newly original and differs greatly from any other methods taught. Results come instantly—no waiting—no tedious study necessary.

What to Ask For

"Short-cuts to Dancing" is complete and thorough. It is so understandable that you can almost immediately become one of the "good dancers" that are always sought out—never without company. You simply instruct yourself, right at home, with or without music. Your success guaranteed.

"Short-cuts to Dancing" costs more. It is worth more. Yet the first cost is the last—no follow up—no "come-on" for more money. So it should not be confused with mere introductory lessons or the more complicated systems. As Miss Roberts describes it, "This book will endear itself to anyone whether they dance or not. You see, while it is primarily for beginners, it also enables those who now dance, to teach. I know of many who are earning money by teaching my system at home. Each has become an authority on dancing in their own neighborhoods."

Free Trial Offer

SEND NO MONEY. So certain of your enthusiastic approval is Miss Roberts, that she will send you the complete system including charts, lessons and personal question and answer service, upon request. When it is received, simply give the postman $1 (plus a few cents postage) as a deposit and try the system Free for 5 days. If you are not delighted, return the book and your money will be refunded promptly. No further charge if you keep it.

Where to Write Pleasures missed never return. There is no better time than NOW to begin dancing. And at this special price—and with so many benefits awaiting you—you really ought to write at this young lady today. Use the coupon or write to Miss Ida Mae Roberts, 4406 N. Paulina St., Chicago. Don't wait. Send coupon, letter or post-card—NOW.

Miss Ida Mae Roberts
4406 N. Paulina Street, Chicago, Ill.

Please send me, for free trial, your new book "Short-cuts to Dancing." I will give postman a deposit of $1 (plus postage) on delivery. (If you prefer send $2 now in full payment). If in 5 days I am not enthralled and willing to admit that I have never heard the equal of your system, I will return the book and get my money back in full.

If You Don't Want Your Automobile Stolen, Read!

have been surprised at the result.

"Let me tell you how I used to work the game when I had my own little garage (about 20-car space), in Providence, R. I. You probably have heard that the safest place to run a crooked game is as close to the police station as possible. So I had my garage a block and a half from the station, and the cops used to come in every morning, regularly, to look over the cars I had there.

"I kept a memorandum of the numbers of all the cars owned by the 'big fellows' in town—the license numbers that every cop was supposed to know. They were of different makes, and as soon as I had brought in a car of that type from somewhere else I would put a fake number on it, and always a number belonging to the owner of a car of that type well known to the police.

"Then the cops would drop in, take a look at the stolen car, repainted and fitted with the fake number, and they would say: 'Oh, you have Dr. Hunt's car here today. What's the trouble with it?' And I'd tell them something about valves needing grinding, etc., and they'd walk out quite satisfied.

"That garage helped me pull some funny tricks in the automobile business, and some of them are being pulled every day by other crooked garage owners in all parts of the country. I used to advertise various makes of cars for sale, and most of the time I didn't have a single one on the floor that was really for sale.

"Say, for instance, I advertised an Oldsmobile touring car in good condition, and a man came during the day to look it over. I'd tell him that the car was out just then with another prospective purchaser, but that if the other man wouldn't pay the price I wanted, or if for some other reason the sale wasn't made, I'd drive the car around to his house that evening and we would take a spin to let him see what he thought of the car.

"Then, when the man was gone, I'd call in my assistant and tell him what was wanted. My assistant would jump onto our motor cycle and take a whirl through the town—sometimes even to the next town, if I knew of a car of the desired make there—until he spotted it. Then he'd telephone me and I would jump in my little truck, with its big sign reading: 'Service Station and Repairs,' and drive to the spot where the car stood.

"I'd throw a rope around the front axle and my assistant would get in and steer it. In a few minutes we'd be out of sight and a little while later at the garage. The beauty of the scheme was that if we were caught—and I was caught several times dead to rights—all we had to do was to prove the telephone message from a certain pay station calling for a tow.

"Then I'd swear at the crooks who probably wanted to steal that car, but didn't have the nerve to do it themselves and had me tow the car to the garage, where they'd claim it later on. Usually, the owner expressed his regret that I should have been so imposed upon, and my valuable time wasted."

According to the Vermont convict, more than one-fourth of all the owners whose cars are fitted with locking devices apparently suffer from loss of memory when they leave their cars at the street curb, or in front of their homes in the suburbs. Anyway, that proportion of the cars stand unguarded—and unlocked. Moreover, he claims that many cars are stolen at the request of the owners, who pay for the service. He said that he had stolen, in this way, on an average of 20 cars a year. Once he received $200 from the owner, to whom an insurance company paid $3000 a few days later.

The figure of $100,000,000 annually, set down in the early part of this article, is derived from the reports of the insurance companies. It does not include cars which are merely "borrowed" for a few hours, nor those thefts which, because of doubtful ownership, illegal business or other causes, are not reported at all.

The Selchester Missal

"I'm going!" said the Earl, with great emphasis.

The numerous ultra-fashionable clients of Leonie et Cie. have never been able to understand why that clever lady suddenly closed her doors, broke up her establishment and vanished into the unknown. Similarly, other people have wondered why a certain curiosity shop, which, in its day, was much patronized by American millionaires, ceased at literally a moment's notice. Also, a great many folk have ceased speculating on the sudden wiping out of a quiet money-lending office and wondering why the money they had borrowed from it has never been demanded from them. But the Earl of Maxbury and Mr. Guy Lampard know very well why these affairs suddenly declined, and so does a certain lady, who, if she ever sees the names of these gentlemen in print, remembers a very bad quarter of an hour which she once had with them, and how they held an ultimatum at her head which left her no choice but to fall in with all their commands. The recollection of that little affair makes that lady feel morally ill and savagely vindictive, but whenever the Earl of Maxbury thinks of it he shows his teeth from ear to ear, and chuckles with holy gratification.

Discovers Amazing Way to Grow Hair

Alois Merke, Founder of Famous Merke Institute, Perfects New Method Which Brings Results in a Few Days

WILL baldness soon be a thing of the past? So it would seem—at least if we are to judge by the seeming "miracles" being performed daily at the Merke Institute, Fifth Avenue, New York. For here hundreds of men and women—many of whom were almost completely bald—are rapidly acquiring full growths of wonderfully thick luxuriant hair, without even a trace of bald spots. As for dandruff and falling hair, these ailments are banished almost instantly through this new treatment.

Scene at Merke-Institute, Fifth Ave., New York.

The discoverer of this new method is Alois Merke, a dermatologist of international reputation. His discovery, which for the first time provides a method of penetrating to the hair roots and bringing nourishment direct to them, is the result of an intensive study of baldness made in the principal laboratories of Heidelberg, Paris, Berlin, Cairo, Buenos Ayres and Geneva. It works on a plan entirely different from any known or used before.

At the Merke Institute Prof. Merke has treated scores of world's famous stage and social celebrities, many gladly paying $1,000 for the marvelous restoration of hair effected. But Prof. Merke desiring to place his discovery within reach of rich and poor alike, has perfected a method whereby these same results can be secured for only a few cents a day right in your own home.

Free Booklet About New Home Treatment

Through special arrangement readers of this publication may secure without cost, all details of this new home treatment to make hair grow. A 32 page booklet, fully describing the Merke treatment, will be sent postpaid upon receipt of the coupon below, properly filled in. Scientist discovers fat Solvent

Reduce any or every part of your figure with amazing new Reducing Cream which melts away excess fat at any part of the body—slenderizing the figure to perfect proportions without drugs, exercises, diet, rubber suits or painful denial of any kind.

Milady! If you have a single ounce of unwelcome flesh on your figure—here's good news for you. Getting thin is now pleasurably simple and easy for anyone.

For I, M. J. McGowan, after five years of tireless research, have made the discovery you have all been waiting for. At last I can tell you positively how to reduce quickly, comfortably—without the bother of tiresome exercises, without the boredom of stupid diet, without resorting to enervating salt baths, without rubber suits or belts. I can actually show you how to make a wonderful change in your figure in 10 days' time or my advice isn't going to cost you one single penny.

If it is a threatened double chin that is making you give up white bread and potatoes—

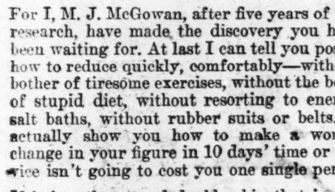
If your waistline is keeping you away from the tempting bon-bon dish—

If your arms are too plump, your neck padded a bit too well, your ankles bulging, don't worry—I guarantee to reduce any or every part of your body, swiftly and surely—without committing you to any program of painful self-denial.

Amazingly Successful Tests

I am only telling you simple facts. I know exactly whereof I speak. I have experimented to date on many subjects and in the majority of cases have accomplished perfectly amazing results. I can do the same for you. Indeed, I am so positive of my ground that I absolutely guarantee results or refund every penny of your money.

My discovery I call Reducine—McGowan's Reducine. It is not a medicine, a bath salt or a course of useless gymnastics. No—Reducine is a pleasant cream that you can apply in the privacy of your own room, patting it gently onto the parts you want to slenderize and almost overnight you will notice a change. A harmless chemical reaction takes place, during which the excess fat is literally dissolved away, leaving the figure slim and properly rounded, giving the lithe grace to the body every man and woman desires.



Read of these astounding results:

Case No. 5—Name and address on request

Case number 5 was that of a woman, age 42, who weighed 187 pounds before taking Reducine treatment. In six weeks' time she had reduced 36 pounds and her figure was trimmed to perfect symmetry throughout.

Case No. 7—Name and address on request

A well-known actor, not greatly overweight but with waistline of 42 inches. A three weeks' Reducine treatment reduced his waist to 37½ inches, or normal.

Case No. 9—Name and address on application

Business girl, age 28, normal in weight but with distressing double chin. Noticeable improvement the first week and chin line restored to normal in four weeks.

Results Guaranteed or Money Back

My reducing cream is sold under an absolute guarantee that it will accomplish all you expect of it or you may return the empty jar at any time within 60 days and we will refund every penny of your money.

This unparalleled guarantee makes you the sole judge of results. You have nothing to lose and everything to gain by clipping the coupon now. Because of the perishable nature of the reducing ingredient it is not practical to offer Reducine through the drug or department stores. I insist that you get only the freshly compounded laboratory product put out under my direct and personal supervision.

When you realize that many of the imitations of Reducine are now being sold at from $3.50 to $10 at retail, you will realize how astoundingly low is the price we ask. This price is made possible only by the fact that we supply you direct from the laboratory, cutting out the big middleman's profit. If you have tried the other old-time methods in vain and really want to reduce any part of your body, give me the chance to help you. You risk nothing—unless you get perfectly astounding results in 60 days—all you have to do is ask for your money back.

Send No Money—Just Sign the Coupon

I am not going to ask you to send one single penny with your order. Just sign the coupon and mail it to me today. By return mail I will send you a 1-pound jar of genuine Reducine and you can deposit the small sum of $2.47 (plus a few cents postage) when the postman brings the Reducine Cream. If you expect to be away from the house when the postman comes, enclose $2.60 with your order and Reducine will be mailed to you postpaid.

The McGowan Laboratories
710 W. Jackson Blvd., Dept. 337, Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. McGowan: I am willing to let you prove to me, at your own expense, that your Reducine Cream will remove all surplus flesh from my figure. You may send me a full-size, 1-pound jar, regular price $5.00, and I will deposit $2.47 (plus the few cents postage) with the postman with the understanding that the full amount will be refunded to me at any time within 60 days if I am not satisfied with results.

new $155 model Eden

Gigantic 12 Day Sacrifice Sale

$119

CASH or 1 year to pay (Interest added)

The Eden

With New Solid Aluminum Wringer

In 23,000 St. Louis Homes Today—Now Is the Time to Get Yours!

Here is an irresistible bargain for every housewife—the one washer that is preferred by a vast majority of St. Louis women—the Eden—and positively the only time that this greater, improved Eden has ever been sold for less than the regular $155 price. Only while the present warehouse overstock lasts will you be able to save so much and have the wonderful Eden at the low price of $119. Husbands and Sons this is your opportunity to forever release your Wife—your Mother from washday drudgery.

Such an Opportunity May Never Come Again!

The Incomparable Eden at the Cost of an Inferior Washer!

Never before in its fifteen years' history has the Eden been so splendidly built—note its new wringer—its new direct gear drive—the smart lines of the new design. Just think—a wonderful Eden washer that will give years and years of perfect washday service for only $119. But you must act now—Place your order tomorrow—Don't wait.

This New Eden Is Regularly $155

The factory has not reduced the price! The Eden is so well built for long service that $155 is a LOW PRICE! We are overstocked. As distributors we are forced to liquidate a tremendous overpurchase of new Eden Washers. The news is out! They will sell quickly.

Take Advantage of This Situation
Act Quick and Save $36

Note the New Wringer

See how the Eden's new solid aluminum wringer opens up—book-fashion—safe to use and easy to wipe off the big, white rolls. This handsome wringer weighs but a few pounds. Many declare that the wringer alone is worth the price of the washer. It swings to five positions, of course, and locks itself automatically.

The new Eden is the most approved type of washer—clothes are gently dipped up and down in the smooth, light-weight zinc cylinder—sanitary, non-absorbent, non-corrosive. As the dirt is flushed from the clothes it settles to the famous Eden Sediment Zone and stays there.

There is nothing on this new Eden to get out of order—fifteen years of actual washing service in the home have developed a most satisfactory mechanical product that can be depended on.

It makes hair soft and gleaming
—this Olive Oil shampoo
By V. K. CASSADY, B.S., M.S., Chief Chemist
Dear Madam:
I want to tell you of the new delight I have made for you. An olive oil shampoo that cleans hair quickly. Yet does not leave it dry and brittle.
In developing this mild, thorough shampoo for you, I asked 1000 women what a shampoo should be and do. They told me it must clean gently. It must leave hair glossy and pliant—and clean.
Oil—but olive oil
Investigating I found hair experts knew the value of an oil shampoo. I made hundreds of tests. And I found that olive oil was best.
It softened hair while it helped cleanse. So I added other fine ingredients to make a quick cleansing element. A gentle, penetrating, luxuriant lather. Results:
All grime removed. Dandruff eliminated. The scalp glowing. Hair silky as a baby's—lustrous and fine. Never dry and brittle.
Use it as you would any shampoo—a little makes a wonderful lather.
To please me, try it
I want you to grant me this courtesy: try PALMOLIVE SHAMPOO. You will thank me for this opportunity.
Make a test. See how it improves your hair.

A New Kodak

No. 1A Pocket Kodak Series II with Kodak Anastigmat Lens f.7.7

Pictures 2½ x 4¼
Price $22.00

The operation of this camera is strikingly different

TO bring this Kodak into play simply pull down the camera bed and the lens automatically springs into picture-making position.

To focus, instead of the familiar distance scale, merely turn the lens rim and accurate focus is thus secured from near views to infinity.

And even with such distinctive equipment, the lens on this focusing Pocket Kodak, Series II, at least halves the honors.

Kodak Anastigmat f.7.7, Eastman-made, cuts sharply clear to the film edge, and in this quality—a most important one—it knows no superior—anywhere, at any price. The result is sharp negatives of keen definition that are equally adapted to brilliant prints or splendid enlargements.

The No. 1A, Series II, is cleverly made to fit the pocket, smartly finished to please the eye and, like all Kodaks, is autographic.

At Your Kodak Dealer's

1 Slips from the pocket in a jiffy.

2 Springs into action with a snap.

3 Focused for sharp pictures with a turn.

CANNED GOODS

(COPYRIGHT)

By W. E. HILL

Canned Music. Why bother to dress for the opera, when music on the radio can be had right in one's room. Mr. Tully is listening to "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" in Swedish, sung by a delegation of school children of Swedish parents in Detroit.

Canned Power of the Mind. Bothwell has bought a little book entitled: "How to Acquire Will Power and Personality on Fifteen Minutes a Day." In three months' time, or even less, according to the little book. Bothwell, having achieved a mighty power of the mind, will be a leader of men and at the head of almost any profession.

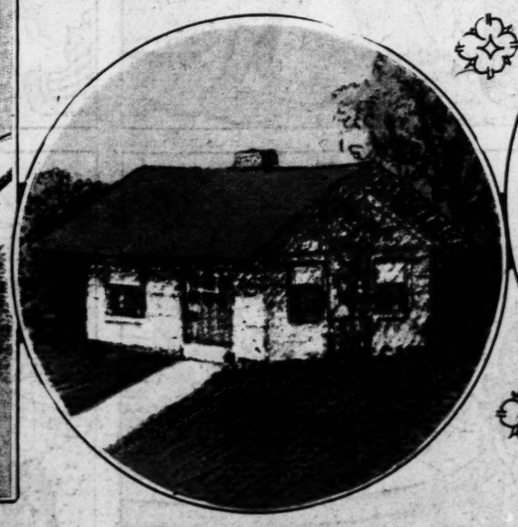
Canned Fame. This is Helene Heartease, the screen star (nee Flannery), who achieves instant fame and a limousine at Hollywood. Helen's dramatic ability is nobody's business, but she filmed well. The insert is one of Helene's admirers, who isn't getting on at all well with her algebra and doesn't give a hang either. Her mind is set on Hollywood, not algebra

Canned Public Welfare. State Senator August P. Wink it was who inaugurated "Better Baby Week." During that week all the babies born were, if possible, to be a little better than what one would expect in the general run of things. And those babies already born were to be freshened up and improved wherever possible. By bunching all this it was thus possible to get the baby welfare over with, leaving the following seven days and nights free for "Rubber Week," when every one was expected to purchase something in the rubber goods line.

Canned Wealth. Some day, if his luck turns, the man who decided fifteen years ago to get rich quick may corner the market.

Canned Social Success. Walter is reading a book on etiquette In a month's time he will be able to move in the very best society (if he can find it) and will know just what to do when the asparagus is passed.

Canned Beauty Culture. Mrs Strive is trying out a new beauty formula This one beats the others all hollow, because it guarantees instant beauty in five minutes instead of thirty-five There is a great deal of hope in Mrs. Strive's makeup. There's always the chance, you know, that if she picks the right beauty clay she will come out a second Mary Pickford



Canned Architecture This is the love nest that comes in pieces straight from the factory all ready to be put together

Canned Spiritual Needs. Mrs. Banshee doesn't waste a lot of time reading big thick books on the problems of right living. Not a bit of it. For five minutes each day she repeats to herself "Each day I am a little bit better in every known way than I was the day before"

Canned Culture. Beautiful lady on her way to a lecture on "Literacy Tendencies from the Reign of Charlemagne up to the Present Era," showing how eager for uplift we all are, provided the uplift requires no mental effort in the getting.
